—A very important conference on city evangelization is to be held in Cincinnati the second week in December, beginning on the 7th and closing on the 11th. It is to be interdenominational, and is designed to bring together, in the terms of the announcement, for discussion and suggestion, those who have given the deepest study to the various perils with which the cities threaten our civilization, and those who have been most successful in reaching the masses with Christian influence. The programme, so far as arranged, provides for ten papers, five on the evils and five on the remedies, as follows: Evils—"The Menace of the Modern City to our Civilization;" "Socialism;" "The Homeless Classes;" "Church Neglect, as Caused by the Strife between Labor and Capital;" "Sabbath Desecration." Remedies—"Christian Work for the Population of Foreign Parentage;" "A Religious Census;" "Sunday-school Mission Work;" "Evangelistic Methods;" "The Organization of a Church for Work;" "Question Drawer." Among those who are to participate in the discussions are Drs. Washington Gladden, E. P. Goodwin, R. M. Hatfield, R. S. Macarthur, A. H. Bradford, and A. F. Schauffler.

—The Swedish Lutherans celebrated the anniversary of Gustavus Adolphus on the 6th of November. Anniversary celebrations were observed throughout the Swedish synods on that day, the grandest, however, taking place at Augustana College, at Rock Islad, Ill. Probably no Lutheran institution in the land evinces such energy and can record such a success as this school. It is but a few years since Professor Weidner has been called there to the English theological chair, but now he states that about one-fourth of all the members of the Augustana Synod have been students at the school since he has been teacher.

—The opponents of Christianity in Japan have banded together to resist the spread of the Christian religion. Several such associations exist in different cities; but in no case do they appear to be numerous. In one instance, about twenty of them, carrying flags, inscribed: "Expel Christ, the Robber." entered a Greek Chapel; but caused no disturbance. In Osaka and Yokohama they have held public meetings; and in the former place, violence was used toward those who took the part of the Christians. Not infrequently the Buddhist priests are roused by the progress of the Christian religion to try to refute its doctrines. In one case, when Christian services were announced in a town where there is no church, the priests secured a room adjoining the building in which the missionary was to speak. A celebrated Buddhist orator was secured to defend Buddhism. The people went in large numbers to hear him; but when they found that his whole speech was to be a violent attack on other religions, they left, and went to hear the missionary who, without reference to Buddhism, preached a plain Gospel discourse. The people were pleased with it, and said: "If that is Christian teaching, Christianity is good. The priests," they said, "have a losing cause; they are not able to defend their religion.

SUSTAINED BY HIS CO LABORERS.

RESOLUTIONS OF SYMPATHY FOR BRO. IMES, OF MEMPHIS.

Whereas, Rev. B. A. Imes, pastor of the Second Congregational church of Memphis, Tenn., because of his using his liberty to declare God's word, as he understands it, in reference to the evils of secret societies, has been repeatedly warned of danger to his person, and has also been notified to leave the city in two weeks; therefore;

RESOLVED, 1. That we express our sympathy with brother Imes in the case: that we approve the stand he has taken for the liberty of the pulpit and the press; and that we denounce this assault upon free speech as an assault upon all liberty, and as coming with an ill grace from a people, who, as Bro. Imes says, "owe all their freedom and citizenship to those, who under God, gave their lives in defence of free speech and of free manhood."

2. That we would repeat the admonition sent out by the American Missionary Association to all its teachers and preachers, asking them to give attention to the evils of secret societies among the colored people, and by all appropriate means to seek to avert them.

Adopted unanimously by the Central South Congregational Association, meeting in Little Rock, Nov. 5–8th, embracing the churches of Tennessee, Arkansas and two in Alabama. JOS. E. ROY.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year, clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

LODGE NOTES.

—The Chicago papers announce "Mrs Sarah E. Fuller of Boston, president of the Woman's Relief Corps, the auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic," at the Grand Pacific hotel looking after lodge matters, in consultation with the president of the Illinois department, Julia T. Sine, and her staff.

—Geueral John C. Smith, Lieutenant Gevernor of Illinois, Past Grand Commander of the Knight Templars of Illinois, and who holds high office among the Odd-fellows, has just been made Brigadier General for the State, of the "Patriarchs Militant," the new degree for Odd-fellow aristocrats, the "military and religious" department of the order.

—Pennsylvania Odd fellows have the largest number of lodges and the largest number of encampments, with the largest membership in each body, of any State in the Union. The lodges number 904; encampments, 204; brothers, 80,504; patriarchs, 11,864. Ohio comes next.

—The number of Odd-fellow's lodges in Germany, according to the official report of 1885, is eighry-five in forty-eight cities.

—The "Home Circle" is a new order, a branch of the Royal Arcanum. It is said by its members to be more of a social order than the Arcanum, because it admits the wives and lady friends of the Royal Areanum members, and also insures them, if they pass the medical examination. If they do not pass they may become social members and enjoy the meetings with their friends. There are now four councils in this city with a membership of about 300.

—The Supreme Temple, Patriarchal Circle, in a meeting held in this city last week, resolved not to unite with the Patriarch Militant, an order created by the Sovereign Grand Lodge, F. O. O. F., at a meeting recently held at Baltimore. The resolution was adopted after a heated discussion and a vote of 38 to 25. The Patriarchal Circle was a kind of "upper ten," Knight Templar degree, and met the antagonism of influential Odd-fellows, local lodges, of grand lodges, and was commanded to terminate its existenee by the Supreme Grand Lodge. So bitter was the antagonism that two years ago the Supreme Lodge ordered the expulsion from Odd-fellowship of all who retained their connection with the circle. The Patriarchal Circle then continued as a distinct order.

—The National GrangePatrons of Husbandry assembled in its nineteenth annual session, and was opened in the sixth degree, in Boston, Nov. 11th. The Committee on Credentials reported that twenty-nine States were clear upon the treasurer's books and entitled to representation. One hundred and fifty dormant granges have been revived during the past fiscal year throughout the country.

—The appeal of the Grand Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen of Pennsylvania, to amend its charter so as to better control subordinate lodges, is denied in an opinion delivered by Justice Sterrett in the Supreme Court.

—The active membership rolls of the Grand Army of the Republic contain over 290,000 names, a somewhat larger number than generally is supposed. In addition to this number it is thought that there are now living nearly 50,000 veterans of the civil war not enrolled in the Grand Army.

—Henry E. Sharpe has begun a libel suit for $50,000 at St. Louis against P. V. Powderly and the executive board of the Knights of Labor. Sharpe alleges that Powderly et al. had published at Scrantou, Pa. that he had been expelled, for unbecoming conduct, from a lodge of the K. of L.

—In Grand Army "General Order, No. 7," just issued to the various posts throughout the country from headquarters at Washington, the purposes and work of the "Veterans' Rights Union," as existing in New York and Pennsylvania, are commended, and they recommend the organization of similar agencies throughout the several Grand Army jurisdictions. The circular also calls attention to the fact that this action of the National Encampment intimates no purpose to relax the settled and determined policy of the Grand Army of the Republic to hold aloof from every form of political action or alliance; but that it invites such proper organization and persuasion as may seem necessary to secure the execution without equivocation or evasion of those laws of the land, which, alike honorable to those who enacted them and just to the intended beneficiaries, remain among the most cherished of our testimonials, and are the assurance of benefits fully earned and which ought to be maintained." This as an official declaration, plainly enough indicates that the mission of the G. A. R. is political enough for any emergency. Gen. Logan evidently so understands it, and so did "Dick" Oglesby a year or so ago when he joined, in order to get elected Governor of Illinois.

Until January next we will send five sample copies of the Cynosure to one address for TEN CENTS! Has the Cynosure been a household blessing to you? then we want you to help us make it such to your relatives, friends and neighbors. We are dependent on your good will, good word and good work for that which will make this paper what you wish it to be, and give it the circulation you wish it to have. How many homes will you introduce the Cynosure into in the next two months?

☞The above is not clearly understood by some. Just five sample copies of the Cynosure, and no more, will be sent to one address for ten cents. This offer will be continued until January.

Some of these sample copies bring forth fruit; for example, a letter just received says: "Having read one copy I do sincerely believe it to be one of the best papers I have ever read." And a subscription is enclosed.

"BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS."

The issue of this book at this time is opportune, for it provides for reformers a beautiful and timely gift for the holidays. President J. Blanchard says: "At the risk of being deemed an enthusiast, I would rather have written this book of Miss Flagg's than to have written Gray's Elegy, conquered Quebec or written Uncle Tom's Cabin, and we risk the opinion that every careful reader of Miss Flagg's volume who votes with the American party will concur with us in this estimate of it, extravagant as it may seem."

MARKET REPORTS

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2		@90
No. 3		75
Winter No 2		91
Corn—No. 2	44	@45
Oats—No. 2		27½
Rye—No. 2		61
Bran per ton		10 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@12 00
Mess pork per bbl	8 50	9 50
Butter, medium to best	11	@24
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 60	@1 71
Flax		1 16
Broom corn	03½	@ 07
Potatoes	50	@ 60
Hides—Green to dry flint	07½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	4 95	@5 75
Common to good	1 25	@4 80
Hogs	2 65	@3 85
Sheep	2 00	@3 50

NEW YORK.

Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	92½	@1 03¾
Spring		94½
Corn	38	@55
Oats	30	@41
Mess Pork	9 25	10 25
Eggs		16½
Butter	7	26
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 40	@5 25
Hogs	3 25	@3 57
Sheep	1 50	@3 00

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

MISCELLANEOUS.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

STEIN'S SAFETY Stocking Supporters.

NO MORE BLOOD-STRANGLING GARTERS.
RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE LEADING PHYSICIANS.

Children's one attachment,	8c	a pair.
" two "	10c
Misses' " "	13c
Ladies' " "	15c
Misses' with belt "	20c	"
Ladies' with belt "	25c	"
Stocking, Abdominal, and Catamenial Bandage supporter combined	50c	"
Health Skirt Supporter	25c	"
Brighton Gents' Garter	15c	"

FOR SALE BY ALL FIRST-CLASS STORES, or on receipt of price in 2c stamps, by LEWIS STEIN, Owner and Manufacturer, 178 Center St., New York.

AN INIMITABLE SUMMER RESORT.

The largest majority of health or pleasure-seeking tourists that have not the requisite time and wealth to visit the mountain resorts of Colorado or the cool lake retreats of Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, long for a resort that will combine the benefits of easy access, pure air and enough natural attraction to entertain and invigorate the spirit. Origon, Ogle county, Illinois, possesses the combination in the greatest degree: On the Burlington route, but 99 miles from Chicago, and reached from that point twice per day in less than four hours, with good and ample hostelries, numbers of springs gushing forth pure and health-giving water; the beautiful Rock river; towering hills and massive rocks, one can well imagine that all the popular and interesting resorts of the continent have been merged together to be enjoyed at this delightful place. Detailed information furnished upon application to Perceval Lowell, General Passenger Agent C., B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, or M. L. Ettinger, General Ticket Agent, C. & I. R. R., Rochelle, Ill.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—

Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.

SING THEM!

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.

Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Useful to Every Lady!

Madame Worth's New Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving designs and directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work, and all kinds of Fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 25 Cents.

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Alphabets, Edgings, Cross Stitch, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool, Applique, Kate Greenaway designs for Doylies, etc. Handkerchief borders, Holbein Work, Java Canvas, Fringes, Toilet Cushions, Foot Stools, Work Baskets, Work Bags, Scrap Baskets, Table-top Patterns, Folding Screens, Sofa Cushions, Slipper Patterns, Wall Pockets, Towel Racks, Tidies, Catchalls, Chair Bolsters, School Bags, Patch Work, Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Bibs, Shoe Bags, Jewel Boxes, Pillow Shams, and many others. Plain Directions with each Design.

This book gives practical directions for making Wax Flowers and Painting on Silk, etc.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion to all who love fancy work. Price, post-paid, only 25 Cents; Five Books for $1.00. Get four friends to send with you, and get your book free. Agents wanted. Address

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago

BATAVIA CONVENTION PAMPHLET.

A Staggering Blow!

Such was to Freemasonry the great NATIONAL CONVENTION held in BATAVIA, N. Y., September 1882. It gave the world

Thurlow Weed's Great Letter

On the abduction and murder of WILLIAM MORGAN in 1826, which has been the most widely published of any Anti-masonic document. The dedication of a noble granite monument to the memory of Morgan, and the able and eloquent addresses of the Convention make this a most valuable pamphlet.

SEE WHY.

It contains—
1. Portrait of Morgan.
2. Portrait of Thurlow Weed.
3. Fine picture of the Monument
4. The great letter of Thurlow Weed and his affidavit—almost the last public act of his life.
5. Address by J. E. Roy, D.D.
6. The monument oration by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.
7. Addresses on "Christian Politics" by Pres. J. Blanchard, on the Character of Freemasonry by Prof. E. D. Bailey, on the "Freedmen and Secret Societies" by Rev. H. H. Hinman; and very interesting personal and historical reminiscences.

READ ABOUT THIS GREAT HISTORICAL MEETING.

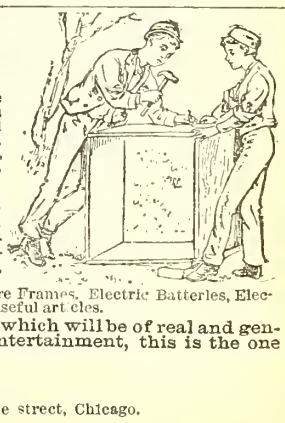
A handsome pamphlet. Price, 25 cents, postpaid. Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIA

Jenny June's Books for Ladies.

KNITTING AND CROCHET: A Guide to the Use of the Needle and the Hook Edited by JENNY JUNE. In arranging this new work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Knitting, Macramé, and Crochet Work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs and directions are given to Knit and Crochet Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc. etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published. Price, postpaid, 50 cents.



NEEDLE-WORK: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by JENNY JUNE. In this new book an attempt is made to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover and contains

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Needle-work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs in Needle-work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining-Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artists' Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Mufflers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doylies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs Photograph Cases—Book Covers etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of Needle-work. Price, postpaid, 50 cents. The two books for 90 cents. Five books for $2.00. Get four friends to send with you and get your book free. Stamps taken. Agents wanted.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

Boys' Useful Pastimes.

Boy's Useful Pastimes: Pleasant and profitable amusement for spare hours. BY PROF. ROBERT GRIFFITH, A. M. This volume comprises chapters on the use and care of tools, and detailed instruction by means of which boys can make, with their own hands, a large number of toys, household ornaments, scientific appliances, and many pretty, amusing and necessary articles for the play-ground, the home and out of doors. It is bound in showing how to make Boats, Steam Engines, Steamers, Rob-Sleds, Ice-Boats, Windmills, Aquariums, Hand Carts, Tops, Flags, Photograph Camera, Telephone, Telegraph, Microscope, Kaleidoscope, Steam Acrobats, Traps, Dog Houses, Bird Cages, Coons, Dove Cotes, Squirrel Cages, Summer Houses, Fences, Fountains, Furniture, Gymnasium, Step Ladders, Trunks, Nets, Wire Work, Clay Modeling, Brass Work, Picture Frames, Electric Batteries, Electroplating, Electrotyping, Running Mice, Wig-Wags and many other useful articles.

Handsome Cloth Binding, with 300 Illustrations,

In looking for a book to put into the hands of your boy which will be of real and genuine use, and at the same time a source of healthful entertainment, this is the one you should choose.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

DRINKING BOILING WATER.

Dr. John McLean, ex-President of Princeton College, now in good health at the age of ninety, said in an address to the graduating class of the Theological Seminary:

"For more than fifty years my drink, night and morning, has been boiling water sweetened, and with a small quantity of milk or cream, and not unfrequently at dinner also, especially after preaching or after public speaking.

"I did not begin this practice from any scruples as to the using of other drinks, but from a regard for my health. When a lad in my seventeenth year, and a member of the senior class, in the college here, from hard study and close confinement I became dyspeptic, and suffered much from this cause. The dyspepsia continued to trouble me for several years, affecting not a little my nervous system. Thinking that this might in a measure be due to the use of tea and coffee, of both of which I was very fond, I resolved to give them up, at least for a time, and to return to the use of my drink in childhood. I did so, and with the happiest result. Since that time, the year 1829, I have not taken a spoonful of tea or coffee.

"If exhausted by speaking in public or by mental effort, my usual resort is to a cup of boiling water, not only because it is a safer means of recruiting my impaired energy than the use of exhilerating drinks of any description, but for the further reason that it is as effective as any other, since by its heat and moisture it diffuses a pleasant warmth through the system, often removing the necessity for a stronger stimulant and all desire for it.

"Some years ago I happened to mention to a friend, one of the leading physicians of Philadelphia, what was my customary drink, upon which he replied that if one was unwell and knew not what ailed him, he could not do a better thing than sip a cup of boiling water as hot as he could take it, and upon repeating this remark to an eminent surgeon of New York City, he gave me to understand that he was fully of the same mind."

HEALING PROPERTIES OF WATER.

There is no remedy of such general application, and none so easily attainable as water, and yet nine persons in ten will pass it by in an emergency to seek for something of less efficacy. There are but few cases of illness where water should not occupy the highest place as a remedial agent.

A strip of flannel or a napkin folded lengthwise and dipped into hot water and wrung out and then applied around the neck of a child that has the croup, will surely bring relief in ten minutes.

A towel folded several times, dipped in hot water, wrung out and then applied over the seat of the pain in the toothache or neuralgia will generally give prompt relief. This treatment in cholic works like magic. We have known cases that have resisted other treatment for hours yield to this in ten minutes.

There is nothing that will so promptly cut short a congestion of the lungs, sore throat, or rheumatism, as hot water when applied promptly and thoroughly.

Pieces of cotton batting dipped in hot water and kept applied to old sores and new cuts, bruises, and sprains, is the treatment now generally adopted in hospitals.

Sprained ankle has been cured in an hour by showering it with hot water, poured from a height of three feet.

Tepid water acts promptly as an emetic, and hot water taken freely half an hour before bedtime is the best of cathartics in case of constipation, while it has a most soothing effect on the stomach and bowels. This treatment continued for a few months, with proper attention to diet, will alleviate any case of dyspepsia.—Oracle.

HOW TO COOK WATER.

We must tell you the old story of how the late Charles Delmonico used to talk about the new hot water cure. He said the Delmonicos were the first to recommend it to guests who complained of appetite. "Take a cup of hot water and lemon and you will feel better," was the formula adopted, and the cup of hot water and the lemon juice in it take away the insipidity. For this anti bilious remedy the caterers charged the price of a drink of their best liquors—twenty five cents or more—and certainly it was a wiser way than to spend small change in alcohol. "Few people know how to cook water," Charles used to affirm. "The secret is putting good, fresh water into a neat kettle, already quite warm, and setting the water to boiling quite quickly, and then taking it right off to use in tea, coffee, or other drinks, before it is spoiled. To let it steam and simmer and evaporate until the good water is all in the atmosphere, and the lime and iron and dregs only left in the kettle—bah! that is what makes a great many people sick, and is worse than no water at all." Every lady who reads this valuable receipt of a great and careful cook should never forget how to cook water.—Sel.

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE

REMEDY

—OF—

SWEET GUM

—AND—

MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

BOOKS.

Special list of books at very low prices. These books are second hand and in first-class shape for libraries, good as new:

	Pub. price	Our pr.
American Cyclopedia, 16 vol., cloth..	$80.00	$60.00
People's " 3 " 1-2 mor.	20.00	14.00
Shakespeare, 7 vol., Leipzig ed. 1-2 "	5.25	3.50
Zell's Cyclopedia (condensed), map..	6.50	4.00
Knight's History England 4 vol. cloth	4.00	2.50
Lippincott's Biographical Dictionary map.....	10.00	5.00
Shakespeare, Handy vol, cloth, 8 vol.	5.00	3.00
Carlyle's Wilhelm Meister, 3 vol. cloth	2.25	1.25
Success with Small Fruits, by E. P. Roe, cloth.....	5.00	2.50
"All Religions of World," cloth.....	3.50	1.75
How Women can Make Money, cloth	2.00	.75
Ladies of White House, cloth.....	3.50	1.25
Middlemarch, Geo Elliott, 2 vol. cloth	3.00	1.50
Art, its Laws and Reason, cloth.....	3.00	1.25
The Artist and his Mission, cloth.....	2.00	1.00
Taine's Ideal in Art, cloth.....	1.50	.75
Harvey's Meditations, cloth.....	1.50	.75
The Desert of Siam, by Bonar, cloth	1.50	1.00
Taine's English Literature, cloth.....	3.00	2.00
Ladies Repository bound, half morocco, years 1869, '70, '71, '74, per vol.....		1 25
Manual of English Literature, by Arnold, cloth.....	2 50	1.25
Shaw's American Literature..... ..	1.50	.75
The Teachings and Acts of Jesus of Nazareth, by W. C. Dill ald, cloth	1.00	.75

Any of the books in this list sent on receipt of price.

ARCADE PUB. CO

145--149 La Salle st., Chicago, Ill.

ATTENTION!

A Broom Brigade, composed of 16 young ladies of your church, is the most novel, attractive and entertaining exhibition, that can be gotten up with the least work and expense, and is the best medium to raise money to pay for anything connected with the church. After the exhibition the brooms and dust pans can be auctioned off, and have been known to bring from $5 to $18 each because they were carried by young ladies of the congregation whose friends prized them. Easy to learn; get one up in your church. I will send an illustrated book with full directions, for 25c., postpaid, or 16 for $3.50. Embracing School of the Soldier, Manual of the Broom, School of the Company, Instructions for Skirmishing, Silent Manual, etc. It captivates the audience; a very enjoyable entertainment.

Address, Lieut. JOS. H. BARNETT, 162 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cures BLOOD Diseases, CANCER, ECZEMA, Salt Rheum, etc., when all other remedies fail.

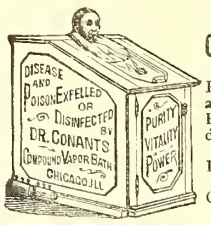
Send for 20-page descriptive circular and testimonials.

D. NEEDHAM'S SON'S

World renowned Red Clover Blossoms and Fluid and Solid Extracts of the Blossoms, 116 and 118 Dearborn street, Chicago.

"NOTES FOR BIBLE STUDY."

32-PAGE MONTHLY. FIFTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.



Commended in the strongest terms by C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Major Whittle, Rev. Dr. Brookes, the late Rev. Dr. MacKay, and hundreds of others.

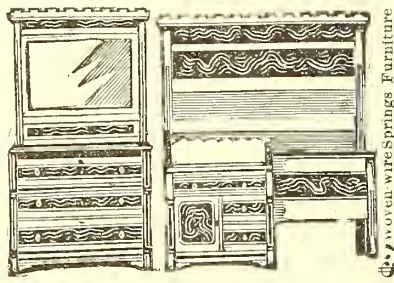
SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 36 CENTS.

CLUB RATES: To one address (If to separate address, add 3 cents per copy), 6 to 10 copies, each, 30 cents over 10 to 50 copies, each, 25 cents; over 50 copies, each, 20 cents.

P. S.—Parties subscribing now will receive the NOTES until the end of 1886. Address

S. R. BRIGGS, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

DR. CONANT'S CompoundVaporBaths



FOR HOME USE.

Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.

Ladies—Room 5.

Gents—Room 6.

Call or send for circular.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.

The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit of each Customer. Open evenings.

Woven wire Springs Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER,

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre, said to a lady of the haut-ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. MME. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Proprietor, 48 Bond St., New York. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers throughout the United States, Canadas, and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

THE LILY OF PURITY

This beautiful Lily is one of the rarest novelties known to Florists, and it is by rare good fortune that we are able to offer it as a PREMIUM to our Subscribers and Readers for a limited time. This lovely Lily is PURE WHITE and has a delicate fragrance—one Lily filling the house or yard with its delicious perfume. It has another valuable peculiarity—that of blooming two to four times without rest. By planting it in a mixture of equal parts sand and loam, in 3-inch pots, a plant will usually be produced twenty inches high, bearing from twenty to forty flowers at one time. One on exhibition in New York bore 150 Lilies.

$5.00 IN GOLD premium to the subscriber who produces the largest number of Lilies on a single stalk from the premium bulb. A single bulb is sold by Florists at $1.00. We have imported a large number direct from Bermuda, and are able to offer ONE BULB FREE BY MAIL to anyone who subscribes for six months at fifty cents, or two bulbs to anyone who subscribes at $1.00 from now to Jan. 1, 1887; the postage (five cents on one bulb and eight on two bulbs) to be remitted with subscription price. This offer is limited to October 1, 1885. Bulbs will be ready for delivery about Sept. 15, for Fall planting. Specimen copies of HOUSEKEEPER and new Premium List for 1885-6 to any address.

BUCKEYE PUB. CO., Minneapolis, Minn.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.

DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY

sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin.,

Beaver Dam, Wis.

ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy. Sold under POSITIVE GUARANTY. Sample FREE.

L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

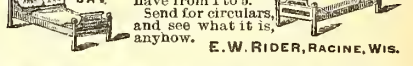
WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

Man Wanted SALARY $75 to $100 for our business in his locality. Responsible house. References exchanged. GAY & BROS. 12 Barclay St., N. Y.

WOMAN OR MAN WANTED TO MAKE $25 Per Cent. PROFIT. taking orders for our celebrated oil portraits. Previous knowledge of the business unnecessary. $2.25 Outfit Free. The agent realizes $66 profit per week on only 4 orders per day. Reilly Bros. & Co., 444 Broome St., N. Y

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.



Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

MAGIC LANTERNS

And STEREOPTICONS, all prices. Views illustrating every subject for PUBLIC EXHIBITIONS, etc. A profitable business for a man with small capital. Also Lanterns for Home Amusement. 136 page Catalogue free.

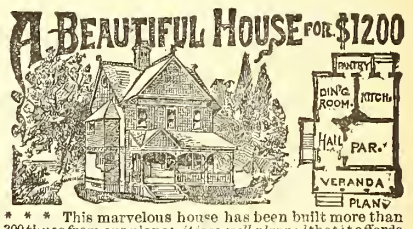
McALLISTER, Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

AGENTS Wanted! Rider's Improved Pillow Sham Holder. Agents have grand success. Housekeepers will have from 1 to 5. Send for circulars, and see what it is, anyhow.

E. W. RIDER, RACINE, WIS.

FREE $2 SAMPLES

fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago



HOW PRINTING PAYS

"The Proof of the Pudding," &c. How richly it pays to own a Model Press is shown in a handsome little book, containing several hundred "proofs," from the 15,000 people who have Model Presses. Business men, Clergymen, Teachers, Boys, Girls, persons out of work,—everybody interested. A Press and Outfit complete, from $5.00 to $10.00 and up. Book mailed free. Address,

The Model Press Co., Limited, 912 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FOR $1200

* * * This marvelous house has been built more than 300 times from our plans; it is so well planned that it affords ample room even for a large family. 1st floor shown above; on 2d floor are 4 bed rooms and in attic 2 more. Plenty of Closets. The whole warmed by one chimney.

Large illustrations and full description of the above as well as of 39 other houses, ranging in cost from $400 up to $6,500, may be found in "SHOPPELL'S MODERN LOW-COST HOUSES," a large quarto pamphlet, showing also how to select sites, get loans, &c. Sent postpaid on receipt of 50c. Stamps taken, or send $1 bill and we will return the change. Address, BUILDING PLAN ASSOCIATION, (Mention this Paper.) 24 Beekman St., (Box 2702,) N. Y.

Lesson Quarterly.

Contains the same matter as the Light and Life Lesson Leaf, bound in a quarterly form, with maps and other helps. It also contains many suggestions and instructions concerning the management of the Sunday-school. Price, per quarter, 3 cents.

T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.

106 Franklin street Chicago, Ill.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

IN BRIEF.

Maj. Powell of the geological survey, has discovered in New Mexico, near California Mountain, what he pronounces to be the oldest human habitations upon the American continent.

It is estimated on a rough calculation that there are at least 2,000,000 single men in France who have means to marry, who are of an age to marry, and who have no special reason for not marrying.

Prof. Maria Mitchell of Vassar College celebrated her 67th birthday a few days ago. The undergraduates presented her with a jelly cake of sixty-seven layers—one for each year—which was raised to the lady's room by means of a derrick.

General Grant's pocket knife, presented to the New York World for the benefit of the Grant memorial fund, sold for $100 to Dr. C. B. Webster, of Sheffield, Eng. Dr. Webster presented the knife to Gen. Grant while on his trip around the world, and it was lost at Long Branch several years ago.

Miss St. Pierre, the Tennessee heiress, thinks she can elevate the poor white people of the South. She intends to form colonies and give them houses and work. She will give each family timber to build a house and a ten years' lease of twenty acres of land.

Mr. Bronson Alcott was lately asked by an eminent writer what he had meant by once saying in a lecture: If I, who am is ing I, think things, I am really thinging the thing that things things." "Did I say that?" asked Mr. Alcott. "The newspapers report you as saying it." "Well," said Mr. Alcott, "if they reported it I suppose I said it, and I know it meant something at the time. But I am sure I don't know now what I did mean."

A lady living on the Blue Ridge in Rappahannock county, Virginia, had 12 stands of bees which were very valuable until a distillery was started in the neighborhood. Since that the bees fly over there and get very drunk and are now of little profit. Too much "peach and honey."

It is said that the chart prepared in the Forestry Division of the Agricultural Department at Washington shows that the United States contains 455,000,000 acres of forest, which are disappearing at the rate of 25,000,000 acres a year.

The colored people have nearly 1,000,000 children in school; publish over 80 newspapers; furnish nearly 16,000,000 school teachers; have about 15,000 students in high schools and colleges; 2,000,000 members in the Methodist and Baptist churches; own 680,000 acres of land in Georgia alone, and over 5,000,000 in the whole South. The increase in the production of cotton since emancipation has been 1,000,000 bales per year, or one third more than that raised while working under the lash; and they had in the fraudulent Freedmen's bank $56,000,000.—Christian-at-Work.

Doctors say that mothers who take pride in the weight of their newly born children should weigh them as soon as possible after birth. Children lose weight during the first three days of life, sometimes amounting to twelve ounces or more. It takes nearly a week to regain the weight they bad at birth.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

For Wakefulness.

Dr. Wm. P. Clothier, Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I prescribed it for a Catholic priest, who was a hard student, for wakefulness, extreme nervousness, etc. He reports great benefit."

THE INDEPENDENT.

Religious and Literary Weekly.

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

Subscription $3.00 per year. 75c 3 months.

Send postal for free specimen copy.

251 BROADWAY.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper covers, 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the United States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners.... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,

Toronto Willard Tract Depository,

TORONTO, CANADA.

Books of Interest.

MADAGASCAR AND FRANCE.

By George A. Shaw. A full account of the great island of Madagascar, its inhabitants, history, productions, missions, etc., together with a full history of the recent attempts of the French to seize the island, written by Mr. Shaw, who was a missionary from London. Fully illustrated and map. 12mo. 438 pp. 20 cuts. $1.50.

HOME-LIFE IN CHINA.

By Mrs. Bryson, Wuchang, China. A description of every-day life among Chinese homes, written by one many years a missionary among them. It is full of incidents and detail, and has a full account of mission work among the people. 12mo. 314 pp. 22 cuts $1.25

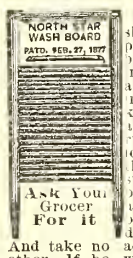
American Tract Society,

150 Nassau Street, New York; 52 Bromfield St., Boston; 1512 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; 93 State St., Rochester; 152 Wabash Av., Chicago.

A. B. C. STEAM COOKED CRUSHED WHITE OATS.

A.B.C. Wheat, A.B.C. Barley, A.B.C. Maize,

Hulled, Steam-Cooked Desiccated.



BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!!

American Breakfast Cereals.

Made from the Finest Grains. All Impurities removed. Prepared for the table in ten minutes. Ask for A. B. C. Brand only. (Registered Trade Mark)

PATENTED.

For sale by all Grocers. Send for circulars, etc., to THE CEREALS M'F'G Co., 83 Murray Street, N. Y. (Incorporated 1875.)

Ask Your Grocer For it

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents:

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long. We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

The best is the cheapest.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

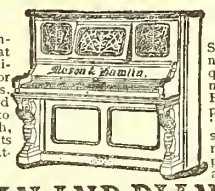
MANUFACTURED BY

PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.

82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

Readings and Recitations!

100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No. 24 NOW READY.



This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings, combining Sentiment, Oratory, Pathos, Humor, Fun. 216 pages. Price 30cts., postpaid. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants Something New should get the whole set. 24 Nos. only $4.80. Every number different. Nothing repeated. Club rates and full list of contents free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Also, MODEL DIALOGUES, 382 pages, $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Mason & Hamlin

ORGANS: Highest Honors at all Great World's Exhibitions for eighteen years. One hundred Styles, $22. to $900. For Cash, Easy Payments or Rented. Catalogues free.

PIANOS: New mode of Stringing. Do not require one-quarter as much tuning as Pianos on the prevailing "wrest-pin" system. Remarkable for purity of tone and durability.

ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

154 Tremont St., Boston. 46 E. 14th St. (Union Sq.), N. Y. 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Headquarters for the Northwest FOR TEMPERANCE PUBLICATIONS.

A Complete Stock of all the NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S Publications.

Catalogue sent free on application.

C. H. WHITING,

Publisher and Bookseller,

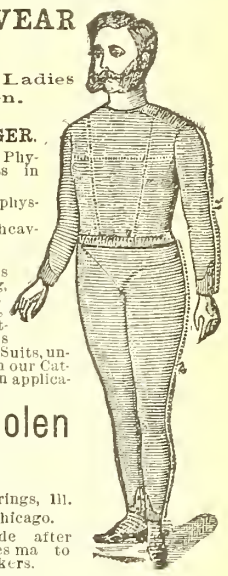
137 Wabash ave. - - Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.



System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

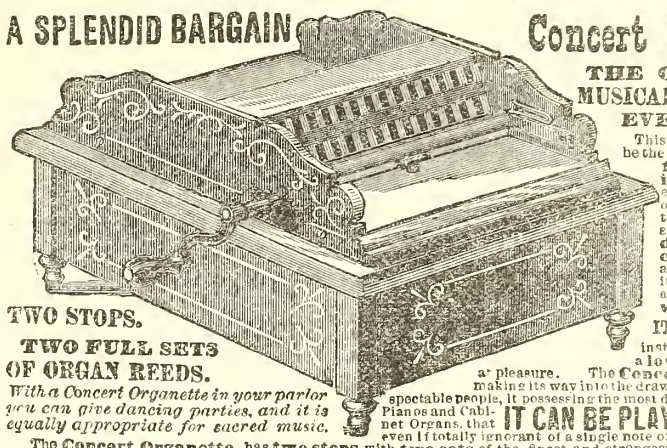
Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health

Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Ches and Kidney Protectors Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.



Factory: Western Springs, Ill.

Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure Special prices ma to clergymen and the workers.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

A SPLENDID BARGAIN Concert Organette!

THE CHEAPEST MUSICAL INSTRUMENT EVER OFFERED

This is universally owned to be the most complete, perfect, and superior instrument of its kind ever manufactured. Not only is its form more artistic, and its works more simple, but it contains double the number of reeds to be found in any other instrument of its description. It has also the unusual and most valuable quality that instantly from a high to a low key and back again at pleasure. The Concert Organette is fast making its way into the drawing rooms of our most respectable people, it possessing the most desirable advantage over Pianos and Cabinet Organs, that even if totally ignorant of a single note of music.

IT CAN BE CHANGED

IT CAN BE PLAYED BY ANYONE

TWO STOPS. TWO FULL SETS OF ORGAN REEDS.

With a Concert Organette in your parlor you can give dancing parties, and it is equally appropriate for sacred music.

The Concert Organette, has two stops with two sets of the finest and strongest Organ Reeds, 28 in number. It rivals the Cabinet Organ in the power, fullness and sweet melodiousness of its tones all through the register Price, only $12.00 each. We have made up our mind to enormously increase our sales, and to do it in the shortest time possible, we make this

EXTRAORDINARY OFFER we will sell this splendid Twelve Dollar Concert Organette for Only Seven Dollars TO ANY PERSON WHO WILL ORDER BEFORE FEB. 1st 1886, So Take Advantage of this offer now and send your order at once. We send free, with each order, a good selection of music and guarantee every instrument perfect. We will send C. O. D., if Three Dollars is sent with the order, the balance, Four Dollars can be paid at express office when the Organette is received. Send P. O. Money Order or Registerd Letter to World M'f'g, Co. 122 Nassau Street, New York

Burt's Selected Gems of Song.

Allegro.

A choice collection of SIXTY-TWO FAVORITE SONGS, from the works of the BEST COMPOSERS, with accompaniments for PIANO and ORGAN. The titles of the songs in this book are:

All on Account of Eliza—Bailiff's Daughter—Banbury Cross—A Bird in Hand—Blue Alsatian Mountains—Bob up Serenely—Boogie Man—The Bridge—Chorus of Charity Girls—Come Back to Erin—Danube River—Douglas, Tender and True—Down by the Old Mill Stream—Dream Song—Every Inch a Sailor—The Fairy Jane—Five O'clock in the Morning—Flee as a Bird—Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by—Home, Sweet Home—I'm Called Little Buttercup—In the Gloaming—It Was a Dream—Johnny Morgan—Katy's Letter—Kerry Dance—Killarney—Lardy Dah—Let Me Dream Again—Letter in the Candle (Quartette Chorus)—The Lost Chord—Lover and the Bird—Lullaby (Fritz)—Maggie's Secret—Man in the Moon—My Love Beyond the Sea—Nancy Lee—Naughty Clara—No Place Like Home—O Fair Dove, O Fond Dove—O Fred, Tell Them to Stop—Old Timbertoes—Over the Garden Wall—Robin Adair—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Smiles May End in Tears—Some Day—Speak to Me—Speed Well—Still Love's Dream I Cherish—Take Back the Heart—Tar's Farewell—Thirteen, Fifteen, Fourteen—Torpedo and the Whale—True Blue—Turnham Toll—Twickenham Ferry—Two's Company, Three's None—A Warrior Bold—The Watermill—We'd Better Bide A'wee—Whoa, Emma—You Never Miss the Water.

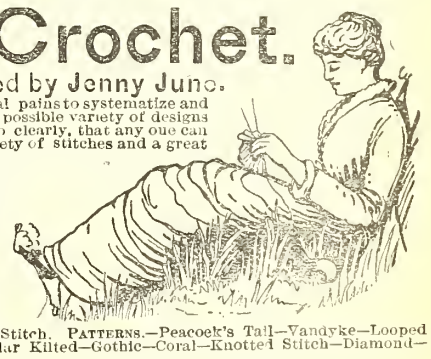
REMEMBER! This Book Contains 68 POPULAR VOCAL SONGS,

with music, full sheet-music size, and bound with a handsome engraved cover. This is the best collection of Songs and Ballads ever offered in one book.

Mailed free to any address an receipt of 60 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED—STOCK-DOCTOR



FOR THE PICTORIAL COMPLETE

Embracing Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees and Dogs. By Hon. J. Periam and Dr. A. H. Baker, V. S. Covers every subject pertaining to Stock of Farm both in Health and Disease. Two charts for telling ages of Horses and Cattle; 720 Engravings and 14 Colored Plates. Farmers clear $100 a month. ACT NOW! Exclusive Territory. Book absolutely without competition. For confidential terms and "Extracts from Agent's Report," etc., address

N. D. THOMPSON PUB. CO., St. Louis, Mo., or New York.

Knitting & Crochet.

Edited by Jenny June.

Knitting and Crochet.—A guide to the use of the Needle and the Hook. In arranging this work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over 200 Illustrations.

The knitting stitches illustrated and described are: To Cast On with One and Two Needles—To Narrow—To Widen—To Purl—To Cast Off—To Slip a Stitch—Round Knitting—To Join Together—Edge Stitch. PATTERNS.—Peacock's Tail—Vandyke—Looped Knitting—Cane Work—Leaf and Trellis—Triangular Kilted—Gothic—Coral—Knotted Stitch—Diamond—Wave—Cable Twist—Stripes, etc.

MARRAME STITCHES.—Solomon's Knot—Simple Chain—Spiral Cord—Waved Bar—Spherical Knot—Slanting Rib—Open Knotting—Picot Heading—Cross Knot—Fringe—Tassels, etc.

CROCHET STITCHES.—Chain Stitch—Single Crochet—Double Crochet—Half Treble—Treble—Double Treble—Cross Treble—Slip Stitch—Tricot—Muscovite Tricot—Shell Patterns—Basket Patterns—Raised Spot Stitch—Ring Stitch—Hair Pin Crochet—Crochet Lace, etc.

DESIGNS AND DIRECTIONS are given to Knit and Crochet—Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Couforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bootees—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street Chicago.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

The fat stock show opened in this city last Tuesday evening in the presence of an immense crowd, estimated at 15,000. Gov Oglesby made a speech. The show continued to attract large crowds all the week. The Hereford cattle led in the prize-winning this year. Large numbers of the prize cattle were sold at high prices. The poultry exhibit was the largest that has ever been seen in the West. The butterine interest, after a bitter fight, was admitted to a place in the building, where several of the leading manufacturers of the article made a showing on Saturday.

The Chicago city council passed a resolution to set apart so much of the fourth story of the City Hall as may be deemed necessary for the public library, also authorizing the Library Board to expend $25,000, or as much as may be necessary, to fit up the rooms for the library.

Three Italians who horribly murdered a companion of the same nationality in this city last spring were hung Saturday in th jail yard. The day before Mulkowski, who murdered a woman for her money, was sentenced to be hung.

The corn crop of Nebraska is estimated at $150,000,000 bushels

Fire started on the Strand at Galveston, Tex., early Friday morning and swept southeastward with great rapidity, destroying 400 dwellings and residences, many of the inmates narrowly escaping. A high wind which prevailed at the time aided the progress of the flames, which found easy prey in the wooden structures covering the burned district. One thousand families were rendered temporarily homeless, and the financial loss will approximate $2,500,000, with less than $1,000,000 insurance. Already the leading citizens have taken measures to relieve the sufferers, and telegrams tendering assistance and sympathy have been received from many cities. The buildings on forty and one-half blocks, or 100 acres were swept away by the fire.

At Rockfield, Wis., Thursday morning, the little daughter of Jacob Dhein threw a dynamite cartridge into the kitchen stove, the explosion wrecking the house, killing the child, fatally wounding her mother, and dangerously wounding the father and other persons. The head of the family dog was blown off.

On his Palo Alto ranch, near Menlo Park, Cal., Senator Sanford proposes to establish a great university, which he will endow to the extent of $20,000,000.

In August, 1884, Joseph Dyer, aged 20, of Cape Elizabeth, Me., was thrown from a wagon and killed, the remains being interred a few days later. Recently the parents received word that their dead son was alive and well. They resolved to exhume the coffin, which was done, and removed it to the family residence. As the lid was about to be removed the supposed dead man walked into the house. It is surmised that medical students dug up the body, found that life was not extinct, and treated Dyer until he fully recovered.

The mysterious murder of Dr. Allen at Sandwich, Ill., six years ago, is recalled by the full confession of James Young, a convict in Joliet prison, from Carroll county. On the evidence of a female detective William Thomas was convicted of the murder, and has already served six years of a sentence of seventeen. Young was taken to court at Sycamore, Ill., and reiterated his former statements, detailing how the murder was committed. A jury reported that Young was neither an idiot nor a lunatic; and Judge Kellum imposed a sentence of life imprisonment.

An explosion of giant powder in Bulldoning's mine, at Silver Cliff, Col., Friday evening, resulted in a fire which destroyed the shaft-house and hoisting works. Twelve men are imprisoned in the mine, and Superintendent W H. Foss is missing. There is great excitement at the scene of the disaster.

Reports of the late cyclone in the South say that in Coos county, Texas, it moved with awful velocity and a terrific roar, crushing dwellings and out-buildings, scattering the contents far and wide, and carrying death and destruction in its pathway. Hardy Pitman and three children, 6, 7, and 8 years old, and also a 9 year-old boy, were all instantly killed, the head of one child was instantly twisted off and carried 200 yards from the body. The storm, accompanied by torrents of rain, started on the Cahaba river, passed through Dallas, Perry, and Bibb counties, Alabama, leaving a dead waste of forests, plantations, houses, and villas. The track of the cyclone was half a mile wide. Thirteen persons have been found killed outright and forty or fifty dangerously wounded. A number of persons cannot be accounted for.

Ten of the twelve Mormon apostles sign a notice in this evening's church organ, the Deseret News that Albert Carrington, one of the twelve apostles, "after a full and patient trial" by the authorities of the church, has been excommunicated from the Latter-day Saints for adultery and lascivious conduct. No particulars are given.

The Illinois Supreme Court rendered a decision refusing to grant a new trial to Mackin, who was convicted of perjury in connection with the Eighteenth Ward election frauds of a year ago. The court held that the finding of the indictment was proper, and that the Criminal Court made no error in the trial.

At Bellarie, Ohio, Saturday night, Kate St. John, aged 19, fell while skating, and was pronounced dead by physicians. She was removed to her home and preparations for her burial begun. On Sunday signs of life were discovered, and it was thought she would recover. Syncope was attributed to tight lacing and over exertion.

A dispatch from Regina states that Sherwood, Chief of the Dominion Police, arrived there Sunday morning, bringing the Governor General's warrant for the execution of Riel.

There were 235 deaths of small-pox in Montreal and the adjoining municipalities last week and 304 the previous week.

The dispute over the annexation of Roumelia by Bulgaria has been brought to a crisis by a declaration of war by Servia against Bulgaria. The Servian army crossed the frontier in three divisions, and meeting little opposition occupied a number of Bulgarian villages. The Bulgarian troops are advancing by forced marches to meet them. The war forces of Servia are 170,412 men; of Bulgaria, 60,000 and of Eastern Roumelia 64,000.

The expulsion of Russian Poles from Prussia continues unabated. In one settlement alone 2,000 Poles were ordered to settle up their affairs and at once quit Prussian territory forever. While Prussia is driving thousands from their homes Russia has issued an edict refusing to receive them unless they can prove that they were born on Russian territory. Many of those expelled have resided in Prussia so long that they have forgotten their native language. The cruelty inflicted on these unfortunate subjects has produced a widespread feeling of bitterness against Bismarck.

FOREIGN.

The British government has declared war against Burmah, King Theebaw of that country having issued a proclamation declaring that he will not accept the proposals of the Indian government, at the same time calling on the Burmese to defend their country. The British troops were to cross the frontier Sunday.

Advices from Mandalay state that the Burmese have detained the steamer which was sent there to bring away Europeans, and threaten to burn her if she attempts to leave. Foreigners are not allowed to leave Mandalay.

The Burmese envoy at Paris has gone to ask Prince Bismarck to arrange with England for a settlement of the dispute between Burmah and Great Britain.

It is stated in Paris that the French government has resolved to summon the Prince of Monaco to prohibit gaming-tables at that place.

Seventy-five thousand men have been raised in Eastern Roumelia. Duelling is going on continuously. Prince Alexander and Premier Karaveloff will remain at Phillippopolis until a final decision has been reached by the Balkan conference.

The Mexican government is building a sewer for draining the Valley of Mexico. The plans involve the construction of a canal from Lake Tezcoco to Lake Zumpango, then the water is to pass through a tunnel five and a half miles long. The estimated expense of the work is $4,000,000. Local sanitary authorities estimate that the drainage of the valley will reduce the death-rate one-half.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Invaluable to Every Lady!

The Ladies' Manual of Fancy Work. A new book, giving plain directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work and all kinds of fancy Needle Work. This valuable book is beautifully printed on fine tinted paper, has a handsome cover, and contains over 500 Illustrations, Price only 50 cents!

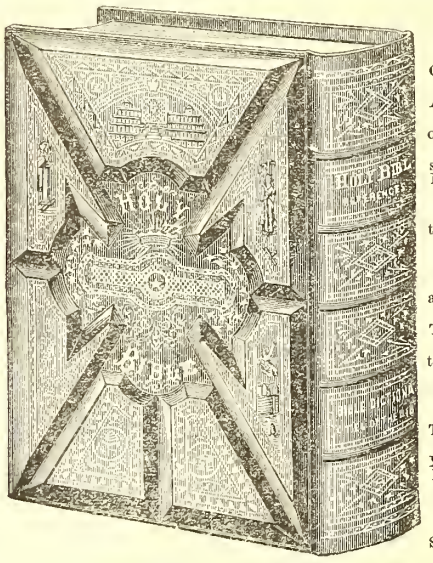
Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Knit Edgings, Cross Stitch Patterns, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool designs, Applique designs, Kate Greenaway designs for Doyleys, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Macrame Lace work, Holbein work, Java Canvas work, Worsted Fringes, Turkish Rugs, Toilet Cushions, Footstools, Hat Racks, Pin Cushions, Ottomans, Work Baskets, Pen Wipers, Bed-Quilts, Lambrequins, Work Bags, Book Covers, Wood Boxes, Door Panels, Scrap Baskets, Sofa Coverlets, Toilet Bottle Cases, Table Top Patterns, Folding Screens, Church Font Decorations, Sofa Cushions, Music Portfolios, Slipper Patterns, Persian Rugs, Wall Pockets, Carriage Rugs, Chair back Covers, Towel Racks, Perfume Sachets, Tidy Designs, Flower Pot Covers, Lamp Shades, Needle Cases, Watch Cases, Fancy Work Bags, Catch-alls, Match Safes, Eye Glass Pockets, Collar Boxes, Chair Bolsters, Umbrella Cases, School Bags, Patch-work Designs, Coin Purses, Designs for Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Commodes, Bibs, Glove Cases, Air Castles, Gypsey Tables, Hair Receivers, Paper Weights, Table Mats, Night-dress Cases, Shoe Bags, Needle Books, Jewel Boxes, Door Mats, Knitted Jackets, Bottle Cases, Paper Racks Pillow Shams Hair Pin Holders, Floss Winders, Mosaic Window Shades, Book Marks, and every design in fancy work a lady can desire, to the number of over 400.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion and invaluable to all who love fancy work. Plain directions with each design.



Jenny June in her preface to this book, says: "The present volume does not pretend to furnish the theory or practice of the highest Needle work art, but it does aim to supply within its compass a greater variety of excellent designs—every one of which is useful for dress or household decoration—than have ever before been gathered within the leaves of one manual."

Large quarto, paper cover mailed free for 50 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

SPECIAL OFFER.
PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE.

with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.
A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.
Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.
Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.
Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.
Cities of the Bible with Magnificent View scriptive Scenes and Events in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.
Comprehensive Helps to Study of the Bible.
A History of all the Existin Religious Denominations.
The History of the Translatio the English Bible.
A Chronological Index to the Bible.
Alphabetical Table of the Prop Names in the Old and New Testament.
A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.
The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.
Scripture Illustrations.
Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.
Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.
Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similes of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.
Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.
A Complete Concordance.
And many other important useful aids to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).

THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING

The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.

Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.

The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.

On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

Just published, 12 Articles on Practical Poultry Raising
By FANNY FIELD.

The greatest of all American writers on Poultry for Market and Poultry for Profit. Tells how she cleared $449 on 100 Light Brahmas in one year; about a mechanic's wife who clears $300 annually on a village lot; refers to her 60 acre poultry farm on which she clears $1,500 annually. How to put up buildings raise green food, etc. Tells about incubators brooders, spring chickens, capons, and how to feed to get the most eggs. Price 25cts. Stamps taken. Address R. B. Mitchell, 69 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

THE INDEPENDENT.

Religious and Literary Weekly.

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

Subscription $3.00 per year. 75c 3 months.

Send postal for free specimen copy.

251 BROADWAY.

☞ Readers ordering goods, or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

Five Dollar
LIBRARY.

"The Broken Seal."
"The Master's Carpet."
"In the Coils, or The Coming Conflict."
"The Character, Claims and Practical Workings of Freemasonry," by Pres. C. G. Finney.
"Revised Odd-fellowship," the secrets, together with a discussion of the character of the order.
"Freemasonry Illustrated;" the secrets of first seven degrees, together with a discussion of their character.
"Sermons and Addresses on Secret Societies;" a valuable collection of the best arguments against secret orders from Revs. Cross, Williams, McNary, Dow, Sarver, Drury, Prof. J. G. Carson, and Prests. George and Blanchard.

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 10. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1885. WHOLE NO. 813.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money-orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
How to Deal with Balaamism..... 8
Will the Jews Accept Christ?..... 8
War Again..... 8
N. C. A Board Meeting 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Neither can they Die any More (Poetry)..... 1
The Grand Army of the Republic..... 1
Reform at the South..... 2
SELECTED:
Thanksgiving..... 3
Thoughts for Thanksgiving Day..... 3
THE SECRET EMPIRE:
Statistics of Masonry..... 4
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
OBITUARY:..... 7
"Please Give me one."..... 9
CORRESPONDENCE:
Letters from Memphis; Hints on Temperance; Bear one another's Burdens; Gen. Butler and Freemasonry.....5,6
REFORM NEWS:
Notices; Wisconsin State Meeting; Lecture at Muskingum, O.; Prospects of the Columbus Meeting..... 4
LITERATURE..... 9
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE CHURCHES..... 12
BUSINESS..... 13
MARKETS..... 13
FARM NOTES..... 14
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16

It was a just recognition of public sentiment at the North, we hope, that led President Cleveland to withhold the appointment of Israel Green as Indian agent. Green lives at Mitchell, Dakota, and is the man who struck down old John Brown at Harper's Ferry in 1859. It may seem to many a severe penalty that this man should wear the brand of Cain through life. But his deed should at least be considered dark enough to cast a shadow over every hope of a government appointment.

The intention of the Kansas authorities to push the prosecution of liquor-sellers in the State must be regarded as an earnest acceptance of the prohibition amendment. The condition of Kansas has wonderfully improved since the adoption of that amendment, but the liquor business is run by an enemy who must always be watched. From localities in the State come excellent reports. In Coffey county every druggist known to be guilty has been arrested on various charges of violation of prohibitory law, and their cases will be tried at the next term of the district court. The movement is being conducted by the prohibitionists. In Rice county the out-and-out prohibition voters elected two of their candidates and made this year a gain 631 on the hightest votes quoted in 1884 and 1885. These are the voters who will give effect to prohibition.

Fashion has strange freaks. The colored people who till lately were unacquainted, as George W. Cable says, "with the evil charms of secret orders," have rapidly come to embrace that which at first they abhorred, and following the fantastic fancies of the whites have fairly outdone them in the game of lodgery. The fair Caucasian ladies, however, have fallen in love with the kinky hair given by the Creator to the African, and for fear it shall not be observable, pull it down into their eyes as if a Shetland pony were their model of beauty. But the daughters of Ham are also dissatisfied with the work of God and have invented an "anti-curl" nostrum which fills the columns of some of the religious papers edited by colored brethren at the South. How much better if we all made Christ our model and were content with the meek and beautiful adornments God has given us!

A settlement has been made by arbitration between the Knights of Labor lodges in Galveston Texas and the steamship company operating at that port. The strike effected the whole business of the city. Under orders from their lodges men deserted their work, and at one time twelve large foreign steamers lay idle in port, while the lodges determined to "boycott" all the railway lines that took freight from the steamers. The "Master" of the Knights theatened in short, a general strike that should effect every interest in Texas and Louisiana. A general suspension of business was threatened at the dictation of the lodge. This picture of Galveston's distress may yet be again realized throughout the country, as in 1877. The lodges are more numerous, powerful and strong in organization than then—a social volcano, but we are all indifferent to its mutterings.

The result of the trial of editor Stead of the Pall Mall Gazette is a surprise to American readers. We can hardly with the record of our courts before us understand either how a jury could convict, or why Mr. Stead should not have fought off the execution of the sentence. Though the evidence was plain that he was guilty of nothing which an ordinary detective, employed by the courts, would not have done, he was remanded to prison for three months, and instead of fighting he accepted the verdict and submitted to the humiliation. Some of the London papers, organs of the nobility, can say nothing too severe in their condemnation; but this is another drop in their cup which is fast filling. When the masses shall have enough of this barter in the virtue and life of poor girls, enough of land taxes, of supporting an expensive state church, and of immense outlay for military and naval service there will be a change. Already there is an immense demonstration preparing for Mr. Stead when he shall be released in January, and he promises to be more popular then than ever.

The British elections began Monday and will continue till December 10th. Though not so much appears on the surface, it is quite probable that a defeat of the Liberal party will be a decisive call to Gladstone to lay down the weary strife of politics in which he has been so long a leader—and one of England's noblest. Neither Liberal nor Tory party has a strongly defined policy, and two or three vital question have nearly split the Liberals irretrievably. Disestablishment has long been asked for by Scotland and Gladstone promised to take it up whenever it was generally demanded. Gladstone has lately been addressed by 1470 dissenting Scotch clergymen, declaring that they look to him to overthrow the state church. But this agitation has its effect in England, and the radicals began to ask that disestablishment be made general. The Tories were eager to make this an issue, for it would give them the victory. Mr. Gladstone, however, has given the word that English disestablishment is not now a question in polities. "Fair trade," a term for a modified tariff is one of the Tory measures, while Parnell has put Irish Home Rule to the front, and asks his friends to support Tories. Mr. Gladstone is confident of the reinstatement of his party, and in any event the next year is to be an important one in British politics.

When we read of the filing of the articles of incorporation in Washington for the new Catholic University the mind naturally turns to the million of ignorant people who submit their religious hopes to a priest. How will the three millions of dollars to be put into this institution enlighten the poor of this country? Will it put an end to such sacrilege and outrage as is reported in Brazil, where the Vicar-General of one of the Roman Catholic dioceses considers the Bible a dangerous book. In a circular to clergy, says the Independent, he says that Protestant missionaries are overrunning the diocese and distributing books, fair in appearance, but which are "designed to instil poison into the minds of the unwary. Among these books," he continues, they bring the Bible in the vernacular, without notes, without the ecclesiastical authorization, and mutilated, with which they sacrilegiously endeavor to combat the truth." He exhorts the priests to warn the people not to buy these pernicious works; and if they have already fallen into "unwary hands" the priests are to take them and "burn or destroy them." One of the missionaries saw a priest burn a New Testament, which he snatched from the woman who had purchased it. He burned it in the presence of a missionary, declaring that it was a Protestant book and false. Rev. W. M. Brown, the Superintendent of the American Bible Society's work, says one of his colporteurs in the north (Parahyba) had a box of Bibles and Testaments, weighing one hundred pounds, taken from him forcibly and burned; and the authorities would not listen to his complaint, replying that he was a Protestant and the government would not protect heretics.

NEITHER CAN THEY DIE ANY MORE.

Luke 20: 36.

BY JOEL SWARTZ, D. D.

O how the heart leaps up to hear
That somewhere lies a happy shore,
A radiant and immortal sphere
Which they who reach can die no more,
But equal to the angels are!

If no more death, then no more pain,
No parting sighs, no sad farewells,
No mourner's tears, no funeral train,
No open graves, no tolling bells,
O thus to die is nought but gain!

Yea, dying thus is not to die,
'Tis but to drop in dreamless sleep,
To close on earth the tear-dim'd eye;
And, ceasing evermore to weep,
Awake to life and bliss on high.

'Tis but the pilgrim's going home
To greet the lost on earth again;
To cease these desert wilds to roam
And reunite Love's severed chain
And hear the welcome plaudit, Come!

Grieve not that in the grave must lie
The severed links of wedded love;
No need of fleshly bond or tie
To people those pure realms above,
For they who enter cannot die.

Our family ties in Christ are wed,
The church is his own spotless bride,
By him she rises from the dead,
By him the saints are glorified,
He is their Bridegroom and their Head.

Gettysburg, Pa.

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

BY REV. D. SIMON.

When this society was yet in its infancy, people generally were under the impression that it was a perfectly harmless institution. Many people are still under this impression. This is evident from the fact that persons frequently ask whether this society is to be put into the same category with secret societies? Then again we are asked respecting its religious character, the persons asking having the impression that this society has no religion at all. It may be well for us all diligently to inquire into the actual character of this institution, and that all the more because of its present rapid growth.

The G. A. R. was exposed perhaps as much as ten years ago. The exposition is to be had at the office of the National Christian Association in Chicago, Ill. It is called "Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic." Members of the order will, however, not acknowledge that this is the ritual used in the lodge room. Even respectable persons, whose veracity we can hardly question, positively declare that this ritual is not correct.

We will admit that it is not in every particular correct. We will admit that certain changes have been made since the "Ritual" was published. The question remains, has the institution changed, or is it not just what it was when the ritual was adopted in Philadelphia in 1868? If the ritual has been changed, of what character were the changes? I feel satisfied that no material change has been made.

A few weeks since, I had occasion to speak with a seceding Mason of the book entitled "Richardson's Masonry." He remarked that said work was substantially correct: that he who understood this book understood Masonry. This book might, however, be committed to memory, he informed us, and the person still be detected as a book Mason, for a number of changes have been made in late years of which Richardson knows nothing. Who would dare to say that Masonry is not to-day what it was at the time when Richardson published his book?

Now as secret orders are all cast in the same mould, may we not conclude that their tricks are similar. If Masons can change a few non-essential words in their books that they may be able to say that what is published to the world is incorrect, may we not expect other secret orders to do the same? A Grand Army man may, therefore, truthfully say that the published "Ritual" is not correct, and yet, if he would come out with the full truth would he not be forced to acknowledge that it is substantially correct.

But suppose we should press upon a member of this institution to acknowledge this we could not expect it. The ritual belongs to the matters that are to be kept secret, as this is stated in the "Rules and Regulations" of the order. Now when a member is asked to give a definite answer respecting the ritual we can hardly expect him to do so. For example, you read the oath, as given in the ritual, to a member of the order and ask him whether that is correct or whether the penalty of death is to be meted out to those who become traitors to the order. He must do one of two things, either say that there is no such oath or obligation administered or acknowledge that it is correct, and thus virtually reveal the secrets of the lodge: for one who acknowledges an exposition might as well reveal the secrets himself. But they have agreed under the penalty of being "dishonorably discharged," not to divulge "any of the private affairs of the Grand Army of the Republic." Can we expect a member of the order to forfeit his membership in the lodge by acknowledging the ritual or any portion of it? Will he not be apt to consider it a lie of necessity to reject the published ritual? Will he violate his obligation to the lodge, or will he violate veracity? Let flesh and blood answer.

I had thought that this institution had little or nothing to do with religion, and objections holding against other secret orders could not be made against the G. A. R. But after closely examining into the matter I have become convinced that they have something to do with religion. They have a chaplain, regularly appointed, whose duty it is to conduct certain religious exercises in the lodge. The Bible is not only lying open upon the altar, but the chaplain reads from this book, as I am informed by a member of the order. The chaplain also offers prayer during the opening services. Religious ceremonies are used on decoration day. They express the hope of the resurrection from the dead in these ceremonies, and members of the order are free to speak of their comrades who have gone to a better life.

A G. A. R. editor recently said in his paper: "As the boy's heads become grayer, and as they gradually pass away to join the Grand Army above, their place in the hearts of the American people will increase in appreciation for the sacrifices they made that the country might live."

The editor who published the above is no professed Christian, but rather despises public preaching and the Word of God. And yet on Grand Army principles he expects "to join the Grand Army above" when he passes away. What is the ground of his hope? Is it Jesus Christ and him crucified? Verily, no. He made sacrifices that the country might live, and as this is about the only virtue said editor possesses, his services in the army must constitute the grounds of his hope.

A member of the G. A. R. writes to a friend: "In regard to religious ceremonies (in the G. A. R.) I say that if the reading of a chapter from the Bible at the beginning of the session, or the open Bible on the pedestal during the meeting of the Post, is any argument against the order, then it can be used with the same force, as I belong to four different orders, and I find it is about the same in them all." The religious ceremonies of the Grand Army are about the same then as those in the Odd-fellow's lodge to which the writer of the above also belongs. But the religious ceremonies of the Odd-fellow's lodge are Christless and wicked. What then shall we say of the Grand Army religious ceremonies?

The Grand Army encourages hero-worship. The soldiers who died in defense of their country are lauded to the skies. What Christian has not been disgusted with the decoration speeches and ceremonies in commemoration of the dead comrades? It matters not how vile a soldier may have been in his life; and though he was a fornicator and drunkard, if only he helped to save his country he is lauded to the skies, and spoken of as being at rest. Inasmuch as the decoration ceremonies are now altogether, or at least nearly so, under the management of the G. A. R., they too must have the honor or dishonor connected with them.

This hero-worship, or this honoring the dead, without regard to character, is so altogether improper, so contrary to all Christian decency and principle, that we cannot understand how a Christian can take part in it. Would not the participation on the part of Christians in such laudations stand as an approval, possibly, of a depraved life, and thus give encouragement to those very vices now so prevalent in our beloved land of the free?

The following editorial written by the above-mentioned Grand Army editor, shows the spirit of the Grand Army demonstrations:

"The veterans of the war of the rebellion are slowly passing away. Yet a little while, and the all-beholding sun shall see no more of these grizzled heroes. One by one they will be summoned to other fields. The new generation asserts itself, but not unkindly. It is more ardent in its hero-worship than were the contemporaries of the heroes."

Whilst the soldier deserves credit, respect, and honor for what he has done, we have no right to worship the departed hero. Or to use the word worship in a modified sense; we have no right to speak of the departed hero as saved simply because he was a hero. Heroism does not save the soul, and who depends on the work performed in the defence of his country for his salvation will certainly open his eyes in disappointment on the day of judgment. "Believe in the Lord Jesus Christ and thou shalt be saved," applies just as much to the soldier as to any one else.

Soon after the assassination of Abraham Lincoln, the condition of the departed President was illustrated by representing George Washington in the kingdom of glory embracing Abraham Lincoln. Both of these men certainly deserve great national honors, but as neither of them was particularly noted for devotion to the Christian church or faith in Christ the Saviour of men, it was not proper thus to glorify them. They had national virtues, they were morally good men and deserve to be honored by our nation to the end of time. But to speak of them as being at rest, or as having entered the Grand Army above, with no other foundation than that of national or moral virtue, is certainly not according to the Scriptures. Much less Scriptural is it to make such allusions where moral virtues are wanting, as this is done by the Grand Army at the graves of comrades who died as drunkards. We know whereof we speak, and facts can be given to confirm this statement.

We shall proceed now to examine the "Rules and Regulations and Rules of Order of the National Encampment Grand Army of the Republic."

As an object to be accomplished by the G. A. R. we are informed as follows:

"To preserve and strengthen those kind and fraternal feelings which bind together the soldiers, sailors, and mariners who united to suppress the late rebellion, and to perpetuate the memory and history of the dead."

A careless reading of these words is not sufficient to secure their import. We must not lose sight of the fact that these soldiers, sailors, and mariners are bound together in a secret organization. The outside world is to know nothing of their private affairs. In other words, we are not to know anything about the way in which these kind and fraternal feelings are to be preserved and strengthened. And yet we happen to know something about it. Days that are gone are reviewed, the deeds and conversations of war-life brought back to the mind and the sins of the soldier's life laughed over.

Not many months ago I was an eye and ear witness at a Camp-Fire demonstration of the G. A. R. About all, outside of the fires, that was of a character to remind one of the life of the soldier, was an entertainment given by the members of the G. A. R. One of their members acted as chairman and stated the order of the exercises. A few war and national songs were sung and played, after which the chairman said substantially the following: "I have in my hand a hatchet handed to me by Mr. ——— to be presented to the comrade who can tell the biggest army lie." One comrade after another stepped forward and lied to the best of his ability. The language used was not of an elevating character. Some remarks there made were literally indecent. Not a word was said of the good actually accomplished by the civil war, not a single heroic deed was mentioned, nothing in fact that would tend to gain respect for those who risked their all in defense of their country. Judging from this public demonstration, the tendency of the order is to degrade the morals of the people and to destroy the respect which people have, and should have, for the soldier.

The spirit of hostility towards those who had taken up arms against the government is fostered, as is evident from the fact that none who ever bore arms in the rebel army can ever enlist in the G. A. R. Is it well after peace has been declared to keep up a hostile feeling between the parties? The G. A. R. stands in the way of making this peace permanent. The war put away the apple of contention, and why not consider the matter settled and have peace in every sense of the word? The very fact that the Northern soldiers bind themselves together to the exclusion of those against whom they fought in the South, indicates that there is a feeling of jealousy on the part of the Northern soldiers, for which reason they organize themselves, and thus keep ready for trouble.

Quite recently I was informed by a member of the G. A. R. that there exists in the South an association in which no person is eligible to membership unless he served in the confederate army. This was stated to show us that there was nothing wrong in excluding rebel soldiers from the G. A. R., seeing that the rebel soldiers exclude from their association all Union soldiers. The information furnished is of value to us, but the argument is simply childish. In fact, the existence of two Grand Armies in the land, bound together under the cover of secrecy, makes conditions even worse than if there were but one. And the fact that there is here and there friendly intercourse between members of the opposite societies does not remove the suspicion that one is carefully watching the movements of the other, and that the spirit of opposition and even enmity is fostered in both societies.

The G. A. R. is an army under its own control, ready to take up arms against others who may not agree with them, whenever they may think it necessary. I say they are an army under its own control, because they have their own commander-in-chief, whose orders they are bound to obey. Is not this presumptuous office in the G. A. R. an imposition on the Presidency of the United States? Is not the President commander-in-chief, not only of the people in general, but also of whatever army may exist in the nation? Why should one not chosen by the people usurp the authority indicated by this imposing title? or shall we consider the whole thing child's play, so that although they are men they have not put away childish things?

[Concluded next week.]

REFORM AT THE SOUTH.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Nov. 12th, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I have been for quite a while a reader of your more than interesting columns. In truth, I know of no paper in which I am more engaged. First of all, I am interested in it on account of the varied information which it brings to me weekly; secondly, the moral courage to speak against the wrong whether that be found in high or low places; thirdly, the stand which it has taken against the greatest evils of the age, viz., intemperance, and secret societies of every name.

There cannot be too much said for the discouragement of both of these great evils. So long as secret orders and intemperance are allowed unchecked, home and fireside, love and virtue, truth and justice, are at the mercy of these foes to all good government. If it were criminal under the old Jewish law to own and allow a dangerous ox to run at large, such a crime being punished by death both to the owner and the beast, how much more should those who make and sell strong drink which, associated with secret orders, is destroying thousands every year, be held guilty before both the law of God and the law of the land! No home, no sons or daughters, church or state, are safe so long as these beasts are allowed to run at large. If home is not and cannot be protected, the government is a failure. "For the hand that rocks the cradle rocks the world," and that hand must be protected. Young men and fathers, you who are voters, must in a large measure answer the question being asked by our dear mothers, wives and sisters. Yea, even the drunkard, the abandoned and the prostitutes all over this land are calling loud and long to you to remove those things which have worked their ruin. Will the Christian voter of this nation refuse to hear those voices calling for help?

You cannot be too strong in your denunciation of the rebels against God, man, and good government. But in our zeal to do good let us not make the mistake of shooting into the ranks of our friends. Did you know, as I do, of the spirit and power that are being raised up here in this section of the country by the American Missionary Association through her mission churches, you would be the last to advise the good people of the North to give no more to that good old society. You have one part of the problem to solve and the A. M. A. another. As one far toward the front I can see that the shots fired from both your guns are doing telling work in the ranks of the foes of the Gospel of Christ.

I am one of a class of seven young men who finished a course of study at Talladega College in 1880. I am thankful, indeed, to be able to speak in terms that will do credit to any school or class of men. Not a one of the class belong to a secret order of any kind. Not one uses tobacco, wines or whisky. Two neither use tea nor coffee. This is the result of the training given at Talladega. Now I want to add that each of these young men are pastors of growing churches under the care of the A. M. A. The writer is in a town of ten churches, representing almost every denomination, and he is the only minister that uses neither tobacco, wine or whisky, tea or coffee.

I wish to say in the behalf of the A. M. A. that it would not be a rebuke for the churches under her care to take the step or stand indicated by you. It might be unwise, however, for her to demand of all the churches under her care to take such a stand at once. The real law of all nations and people is public sentiment. The truth is, when the A. M. A. began work in the South public sentiment was strongly in sympathy both with secret orders and whiskey making and selling. Had the Association undertaken to do years ago what she is doing to-day her room would have been better than her company. Wisdom is justified of all her children.

It will take time and judgment to supplant the evil influences of the lodge and intemperance, for two or three reasons:

1. The first is, the people have been led to believe that the lodge is a protection against the injustice too often practiced in our courts when a man of color is brought before them. It is generally understood and believed among the colored people that to be a Mason means liberty to violate the law of the land without fear of being found guilty by the law and thereby punished. This error—and yet there is too much truth in it—acts like a charm upon the mind of the colored people generally. For, the truth is, they are about the only class that get justice before the courts in this section. The white people of the South do not get justice in the courts. The colored men who go round getting up these orders tell those whom they wish to deceive that the failure of the whites to be dealt by justly is to be imputed to the fact of their belonging to secret orders. Hence, you see at once the force and power of such an argument. The lodge then means in the first place to the colored people, as they understand it, self-defense; which is one of the first laws of nature. There is still another idea which the lodge men are not slow to teach, which is this: "Orders can and will do more for their needy members than the church." Now, as a general thing, the colored man is always in need, if not for whisky, it is tobacco; or else he has been up all night and therefore needs a little sleep. Remembering, as he can never forget it, that for every day he is ill the society promises to pay his doctor's bill and allow him two and a half dollars per week while thus confined. This amount is to pay his board bill. This plot of the lodge to deceive the poor and ignorant is about as successful as the first, if not more so. The whole is no better than gambling.

I have so far been able to keep the members of the church of which I am pastor from joining the secret orders. The course pursued by me has time and time again brought down upon me the displeasure of the orders generally. Members of secret societies never visit the church of my charge. In truth, they have done many things against my work here. I have the smallest congregation in town, and all because the church is not full of orders.

I wish to say in conclusion that you are not alone in fighting these great and popular evils.

Yours in the work, J. W. Strong.

[Pastor Congregational Church.]

Too Radical.—It is commonly said of earnest holiness workers, "they are too radical." How radical ought one to be? and what is it to be too radical? Is it too much to oppose every sin, and to oppose them all the time? If not, how can one be too radical? If so, how many, and what kind of sins should be opposed, and how much should they be opposed? Will some good Christian, who is not too radical, answer? Perhaps some modest religionist, who sins a little every day just to keep himself humble can give light on this question, which is more important than you may at first imagine; for surely no one should be too radical; and unquestionably every one ought to be just radical enough. Lift up the standard, please, or hold your peace.—Pentecost.

THANKSGIVING.

For what? For blasted crops and wasted seed?
For days of toil unpaid?
For weary weeks of unrequited pain?
For months that yielded not but aching limbs,
And disappointed hopes?
For years of effort all in vain?

For fields where grow but vile and noxious weeds?
Whose widely gaping seams
Beseech the brassy skies for needed rain?
For barns where bats hold undisputed sway?
For empty bins, where plays
The wind a mournful, sad refrain?

For ships we fondly trusted to the seas,
With precious freight of hope,
Now deep beneath its treach'rous waters lain?
For friends we knew and loved in years gone by,
That now we know no more,
Nor e'er shall welcome here again?

For silent friends, and enemies that speak
To all our own weaknesses?
For giants met, and Lilliputians slain?
For wasted opportunities?
For love and trust betrayed?
For envy's and slander's stain?

Is there cause for thankfulness,
When almost every hour
There comes a bitter cup for us to drain?
Where pain and sorrow constantly abide
Can aught for gratitude,
Or love, or praise, or hope, remain?

"For what?" Enough to eat each day;
Refreshing sleep at night;
For loving hands to charm away our pain;
For rest unknown to all but aching limbs;
For buoyancy of hope,
For strength to labor though in vain.

For laughing brooks, and fragrant springing flowers;
For brilliant autumn leaves;
For golden clouds; for sunshine after rain;
For all sweet sounds; for songs of happy birds;
For childhood's merry laugh;
For soothing notes from sacred fane.

For ships returned in safety from the seas,
With hope's fruition stored,
And others treading yet the trackless main;
For faith, that leads our hearts to look beyond
The tearful parting here,
And hope 'mid brighter scenes to meet again.

Yes, every cause for thankfulness exists;
For love, and praise and hope.
Full many gracious blessings still remain,
And ever will, till on the golden shore
We sing the songs of praise
To Christ, "The Lamb for sinners slain."

—Selected.

THOUGHTS FOR THANKSGIVING DAY.

Here is a fact—church services on Thanksgiving Day are poorly attended. This is almost universally true. A principal reason for the union meetings that are held on that day is, meeting separately, the congregation would be chillingly small. And even these union meetings of two or more congregations scarcely equal the numbers present the average Sabbath day congregation in any one of the churches represented.

It is then undisputably true, that large numbers of professed Christians who are habitually in their pews on the Sabbath do absent themselves from the public worship of God on this annual occasion. This is a fact meriting consideration. It is a grave fact. It is a fact which not only merits, but which even demands inquiry into its cause. This inquiry is the object of this paper.

How then shall we account for this fact? What is the cause of such large absence on the part of members of our churches from the house of God on this day annually set apart for the the special and public acknowledgment of divine mercies? It is not caused by the demands of secular work or business. On other occasions of week-day worship—such as the services preparatory to the Lord's Supper—these demands do compel many to leave their seats in the house of God vacant: but on this day, either by law or by custom, there is a general release from these. It is a day scarcely less free from compulsory, or even possible, secular engagements than the Lord's day. Neither is this absence caused by any unwillingness to recognize the day as an appointment of the civil magistrate. There was a time when not a few of the Christian brotherhood refused their recognition of any day appointed, or even recommended, for religious observances by the civil authorities, lest by so doing they should give encouragement to the State to make encroachments upon the prerogatives of the church. But the men of that generation have nearly all passed away, and they have left behind them very few heirs to their convictions upon this point. It would not do to suppose as the cause of the fact in question the lack of genuine Christianity on the part of the absentees. Such a supposition even would be rash and uncharitable in the extreme. We should not probably err were we to suppose that these brethren are not fitly sensible of their dependence upon God for life, and health, and all things; and that they are not duly thankful for his benefits. And yet we might be mistaken in assuming their absence from the house of God on this day as a proof of such lack on their part—at any rate in assuming it as a proof of such lack in any measure above that which is to be found in the Christian brotherhood generally.

I believe that the occasion of the fact in hand is the festive character of this day, and that its immediate cause is the lack of ability on the part of many Christians to happily join together in their experience the pleasures of the house of feasting and the pleasures of the house of God. I believe if this day were set apart wholly for religious exercises, technically so-called—if there were given to it the sacredness of the Lord's day—our assemblies for worship would be as large as they are on that day. But this mixing together of holiday and Sabbath, of feasting and worship, is a thing too hard for many of the Christian brotherhood. They must choose between the two, and, naturally enough under the circumstances, they elect the holiday and the feasting.

But is there any necessity for making choice between these two? Is there any necessity in the things themselves? Are the relaxation and the festivity of the holiday incompatibility with the enjoyment of the worship of God? Or is not their apparant incompatibility owing to incorrectness of view and wrongness of habit, on the part of Christians themselves? The view held by the writer is that there is no incompatibility between these things themselves—that that which appears, is only apparant, and has its origin and existence wholly in the mind of the observer.

These things cannot be contrary the one to the other, else God would never have joined them together as he did, for example, in the feast of the tabernacles. This feast was a grand harvest-home, extending through eight days; to be observed not only in offerings at the alter of God, but in social feasting and rejoicing as well. It was at a celebration of this feast that Nehemiah and Ezra rebuked the people for mourning and weeping, saying, "Go your way, eat the fat and drink the sweet, and send portions unto them for whom nothing is prepared: for this day is holy unto our Lord: neither be ye sorry; for the joy of the Lord is your strength." Still more clearly, these things cannot be contrary the one to the other, else we should not find it written that "The Son of man came eating and drinking." This is a declaration by himself of a prevading fact in the life of our Lord. He was not a recluse. He was not an ascetic. His home was not in the wilderness, but in the throngest part of densely populated Galilee; and through the years of his ministry his walk was constantly amid the people in city or country.

It is not all feasting that is in harmony with divine worship; it is not all holiday observance that is in accord with the exercises proper to the house of God. There is the sorrow of the world, which worketh death; and there is a godly sorrow, which is unto life. So there is the joy of the world, which is only evil in itself, and its fruits; and there is the joy of the Lord, which is holy and blessed. The difference between them is simply this—the one is godless both as to its cause and end: the other is godly as to both. The one is caused wholly by the created good thing, and is sought and cherished for its own sake: the other is caused by the apprehension of God manifesting himself in the good things of his creation, and is sought and cherished for the sake of him from whom it springs. * * * And it is only such feasting and such pleasure that are proper to the Christian. For did not Jesus set us an example that we should walk in his steps? Is it not written, "Let the same mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus"? And has he not commanded us through the chief of his apostles—"Whatsoever ye do, whether you eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God"? Let Christians take to themselves holidays in the spirit of this command, let them feast as Jesus feasted; and they shall feel neither necessity nor inclination, because of these things, to absent themselves from the house of God and its appropriate services.—Rev. W. L. Wallace, in The Evangelical Repository.

—The Methodist Episcopal church has forty-five great presses, running ten hours a day, sending out religious papers and books.

THE SECRET EMPIRE.

STATISTICS OF MASONRY.

The Voice of Masonry published in 1879, the remarkable report of Josiah H. Drmmond, of the committee of correspondence of the Grand Lodge of Maine, under the ominous title, "What Shall the Harvest be?" Mr. Drummond having held the place of "Most Puissant Sovereign Grand Commander" of the "Supreme Council 33°, Northern Jurisdiction, U. S. A." his authority was unquestioned. That report showed a remarkable falling off in the Masonic ranks, no less than

ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTY THOUSAND

Masons having left the lodge in the ten years from 1869 to 1879, the initiations during the same time having fallen off one-half.

A catalogue issued by Redding & Co., New York, Masonic publishers and furnishers, reports the non-affiliated or withdrawn Masons in the United States in 1883 as 453,670, the names remaining on the books being only 546,365; and since it is well known that the names of many Masons are kept on the roll long after they have abandoned the order it is a perfectly fair estimate to say that there are as many actually seceded Masons as affiliating in this country. Yet Masonic journals occasionally boast of the immense membership of the order. "Freemasonry, the world over, embraces 14,160,543 members," said the Detroit Freemason a while since, while in fact nearly or quite one-half the Masons of the world are in the lodges of our States.

Mr. Drummond's report was printed in the Cynosure for July 10, 1879. We reprint the main figures below for the years 1877, 8, and 9; his comment is as follows:

"It will be seen that the total membership has fallen off again, the decrease being just about the same as the preceding year; some of the Grand Lodges have increased, however. Those which have increased are Alabama, Arkansas, California, Canada, Colorado, Dakota, Indian Territory, Iowa, Kansas, Manitoba, Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri, Nebraska, New Brunswick, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, Oregon, Quebec, Rhode Island, Texas, Utah, Washington, West Virginia and Wisconsin. Those which have decreased are Connecticut, Delaware, District of Columbia, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Nova Scotia, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Prince Edwards Island, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont and Virginia. The suspensions for non-payment of dues have increased about one thousand. The suspensions within the last ten years, aggregate the enormous amount of one hundred and fifty thousand. Our report in 1869 shows that forty Grand Lodges returned over fifty thousand initiates, against about 24,000 shown by our report of 1879, to be returned by fifty-three Grand Lodges. "What will the harvest be?"

JOSIAH H. DRUMMOND.
Com. Mas. Cor., G. L. of Maine.

In the report of the Grand Lodge, of Kansas, quoted by the Grand Secretary, of Iowa, in 1882, occurs a paragraph of similar import:

"Disguise it as we may, the integrity of Masonry is threatened within the ranks of the brotherhood itself. One twentieth of the whole fraternity in the country has been suspended, within the past year, for non-payment of dues. These things are not the outcome of chance or accident. There are causes for both, which are not far to seek. They are the organizing of lodges where the material is scarce, in districts far from wealthy; and to pay the cost incident to dispensation, charter, and furniture, candidates are admitted whom no old lodge would venture to accept."

The figures quoted by Drummond were for the years 1877, 8 and 9. They are included in the following table which is continued down to 1884, the totals for that year in Drummond's report being exactly the same in each particular as in 1883. How this singular coincidence should have come about we do not attempt to explain, and have not time for verification:

	Masons	Raised	Gain	Suspended	Total Loss
1877	602,089	30,695	45,676	18,325	45,386
1878	592,443	23,261	40,605	21,821	47,526
1879	582,556	21,885	38,668	22,770	47,499
1881	567,128	21,785	40,631	19,507	44,576
1882	566,149	22,829	41,459	16,036	38,841
1883	579,830	28,374	49,252	14,896	43,182
1884	579,830	28,374	49,252	14,896	43,182

In addition to the above statistics, Rev. Henry R. Coleman, of Kentucky, in his Masonic Calendar for 1879, page 96, says of the losses in lodge membership: "Here is the sum total of 100,000 Masons who have gone back upon their fraternal pledges within the little period of three years."

Continuing till the latest report printed, as given in our table, it appears that during the seven years of which we have a record, from 1877 to 1884, no less than 123,758 Master Masons left the order forever. The reasons for this immense secession are not far hidden. They are in the character of Freemasonry itself, as well as in the effectual promulgation of Christian truth against the system. A single instance of the operation of Gospel principles is given by the Iowa Grand Lodge itself in explaining the demise of the lodge in the Morning Sun in that State, and the same story could be told of many other places:

"The Worshipful Master of Doric Lodge, No. 171, at Morning Sun, has advised us of the surrender by that lodge of its charter, which has not, at this date, been received at this office. This lodge is located in a sparsely settled community of farmers, excellent citizens, but members largely of churches opposed to secret societies, so that the population does not afford suitable material upon which the lodge can draw for its support."

As these statistics were being compiled the Voice of Masonry for December came in, containing the following:

"Some years past the Cynosure gloried in the fact that there was a decrease in the Masonic membership in North America, and went so far as to predict the final disintegration of the fraternity. Now the tide is the other way, there being a net increase in nearly all the jurisdictions. How will this strike the leading cynosureans? What will they do about it? Will they herald it as fully and freely as they did the decrease? We think they will treat it as a secret which, under no circumstances, shall be revealed to their dupes, as that is about the full measure of their fairness."

No reply is needed to this insinuation. If the Voice of Masonry will give us the correct returns of the lodges, they will be promptly given to our readers. The fact of their suppression in all publications accessible to the public, has naturally been understood to mean that they were so unfavorable that the lodge was ashamed to have them known.

He that runs may read the anti-Christian spirit of the institution of Masonry. It is the enemy of the church. And yet the church is hugging to her bosom this very deadly enemy. Take out of the M. E. church all the ministers and members connected with lodges and where would she be in numbers, wealth and popular influence? Echo answers, Where? She would become a little one, and a thousand times better it would be for her. A like thing may be said of others, but, perhaps, not to the same degree. We praise God that Christians are being made to see this great evil, and are earnestly working for its destruction.—Law and Gospel, Paris, Ill.

—Bro. C. B. Ward, of Secunderabad, India, in the last number of his monthly, the India Methodist Watchman, notices a new work on "Self-support" in missions, by Rev. C. H. Carpenter, for eighteen years a missionary among the Karens of Burmah, and says:

"Before William Taylor ever became known outside of his home community among the mountains of Virginia, God had two men, Rev. E. L. Abbott and Mr. Beecher, at work in Burmah, with a self-support theology as orthodox and definitely expressed as any thing written by William Taylor between 1870 and 1885. We do not know that William Taylor ever knew of the principles on which the above mentioned Baptist missionaries spent their energies in the founding and upbuilding of one of the most gracedly successful Christian missions the world has ever seen. God was the teacher of the Baptist brethren as he has been of William Taylor. The latter applies the principle further than the Baptists in Burmah. * * * Our conviction is there are resources enough in India to support 10,000 Christian missionaries and an indigenous Christianity as big as the land itself, on the New Testament pattern—and be a thousand-fold richer than to-day under her load of idolatry and lust."

REFORM NEWS.

THE ILLINOIS CONVENTION.

The annual meeting of the Illinois Christian Association opposed to secret societies, will be held in Chicago, Tuesday and Wednesday, December 1st and 2nd, beginning Tuesday evening. The business meetings of Wednesday will be held in Carpenter Hall 221 W. Madison street. Addresses from several of our ablest speakers will be given in the evening sessions, which will be held in the Free Methodist church on Morgan street just north of Lake. The discussions of this meeting will be practical and interesting, and will be well worth an effort from friends of the reform to attend from all parts of the State and participate. Entertainment will be provided for all delegates from outside the city. By order of the Executive Committee. H. L KELLOGG, Sec'y.

W. H. CHANDLER, Pres.

IOWA.

LOUISA COUNTY CONVENTION.

There will be a county meeting held at Morning Sun, Iowa, commencing at 2 P. M. on Monday, the 30th of November, to continue over the following Tuesday.

The relations of Freemasonry and kindred orders to the Christian religion, the family and the state will be discussed. The friends in Louisa and adjoining counties are earnestly invited to be present. Rev. J. P. Stoddard, the General Agent of the N. C. A., will be present and take a leading part in the discussions. C. F. Hawley, Iowa State Lecturer, and others who may volunteer, will also address the meeting. C. F. HAWLEY.

WASHINGTON COUNTY CONVENTION.

There will be a county meeting held at Washington, Iowa, commencing at 10 A. M. on Thursday, the 3d of December, and continuing with three sessions each day for two days. The relations of Freemasonry and kindred orders to the Christian religion the family, and to civil government will be discussed by Rev. J. P. Stoddard, C. F. Hawley and other speakers. C. F. HAWLEY.

THE WISCONSIN STATE MEETING.

SECRETARY'S REPORT.

The thirteenth annual meeting of our Wisconsin State Christian Association assembled at Waukesha Tuesday evening at the town hall. After devotional meeting, led by Bro. Dissette, who followed by short opening address, Pres. C. A. Blanchard of Wheaton College delivered a deeply interesting and instructive address, first reading numerous quotations from eminent men in reference to Freemasonry, and then reviewing the well-known replies of the craft to those quotations.

Full liberty was given to any who were disposed to ask questions or to make remarks. A Royal Arch Mason and a prominent Good Templar responded, and by their questions and remarks gave Pres. Blanchard a splendid opportunity to say many things, and of shedding much needed light on these systems of darkness and deception, and of pointing out Christ and his way of salvation and reformation. We are more and more convinced that the Christian standpoint is the one from which to view and agitate this question. Profound attention was given, and it is confidently expected that great good will result by the blessing of God. There was an audience of about 125, enough to reflect the light into many other minds.

Wednesday morning after prayer meeting the convention was called to order, and Rev. Isaiah Faris of Waukesha was appointed temporary chairman, and Bro. Dissette, secretary pro tem. The permanent officers elected were: President, J. W. Wood; vice-presidents: Rev. Isaiah Faris, Rev. N. Wardner, Capt. Wm. Wilson, S. E. Orvis, Rev. E. Collins of Coloma, and Rev. Mr. Galloway of Vernon. W. W. Ames of Menomonie was re-elected secretary, and M. R. Britten, treasurer.

By invitation visiting brethren, Wm. Fenton of St. Paul, and Bro. Dissette, State agent of Illinios, took active part in the business of the convention, and being appointed Committee on Resolutions, reported the following which were adopted:

Resolved, That having carefully, prayerfully and conscientiously examined the claims, fruits and workings of secret orders in general and Freemasonry in particular, we regard them as a standing menace to good government, and anti-Christian in character.

Resolved, That we regard the existence, claims and fruits of secret orders to be of such magnitude and importance as to demand attention and investigation by this entire nation; and that the following questions are worthy of careful analysis by every citizen:

1. Do any of them claim to be religious institutions?
2. Do they teach salvation by faith in Christ?
3. What is the nature of their oaths or obligations?
4. Are they of such a nature as would be sanctioned and administered by a court of common law?
5. Is the existence and perpetuity of secret orders necessary to good government?

Resolved, That it is our opinion that the secret temperance societies would be more efficient in promoting the cause of temperance were they open instead of secret; that they would be more accessible to classes designed to be benefited by such societies, and that the religious creed demanded of the candidate is a commandment of men and not of Christ, and should be abandoned.

Resolved, That we are in favor of heartily co-operating with the movements of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in so far as they are untrammeled by the principles of secrecy, and a false religious creed, as held in the secret temperance orders.

Resolved, That in view of the pernicious and destructive effects of tobacco on the human system, as seen in the shortening of the lives of many of our distinguished men, and the failure of a large number of candidates for admission to the naval academy, we manifest our disapprobation of the use of tobacco, especially in the case of pastors and church members.

In the absence of the president, treasurer and State agent, the secretary was instructed to hold special correspondence with them concerning the matter of the employment of another agent, as an organizer. Resolutions in appreciation of Bro. Bancroft's services and of invitation to continue his work were passed. During the year the lost records of the annual meetings have been recovered in outline from the files of the Cynosure and placed in another book.

In the afternoon of Wednesday Bro. Dissette gave his Masonic experience, and Bro. Stoddard gave a rousing address in the evening to a deeply interested audience. As he was describing the entrance of a young man into the lodge where, according to the assurances of the good old deacon of whom he had asked advice about joining the lodge, he was to learn "piety, morality and science," a grey-headed man went out of the hall in high dudgeon and slammed the door in a very lively manner. So when he described by use of a chart the "woodshed degrees" of Odd-fellowship, into which the wives, sisters and daughters of Odd-fellows get by climbing up the back stairs, not being permitted to go in from the house with the men, two young ladies went out of the hall in the same manner. As it is impossible to remove a cancer from the stomach without piercing the flesh, so to exhibit secretism it is inevitable that secretists be somewhat hurt, as the exhibition of resentment clearly proves. Let them come boldly out and God and man will forgive and their sore will be healed.

In a word, we had a very profitable time. Great light was shed upon the minds of those present, and the friends of the cause felt to "thank God and take courage." It was decided to have Bros. Fenton and Dissette remain and address the people Thursday afternoon and evening.

W. W. Ames, Secretary.

OHIO.

LECTURE AT MUSKINGUM COLLEGE.

New Concord, O., Nov. 18, 1885.

Editor Cynosure:—We had a very interesting address on last evening in College Hall from Mr. W. B. Stoddard, on the subject, "How to Make a Mason." By means of a carefully prepared diagram he showed the position of all the officers in the lodge in each of the three degrees of "Entered Apprentice," "Fellow Craft," and "Master Mason." He then traced the candidate from his introduction into the preparation room, where most of his clothing was removed, up or down, as his progress may be viewed, till he had breathed into his ears the secret word "Mah-hah-bone."

The lecture was both interesting and instructive, and was listened to by a large and appreciative audience.

Mr. Stoddard is an agent of the Ohio State Christian Association and is doing the preparation work for an anti-secret convention, to be held in Columbus, on the 15th and 16th days of December. Those opposed to the lodge would do well to send for him, addressing him at Columbus, Ohio.

F. M. Spencer,
President Muskingum College.

THE COLUMBUS MEETING WILL BE A SUCCESS, GOD WILLING.

New Concord, Nov. 20th, 1885.

Dear Cynosure:—I have just come from the home of Dr. J. P. Lytle, pastor of a large U. P. church in Bloomfield. I had the pleasure of addressing something over two hundred persons in his church last evening. The Dr. is one of the old line Anti-masons.

I am now at the home of Rev. J. M. Faris, a man who does not fear to declare the whole counsel of God. He has very kindly arranged for the series of meetings that I am now holding to the best of my ability. I shall start as soon as I finish this hurried note for Rix Mills church, where I am to speak tonight.

Last Friday I met Drs. Carson, McDill and Morehead at Xenia. These brethren all hope to be with us at Columbus. Dr. Carson will make some remarks, "which means a speech at least an hour long." The young men of the Theological Seminary requested me to speak to them, respresenting our work; which I did under the following heads: "What we have done, What we hope to do, and what we ask you to do." The following gentlemen handed me their names as among the number who hoped to attend the Columbus convention: A. B. Dickey, J. M. Ross, James Parker, J. H. Martin, J. A. Littell, G. G. Wilson, W. R. Gray, J. A. Shaw, J. A. Greer, G. I. Findley. We shall expect a large delegation from each of the churches in sympathy here.

At Cedarville I met friends everywhere. The pastors of the three reform churches will see that delegates are appointed from their churches. I think Rev. Mr. Morton was away from home; but Rev. Mr. Sproull said, "Of course we will appoint delegates." We shall expect to see at least twenty from Cedarville. I was sorry to be compelled to pass through S. Charlestown without calling on friends there. Sabbath and Monday were spent at Columbus.

On Sabbath morning I listened to Rev. Mr. Mauk, who preached an excellent sermon on Jonah's disobedience. The thought which came to me with the most force, while listening, was, Jonah did not have a very easy task given him by the Lord. He did not like to go down and tell those Ninevites that they were going to the devil and would be destroyed. He doubtless thought he would like to preach something that would be more popular with the masses He would like to have a big church and a big salary.

Tuesday evening found me in the U. P. church, Norwich, where Bro. Faris had arranged for me to speak. The evening was dark and stormy, but the congregation good. Over one hundred were present. President F. M. Spencer is supplying this church. He together with Rev. J. H. Leiper and others gave me a cordial welcome and listened to me patiently. I am indebted to these friends for much kindness and hospitality. Bro. Leiper is an agent and secretary of the National Reform Association. A whole-souled man who makes you feel "as homely as possible." I enjoyed a very pleasant visit at his home.

On Wednesday evening I was greeted at the Muskingum College by perhaps one hundred and fifty young and old, a very good audience, as the night was dark and rainy. At the close of my remarks, the following were appointed delegates: James Nelson, John Miller, Rev. J. H. Leiper, Samuel Harper, Pres. F. M. Spencer, Rev. J. M. Faris, Rev. Faris and Brown. The delegates appointed at Bloomfield are: Rev. J. P. Lytle, Wm. McCoy, Dr. Lane, Squire Smiley, Thomas H. Wilson and Finley Bain. Of course these delegates will be expected to bring their wives, sisters, daughters, and all the other friends they can to this meeting. Delegates from Norwich were referred to Pres. Spencer, who will see that they are duly appointed.

Every body that is opposed to the lodge in the State of Ohio, should be preparing to attend this convention. We have hired the largest hall in the city of Columbus for their meeting, and will send notice of R. R. rates, entertainment, etc., later. Let us come as one man to the help of the Lord against the mighty, and strike a blow that shall echo through all the States. W. B. Stoddard.

CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTERS FROM MEMPHIS.

THE LODGE STILL THREATENING.—THE NEW PARSONAGE.—THE MURDER SPIRIT.—BOYCOTTING BRO. COUNTEE'S CHURCH.—ANOTHER BAPTIST PASTOR STANDS UP FOR JESUS.

Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 3, 1885.

I am now living in a hired house in town, and the proprietor has already received thrilling and threatening letters ordering him to put me out or his house would be burned down. The insurance companies have given him notice that if the house is burned while I occupy it they will pay him no insurance. Thus hounded I sometimes almost give down. Our parsonage is started; the foundation is laid, and now we have stopped; but we have hope in the Lord. Oh! how much I need prayer to help me and sustain me. My dear wife and children realize our state. I try to be cheerful in their presence, but sometimes I give way. God has been with me and his right hand has sustained me.

Nov. 9.—I could but shed tears when I read and gazed at the contents of your letter, and my wife helped me to rejoice, and on bended knee we praised the name of the Lord and asked his blessings on the dear friends who sent us aid through the Cynosure. I am so glad to know that there are so many who have like faith, and are with us in contending for the truth of the blessed Christ. I attended church yesterday and was able to take my place and talk for the Master. I felt my effort to be a feeble one, but it is said by many who heard my talk that it was the most potent talk I had made yet on the society question. I do not stay out to night service. I am in town, but in a poor locality for traveling; in returning home I have to pass by a den of four whiskey dives which are generally surrounded by a gang of low, worthless fellows; sometimes nearly 200 men are on these corners.

When my afternoon services closed yesterday, my little boy eleven years old, came running and said, "Papa, don't go home that way. Go around." Some of the brethren of the church said, "Go around another way." But I told them, No, that was my way home, and if I started to running around I would be kept at it; but by God's grace I should take him as my stay and walk boldly through the crowd; and I did so.

Nov. 17.—[A later date than below.] Yours of the 12th containing donations from Bro. Capwell and wife was received yesterday. I wrote them an acknowledgement of the same. I am unable to express myself, my heart is full of thanks for the many kindnesses shown me by friends from afar. May God bless you all.

I am still struggling and ever intend to be. Last Sunday morning there were a large number of Masons at my church, and I used the opportunity to give them the truth, and at the close of the service one of them, secretary of the lodge to which I belonged, said to me, "You are the scape-goat, and if you would just return to your lodge, I think it would stop all your persecution or at least have a tendency to do so, you know." I looked at him and fire seemed to kindle within me, and I told him, No, never! never! never! Let the persecutions go on, God could and would stop them. Praise his name. What, seventeen years among them, and then be freed by the power of God and go back! Oh, no! I mean by God's grace to turn on the light.

"Thy saints in all this glorious war, Shall conquer though they die."

The victory is already gained; it was gained when they shot me on the 18th ult. I may yet die but the victory is complete in Christ. Some of the Baptist ministers here urged the assassins on. One said in his pulpit, "There are three men who want to run this town; they are Countee, Brinkley, and Imes. They are trying to break up our societies, and they ought to be stopped, I believe they can be stopped, don't you, brethren?" and to this the brethren responded with a hearty "Yes! Y——e——s!" A Methodist minister said, "The societies are a good thing. Go on with your societies." I thank my God that nearly all of that class are out of three churches at least. Bro. Brinkley has none, Bro. Imes and I have yet a few, and by the help of the Lord they will either leave the lodge or the church before long.

May God bless you, and may I not ask an interest in your prayers. My house is progressing nicely, the brick work will be done by Saturday, at which time I have $600, or the price of two-thirds of the brick work, to pay, and unless help comes from an unknown source, we have to stop awhile, but we are trusting in His name.

Nov. 13.—I had just paid out last night all I had, and hence your letter was timely: and then I am kept in a better state of mind, knowing I am cared for, and thought about. The secretists say, "He has no friends in the world. No man," say they, "ever did as he has done and lived." And they terrify my friends and some of them are dropping away from fear; 195 of my church members have severed their connection with the secretists, and ten have left the church. Members of other churches are coming to us. Another minister (Baptist) has commenced to preach the same gospel of separation, but as he has no charge, they do not mind him. They threaten Bros. Imes and Brinkley, but execute their vengeance on me, for neither of them know anything in particular about the temples of Baal. They want me, and hence they are constant in their threats—I get them almost daily. I begin to find my nervous system considerably impaired, and the strain is so heavy I am being compelled to lie down some in the day; but God my Heavenly Father sustains me. He does not leave me comfortless, though at times I am very despondent. I get to thinking of how I am hunted, and how I am abused, and the suffering of my wife and my little ones, and then I can only fall on my knees and pour out my soul unto God in prayers and in tears: and God helps me. He just comes to me and helps me up and I praise his name and glorify him. A great many people call to see me and they do me harm; but they do not mean it. They break down and weep over me, and pity me, they can't help it, I know they can't; and sometimes if I am not careful they carry me away with them, but I get back and I say with David, "In thee, O Lord, do I put my trust."

In our last regular church business meeting—Friday night—the church passed the two following resolutions:

Resolved, 1. That no person belonging to any secret society or worldly organization shall be admitted to membership in this body, known as the Tabernacle Baptist church.

Resolved, 2. That the dead body of no persons should be allowed brought into this church edifice, to be attended in funeral with the turn-out or parade with any secret society.

These have again fired the camp of the enemy and they are very bitter. Three members of the church arose from their seats and left the church as soon as the above were adopted. These people outside of the church desire to rule the house of God; and out of twenty Baptist churches they have all but two; and ten or twelve Methodist, they have them all. But the leaven, thank God! is in, and I trust all will become leavened.

My wound in the head is still open, and is a painful, running sore. I give it very little rest, that is, I try to keep busy so as not to think of my troubles and sorrows, and only stop when my nervous system breaks down. I then lie down and sleep. Jesus gives me rest. My brother is out at his usual vocation, and the lady is doing well: able to walk about. We have tried to help her along. She is a widow, a faithful Christian worker, and asserts that she intends to do more than ever.

Our house is now one story high and work has been stopped since Tuesday for lack of funds; we thought that we could raise $1,000, but things in that line seem to be—well these secret folks are undermining our people. When they are working as cooks and housemaids and other branches of labor, they are being supplanted. There appears to us to be a kind of underground work that intends to starve out our churches. We rely on God who took care of Elijah. We are not entirely dismayed, but they are not all strong. I have received from abroad to date, $115.50, for which I thank God and the many dear friends. Again asking the prayers of all Christian people. I am yours in the work of Christ,

R. N. COUNTEE.

A FEW HINTS ON TEMPERANCE.

ONTARIO, O., Nov. 13th, 1885.

MR. EDITOR:—A few words from a temperance man who has worked for the cause for over forty years, and rejoices that we have the salt and cream of both the Democrat and Republican parties in the temperance cause. There is yet a great amount of salt in both parties that we want to win over to us; now if those good men that are in the two old parties can be persuaded to come and go with us and help us put down one of the greatest evils in the land, it would give us the power to put it down by ballot. Let us look for a little while and think of sixty thousand that go down to a drunkard's grave and a drunkard's hell, yearly. Now if fifty thousand of these have wives and children, there would be fifty thousand widows and one hundred and fifty thousand children, which I think is a small estimate of the average family. These are left widows and orphans without husband and father to care for them. They are generally left in poverty, no one to care for them, to see that they go to school. They are in rags, not fit to be seen; and they soon feel themselves debased and degraded, and prefer the low dens of crime and sin rather than the society that would be likely to raise them to usefulness or respectability.

UNCLE JOHN FINNEY.

BEAR YE ONE ANOTHER'S BURDENS.

Enclosed please find two dollars in aid of Bro. E. Mathews and Bro. N. Countee, one dollar to each, and my prayer is that our Heavenly Father will hasten the time when his professed disciples shall neither give countenance or have fellowship with such unfruitful works of darkness as Freemasonry and its kindred abominations. Brethren who sympathize with those who suffer for Christ's sake, contribute your mites to help those who thus suffer. "Whoso hath this world's good and seeth his brother have need and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him." 1 John 5: 17.

Let us do as did the good Samaritan to the man traveling from Jerusalem to Jericho, recorded in the 10th of Luke. The characters who assaulted Countee, Mathews, Rathbun and others, are no better than those who assailed the stranger traveling from Jerusalem to Jericho.

I am 76 years old, and well remember the time of Morgan's abduction, and have always abhorred the accursed system, since his abductors were worse than the thieves. They did not leave him "half dead" but dead, and so were murderers in every sense of the word. Righteousness exalts individuals as well as nations. Will the Masonic fraternity in its secret plottings ever learn to do right?

JACOB W. COLE.

GENERAL BUTLER AND FREEMASONRY.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:

Allow a reader to recall attention to your extract in issue of 22d ult. General Butler is "a thirty-three-degree Mason," and declares himself now in these words: "I have no faith in secret societies!" Why? Because, when in command of the army in New Orleans he had "positive proof" that his brother Masons, "under the guise of ordinary lodge meetings, were conspiring against the Government!"

Well, what does he do? Doubly oathbound, to Masonry and the Government, as he regarded himself, he will try to serve his two masters! But how? Did he at once arrest the conspirators? Oh, no! But he doffed his regimentals, hied into the lodge, and assured his Masonic brethren of his "kindliest feelings towards them;" "kindly gave them a proper warning" against their conspiracy proceedings, and was apparently content with an assurance from some of the culprits that they "would not conspire any further" (whatever that may mean).

Be it remembered that the General had already loyally "issued a proclamation" indicating "strong measures" against the foes of the Government, while he was thus, as a sworn brother, so farcically playing into the hands of the "positive proof" conspirators.

But all this kindness seems to have been labor lost. He could not serve two masters, and so the General preferred to continue as commander of the army rather than as a fool private in the "Masonic lodges" of the rebels. Not until then did he finally resolve to abandon lodgery and condemn its organisms. So convinced was he that the good of secret societies could be thus perverted" (as if this was any thing new!) that he "never entered the portals of one again!"

There is something fantastically melancholy in seeing one of our generals (and many others probably were in the same fix), in the critically dangerous period of our war, so fettered by the delusion of the oaths of Masonry. Satanic, every one of them, because contrary to those of God, and all tending alike to subvert civil government, the guardian of our civil and religious liberty. It would be otherwise comical and amusing to see this breed of human hermaphrodites as double officials trying to serve two masters. However, the long and short of the matter is, that General Butler is now another witness to the truth that secret societies are in their nature inimical and hostile to our free institutions, and therefore their triumph among us would be the signal for a despotism instead of a republic.

We close by congratulating General Butler for his courage in making these statements, and on his return as we hope to the enjoyment of his personal manhood, rights resulting from his repudiation of all secret societies. Yours truly, A READER.

BIBLE LESSONS.

FOURTH QUARTER.

STUDIES IN THE KINGS AND PROPHETS.

LESSON X. Dec. 6, 1885.—The sinful nation. Isaiah 1: 1–18.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Cease to do evil; learn to do well. Isaiah 1: 16, 17.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Sin, unnatural. vs. 1–3. It is said that in some localities of Switzerland the goitre prevails to such an extent that the few persons not thus deformed are ridiculed and called goosenecked. In like manner moral deformities are so common in the human race that the world does not recognize them as deformities. Sin is so universal a malady that to quote the marginal reading in chapter 59, v. 5, "He that departeth from evil is accounted mad." They who shape their conduct by the unworldly standard of Christ's teachings are often called fools and fanatics, when the truth is it is their contemners who are really in an abnormal state. The unnaturalness of sin is shown by the example of the brute beasts who know and have an affection for their owners, while men, so much more higbly endowed, show no gratitude to God, nor consider that he is the author of all the blessings they enjoy.

2. National iniquity means national degradation and wretchedness. vs. 4–9. A nation may be in the height of its power and splendor when its sins call loudest for judgment, as with the great empires of antiquity; but the seeds of national ruin are always planted and ready to bring forth fruit when a whole people become as it were drunk with the wine of mere material prosperity. The splendid reign of Solomon was the beginning of Israel's downfall. The false worships he introduced sank her lower and lower with every succeeding reign, till now her fate was to be devoured by strangers, and only saved from a destruction as complete as that of the cities of the plain by the small remnant of Godly men and women left in her midst.

3. The greatest corruption may exist where there is the greatest outward show of religion. vs. 10–17. For all their many sacrifices, and particularity in observing all the Sabbaths and feast days, Isaiah can find no other terms to describe the national corruption than "rulers of Sodom and people of Gomorrah." With all our multiplied religious services and great show of Christian activity the tide of iniquity rises fast. How shall we stem it? God places but one alternative between a sinful nation and destruction, and that is repentance. While the government licenses rumselling our hands as a people are red with blood. When the impure rites of the lodge are allowed to be practiced in the very house of God, will he hear our prayers for a revival of national righteousness? Indians starving through the criminal neglect of Congress; the Chinese murdered at Rock Spring, are terrible stains on America's escutcheon. Isaiah's counsel, "Learn to do well, seek judgment, relieve the oppressed," is no less applicable to us than to ancient Judah.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

What were the causes of Israel's ruin? Isa. 2: 6–8; 3: 14, 15; 28: 1, 7; Jer. 11: 13; Amos 5: 10–12; Hosea 4: 1, 2. Are nations who commit the same sins amenable to the same judgments? Amos 1st ch.

"I have nourished and brought up children." The Hebrew verbs "nourished" and "brought up" express the correllated ideas to cause to grow up and to lift high in greatness. From a single forefather the Lord had built up a great nation.—Cowles. They are represented as being weak, and ignorant, and helpless as children when he took them under his fatherly protection and care.—Barnes.

"Have rebelled against me." Essentially this very sin of cold ingratitude, and rebellion against God's authority, charged here upon Israel, lies at the door of all ungodly, unrepentiug sinners in every age and in every land, with only the difference of greater guilt in the case of the more enlightened. For who of us all hath not been nourished and brought up as a child by our great Father above?—Cowles.

"My people." Who of all others should consider, having had such an experience in the past, and being bound by an everlasting covenant.

"Children that are corrupters." Or, "that corrupt themselves" (Deut. 4: 16, 25; 31: 29). It is a strong word, implying that they had violated the order of the moral world or the fundamental provisions of the divine law.—Cook.

"The whole head is sick, and the whole heart faint." This does not mean the whole head, the whole heart, but every head, every heart.—Lange. The nation is here compared to a sick person. The two noblest parts of the human body are here selected to represent the body politic.—E. Henderson, D. D. The head the source of ideas, the heart the source of feelings and motives, the fountains of thought and life were both defiled.

"Wounds, and bruises, and putrefying sores." Nothing less than repentance and return to God could heal them. This is a vivid picture of the moral state of the nation under Ahaz (see 2 Chron. 28: 1-4, 19-25). It is a picture of the state into which unrepented sin brings the human soul.—Peloubet.

"And the daughter of Zion." Zion was the fortified part of Jerusalem, and the residence of the king, and hence the name was often applied to the whole city. "Daughter of Zion" means Jerusalem and its inhabitants. The fresh and youthful beauty of the city is included in the term "daughter."—Pel.

"Ye rulers of Sodom." That is, of the kingdom of Judah, which was like Sodom. What Sodom-judges and a Gomorrah-nation may be, can be learned from Ezek. 16: 48 et seq.—Lange. The Jews say that Isaiah was slain on two accounts; one of which was, that he had called them princes of Sodom and people of Gomorrah. —Cook.

"Sacrifices.... burnt offerings.... incense.... sabbaths, etc." These were all commanded of God, and were part of the original law obligatory upon the Jews. Why, then, are they condemned? They in themselves are not condemned, but only the false use of them. They were used as mere forms, without the love and devotion of the heart, as magic rites, as substitutes for true religion and sincere obedience. It was a hollow, heartless, hypocritical use of good things that was condemned. So in Christ's time, prayer, and gifts to the poor and to God's treasury are commended; and yet the Pharisees were condemned for praying and giving to be seen of men, and as substitutes for obedience to God. So men, in these days, may make the forms of religion and some one phase of morality a substitute for loving service and true religion. —Pel.

"Your hands are full of blood." The greater crime includes under it rapine, injustice, oppression, etc. The supposition is that these men come to God with their prayers, incense and sacrifices, to avert from themselves the punishment they consciously deserve. They come with these offerings as an atonement for their horrible sin, as if they could buy an indulgence, or at least a dispensation from punishment, after the crimes by these acts of professed worship! But shall the Holy One of Israel disgrace his throne by becoming a party to such horrid crime? Will he take incense and sacrifice as a bribe to pervert judgment and justice? Never!—Cowles.

"Seek judgment." Justice, equity. Seek it; strive to know and do exactly right, and to give others their rights. We shall fail in this unless we earnestly seek it.

"Judge the fatherless." See that they have justice (ver. 23; Ps. 10: 18; 72: 4); that their inheritance be not taken away by fraud.

"Plead for the widow." And vindicate her claims (comp. 2 Kings 8: 3–6; Luke 18: 3–5). The orphan and widow were from the first taken by God under his special tutelage; (Ex. 22: 22–24; Deut. 10: 18; Ps. 68: 5. Comp. James 1: 27).—Cook.

"Though your sins be as scarlet.' Glaring, habitual, firmly imbedded in the nature, such as no human power can eradicate or forgive. The Hebrew for scarlet radically means double dyed; and implies the deep fixed permanency of sin in the heart. Of all dyes, red is the most difficult to remove, and in many substances it cannot be removed without destroying the substance itself.

"They shall be as white as snow." Perfectly white and clean. Snow is white not only on the surface but through and through.

OBITUARY.

JAMES ROBINSON died at his residence on South Fourth street, Aurora, Ill., on Monday, Oct. 12th, in the 75th year of his age. He had been confined to the house for four weeks, and from the first his peculiar disease was pronounced incurable. He was born in Yorkshire, Eng., removing to Aurora thirty-five years ago, where he has resided ever since. Until within a few years he was employed in Stolp's woolen mills. He leaves a wife and five children, one of whom, W. B. Robinson, is a resident of Duluth, Minn. The other four, Chas. W. Robinson, F H. Robinson, Mrs. John Dyckman, and Miss Ella Bobinson, reside in Aurora. He was one of the first members of the First Congregational church, at the services of which he was always a regular attendant and will be sadly missed by that society. He was recognized throughout the city as a quiet, earnest, Christian gentleman who had the respect of the entire community. Mr. Robinson was a warm supporter of the reform represented by the Cynosure, of which he was from the first a constant reader.

SANFORD WARD died August 29, 1885, in Adams Village, N. Y., aged 95 years. Gone "like a shock of corn fully ripe." Born in Middletown, Conn., in 1790, he came to Leyden, Lewis county, New York, in 1815, and to Adams in 1817, where he spent the rest of his days. When a Godless young man, the Spirit led a young Christian lady to ride several miles to invite him to meeting and to Christ. He promised and came, the Spirit arrested him and he was saved. He united with the First Adams Baptist church in 1818, but became a constituent member of the Adams Village church at its formation in 1846, remaining a member till his death. He was especially jealous for the purity of the church and from settled convictions firmly opposed all secret societies. Positive in belief and utterance, his loving spirit precluded offense. His venerable form, kindly greeting, and fervent prayers are greatly missed but will be found above. His afflicted wife has the sympathies of all and the strength of the arm divine.

Mr. Ward was in hearty sympathy with the cause in which the National Christian Association is engaged, not only with his influence but his means as well. We pray God to fill up the ranks thus depleted. Rev. E. P. Maine, of Sandy Creek, ably officiated at his funeral, selecting appropriately, 2 Tim. 4: 6, 7, 8. The good old hymns, "Why do we mourn," "Thou art gone to the grave," were peculiarly harmonious with the great age and character of this veteran soldier of the cross.

R. I. HILL.

DON'T YOU THINK

THAT YOU CAN SEND IN A CLUB OF SIX or more trial subscribers at twenty-five cents each? We continue the offer of eight numbers of the Christian Cynosure to any address for 25 cents.

BIRNEY.

The sketch of JAMES G. BIRNEY, candidate of the Liberty Party for President, in pamphlet for 25 cents. A limited number of copies of this handsome pamphlet for sale at the N. C. A. office.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Who depend on voluntary contributions of Christian people in whole or in part for their support:

J. F. BROWNE, Berea, Ky.

ELI TAPLEY, Columbus, Miss.

J. F. GALLOWAY, Okahumka Florida.

WM. HAZENBURG, Cape Town, S. Africa.

A. D. ZARAPHONITRES, Andros, Greece.

C. B. WARD, Secunderabad, India.

The Evangelists associated with Rev. John G. Fee, of Berea, Ky.

Contributions for either of these brethren may be forwarded through the Treasurer of the N. C. A. PLEASE DESIGNATE to which one such funds shall be sent.

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

H. H. Hinman, Willimantic, Conn.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, Geo. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.

Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion

Iowa, C. F. Hawley, address in care of Free Press.

Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.

New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.

Ohio, W. B. Stoddard, Columbus.

Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe

Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]

J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa.
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men,	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
36	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
38	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	3
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men	2

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

FREEMASONRY AT A GLANCE

BY

E. RONAYNE,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

Illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge and gives a brief explanation of each. This work should be scattered like leaves all over the country. It is so cheap that it can be used as tracts, and money thus expended will bring a bountiful harvest. 32 pages. Price, postpaid, 6 cents. Per 100, $3.60. Address.

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884.

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following, as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

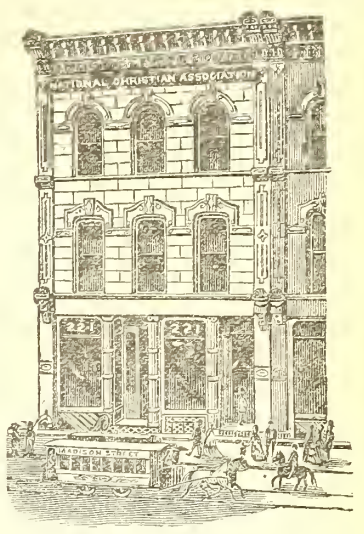
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N.Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen, L. N. Stratton, Thos. H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George, H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno· Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Ulsh Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolls; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec, John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B. Higgins, Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 26, 1885.

GLADSTONE is strong in himself and in the weakness of the Tories. They acknowledged his greatness when they refused to take power unless he would promise to support some of their leading measures: and now the whole Tory ministry has less influence than that single man. No minister since Pitt has been like him.

Letters continue to arrive from influential men favoring a congress of churches, or rather Christians, against the lodge, but as yet there are not enough outside of the N. C. A. to make a truly national convention. This is desirable, and will doubtless come as early, if not before, our annual meeting next. No stone will be left unturned.

MR W. B. STODDARD writes us a very encouraging letter from Ohio. He is full of hope for the Ohio State meeting at Columbus, Dec. 15th. Dr. L. Davis, of the Theological Seminary at Dayton, and a strong delegation of his friends purpose to attend and take an active part, with other prominent and devoted men. When things appear most favorable there is always need of humiliation and prayer. The Ohio meeting at the State capital is vastly important.

DR. NEWTON BATEMAN, President of Knox College, Illinois, lately attended and spoke at a Knight Templar's glorification of one of their "Sir Knights," who was a promoter of Polk's Mexican war, waged for the extension of slavery, a decided opposer of prohibition, a denier of the divinity of Christ, and a consistent adherent to all implied in the above. And yet Dr. Bateman manages to convince the honest Christian Anti masons of Galesburg that he is more than half on their side. Will Miss Mary Allen West, of the Union Signal, explain this puzzle?

RIEL IS EXECUTED.—The half-breeds, of Manitoba, had been out-witted and oppressed like our Indians. They mutinied under Riel, and the English Canadian government conquered, condemned and executed him, though it had failed to redress and remove the grievances of the half-breeds. It is difficult getting at the truth of the whole case. Doubtless this war, like all wars, had "suspended all the rules of moral obligation," and outrages were committed on both sides. Riel's execution has excited French Canadians to white heat. But the French are Catholics, and Cardinal Manning is an Englishman, and while the Pope has little to hope from republican France, he has much to fear from England. There will probably be no rebellion in Canada.

HOW TO DEAL WITH BALAAMISM.

Balaam was a soothsayer, trance-preacher, enchanter, and medium. (See Numbers 22d and onward.) Whoever has heard a trance-preacher speak while thoroughly mesmerized will at once recognize Balaam as one such. But when he used enchantments against the people of God, he found among his spirits one whom he could not control but who controlled him, and compelled him to bless, not curse, Israel. But though God met and thwarted him, Balaam made the Israelites to commit whoredom with the daughters of Moab, and worship their gods. Josephus gives an extended account of this terrible religious, national debauch. "And Moses said unto the judges of Israel, Slay ye every one his men that were joined unto Baal Peor." Num. 25: 5. And they cut off the heads of the offenders and hung them up before the sun.

The present state of the American churches corresponds to that of Israel, when the worship of the gods of Moab was mingled with the worship of Jehovah. We read "The people did eat and bowed down to their gods." Num. 25: 2.

The dealing of President Cleveland with Mormonism is the only thing which approaches to the method of Moses. The majority of the Christian ministers are to-day opposed to the false worships, but content themselves with giving a feeble testimony against them, instead of enforcing "a godly discipline," excluding them. When the Grand Lodge of Illinois meets in Chicago, the women Masons of the Eastern Star Lodge are sure to meet nightly a few blocks off, and, by their constitution, men Masons have access to their meetings!

WILL THE JEWS ACCEPT CHRIST?

We give our readers the following abstract of proceedings of the national rabbinical convention of the Reformed Hebrew church held in Pittsburg last week. It is interesting and significant. Our Saviour said (Mat. 23: 37) to the Jews, "Ye shall not see me henceforth till ye shall say, blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Eighteen centuries have passed since that, and they have not seen him, though their liturgy has all that long time been a wailing moan for his coming. This convention of learned and influential rabbis now almost say, "Blessed is He!" They hail his coming in the reign of "justice and peace." They give up the idea of a human, bodily reign in Jerusalem, turn to the Jerusalem which "cometh from God out of heaven, (Rev. 21: 2) and even vote to observe the Lord's day by holding religious services:

"We recognize in the Mosaic legislature a system of training the Jewish people for its mission during its national life in Palestine, and to-day we accept as binding only the moral laws, and maintain only such ceremonies as elevate and sanctify our lives, but reject such as are not adapted to the views and habits of modern civilization.

"We hold that all such Mosaic and rabbinical laws as regulate diet, priestly purity, and dress originated in ages and under the influence of ideas altogether foreign to our present mental and spiritual state. They fail to impress the modern Jew with a spirit of priestly holiness; their observance in our days is apt rather to obstruct than to further modern spiritual elevation.

"We recognize in the modern era of universal culture of heart and intellect the approaching of the realization of Israel's great Messianic hope for the establishment of the kingdom of truth, justice and peace among all men. We consider ourselves no longer a nation, but a religious community, and therefore expect neither a return to Palestine nor a sacrificial worship under the sons of Aaron, nor the restoration of any of the laws concerning the Jewish state.

"We reassert the doctrine of Judaism that the soul of man is immortal, grounding this belief on the divine nature of the human spirit, which forever finds bliss in righteousness and misery in wickedness. We reject as ideas not rooted in Judaism the beliefs both in bodily resurrection and in Gehenna and Eden (hell and Paradise) as abodes for everlasting punishment or reward."

The question of the admission of proselytes without the rites of circumcision was taken up and a committee of five was appointed with instructions to report at next year's meeting. A resolution declaring in favor of Sunday services instead of Saturday provoked a heated discussion. The idea of holding Sunday services was generally favored, but the abolishment of Saturday services met with determined opposition.

WAR AGAIN.

The breaking out of hostilities among the Balkan states and the invasion of Independent Burmah by Great Britain renew the sounds of conflict that for a little time had ceased from the earth and promise to make another revision of the maps of those countries necessary.

The late unexpected but peaceful revolution of Eastern Roumelia from the Turkish rule and union with Bulgaria was to be expected. As Eugene Schuyler shows in the North American Review, the natural subdivision of the country after the Turko-Russian war would have placed the two states under one government, and the treaty of San Stephano was so drawn; but the meddlesome Beaconsfield and the Berlin Conference spoiled an arrangement natural and convenient for the people. The revolution was an independent movement, a purely patriotic uprising. But once the lines of the Berlin treaty broken over, and Servia demanded a strip of territory from Bulgaria and Greece armed for the annexation of Epirus and Macedonia which were refused her at Berlin. Servia wishes, moreover, to dominate among the Balkan states, and is jealous of the Bulgarian union, which would make the new kingdom under Prince Alexander the most powerful. Austria is believed to be behind Servia, while Russia, from dislike to Alexander and the thwarting of her ambition by the establishment of an independent Bulgarian kingdom, is not unwilling to see these petty States fly at each other's throats. With Austria she can gather up the remnants and make another Polish division. Turkey, for fear of the treaty powers, is slow to interfere, while England favors the union because of Alexander's relationship to the royal family and is not unwilling to see patriotism and independence have a voice in the settlement. The latter reason is strong also with France. The Servian declaration of war made a complicated case for the conference called by Turkey to decide whether the settlement of Berlin should be maintained. The contradictory reports of its meetings were conclusive evidence that diplomacy and intrigue were at work. King Milan, of Servia, was for a few days successful in his advance toward Sofia, the Bulgarian capital, but he met a terrible reverse. The last report is that Alexander will appeal to Turkey to reinstate the Berlin boundaries. A future conference may decide to give to the whole Bulgarian people that united and independent government they so much desire.

The British government is hardly relieved from threats of Russian invasion from Afghanistan when war is declared with Burmah. The pretext is that Theebaw, King of Burmah, has, under French influence, been endeavoring to extort unlawful taxes from British traders. The Bombay-Burmah Company, a British corporation, having very important interests in Independent Burmah, was ordered by the Burman government to pay twenty lacs of rupees (about $1,000,000) in respect of their forest leases. The company replied that it was unable to pay such an enormous sum, and, furthermore, that no such payment was required under any reasonable construction of the grants from the Burman king. Judgment was accordingly entered against it. The company appealed to the British government, which asked for a suspension of judgment and an arbitration. The Mandalay despot replied haughtily refusing any concessions. His answer would be ridiculous were not the consequences so vital to his kingdom and involving the possible loss of life to many of his subjects. He soon received an ultimatum from Lord Dufferin, Viceroy of India, but heeded it only to urge on a preparation for war among his 4,000,000 subjects. The British invading force has already gained signal advantages, and will no doubt soon complete the subjugation of Theebaw and the annexation of his kingdom.

The ambition of England to secure more territory for the Indian Empire; or to maintain her "honor" among the barbarous peoples of that remote region; or to check the aggressions of France—unworthy though her objects may be, and not justifying the cruelties of war, yet it must be confessed that it will be a mercy to his poor people to deliver them from the power of this drunken, debauched murderer and tyrant, Theebaw. The Baptist missions in Burmah will find their work mightily increased with English occupation, and the change will be a step foward in the progress of civilization.

Burmah has an area equal to about four times that of the Maritime Provinces, is flanked on the west and south by British Provinces, and on the east by the several independent and tributary States of Shan. Still further east lie the half dozen Provinces wrested from Annam by the French twenty years ago. The soil is fertile and productive, but the country is more particularly remarkable for its wonderful mineral resources. Gold, silver, iron, and other minerals are found in great quantities, but owing to the disorganized state of government these mines have never yet been properly worked. The natural outlet of Burmah is down the Irrawaddy through British territory, but the French hope to divert this trade eastward by way of the River Mekhong. Could Burmah be brought under French domination, the Shan States would speedily be absorbed, and French rule on the Indo-Chinese peninsula would become an accomplished fact. This, Britain cannot allow, and it is therefore probable that the result of the present expedition will be the annexation of Upper Burmah to the British Crown.

—The first part of the able review of the Grand Army of the Republic, by Rev. D. Simon, of the German Evangelical Lutheran church, appears in this number. Pastor Simon uses in connection with the review a copy of the "Rules and Regulations and Rules of Order of the Grand Army of the Republic," by John S. Kountz, Commander-in-chief of the order, published at Toledo, Ohio, in 1884. The headquarters of the order are now removed to Washington, where the present commander resides.

—Through a misunderstanding, Bro. Bancroft, believing he would have to hold the Wisconsin State Convention at Waukesha all alone, postponed the meeting and went elsewhere where his services were needed. But bills were already circulated for the meeting from the Cynosure office and speakers engaged, so Bro. Dissette was sent to asssist in the preliminary arrangements and Bro. Bancroft notified.

—Rev. W. W. Ames, secretary of the Wisconsin State association, attended the Board meeting Thursday and passed several succeeding days with his son at Wheaton College, preaching Sabbath forenoon in the Chapel.

—At Waukesha Bro. Dissette found Bro. S. E Orvis true as steel as he used to be years ago when in the National Soldier's Home near Milwaukee.

—Pres. L. N. Stratton attended the Board meeting last week though so unwell as to make it doubtful if he should not have been confined to his room. He had an appointment on the Sabbath also to dedicate a new Wesleyan Church near Pittsburg, Pa. He went east Friday night on that important mission.

—Rev. F. L. Grundtvig, Danish pastor at Clinton, Ill., whose interesting letter reporting the action of the Danish conference at Neenah, Wis., September 18th, was printed in our Oct. 8th number, called at the Cynosure office last Thursday and cordially invited Secretary Stoddard to speak in his church. Pastor Grundtvig himself has lately been speaking to the Danish congregations in Racine and other points, presenting them the Gospel in opposition to the lodge.

—The committee of the Wisconsin Classis of the Reformed church, appointed at the meeting last spring in pastor De Bey's church, on Harrison street in this city, has prepared a tract for general circulation among the Hollander churches. An edition of 5,000 has been printed in English, besides others in the Dutch. It has also been printed in De Hope, the Dutch organ of the church. It is a strong argument for the separation of the church from all secret orders. May the blessing of God go with the truth.

—The convention of the Associated churches of Christ in Mississippi, will meet at Cedar Grove church on the first Wednesday of December next. This church is about nine miles from Memphis and contains about 200 members. The friends connect with that body invite brethren Countee and Woodsmall to be present and address them.

—Bro. E. Z. Derbyshire, of Ypsilanti, Mich., writes that his beloved wife died on the 3d of November, after an illness of three or four years. Many of our readers who have known of friend Derbyshire and his great liberality in sustaining our reform work, will hear of his loss with sympathizing regret.

—Brethren Dissette and Fenton have both reported in the Cynosure office since the Waukesha convention, and consider the Thursday evening meeting which they remained to address as better attended than any previous one. They found the Milwaukee papers very favorably disposed toward the meeting, publishing very fair reports each day of the meeting.

—The addresses at the late Missouri Siate Convention were by Bro. M. N. Butler, Rev. H. R. Bowerman, a seceded Mason, and Elder Rufus Smith. The appointment of the latter as State agent, will be the beginning of a glorious revival for the putting down of the lodge enemy.

—The Worshipful Master of a lodge in Kansas is authority for the statement that the Younger brothers, the terrible highwaymen of St. Clair county, Missouri, who were in their day even more feared than the James brothers, were Freemasons. He explains the reason for their conviction to be that they shot down brother Masons just as heartily as cowans, and the lodge was forced to do something to protect itself. So they were allowed to have the sentence of imprisonment for life, though their murders were numbered by the score. They are now boarding at Stillwater, Minn., expenses being paid by the State. They have, it is reported, a carpeted room, good fare, and nothing more laborious than sorting nails.

—Bro. Bancroft, in a letter from Cambridge, Dane county, Wis., regrets exceedingly the misunderstanding which prevented his attending the Wisconsin State convention. He had an appointment for last Sabbath at a Freewill Baptist church a few miles east of Cambridge. He fears he shall not be able much longer to continue in the lecture work, but most earnestly desires to see a good man "full of faith and the Holy Ghost" in his place.

N. C. A. BOARD MEETING.

A meeting of the Board of Directors was held Thursday morning last. The principal business was action on the report of the General Agent upon the settlement of the estate of Bro. Elliott, of Iowa, who proposes to make a donation to the N. C. A. after such settlement is made. The matter was fully discussed and placed in the hands of a committee associated with the General Agent, with such instructions as could be made at the time. A proposition to pay royalty to Miss E. E. Flagg on her book "Between Two opinions," was deferred until the Board had further information respecting the details of such an arrangement. A letter from Bro. H. H. Hinman accepting the appointment of the Board voted July 6th, 1885. The condition of the treasury, it was objected, would not permit the expense of a Southern agent at present, and the Board voted to so inform Bro. Hinman and defer the matter for a few days—until the next meeting, hoping for a better prospect meantime for funds for such work.

—As the inauguration of reform in his life and habits, George Gash, a gambler of Clinton, Ill., took all of his sporting paraphernalia to the public square Tuesday night and set fire to them.

"PLEASE GIVE ME ONE."

Columbus, Miss., Nov. 3, 1885.

I beg leave to hand over, for the colored people, to the friends of the reform this oft-repeated request for anti-secret tracts. Please take into consideration this fact stated in a late Cynosure by the Rev. B. A. Imes of Memphis, Tenn.: "A comparatively few among our people can read well enough to understand the valuable literature which you publish to expose secretism."

Doubtless the Cynosure tracts have done great good among the colored people, but numbers of them are beyond the comprehension of the very illiterate. What shall we do to enlighten the thousands who are asking for information concerning the secret organizations which are consuming their means and deluding them with false hopes of good when only evil can come? Let us have more tracts written in plain style, easy to be read and understood, for warning the people against secret orders. Let them be nicely illustrated. It is very observable how attractive illustrated tracts are. I am assailed with the request, "Please give me one with a picture."

I have opportunity to distribute a great many among the illiterate and cannot supply the many hands extended for them. My heart aches as I look over the streets of Columbus on public days and see the vast crowds of colored people, spotted here and there with white, and think how so many of them are defrauded of their hard-earned money and kept in poverty and ignorance and irreligion through the power of secret orders, and cannot even be supplied with literature suited to their knowledge to show them where their letters are forged.

Let us have a series of pictorial tracts for the colored people. As I have long been conversant with them and know what language they can read and understand, should opportunity offer, I would gladly write and endeavor to enlist the pens of others who can write in a plain style, in case there is a sufficient amount of money contributed to the N. C. A. for their publication. Can you aid in this work? What answer do you give to the request of the colored people, "Please give me one?"

Friends of the reform, some of you are doubtless compelled to refuse them for lack of means. Will you join me in prayer that the Lord will by some instrumentality supply this much needed literature? Let us all be much in prayer for the speedy completion of the anti-secret reform work. "Not by might nor by power, but by my spirit, saith the Lord."

M. A. F. Tapley.

LITERATURE.

The Works of John Ruskin: Poems: The Eagle's Nest—Sesame and Lilies—The King of the Golden River—Pleasures of England Pp. 520. Price $1.30. John B. Alden, publisher, New York.

This third volume of the Ruskin series issued by Mr. Alden will be, perhaps, the most popular and entertaining of all. The collection of poems, edited by James Osborne Wright, were written by Ruskin during his early days, from his sixteenth to twenty-seventh year. Most of them were published in the annuals of that day. They are of high excellence, though a wierd and melancholy strain pervades them. The author understood that his genius was for poetry in prose where it would not be restrained by the fetters of rhyme. Though not the best of his work it is not undeserving popular esteem. In 1850 Ruskin collected these poems into a moderate volume, of which he had a few copies printed for private circulation. The volume became very rare, and was much sought for by collectors, but was rarely to be got hold of. Not many years ago a stray copy was sold at auction in London for 41 guineas—or $230.

The title of the second work suggests whether anybody but Ruskin would have imagined a connection between an eagle's nest and the relation of natral science to art. It is a series of lectures delivered before the University of Oxford in 1872, developing the idea that the worker in art should beware of the effect of the study of anatomy, or in wider phrase the artist as well as the poet is great as he knows the power of generalzation. He quotes Blake:

> "Doth the eagle know what is in the pit,
> Or wilt thou go ask the mole?"

Sesame and Lilies are suggestive essays on education. "Of Kings' Treasuries" is especially valuable in its judgment of books; "Of Queens' Gardens" is especially appropriated to what is most useful in letters for women. Ruskin says of this production that it will stand longest and surest of all his works, and is properly the only book he has written. Carlyle admired it greatly, and used to say he had read nothing for years that pleased him better. The clever little fairy story of "The King of the Golden River" was written in 1841 when the author was twenty-two, "at the request of a very young lady, and solely for her amusement," but not published until ten years later, with clever illustrations by Richard Doyle; a work which proved more "popular" than anything else put forth by Ruskin. Six successive editions were rapidly called for by the public.

The Library Magazine for November presents a very popular table of contents, discussing topics of current interest upon which every intelligent man is seeking information. Among these are: "Catholic Italy and the Temporal Power;" "The Future of the Soudan;" "General Grant and the Indians;" "Solomon Spalding and Joseph Smith," a contribution to the present critical inquiry into the origination of Jo Smith's Mormonism; "Thibet," that great Asiatic region which the campaigns of Russia, England and France are bringing into public notice; "The New Star in the Andromeda Nebula," an article by Prof. R. A. Proctor on the stellar phenomena which some people associate fancifully with the star of Bethlehem; "The Anglican Church Establishment," an interesting discussion from an American standpoint of the great question now profoundly stirring the British politics, and compelling the most careful attention of Gladstone. General Booth writes a brief history of the Salvation Army. There are, besides, nine or ten articles of a more purely literary character; the whole making a valuable month's reading.

The India Methodist Watchman, edited by Rev. C. B. Ward, a self-supporting missionary of Secunderabad, Deccan, India, is an excellent missionary magazine. Being conducted upon the mission field, its pages glow with a holy fervor which we regret is not often seen in home publications. In the midst of an excellent table of contents in the October number we see reprinted Elder James Williams's powerful sermon against Freemasonry.

The December Century will contain two or three papers of general interest relating to the war, viz., 1. A description by Captain John Ericsson of the construction and work of the monitors, illustrated strikingly by pictures of these vessels in action. 2. "The Loss of the Monitor," a graphic description by a survivor, Francis D. Butts, and 3. "The Private History of a Campaign that Failed," by Mark Twain, being his personal experience (and not altogether an untypical one), of war in Missouri in 1861, with war maps by the author, and illustrations by Kemble. In the January number will appear a fully illustrated paper by Gen. John Pope on his campaign against Lee in Northern Virginia. The Confederate side will be described by Gen. Longstreet in the February number, where Gen. Grant's fourth paper will probably appear.

This office has received from The Travelers Insurance Company, of Hartford, a copy of their latest engraving, entitled "Leading Parisian Journals and Journalists." The Travelers display great judgment in the selection of subjects in carrying out this novel method of advertising their business. Prominent among these admirably executed portraits are those of Emile de Girardin, one of the strongest personalities of France under the Second Empire and the Republic; Paul de Cassagnac, the handsome and talented hero of a dozen duels; John Lemoinne, the French "Thunderer;" Henri Rochefort, the Parisian Geo. Francis Train; and Escoffier, who, controlling "Le Petit Journal," possesses the unquestioned distinction of the largest circulation in the world, the average daily issue of his paper being some three-quarters of a million copies.

There were 26,000 books written and copyrighted in the United States last year according to the records of the Library of Congress, an increase of 250 per cent in ten years. They embrace books on every possible subject and of every conceivable description, from the twenty-volume encyclopedia to the dime novel. In addition to the 26,000 books about 350,000 musical compositions have been copyrighted, and about the same number of works of art, lithographs, chromos, maps, engravings, etc. As two copies of every publication come to the Congressional Library, the accumulation there will soon be the largest in the world. Mr. Spofford, the librarian, says that the publishing business was never so extensive or prosperous as now, and that in no country in the world are so many fine books issued as in the United States.

George W. Cable, the celebrated writer and lecturer, has organized in Northampton, Mass., a large Sunday-school class of young men and women, of which he will become the regular teacher.

A London dispatch states that the complete correspondence of Carlyle with Goethe has been discovered in the Goethe archives.

THE HOME.

LESSONS FOR THE DAY.

SONG OF THANKSGIVING.

When all thy mercies, O my God,
My rising soul surveys,
Transported with the view, I'm lost
In wonder, love, and praise.

O how shall words with equal warmth
The gratitude declare,
That glows within my ravish'd heart!
But thou canst read it there.

To all my weak complaints and cries
Thy mercy lent an ear,
Ere yet my feeble thoughts had learnt
To form themselves in prayer.

Unnumbered comforts on my soul
Thy tender care bestowed,
Before my infant heart conceived
From whence these comforts flowed.

Through hidden dangers, toils, and death,
It gently cleared my way,
And through the pleasing snares of vice,
More to be feared than they.

Ten thousand, thousand precious gifts
My daily thanks employ;
Nor is the least a cheerful heart
That tastes those gifts with joy.

Through every period of my life
Thy goodness I'll pursue;
And after death, in distant worlds,
That glorious theme renew.

Through all eternity to Thee
A joyful song I'll raise:
But O! eternity's too short
To utter all thy praise.

—Addison.

FOR WHAT TO GIVE THANKS.

I. For God's goodness. O give thanks unto the Lord; for he is good; for his mercy endureth forever. 1 Chro. 16: 34; Ps. 107: 1; 118: 1.

II. For his holiness. Sing unto the Lord, O ye saints of his, and give thanks at the remembrance of his holiness. Ps. 30: 4; 97: 12; 140: 13.

III. For revealing himself. Unto thee, O God, do we give thanks, unto thee do we give thanks; for thy name is near, thy wondrous works declare. Ps. 75: 1; 138: 2; 1 Thess. 2: 13.

IV. For the gift of his Son. Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift. 2 Cor. 9: 15. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. John 3: 16; Rom. 6: 23.

V. For a present salvation. Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light; who hath delivered us from the darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son. Col. 1: 12: 13; John 6: 47.

VI. For victory. The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. 1 Cor. 15: 56, 57; Rom. 7: 25.

VII. For everything. In everything give thanks; for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you. 1 Thess. 5: 18. Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known to God. Phil. 4: 6; Eph. 5: 20.—Rev. J. H. Brookes.

OUR THANKSGIVING DAY.

There is no American festival so closely allied to our early history as a nation, as our annual Thanksgiving Day. Coming, as it does, in the cold and bleakness of the winter's desolation, it is a fit time to recall the hardy virtues and stern characteristics of those who became the progenitors of our staunch Republic.

They were verily a "peculiar" people, inflexible in will, heroic in the defense of what they deemed right, uncompromising as fate in the upholding of their religious belief; silent—men of few words, it would seem impossible for the softer graces of home love and domestic affection to find love in their iron natures. But so gentle and tender are the glimpses that we catch of their simple home life, so strong and true were their ties of friendship, that we find that next to their love of God grew the fragrant blossoms of home love. Dearer than even freedom itself. For home meant liberty, country, yea, all that rendered life sweet and desirable.

All struggles for religious liberty have been marked periods in history. France and Switzerland have been rocked as by a volcano in religious agitations, but it was in England that the question of individual conscience produced the throes that gave America its great birthright of freedom.

The first indications of the storm appeared in the fourteenth century, Wycliffe, himself an honest churchman and true Catholic, protested against the immorality and corrupt practices of the mendicant priesthood. A scholar of the University of Oxford, his words took strong hold on the people, who were fearful of the influence of the dissolute priests upon their children. At this time he joined actively with the House of Commons and part of the nobility in refuting the claim of Urban V. to further tribute from England in support of the Holy See, and was one of the delegates sent to Bruges to remonstrate with the Holy Pontiff.

His eyes were opened to the unscrupulous demands of the church, and he attacked with vigor the selfish ambition of the higher clergy, and preached that the duty of the church was to advance spirituality and not worldliness upon the earth.

Then followed the advocacy of individual religious freedom, a doctrine more fatal to the groweth of the Romish church than the thunderbolts hurled at its heirarchy. Prosecution followed. The church was alarmed, and the Pope ordered him to be seized and his teachings suppressed. But the people were his adherents, and the mother of the king forbade further proceedings against him. Deposed from his high offices, Wycliffe and his converts promulgated their doctrines upon the streets, at the merry-makings of the people, speaking boldly the truth of their convictions.

Then came the blow that shook Rome to its very citadel—the translation of the Latin Bible by the old reformer into the language of the English people, thus setting at defiance the false teachings of the bigoted priesthood, and ushering the people into the full light of religious freedom. A bill for its suppression was introduced into Parliament, but failed to pass. And the church could only show its anger and indignation by citations, and condemnations, and effecting his expulsion from the University at Oxford.

But Wycliffe's work was nearly done. On the last day of December, 1384, he died, and was laid to rest in the chancel of his own church at Lutterworth. But the spite and malice of the Romish church followed him even to the grave. Nearly fifty years after his death the Council of Constance decreed that his heretical opinions rendered him unfit for Christian burial. And thirteen years after, with great ceremony, his poor bones were raised and burned, and the ashes thrown into the river Swift, to be finally lost in the illimitable expause of the boundless ocean. "And thus," says one, "the ashes of Wycliffe are the emblem of his doctrines, which are dispersed the world over."

Whilst the tenets of Wycliffe slowly spread over England, Germany was trembling beneath the denunciation of clerical abuse by Martin Luther.

Switzerland was startled by the teachings of Zwingli, who strove to banish the superstitions and emblems of the Romish faith, and introduced the simple forms of primative Christianity.

Calvin, his successor, accepted Zwingli's teaching of predestination (as advanced by Augustine in the fifth century), and insisted upon simplicity of form in religious worship. But to this he added a code of living that banished all amusement and lawful recreation from their midst. His doctrines found lodgement in the Southern part of France, and extended north into the Netherlands.

In Scotland the earnest preaching of John Knox introduced the tenets of the Reformation, and Papacy was literally driven from the country.

In the early part of the sixteenth century, the great English Bluebeard, Henry VIII., severed his relations with Rome on account of the refusal of Pope Clement VII. to sanction his divorce from the unfortunate Catherine of Aragon.

He had hitherto borne the title of "Defender of the Faith," bestowed upon him by the church for the zeal with which he had defended the doctrine of the sacrament against Luther's heresy. Upon his withdrawal from Rome he assumed the title of "Head of the Church," taking upon himself the entire control and guidance of the faith of his people. Parliament confirmed his title in these words: "That our sovereign lord, his heirs and successors, kings of this realm, shall have full power and authority to visit, repress, redress, reform, order, correct, restrain and amend all such errors, heresies, abuses, contempts and enormities, whatsoever they be, which by any manner of spiritual authority or jurisdiction ought or may be lawfully reformed, repressed, redressed, ordered, corrected or amended, most to the pleasure of Almighty God and increased of virtue in Christ's religion, and for the conservation of peace, unity and tranquility of this realm, any usage, custom, foreign authority, prescription, or any other thing or things to the contrary notwithstanding." But at heart a Catholic, his reign was intolerant, and marked by bigotry and cruelty towards those who differed from him in belief, or doubted his right to the supreme leadership in the church.

The Anglican church was adopted in the time of Edward VI., under the protectorate of the Duke of Somerset and Archbishop Cranmer. In this were united the elements of the Catholic and Protestant faiths.

But in 1553, when Mary ascended the throne, all was reversed. Reared to the Catholic faith, true to the church of her wronged mother, she abolished the Anglican form of worship, and reinstated Romish ritualism in all its power, ceremonies and magnificence. Strengthened by her alliance with Philip of Spain, thus becoming the daughter-in-law of the Emperor Charles V., who was a devoted son of Rome, her fury and zeal against the Protestants waxed hotter. Crowds of Dissenters fled to Germany and Switzerland. Some recanted. Cranmer was burnt at the stake, and four hundred people were publicly burned or executed in defense of their faith.

With Elizabeth the Anglican church was again restored. The Calvinists besought her to adopt their simple mode of worship. But having in her heart a love for the pomp of the Catholic ceremonial, she refused to yield to their wishes.

Foiled in their efforts to rid the National Church of its ritualism and pompous splendor, the Puritans (for so they were now called) withdrew as nonconformists, and established their own gloomy, stern mode of worship. No art treasure was suspended from their church walls, or elaborate decorations graced their altars. They courted the extreme limits of severe simplicity, and this austerity was carried into their conversation and daily living. But sincere, honest, just almost to a fault, their lives were not without influence upon the careless, loose morals of their opponents, and their numbers constantly increased. Elizabeth and her Court became alarmed, and it was resolved to compel them to enter the Church of England. But it was like forcing obedience from the wind. The more timid found a safe refuge in Holland, but the number of those who remained were augmented, and their influence was felt in Parliament, and their voice heard in the Government. Bancroft says, "Popular liberty, which used to animate its friends by appeals to the examples of ancient republics, now listened to a voice from the grave of Wycliffe, from the ashes of Huss, from the vigils of Calvin."

The Puritans looked hopefully upon the incoming of the Stuart dynasty. But James had no love for the belief of the nonconformists. His weak nature yearned after the magnificence of the English Church, which acknowledged the ruling sovereign at its head, and he early determined upon the suppression of Puritanism and the introduction of the English Church into Scotland, his old home.

The celebrated Council of Hampton Court was called, at which the King presided. His bishops and councilors urged on the contest boldly. The grievances of the Puritans were heard with impatience, James declaring, "If this be all, I shall make them conform themselves, or I will harry them out of this land, or do worse."

Again Holland became an asylum for the persecuted people. But their hearts were hungry for a place in which they might found a permanent home, free from the encroachments of tyranny, and they turned their eyes longingly towards the unknown wilds of America.

Stronger than the fear of untried danger was the desire of peace. It was a long way, far beyond the gray horizon that touched the wintry sea, but it was a pathway that led to home and freedom.

Every school-boy and girl in the country is familiar with the story of the Pilgrims. How a solemn fast was held ere they embarked! How the friends left behind cheered them with words of love and encouragement! How the ship Speedwell was found to be unsafe, and was detained at Dartmoor for repairs! Yes, even the second time are they delayed by the same cause, and its company are put on board the staunch Mayflower! For sixty-three days were they at the mercy of the bleak winds and tossing waves. But before they set foot upon the new world they drew up a form of government for their promotion in order and harmony. To re-quote Bancroft, "In the cabin of the Mayflower, humanity recovered its rights, and instituted government on the basis of 'equal laws' for the 'general good.'" It is said that this compact was drawn up on the lid of a chest that is now preserved in the Athenæum at Hartford.

History presents no more pathetic picture than the landing of the Pilgrims on the cold, desolate coast, against which the waves throbbed out their dreary moan, and the wind swept down from the sighing pine lands of the north. Who can tell of the suffering of the women and children, many of whom were of gentle birth, during that long New England winter? Many of them sickened and died from want and exposure. And when the flowers of spring peeped from the crevices of the rocks, but forty-six souls remained of the hundred brave hearts that had sailed with such hopes to the new world. But their number was slowly added to, by other colonies that came as refugees from royal tryanny. The first authorized Thanksgiving was celebrated in 1622. The fields had been planted with corn, which was to be the coming winter's sustenance. The long rows were carefully watched and protected from the greedy birds.

The brown earth was soon carpeted with the young shoots of living green, but they wilted and turned yellow, for no rain fell to moisten the earth. For six long weeks—from the last of May, till the middle of July—the sun hung like a blazing fire in the heavens. Strong men turned pale, and the bearded lips trembled as they thought of the suffering that pinching famine would bring to their loved ones when the winter snow should fall. Morning and evening eager, questioning eyes scanned the horizon for a cloud. In their trouble they turned to Him who had been faithful in the days that were past. A fast day was appointed, and in the early morning hour, side by side knelt brave men and true-hearted women, entreating God to come to their rescue. But on rode the sun in his triumphal glory. The waves laughed as if in derision, as they threw their spray against the scorched rock. But clouds met the sun as he neared the west, and soon soft, grateful drops fell on the parched ground, and the earnest trust of the Pilgrims was not unrewarded. A day of Thanksgiving was appointed by the grateful colonists, and has since been a day of special regard in New England.

But we miss the charm that hangs over it in New England. And not even our good dinners and pleasant meetings can fully equal the stir and joyous associates that cluster around the thought of a New England Thanksgiving. There, it is often the only day in which the "best room" is opened during the year, and the merry fires that are roaring in the mammoth fire-places, or huge stoves, kindle a feeling of good-fellowship that is felt even to our Western boundaries.—Selected.

HOW WE BOYS TRIED IT.

A THANKSGIVING STORY FOR BOYS WHO HELPED FATHER THIS SEASON.

"Bill Brayton's father came one spring and rented a farm near us. Father said we'd better not have much to do with 'em at first, till we found out what sort they were, but they got so neighborly all at once we couldn't help it very well. They came 'most every day to borrow something, and then if they didn't bring it back—and they 'most always didn't—I used to have to go for it, so I saw a good deal of Ned and Bill.

"They had a cousin that came out for a week in harvest time. He was in business in New York, and wore light-colored plaid clothes. He was very sociable, too, and would come around about lunch time in the hayfield, and would eat with us as free as anything, which seemed very good of him when you'd hear him talk of his hotel in the city. He was very fond of the plums and harvest apples, too, and praised up everything we offered him, but did say that as for him he had no taste for farming. The city was the place for boys of spirit. And the Brayton boys thought so, too, and said they had no taste for farming, and they meant to go into the city as soon as they could. And when I came to think it over, I really began to see that I had no taste for farming either. And I thought it strange that father and mother had never concerned themselves to find out what my tastes were, for I had read in a book that it is a solemn duty for parents to study the tastes of their children, and that their success in life depends a great deal on such things.

"Tom Bly—that was the city chap's name—had a lot of splenid little books he lent the Brayton boys, and they lent 'em to me and told me not to tell. They were regular rip-roaring stories, I tell you!—all about fights, and scouts, and death struggles, and dark mysteries, and bold adventures. The fellows in them were so brave that one of 'em would think no more of riding up to a lot of fellows, and stabbing one and shooting two or three with his revolver, and knocking down another with it, and putting spurs to his horse and galloping off in a perfect hailstorm of bullets, than of eating breakfast.

"Bill Brayton thought he'd try being one of these heroes out on the plains, and come back in a few years rich—owning a cattle-ranch and no end of gold mines and things. But Ned Brayton and I thought we'd go into business in the city, like Tom Bly.

"I spoke to father about it. He laughed when I told him about my tastes, and said I didn't know when I was well off. That is just the way the fathers in the books did—'keeping your lives crushed down by uncongenial surroundings' they called it. And Bill and Ned's father said he hoped they'd grow up to something better than such a hand-to-mouth life as Tom Bly's.

"So it was easy to see how the boys in the books had been driven to run away from their homes. We talked a great deal about it, and made up our minds that if we wanted to have anything of a career, we must run away.

"It was an August morning very early, when I tiptoed down stairs in my stocking-feet. As I passed mother's door I did wish I could have wished her good-bye, and told her how I'd remember my promise to her never to smoke or drink a glass of beer till I'm twenty-one. (She thinks, you see, that if a fellow lets it alone that long, he'll have sense enough to keep on letting it alone.) I almost felt like giving it up when I knew she'd feel badly about it; but I'd left her a note telling her I was just going to New York to make my fortune, and I'd write to her. And I thought of the splendid things I'd do for her when I got to be a great merchant, and so I stole into the parlor and and got a card picture of my two little sisters and wrapped it up (there wasn't any of mother) and went on. We had three miles to walk to the railroad station.

"'No more milking cows or piling wood or dropping corn or plowing—Hurrah!' says Bill, as we rattled along in the cars.

"Each of us had money enough to take us to New York, and a little over. We found it a sight better to be flying along that way in the fine morning than to be turning out for a day's work. We were going to look for Tom Bly—he had told us to be sure to come right to him if ever we came to town, and we thought it likely he could find places for us at once either in his own business or among his friends. As we walked along the handsome streets, we couldn't help wondering how soon some such splendid stores might belong to us.

"Bill had Tom Bly's address—he was a grocer—and we soon began to look for him. The street they told us to go to didn't look so nice as we thought it would. But at last we found Tom Bly's store, and that didn't look nice at all. We went in and looked for him. I was looking for the plaid clothes; for I'd a known 'em anywhere, but I couldn't see 'em and nobody seemed to know about Mr. Bly. But soon Bill sung out 'Hello Tom'—and I saw a wagon drive up and Tom was driving it. He hadn't on the plaid clothes, and he hadn't any coat or collar on, and he didn't seem so very glad to see us.

"'Well Tom,' Bill said, 'here we are, you see. We're in for it. Ready to have you get us into something right off—'jes as you said, you know.'

"'The—old scratch you are!' said Tom. 'You haven't been such fools as to come 'way down here for work, have you?'

"'Isn't that what you told us?'

"'Well—may be I did, just to be polite, but I'm blessed if I thought boys as well kept as you'd 'a' come pokin' down here where there's more folks a'ready than's wanted. Where there's one situation there's ten fellows after it.'

"This was a wonderful take down. We thought he'd ask us to go to his hotel, but he didn't. We said we'd stroll 'round a little, and we strolled 'round; and we asked in some places if they wanted a boy, but nobody seemed to want any boys. We went into a park to eat all we had left of the lunch we'd brought from home.

"'Be off there—you rascals!' some one shouted, and the first thing we knew a big policeman was hustling us out, and telling us if we ever set a foot there again we'd be locked up.

"All for going on the grass!

"'There's lots o' grass to home,' whimpered Ned. Ned was smaller'n me and Bill. 'Let's go home I say!'

"We laughed at him, but not very hard. Bill said he was going to start for the plains to-morrow, going to work his way out somehow. We went back to Tom Bly and asked him if he knew where we could sleep, and he s'posed they'd take us in where he slept, if we had any money.

"We all thought it would be very grand to put up at a city hotel, but it wasn't. There wasn't half enough supper, and the beds were awfully crowded up in one room. In the morning a man came along and said we were to pay thirty cents each for our supper and our beds.

"Me and Ned had given Bill our money to take care of, all but a few cents, because he was the biggest. And now he felt in his pockets and it was gone! He felt and felt, and then he hollered out:

"'I've been robbed! Thieves!'

"The man swore at him, and asked him if he meant he'd been robbed there. He took all the money me and Ned had, and then he gave Bill a kick and told him to be off.

"Tom Bly gave us a lot of crackers at his store, and said we'd better go home. But I was too much ashamed, and thought I'd try yet to get work. I walked till I was footsore, and all the work I found was carrying a parcel, and I got ten cents for it and bought a loaf of bread. Bill said he was going to the depot to go West. Ned went with him, and when night came I waited till it was dark, and then I sneaked into a pretty yard where there were trees, and crawled into a hammock there and fell aslcep.

"I woke very early, and saw a gentleman in the yard looking at me. I was afraid he was going to have me taken up for going on his grass, and I jumped up. The hammock stuck to one of my buttons, and I didn't wait, but tore away from it and ran away without my hat. The gentleman called me to stop, but I jumped over the fence and ran as hard as I could a great way, till I was clear out of breath.

"When I stopped to see where I was, a boy came rushing up to me and says he: 'Isn't this your pocket-book?' Then he ran away. I thought at first it might 'a' been mine that was stolen, but in a second I saw 'twasn't, and I hollered after him to tell him. But he didn't stop, and while I was looking at it and seeing 'twas a very handsome one, two men ran up and took hold of my arms. I says:

"'You le' go me, now!'

"But they says: 'Come along my fine fellow,' and they snatched the pocket-book and went to hauling me along. There was a crowd 'round me in a minute. I kicked and fought at 'em, but they held me tight, and they slipped some iron things on my wrists, and there I was—jerked along that way, and a big lot of boys hollering after me! They took me into a great building and locked me up, and I didn't know what 'twas for more'n the dead.

"I lay down in a corner and wondered if I'd ever get out, and if I'd ever see home again. I wondered what mother'd say if she could see me. I wondered what they were doing on the farm. After a great while they took me out.

"'Where are you going to take me?' I said.

"'Before the magistrate.'

"Then folks came and told how last night I'd stole a pocket-book from a lady, and they'd been tracking me ever since, and just found me with the pocket-book in my hands. I broke right out, and told how the fellow'd given it to me, but they made me stop till they'd examined a lot of witnesses, and they all said I'd stole it. Then they let me tell how I'd slept all night somewhere else, but they wanted me to bring some one to say if it was so, and wouldn't believe me when I told 'em it was the solemn truth. Just then I saw the gentleman standing in the door that had seen me in his hammock. I hoped he wouldn't see me, for I was afraid he'd come to see about getting me punished. But he did see me, and came up to me. He took a button from his pocket, and laid it against my coat. It had a bit of the coat hanging to it that I had tore out when I jumped from the hammock, and it just fitted in.

"'This boy was in my grounds all night,' he says, 'I was up preparing important papers, and waiting for telegrams. I saw him several times.'

"They asked him some more questions, and then the magistrate says: 'The prisoner is discharged.'

"The gentleman took my arm, and led me out. I says to him:

"'I'll never do it again, sir. What you going to do with me?' He laughed, and says:

"'Haven't you got astray, my boy?'

"I thought I had the worst way, you'd better believe! And I told him so, and I told him all about it and he thought I'd better go home. I'd given my eyes to get there that moment, I hated to tell him I had no money to go on, so I told him as I'd come I'd like to try doing something, if I had a chance. He took a long look at me, and said perhaps that would be the best, and he'd write to my father.

"He was a real good friend to me. He talked lots to me, and got me a situation. They told me they never paid much to green hands. I slept under a counter, and got enough to pay my board and a little over. I ran errands, and swept and scrubbed floors, and worked harder'n ever I'd done in my life. My clothes got shabby, but I saved up every cent.

"And on Thanksgiving day I got a holiday, and then I told the boss I had no taste for the city. And I took the early train for home.

"As I got off the cars to walk home a train came in from the other way, and I saw a lanky-looking chap get off. I didn't know him at first, and then I saw it was Bill.

"'Just gettin' home?' said he.

"'Yes,' said I.

"'Paid your way?'

"'Yes.'

"'You've done better'n me,' says he, 'I've been as fur as Indiany, and I've been down with the chills-and-fever six weeks, and some one wrote to father for money to send me home.'

"'Where's Ned?' says I.

"'Home. He started to walk back the day I started West. Footed it all the seventy miles 'cept lifts he got.' I found father just putting up the horses after they'd come home from church. I went up to him and says I:

"'Do you want to hire a boy, sir?'

"He dropped the halter on the barnfloor, and grabbed hold o' both my hands and looked into my eyes.

"'The Lord bless you Sammy,' says he, 'we've all been looking for you. Well—yes, I do want a boy—if I can get one that has a taste for farming.'

"I shouted out 'I'm the boy!' and then I rushed in and got my arms around mother's neck, and nearly made her drop the great big turkey she was just getting out of the oven. I guess 'twas some time before she or the little girls knew whether they were laughing or crying, and then father came in and—if I hadn't been a boy I'd 'a' hardly known either when I told 'em how sorry I was I'd given 'em so much trouble, and how glad I was to get back.

"I tell you, boys, if there's anything to be thankfuller for on Thanksgiving than anything else, it's for having a home and having a chance to stay there.

"Me and Bill and Ned thinks there's lots o' worse work than plowing or feeding stock or digging potatoes, or doing anything we're likely to do on any farm.—Sidney Dayre, in N. Y. Examiner.

THE CHURCHES.

—Dr. Edwin B. Webb, after a pastorate of twenty-five years, retired from the pulpit of Shawmut Congregational church of Boston.

—The colored people of a Kansas town began a protracted meeting in August, 1884, which has continued ever since without omitting a single night.

—Rev. J. D. Nutting, of the Congregational church, Wanseon, Ohio, late recording secretary of the N. C. A., has begun the publication of a neat little monthly, "For Everybody," devoted to church work, education, temperance, etc.

—Rev. S. S. Calkins, who was connected with the underground railway in slavery times, and about 1870 came to Chicago and practiced law, died Thursday at Chatham, Ohio, where he was pastor of the Congregational church.

—C. P. Huntington, of New York, the great railway owner in the Southwest, is about to build a granite chapel, costing about $20,000, for the Congregationalists of Harrington, Conn., as a memorial of his deceased mother.

—President Hitchcock, of Union Theological Seminary, stated at the unveiling of Wm. E. Dodge's statue that the Christian merchant had helped nearly 300 young men into the ministry.

—Joseph Cook discovers that "more than $500,000 a year in the American board, and $1,500,000 of property in Andover Seminary, the New Departure men are bent on controlling."

—Mr. Moody will conduct special meetings for young men in the large hall of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian Association, from the 9th to the 15th of December.

—The Lutheran church in the United States preaches the Gospel in the following twelve languages: German, English, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Icelandic, Finnish, Bohemian, Polish, French, Siberian (or Serbian), Slovakian (or Hungarian), and the Indian dialects.

—The McAuley Mission of New York has closed another year of fruitful work among the poor and degraded classes. The attendance at the mission for the year aggregated 28,295. The average number of requests for prayer were twelve per meeting. Many were converted.

—The American churches which call themselves evangelical claim 11,318,287 communicants. In a year they have contributed $3,830,931 for foreign missions. The number of missionaries in the field is 2,393; and these are assisted by over 10,000 native workers, representing nearly 570,000 converts.

—Of the 42,972 new members who came into the Presbyterian churches last year on confession of their faith in Christ, 20,778, or nearly one-half, were from the Sabbath-schools of the church. These Sabbath-schools contributed $98,581 to the various Boards of the church, and gave to other benevolent objects $157,116.

—The last Missionry Chronicle of the London Missionary Society has acknowledgments of $4,264, received from the churches and schools at seven of their stations in the South Sea Islands.

—One result of the visit to Pekin of the Cambridge athletes who have gone as missionaries to China was the establishment of a daily noon prayer-meeting. The request has now been sent to all the mission stations in China that their members would unite in this daily noon meeting for the baptism of the Holy Spirit on their own hearts, and for the outpourings of the Spirit on China.

—The Freedman's Aid Society of the Methodist Episcopal church has just held its eighteenth annual meeting. Dr. Rust's report showed that the work of the past year exceeded that of any previous year. There are twenty-two institutions supported among the colored people of the South, with 112 teachers and 4,243 pupils. In many of the districts the churches are used during the week for school purposes. Five colleges for the whites, with 1,822 pupils, are supported by the Society. The expenditures for the year were $174,752, of which $70,000 was put in real estate.

—The evangelists, Sam Jones and Sam Small, were lately conducting a mammoth revival meeting at Birmingham, Ala. Three services are held daily. Never in the history of the city has there been anything like the present enthusiasm. People and churches that have heretofore opposed excitement in religious matters are giving a hearty support to the movement, and freely assert that God's blessing is upon the meeting. Special services are held for the colored people.

—Careful statistics compiled by the Missionary Herald show that there are in China connected with American societies 235 missionaries with 707 native helpers and 10,541 communicants, with British societies 280 missionaries, 647 native helpers, and 14,044 communicants; and with Continental missions, 29 missionaries, 96 native helpers, and 1,700 communicants. Including the wives of missionaries there are 857 foreign laborers.

—The nineteeth annual convention of the Long Island Baptist Association was held in the First Baptist Church, Brooklyn. The Rev. Dr. A. G. Lawson said that there were many good people willing to labor among the heathen and to go to the Congo country, but there was no money on hand with which to send them, and further, that the Union, was already $50,000 in debt. The average amount contributed by each member of the Baptist churches last year was thirty-eight cents.

—The Protestant Church of Hungary, which receives no aid whatever from the State, is one of the most active and energetic in the Protestant family of Europe. With her own resources she has built up an educational system, from the primary school to the thoroughly equipped universities, that challenges the admiration of all, while great zeal is shown and energetic work done in missionary enterprises, both home and foreign.

—Of all the missionaries of the American Board, fourteen per cent. are children or grandchildren of missionaries. This speaks well for the missonary spirit in such families. We wish that this spirit was more clearly manifest in all the churches. It is not creditable to us to be told that the young men are not as ready as they were fifty years ago to offer themselves for this work. And yet it is now a time of ingathering rather than of seed sowing. Where are the young men for Japan, for China, for Africa, and all the foreign fields? We can not but believe that they will hear God's call and obey.—Golden Rule.

A. M. A. SEMINARY BURNED.

[From the Inter Ocean, Nov. 18.]

The Connecticut Seminary at Quitman, Ga. was burned on Tuesday night. It had been a winter-resort hotel. Last Summer a Connecticut lady who owned it made a present of the property, furniture, carriage and team to to the American Missionary Association for a boarding-school for colored girls. Connecticut Congregational ladies had assumed the support of the school. The Rev. John H. Parr and his wife, lately of Wilmette, Ill., were put in charge.

When he went down to get things in order the citizens sought to secure an old cotton factory to exchange for the hotel. They failed to raise the necessary funds, and so they said they could find no fault with the going on of the school.

On the first of October the school was opened, with an enrollment the first two weeks of 107. Several times the house was assaulted with stones and mud balls. Insults were heaped upon Mr. Parr on the streets. The lighted windows were shot into. Writing of this, under date of Nov. 5, to the A. M. A. office, in this city, Mr. Parr said: "I have a suspicion that some of my worthy superior officers would tell me to 'glory in tribulations.' But it is apt to cool one's ardor when the bullets begin to rattle against the side of the house." The burning of the house has been threatened. The deed has been accomplished. It was in the night. No lives were lost.

The Beach institute in Savannah, Ga., was burned by the same Kuklux incendiarism. It was rebuilt, and is doing a grand work. The same was true of the Lewis High School in Macon, Ga., named for the Union General Lewis, who carries an empty sleeve. The Emerson Institute, of Mobile, Ala., named for a patron, Ralph Emerson, of Rockford, Ill., was burned down twice by the torch of hate; the last time the Congregational church adjoining was also consumed. Twice the premises have been rebuilt; and the people of Mobile have learned that this missionary association has come to stay.

The Straight University in New Orleans was burned unmistakably by the same incendiary brand. It, too, has been rebuilt on a much grander scale, upon a whole block in Canal street, with three commanding structures. Many school-houses have been burned, but the work goes on.

The American Missionary Association has expended at the South, since the war, as much as $6,000,000, raised by contributions from the Congretional people. This last year it had 9,000 students in its institutions under its 250 instructors, and as many as 250,000 colored children have been taught by the teachers trained in these schools.

The Quitman school will doubtless be rebuilt, and the people of that place will learn in due time to respect this work, as have the citizens in the other places where such buildings have been burned. The Rev Mr. Parr is known in this region as one of the most gentle and considerate of gentlemen. There has, we are sure, been no rashness on his part. One of the lady teachers, Miss Beard, is a member of Dr. Goodwin's church.

—A Christian conference for Christian life, work and hope, and divine healing, conducted by Rev. A. B. Simpson, of New York, editor of the Word, Work and World, will be held in the First Methodist Episcopal church, corner of Clark and Washington streets, Chicago, December 1st to 3d, 1885. Rev. A. B. Simpson and Rev. John E. Cookman, D. D., of New York; Mrs. M. Baxter, of London, Mrs. E. E. Stroud Smith, Liverpool, England; and Miss Carrie F. Judd, Buffalo, N. Y., with other Christian workers and teachers are expected to take part in the services.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year. clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Until January next we will send five sample copies of the Cynosure to one address for TEN CENTS! Has the Cynosure been a household blessing to you? then we want you to help us make it such to your relatives, friends and neighbors. We are dependent on your good will, good word and good work for that which will make this paper what you wish it to be, and give it the circulation you wish it to have. How many homes will you introduce the Cynosure into in the next two months?

☞The above is not clearly understood by some. Just five sample copies of the Cynosure, and no more, will be sent to one address for ten cents. This offer will be continued until January.

PLEASE NOTICE.—Painstaking care is taken not to insert an advertisement in the Cynosure which will not bring returns as represented. But we wish to caution our readers against expecting to get something for nothing, that is if an agency promises you something worth $5 00 for 50 cents, the result will probably be that you will receive ink powder which made into ink will sell for $5 00 if you ask enough for the product, or something about as valuable. This is the rule where great offers are made for little money. The ordinary rule in business is that articles of small cost are of proportionate value.

TO OUR READERS.

We cannot too strongly urge upon our readers the necessity of subscribing for a family, weekly newspaper of the first class—such, for instance, as The Independent, of New York. Were we obliged to select one publication for habitual and careful reading to the exclusion of all others, we should choose unhesitatingly The Independent. It is a newspaper, magazine, and review, all in one. It is a religious, a literary, an edueational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial, and a political paper combined. It has 32 folio pages and 22 departments. No matter what a person's religion, politics or profession may be, no matter what the age, sex, employment or condition may be, The Independent will prove a help, an instructor, an educator. Our readers can do no less than to send a postal for a free specimen copy, or for thirty cents the paper will be sent a month, enabling one to judge of its merits more critically. Its yearly subscription is $3 00, or two years for $5.00.

Address, The Independent, 251 Broadway, New York City.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2		@89¾
No. 3		74½
Winter No 2	92½	96
Corn—No. 2	43¾	@44
Oats—No. 2		28¼
Rye—No. 2		62
Bran per ton		11 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@12 00
Mess pork per bbl	8 50	9 50
Butter, medium to best	11	@25
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 60	@1 71
Flax		1 16
Broom corn	03½	@ 07
Potatoes	50	@ 60
Hides—Green to dry flint	07½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 00	@5 50
Common to good	2 00	@4 80
Hogs	2 25	@3 75
Sheep	2 00	@4 00

NEW YORK.

Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	96	@ 98½
Spring		95
Corn	38	@54
Oats	37	@43
Mess Pork	9 25	10 25
Eggs		16½
Butter	7	26
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@5 25
Hogs	3 25	@3 60
Sheep	1 50	@2 75

Standard Works
—ON—
SECRET SOCIETIES
FOR SALE BY THE
National Christian Associat'n
221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1 50 each

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 30c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10 cents each.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 30 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

ON FREEMASONRY

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Ritual of First Three Degrees; 35c.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; cloth, 420 pp, 75c.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Mah-Hah-Bone, comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandary, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Bonayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned. By Rev. J. W. Bain. Paper, 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

Odd fellowship Judged by its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H. Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents. German edition entitled "Christian and Ernst;" 50c.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Israel Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Gcestin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

SERMONS AND ADDRESSES.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c

A Masonic Conspiracy, by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies; cloth, $1.

COLLECTION BOXES.

Do You Want Money for missionary, church or Sunday-school purposes? It is surprising how much the children will collect with the

FAIRBANKS' SAVINGS BOXES

They are simple and cheap. Price 3 cents each

T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher
106 Franklin St., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS. MISCELLANEOUS.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the

SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treatise on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING, SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price, 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited, $50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

Invaluable to Every Lady!

The Ladies' Manual of Fancy Work. A new book, giving plain directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work and all kinds of fancy Needle Work. This valuable book is beautifully printed on fine tinted paper, has a handsome cover, and contains over 500 Illustrations, Price only 50 cents!

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Knit Edgings, Cross Stitch Patterns, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool designs, Applique designs, Kate Greenaway designs for Doylys, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Macrame Lace work, Holbein work, Java Canvas work, Worsted Fringes, Turkish Rugs, Toilet Cushions, Footstools, Hat Racks, Pin Cushions, Ottomans, Work Baskets, Pen Wipers, Bed-Quilts, Lambrequins, Work Bags, Book Covers, Wood Boxes, Door Panels, Scrap Baskets, Sofa Coverlets, Toilet Bottle Cases, Table Top Patterns, Folding Screens, Church Font Decorations, Sofa Cushions, Music Portfolios, Slipper Patterns, Persian Rugs, Wall Pockets, Carriage Rugs, Chair back Covers, Towel Racks, Perfume Sachets, Tidy Designs, Flower Pot Covers, Lamp Shades, Needle Cases, Watch Cases, Fancy Work Bags, Catch-alls, Match Safes, Eye Glass Pockets, Collar Boxes, Chair Bolsters, Umbrella Cases, School Bags, Patch-work Designs, Coin Purses, Designs for Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Commodes, Bibs, Glove Cases, Air Castles, Gypsey Tables, Hair Receivers, Paper Weights, Table Mats, Night-dress Cases, Shoe Bags, Needle Books, Jewel Boxes, Door Mats, Knitted Jackets, Bottle Cases, Paper Racks Pillow Shams Hair Pin Holders, Floss Winders, Mosaic Window Shades, Book Marks, and every design in fancy work a lady can desire, to the number of over 500.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion and invaluable to all who love fancy work. Plain directions with each design.

Jenny June in her preface to this book, says: "The present volume does not pretend to furnish the theory or practice of the highest Needle work art, but it does aim to supply within its compass a greater variety of excellent designs—every one of which is useful for dress or household decoration—than have ever before been gathered within the leaves of one manual."

Large quarto, paper cover mailed free for 50 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

NEEDLE WORK

Needle-Work: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. This manual is an attempt to Edited by Jenny June systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. When the Angel of Mercy begged that woman might not be created because she would be abused by man, as the stronger, the Lord listened, but felt that he could not give up the whole scheme of creation, so he gave the loving Angel permission to bestow upon her any compensating gift she chose, and the Angel pityingly endowed her with tears and the love of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover, and contains

200 Illustrations

The list of stitches, with illustrations, are: Buttonhole—Hemstitch—Brier Stitch—Crow's Foot—Herring Bone—Fodder Stitch—Two Tie—Three Tie—Drawn Work—Stem Stitch—Twisted Chain or Rope Stitch—Split Stitch—French Knot—Solid Leaf—Satin Stitch—Padding—Darning Stitch—Skeleton Outline—Couching, Kensington, Filling, Coral, Italian, Leviathan and Holbein Stitches—Applique—Interlaced Ground—Weaving Stitch—Gold and Silver Thread—Arrasene Ribbon Work, etc.

Designs in Needle-Work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artist Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Mufflers—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doilies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers, etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of needle-work.

Large 8vo. paper cover. Mailed free for 50 cents.

Arcade Publishing Company, Chicago, Ill.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Most Perfect Knitter

ever invented for either family or manufacturers' use. Seamless Hosiery of all sizes, with heel and toe complete, of either cotton or wool, are knit on these machines.

Boys and girls of 10 and 12 years operate them in factories, turning out four dozen pairs a day each. A living for a family can be made with one of these Machines.

THE NEW BRANSON KNITTER.

For descriptive circulars giving full particulars. Address Jesse L. Branson, 30 East Fourth St., Cincinnati, O., and mention this paper.

☞Readers ordering goods, or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

Five Useful Books!

Talks with Homely Girls, on Health and Beauty: Their Preservation and Cultivation. By FRANCES SMITH. A manual of advice and instruction upon the general care of the health, exercise, bathing, the care of the head, teeth, hands, feet and the complexion; with chapters upon dress, manner, conversation, and all topics pertaining to a young lady's appearance and deportment.

A Classical and Mythological Dictionary. For Popular Use. With seventy illustrations. By H. C. FAULKNER. A brief and concise explanation of the ancient Mythological, Biographical, Historical and Geographical Allusions most frequently met with in English Literature.

"The work deserves great praise. Its information is carefully condensed."—Evening Telegram, New York.

The Usages of the Best Society: A Complete Manual of Social Etiquette. By FRANCES STEVENS. Nothing is given in this book that has not the sanction of observance by the best society—best not merely in the sense of the most fashionable, but the most cultivated, natural, and the most worthy of imitation.

"Useful to all who wish to obtain instruction on matters relating to social usage and society."—Demorest's Magazine.

A Handy Dictionary of Synonyms; With which are combined the words opposite in meaning. By H. C. FAULKNER. A collection of 40,000 words in general use, arranged with reference to their similarity and opposition. Designed for the use of those who would speak or write the English language with exactness and fluency.

"Will be found of great value to those who are not experienced in speech or with pen."—Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Famous People of All Ages: Who they were, when they lived, and why they are famous. By W. H. VAN ORDEN. A volume of condensed biographies of the most notable men and women who have lived, from the beginning of history to the present time; including soldiers, statesmen, authors, artists, scientists and people most prominent in history.

"An excellent book, giving in a compact form biographies of the persons in whom the student and writer would naturally take most interest."—New York Tribune.

These books are bound in cloth with gold and ink designs, uniform in size and binding. Price, postpaid, 50 cents each.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The five books in a neat box sent, postpaid, for $2.00. Address the publisher,

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper cover, 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

WHEN AND HOW TO FEED HORSES.

A horse ought to be fed when he is hungry, and he ought to be hungry every day. What makes him hungry? The constant waste of the system. The muscles when brought into use waste somewhat, especially exercise or labor is a draft upon the muscular system, in fact upon the whole system. After the system has been taxed, and if the tax is sufficient to partially exhaust or fatigue the animal, rest is more important than feed; hence the horse should stand and rest awhile before he is fed. Digestion demands a flow of blood to the organs then at work, and as the blood has been drawn away from them to sustain the muscular exertion during labor, it should not be suddenly withdrawn and turned in upon the organs of digestion—hence let him rest, and after an hour or so, he will be found keen and "sharp set."

There is probably no food so good for recuperating exhausted muscles as good, sound, heavy oats. They are easily digested, nutritious, muscle-building and blood-making in a high degree. They are little heating, do not tend to making horses sweat, and on the whole are the best food a horse can have. Barley is very good, not equal to oats. Indian corn is a poor substitute, not so easily digested, heating, and causing the animal to sweat. As to system, a horse should have hay first, then grain, and water when these are digested, or water should be given half an hour at least before feeding. Horses often have dyspepsia, induced by feeding when warm, or being worked after a full meal. The practice of feeding hard-worked horses at noon and working them immediately after, is of doubtful utility. Horses will go eight and probably ten hours without food if properly fed at evening and morning. They should have water more frequently, but never when hot.—American Agriculturist.

FATTENING SHEEP IN WINTER.

Comparatively few farmers succeed in fattening sheep in winter. A neighbor told me yesterday that last fall he bought one hundred and fifty sheep, fed them straw, hay, corn stalks, and grain, all winter, and sold them for forty-five dollars more than he paid for them. "I got a lot of good manure," he said, and that and the forty five dollars is all I have to show for the feed and labor. It does not pay."

If you can buy sheep in the fall for three cents a pound, and sell them in the spring for six cents a pound, it will pay. It will pay still better to buy them for four cents, and sell them for eight cents per pound. We can sometimes do even better than this. One thing is certain: it does not pay to try to fatten poor sheep in winter. If sheep are not in good growing condition in the fall, get rid of them.

If you are going to buy sheep to fatten, select the very best that can be found. You do not want old sheep, you do not want lambs. If the sheep are long-wool, or Southdown grades, select those that are yearlings, or two-year-olds; if merino grades, then year-old wethers are best. Buy more than you want, if need be, and select out the best to keep over winter, and sell the poor ones now for what you can get. Careful selection is the main point.

With good sheep, liberal and regular feeding, dry, comfortable quarters, fresh water every day, and salt once a week, fattening sheep in winter is decidedly profitable to the farmer and beneficial to the farm. In other words, it will provide both money and manure.—Joseph Harris in American Agriculturist.

CROP REPOTS.

The potato crop is smaller than that of 1884, in consequence of injury from rot, which has reduced the New York crop nearly one third. There is much complaint of rot in Wisconsin and Iowa and in some counties of Michigan, Illinois, and Minnesota.

The reported yield of hay per acre averages one and one-fourth tons, and indicats a crop of over 47,000,000 tons, nearly as large as last year.

The present crop of corn is the first full average in rate of yield since 1880, which was the last of a series of six full crops of 26 to 28 bushels per acre. The present crop, grown on an area of 53,000,000 to 54,000,000 acres, is slightly above an average for a period of ten years, or 26¼ bushels per acre. The highest rate of yield is 36½ bushels, in Nebraska and Ohio. The three corn-growing States which produce four-tenths of the entire crop—Illinois, Iowa, and Missouri—each average several bushels per acre less than in the census year. Illinois averages 31, Iowa 32, Missouri 30, Utah 36, Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Colorado 35, New Hampshire and Rhode Island 34, Michigan 33, Wisconsin 32, Kansas 31. The southern States make an average yield. The quality of corn is very good in the east and south, medium in the central parts of the west, and somewhat depreciated on the northern border from Michigan to Dakota.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

A Good Thing.

DR. ADAM MILLER, Chicago, Ill., says: "I have recommended Horsford's Acid Phosphate to my patients, and have received very favorable reports. It is one of the very few really valuable preparations now offered to the afflicted. In a practice of thirty-five years I have found a few good things, and this is one of them."

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE
TAYLOR'S
CHEROKEE

REMEDY
—OF—
SWEET GUM
—AND—
MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

Lesson Quarterly.

Contains the same matter as the Light and Life Lesson Leaf, bound in a quarterly form, with maps and other helps. It also contains many suggestions and instructions concerning the management of the Sunday-school. Price, per quarter, 3 cents.
T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.
105 Franklin street Chicago, Ill.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

STEIN'S SAFETY
Stocking Supporters.

NO MORE BLOOD-STRANGLING GARTERS.
RECOMMENDED BY ALL THE LEADING PHYSICIANS.

Children's one attachment,	8c	a pair.
" two "	10c
Misses' " "	13c
Ladies' " "	15c
Misses' with belt "	20c	"
Ladies' with belt "	25c	"
Stocking, Abdominal, and Catamenial Bandage supporter combined	50c	"
Health Skirt Supporter	25c	"
Brighton Gents' Garter	15c	"

FOR SALE BY ALL FIRST-CLASS STORES, or on receipt of price in 2c stamps by LEWIS STEIN, Owner and Manufacturer,
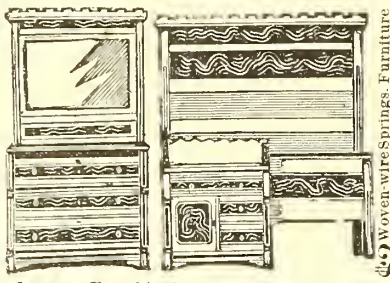
178 Center St., New York.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cures BLOOD Diseases, CANCER, ECZEMA, Salt Rheum, etc., when all other remedies fail.
Send for 20-page descriptive circular and testimonials.
D. NEEDHAM'S SON'S
World renowned Red Clover Blossoms and Fluid and Solid Extracts of the Blossoms, 116 and 118 Dearborn street, Chicago.



"NOTES FOR BIBLE STUDY,"

32-PAGE MONTHLY. FIFTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

Commended in the strongest terms by C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Major Whittle, Rev. Dr. Brookes, the late Rev. Dr. MacKay, and hundreds of others.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 36 CENTS.

CLUB RATES: To one address (If to separate address, add 3 cents per copy), 6 to 10 copies, each, 30 cents; over 10 to 50 copies, each, 25 cents; over 50 copies, each, 20 cents.
P. S.—Parties subscribing now will receive the NOTES until the end of 1886. Address
S. R. BRIGGS, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

Woven-wire Springs. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

FREE $2 SAMPLES fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

MISCELLANEOUS.

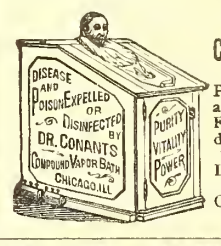
OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.
DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY
sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy, Sold under positive guaranty. Sample FREE.
L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE Co., Boston, Mass.



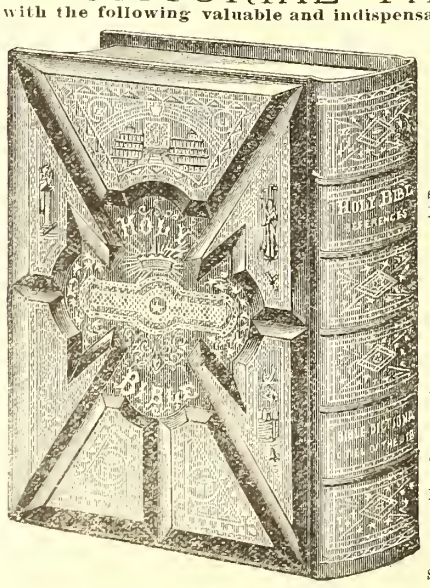
WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

WOMAN OR MAN WANTED TO MAKE 125 Per Cent. PROFIT. taking orders for our celebrated oil portraits. Previous knowledge of the business unnecessary. $2.25 Outfit Free. The agent realizes $66 profit per week on only 4 orders per day. Reilly Bros. & Co., 444 Broome St., N. Y

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.
Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

DR. CONANT'S CompoundVaporBaths
FOR HOME USE.
Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.
Ladies—Room 5.
Gents—Room 6.
Call or send for circular.



THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF GEN. U. S. GRANT.

His Early Life, his Military Achivements, his Administration as President, his Political and Businesss Career, together with his "Tour Around the World." By L. T. REMLAP, author of "Grant's Tour Around the World," "The Home Guide," "The Gospel Awakening," "Chautauqua, Historical and Descriptive," "The Great Redemption," etc., etc.

Contains a full and accurate description of Gen. Grant's early life, habits, cadetship at West Point; his military record in the Mexican War; his private life subsequently; his great military achievements during the Civil War; his political successes and administration as President; his unique and celebrated tour around the world—the receptions tendered him, with addresses of welcome, his replies, his conversations with public men—his political and financial reverses; his distressing sickness, death and funeral obsequies.

Elegantly illustrated; eighty full page and other engravings. Bound in cloth. Sent, post paid, on receipt of price, $1.75. One large octavo volume, 772 pages. Address
THE ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
145—149 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

SPECIAL OFFER.
PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE,
with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.
A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.
Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.
Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.
Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.
Cities of the Bible with Magnificent Views and Descriptive Scenes and Events in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.
Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible.
A History of all the Existing Religious Denominations.
The History of the Translation of the English Bible.
A Chronological Index to the Holy Bible.
Alphabetical Table of the Proper Names in the Old and New Testament.
A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.
The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.
Scripture Illustrattons.
Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.
Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.
Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similies of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.
Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.
A Complete Concordance.
And many other important and useful aids to the Study of the Holy Scriptures.

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).
THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING
The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.
Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.
The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.
On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

☞ We offer the Christian Cynosure for one year and Webster's Practical Dictionary, postpaid, both for only $2.00. W. I. PHILLIPS.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

ASTONISHING RESULT.

A CANCER LIKE GEN. GRANT'S SUCCESSFULLY REMOVED BY A SKILLFUL SURGICAL OPERATION.

Being informed that Dr. Peiro, the celebrated throat physician of Chicago, had recently removed a real cancer of the tongue, we called at his elegant office in the Opera House Building, and the following conversation reveals the facts:

"Dr. Peiro, will you state the particulars in regard to your cancer patient, that the public may be accurately informed?"

"Certainly, sir; it need be no secret. The lady to whom you refer is Mrs. Geo. Allen—I will not give her stage name, only observing she is a prominent actress. For three years she has not been able to attend to professional duties because of a malignant disease of the throat for which she has been constantly treated by eminent physicians. The last sixty days she has been under my care. I have removed the whole of a cancer of the right tonsil and portion of the tongue. Though it was almost a hopeless case, she has rallied with great vigor. She is now free from pain; the parts have almost entirely healed; has excellent appetite; can eat, drink and sleep as well as ever in her life; and of course feels delighted to know she is once more to be a well woman."

"Well, Doctor, this being so extraordinary a case, with such happy results, it must necessarily largely increase even your present wide circle of friends and patients, do you not think so?"

"That, sir, is the chief end and ambition of all reputable physicians, to do all the good in their power, and thereby gain the esteem and patronage of all whose good opinion and friendship are worth having."

"I am greatly obliged to you, Dr. Peiro, for the information obtained."

"Very welcome, sir. Good-bye."—Chicago Tribune.

THE CENTURY for 1885-86.

The remarkable interest in the War Papers and in the many timely articles and strong serial features published recently in THE CENTURY has given that magazine a regular circulation of

More Than 200,000 Copies Monthly.

Among the features for the coming volume, which begins with the November number, are:

The War Papers
By General Grant and Others.

These will be continued (most of them illustrated) until the chief events of the Civil War have been described by leading participants on both sides. General Grant's papers include descriptions of the battles of Chattanooga and the Wilderness. General McClellan will write of Antietam, General D. C Buell of Shiloh, Generals Pope, Longstreet and others of the Second Bull Run, etc., etc. Naval combats, including the fight between the Kearsarge and the Alabama, by officers of both ships, will be described.

The "Recollections of a Private" and special war papers of an anecdotal or humorous character will be features of the year.

Serial Stories by
W. D. Howells, Mary Hallock Foote, and George W. Cable.

Mr. Howells's serial will be in lighter vein than "The Rise of Silas Lapham." Mrs. Foote's is a story of mining life, and Mr. Cable's a novelette of the Acadians of Louisiana. Mr. Cable will also contribute a series of papers on Slave songs and dances, including negro serpent-worship, etc.

Special Features

Include "A Tricycle Pilgrimage to Rome," illustrated by Pennell; Historical Papers by Edward Eggleston, and others; Papers on Persia, by S. G. W. Benjamin, lately U. S. minister, with numerous illustrations; Astronomical Articles, practical and popular, on "Sidereal Astronomy;" Papers on Christian Unity by representatives of various religious denominations; Papers on Manual Education, by various experts, etc., etc.

Short Stories.

By Frank R. Stockton, Mrs. Helen Jackson (H. H.), Mrs. Mary Hallock Foote, Joel Chandler Harris, H. H. Boyesen, T. A. Janvier, Julian Hawthorne, Richard M. Johnston, and others; and poems by leading poets. The Departments—"Open Letters," "Brie-a-Brac," etc., will be fully sustained.

The Illustrations

Will be kept up to the standard which has made THE CENTURY engravings famous the world over.

Prices. A Special Offer.

Regular subscription price, $4.00 a year. To enable new readers to get all the War Papers, with contributions from Generals Grant, Beauregard, McClellan, J. E. Johnston, Lew Wallace, Admiral Porter and others, we will send the 12 back numbers, November 1884, to October, 1885, with a year's subscription beginning with November 1885, for $6.00 for the whole. A subscription, with the 12 numbers bound in two handsome volumes, $7.50, for the whole.

Back numbers only supplied at these prices with subscriptions.

A free specimen copy (back number) will be sent on request. Mention this paper.

All dealers and postmasters take subscriptions and supply numbers according to our special offer, or remittance may be made directly to THE CENTURY CO. NEW YORK.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the United States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

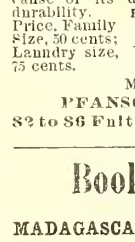
Price, Roan Leather, round corners..... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,
Toronto Willard Tract Depository,
TORONTO, CANADA.

THE INDEPENDENT.



Religious and Literary Weekly.

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

Subscription $3.00 per year. 75c 3 months.

Send postal for free specimen copy.

251 BROADWAY.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

The best is the cheapest.

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY
PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.
82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

Books of Interest.

MADAGASCAR AND FRANCE.

By George A. Shaw. A full account of the great island of Madagascar, its inhabitants, history, productions, missions, etc., together with a full history of the recent attempts of the French to seize the island, written by Mr. Shaw, who was a missionary from London. Fully illustrated and map. 12mo. 438 pp. 20 cuts. $1.50.

HOME-LIFE IN CHINA.

By Mrs. Bryson, Wuchang, China. A description of every-day life among Chinese homes, written by one many years a missionary among them. It is full of incidents and detail, and has a full account of mission work among the people. 12mo. 314 pp. 22 cuts. $1.25.

American Tract Society,

150 Nassau Street, New York; 52 Bromfield St., Boston; 1512 Chestnut St., Philadelphia; 93 State St., Rochester; 152 Wabash Av., Chicago.

MASONIC OATHS,

BY

E. Ronayne,
Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

A masterly discussion of the Oaths of the Masonic Lodge, to which is appended "Freemasonry at a Glance," illustrating every sign, grip and ceremony of the Masonic Lodge. This work is highly commended by leading lecturers as furnishing the best arguments on the nature and actual character of Masonic obligations of any book in print. Paper cover, 207 pages. Price, 40 cents.

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Headquarters for the Northwest FOR

TEMPERANCE PUBLICATIONS.

A Complete Stock of all the NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S Publications.

Catalogue sent free on application.

C. H. WHITING,
Publisher and Bookseller,
137 Wabash ave. - - Chicago.

Readings and Recitations!

100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No. 24 NOW READY.

This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings, combining Sentiment, Oratory, Pathos, Humor, Fun. 216 pages. Price 30cts., postpaid. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants Something New should get the whole set, 24 Nos. only $4.80. Every number different. Nothing repeated. Club rates and full list of contents free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Also, MODEL DIALOGUES, 382 pages, $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.

System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health
Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.
Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure. Special prices ma to clergymen and the workers.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. end for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED FOR THE PICTORIAL COMPLETE STOCK-DOCTOR

Embracing Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees and Dogs By Hon. J. Periam and Dr. A. H. Baker, V. S. Covers every subject pertaining to Stock of Farm both in Health and Disease. Two charts for telling ages of Horses and Cattle; 720 Engravings and 14 Colored Plates. Farmers clear $100 a month. ACT NOW! Exclusive Territory. Book absolutely without competition. For confidential terms and "Extracts from Agent's Report," etc., address N. D. THOMPSON PUB. CO., St. Louis, Mo., or New York.

A Splendid Christmas Gift
Ladies Do Your Own Stamping

With our new $1.00 Outfit

You can SAVE Money by doing your own Stamping

You can MAKE Money by doing it for others.

Good $5 Stamping Outfit for $1.00

35 Parchment Stamping Patterns full size, price 10c each.	$3.50
26 Initials, size 1½ in., for Hat-bands, Handkerchiefs, &c.....	.75
1 Illustrated Book of Instruction in Kensington Embroidery Work.....	.10
1 Felt stamping Pad, imp, pat.	.15
1 Box best Stamping Powder.	.15
1 Felt Tidy, with design stamped all ready to work, with 4 knots of silk and needle.....	.35
Retail Value.....	$5.00

Teaches also How to Stamp Plush, Felt, &c. Teaches the Kensington, Plush Ribbon and other stitches. Also How to Do KENSINGTON, LUSTRE PAINTING, &c. The patterns contained in this outfit are all useful and desirable for stampin Hatbands, Lamp and Table Mats. Tidies, Doylies, Towel Racks Lambrequins, Splashers, etc.

1 vine of Roses, 2½ in. wide	1 single Rose and Bud, 2x2 in.
1 little Girl, 5 in. high	1 bunch of Pansies, 4x5 in.
1 Kitten, 3½ in. high	1 bunch of Roses & Buds, 3x5 in.
1 little Butterfly	1 sprig of Golden Rod, 4 in. high
1 little Bird	1 sprig of Daisies, 4 in. high
1 Bird, 4x5 inches	1 sprig of Smilax, 5 in. high
1 design, 2 Owls on Branch	1 single Buttercup, 2x2 in.
1 Star and Anchor	1 sprig of Asters, 2x3½ in.
1 design of Child's Face	1 sprig of Barberries, 3 in. high
1 Sprig of Daisies, 4x5 in.	1 vine of Leaves, 1½ in. wide
1 growing design of Violets, for Lambrequins, &c., 5 inches high	1 vine of Point Russe Stitches, 1¼ in. wide
1 single Daisy and Forget-me-not, 2x2 in.	Snow-flake designs for Crazy Patchwork
1 sprig of Bachelor's Button, 3½ in high	1 strip of Scallops for Skirts, Infant's Blanket &c
1 cluster of Strawberries, 2½x3 in.	1 vine with Scallop, 2½ in. wide
1 sprig of Forget-me-nots, 1⅝x2 in.	1 Braiding Vine, 2 in. wide
1 bouquet of Daisies & Forget-me-nots 5x6 in.	1 Braiding Vine, 1½ in. wide
1 vine of Daisies and Ferns, 5½ in. wide	Design of Crying Child for Tidy in outline
	1 outline design, Boy and Girl Skating 7 in. high

With the Outfit You Can Learn the Art of the Kensington Embroidery. You can learn Perforated Stamping, and do your own stamping. You can adorn your house with hundreds of beautiful articles of Kensington Embroidery. You can teach the art of Kensington Embroidery and Stamping and do embroidery for others. Many young ladies who begin business with our Embroidery Outfit are now doing a very pretty and paying business REMEMBER the entire Outfit will be One Dollar TWO outfits $1,75 in their own homes FOUR outfits for ONLY THREE DOLLARS. Get three of your friends to send with you and get your own OUTFIT FREE! Send Postal Note, Money Order or Registered Letter, Postage Stamps taken. Send all orders to World Man'f'g Co. 122 Nassau Street, New York

It is seldom that we have an opportunity to direct attention to anything so really worthy of notice as this Complete Stamping Outfit. While the price is almost ridiculously low for the entire outfit, the number, excellence and variety of the articles furnished almost exceeds belief. Even for a family to do its own stamping the outfit would be of great service; but when it is realized, that by means of the instructions, samples and materials that are included as "Outfits," any lady can easily become skilled in making choice Kensington Lace of most elegant patterns, and in executing every description of perforated stamping thus making a nice addition to her income in a very easy and pleasant way, it would seem that scarcely anyone would neglect taking advantage of so favorable an opportunity. These stamping outfits are particularly appropriate for holiday presents and, in our opinion, well worthy of attentive consideration. Kindly mention our paper when you order.

Knitting & Crochet.

Edited by Jenny June.

Knitting and Crochet.—A guide to the use of the Needle and the Hook. In arranging this work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over 200 Illustrations.

The knitting stitches illustrated and described are: To Cast On with One and Two Needles—To Narrow—To Widen—To Purl—To Cast Off—To Slip a Stitch—Round Knitting—To Join Together—Edge Stitch. PATTERNS.—Peacock's Tail—Vandyke—Looped Knitting—Cane Work—Leaf and Trellis—Triangular Kilted—Gothic—Coral—Knotted Stitch—Diamond—Wave—Cable Twist—Stripes, etc.

MACRAME STITCHES.—Solomon's Knot—Simple Chain—Spiral Cord—Waved Bar—Spherical Knot—Slanting Rib—Open Knotting—Picot Heading—Cross Knot—Fringe—Tassels, etc.

CROCHET STITCHES.—Chain Stitch—Single Crochet—Double Crochet—Half Treble—Treble—Double Treble—Cross Treble—Slip Stitch—Tricot—Muscovite Tricot—Shell Pattern—Basket Pattern—Raised Spot Stitch—Ring Stitch—Hair Pin Crochet—Crochet Lace, etc.

DESIGNS AND DIRECTIONS are given to Knit and Crochet—Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest an l most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street Chicago.

Miss Flagg's Latest and Best

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children.
Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

At the Edgar Thomas Steel works in Pittsburg a process has been discovered for improving Bessemer steel, rendering it equal in quality to crucible steel, at one-tenth the price of the latter.

Fire Friday night destroyed the County Infirmary near Sandusky, Ohio, five women perishing in the flames. The superintendent was fatally injured.

John Legnard, of Chicago, is on trial at Omaha for conspiracy by which he secured nine quarters of government land in Cherry county, Nebraska.

The ocean off San Francisco was on Thursday afternoon the scene of earthquake waves, thirty-five minutes apart, rising as high as those during the upheaval in Java some years ago.

The boiler in a grist mill at Richland City, Ind., exploded Friday afternoon, and parting from its surroundings, passed through the mill, a store, a blacksmith's shop, and a barn, bringing up against an oak tree 300 feet distant. A woman and a man were killed, and five other persons wounded, one probably fatally.

While repairing a furnace at Johnstown, Pa., Monday night, a workman, J. B. Smith, being overcome by gas, fell into the red hot receptacle. It attempting a rescue seventeen men were rendered unconscious by the gas and had to be dragged away to places of safety.

Mr. and Mrs. Fordbrooke were killed Tuesday morning at a railroad corossing in Bloomington, Mich. Their horses were also killed and the buggy reduced to splinters.

Merritt F. Pease, of Des Moines, now claims to be the first inventor of the telephone, and states that he filed in the patent office in 1857 a method of transmitting sound by means of electrical currants.

A corrected report shows that 568 residences at Galveston were destroyed by Friday's fire, and that the loss is fully $2,500,000. At a mass meeting Monday it was resolved to accept proffered aid from other cities, the distress being greater than at first estimated. Thus far $68,000 has been received, of which $23,500 has been paid out.

James Dempsey reported at Helena, M. T., Wednesday, that his two companions —John Hoag, of Cleveland, and Jacob Scheller, of Lafayette, Ind.—had been devoured by wolves while crossing the mountains. From his position in a tree Dempsey saw the men torn to pieces and devoured.

While repairs were being made in the Philadelphia Lubric Company's works Wednesday morning the manhole of a still containing 150 barrels of crude oil blew out, the explosion sending the flaming fluid in all directions. One man was killed, five persons were fatally injured, an elderly man, name unknown, was found near the scene of the explosion unconscious and terribly burned.

The walls of the burned Empire Mills at New York suddenly collapsed Thursday afternoon, instantly killing a woman and wounding six men, four of whom will not survive their injuries.

FOREIGN.

Dispatches from Belgrade state that the Servian troops Monday captured four Bulgarian redoubts. The Servians are marching on Sofia, but the Bulgarians are contesting every inch of the ground. Turkey refuses to interfere in the quarrel. The London press severely criticises Servia for issuing the declaration of war. The Russian Press, in commenting on the Balkan question, abuse Austria equally with England. The Servians gained a decisive victory over the Bulgarians near Widden, Tuesday. The loss was heavy on both sides. The Servians captured 1,000 prisoners. Turkey will not interfere in the quarrel until after the capture of Sofia by the Servians.

A new emancipation act has been introduced in the Brazilian Parliament favoring an early liberation of slaves.

Louis Riel was hanged at Regina at 8:23 o'clock Monday morning, and died almost without a struggle. The execution caused great excitement in the province of Quebec. At Quebec and Montreal men were seen on the streets wearing crape on their hats and on their coat sleeves, and incendiary hand-bills calling for meetings were distributed. Students paraded the streets execrating Orangemen, but no breaches of the peace are reported. In Ontario the feeling appeared to obtain that Riel got his deserts.

THE INDEPENDENT.

The Largest, The Ablest, The Best.

Religious and Literary Weekly.

The most influential religious organ in the States.—The Spectator, London, Eng.

THE INDEPENDENT is one of the best papers in the world. Its good points are many and striking. They have only to be stated to be appreciated; and for proof of our claims appeal may be taken to any of the fifty-two issues of the year. Any number of The Independent will show that its contents are marked by—

ABILITY, VARIETY AND INTEREST.—The great thinkers, the great story-writers, the great poets, men of the highest reputation in all departments of human knowledge, make up its list of contributors. Everybody, old or young, learned or unlearned, without regard to sex, employment or condition, will find something of special interest in every issue.

COMPREHENSIVENESS.—It is a religious, a literary, an educational, a story, an art, a scientific, an agricultural, a financial and a political paper combined.

BREADTH, CANDOR, EARNESTNESS.—The Independent is tied to no denomination; it is the organ of no clique or party in state or church. It is free, therefore, to discuss all questions, and to speak its mind candidly. No matter what a person's religion, politics, or profession may be, if he desires to keep up with the times and know what the brightest minds are thinking of, the ablest pens are writing about, and what the world at large is doing—he should read The Independent

TERMS. Three months, 75 cents; four months, $1.00, six months, $1.50; one year, $3.00; two years $5.00; five years, $10.00.

Can any one make a better investment of $2.00 to $3.00 than one which will pay 52 Dividends During the Year?

EVERY INTELLIGENT FAMILY NEEDS A GOOD NEWSPAPER. It is a necessity for parents and children. Send 39 cents for a "Trial Trip" of a month.

SPECIMEN COPIES FREE.

No papers are sent to subscribers after the time paid for has expired.

THE INDEPENDENT Clubbing List will be sent free to any person asking for it..

THE INDEPENDENT,
P. O. Box 2787, New York.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers,

and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

* For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.*

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Burt's Selected Gems of Song.

A choice collection of SIXTY-TWO FAVORITE SONGS, from the works of the BEST COMPOSERS, with accompaniments for PIANO and ORGAN. The titles of the songs in this book are :

All on Account of Eliza—Bailiff's Daughter—Banbury Cross—A Bird in Hand—Blue Alsatian Mountains—Bob up Serenely—Boogie Man—The Bridge—Chorus of Charity Girls—Come Back to Erin—Danube River—Douglas, Tender and True—Down by the Old Mill Stream—Dream Song—Every Inch a Sailor—The Fairy Jane—Five O'clock in the Morning—Flee as a Bird—Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by—Home, Sweet Home—I'm Called Little Buttercup—In the Gloaming—It Was a Dream—Johnny Morgan—Katy's Letter—Kerry Dance—Killarney—Lardy Dah—Let Me Dream Again—Letter in the Candle (Quartette Chorus)—The Lost Chord—Lover and the Bird—Lullaby (Fritz)—Maggie's Secret—Man in the Moon—My Love Beyond the Sea—Nancy Lee—Naughty Clara—No Place Like Home—O Fair Dove, O Fond Dove—O Fred, Tell Them to Stop—Old Timbertoes—Over the Garden Wall—Robin Adair—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Smiles May End in Tears—Some Day—Speak to Me—Speed Well—Still Love's Dream I Cherish—Take Back the Heart—Tar's Farewell—Thirteen, Fifteen, Fourteen—Torpedo and the Whale—True Blue—Turnham Toll—Twickenham Ferry—Two's Company, Three's None—A Warrior Bold—The Watermill—We'd Better Bide A'wee—Whoa, Emma—You Never Miss the Water.

REMEMBER! This Book Contains 68 POPULAR VOCAL SONGS,

with music, full sheet-music size, and bound with a handsome engraved cover. This is the best collection of Songs and Ballads ever offered in one book.

Mailed free to any address an receipt of 60 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

Boys' Useful Pastimes.

Boy's Useful Pastimes: Pleasant and profitable amusement for spare hours. By PROF. ROBERT GRIFFITH, A. M. This volume comprises chapters on the use and care of tools, and detailed instruction by means of which boys can make, with their own hands, a large number of toys, household ornaments, scientific appliances, and many pretty, amusing and necessary articles for the play-ground, the home and out of doors. It is bound in showing how to make Boats, Steam Engines, Steamers, Bob-Sleds, Ice-Boats, Windmills, Aquariums, Hand Carts, Tops, Flags, Photograph Camera, Telephone, Telegraph, Microscope, Kaleidoscope, Steam Acrobats, Traps, Dog Houses, Bird Cages, Coops, Dove Cotes, Squirrel Cages, Summer Houses, Fences, Fountains, Furniture, Gymnasium, Step Ladders, Trunks, Nets, Wire Work, Clay Modeling, Brass Work, Picture Frames, Electric Batteries, Electroplating, Electrotyping, Running Mice, Wig-Wags and many other useful articles.

Handsome Cloth Binding, with 300 Illustrations,

In looking for a book to put into the hands of your boy which will be of real and genuine use, and at the same time a source of healthful entertainment, this is the one you should choose.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

Jenny June's Books for Ladies.

KNITTING AND CROCHET: A Guide to the Use of the Needle and the Hook Edited by JENNY JUNE. In arranging this new work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Knitting, Macramé, and Crochet Work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs and directions are given to Knit and Crochet Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published. Price, postpaid, 50 cents.

NEEDLE-WORK: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by JENNY JUNE. In this new book an attempt is made to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover and contains

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Needle-work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs in Needle-work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining-Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Glories—Artists' Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Mufflers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doylies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers, etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of Needle-work. Price, postpaid, 50 cents. The two books for 90 cents. Five books for $2.00. Get four friends to send with you and get your book free. Stamps taken. Agents wanted.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

UNEQUALLED FOR CEMENTING WOOD, GLASS, CHINA, PAPER, LEATHER, &c. Awarded GOLD MEDAL, LONDON, 1883. Used by Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Co., Pullman Palace Car Co., &c. Mf'd only by the RUSSIA CEMENT CO., GLOUCESTER, MASS. SOLD EVERYWHERE. By Sample Tin Can by Mail, 25c.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM ILLUSTRATED.

A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery, comprising the degrees of Royal Master, Select Master, Super-Excellent Master, Knight of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00; $8.50 per dozen. Paper covers, 50c; $4.00 per dozen. Furnished in any quantities at

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc. of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.

For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 11. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1885. WHOLE No. 814.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞ No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid. ☜

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money-orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
The United Brethren Church..... 8
A Triple Exposition..... 8
The Anti-Secret Press..... 8
The W. C. T. U. Twelfth Annual Convention..... 8
Will Satan Cast out Satan 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Baptist Foreign Mission Board and the Mission in Greece..... 1
Week-day Sermon..... 2
The Grand Army of the Republic..... 2
SELECTED:
Workingmen and their Lodges..... 3
Not Settled by Votes..... 3
Washington Letter..... 4
CORRESPONDENCE:
The Memphis Outlook; Another Case of Masonic Justice; Tracts and Papers for the South; Pith and Point..... 5,6
THE SECRET EMPIRE:
The Supreme Council..... 4
The British Crisis..... 9
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE CHURCHES..... 12
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.... 7
HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
FARM NOTES..... 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
MARKETS..... 13

The autocrat of Russia can with a word set free millions of slaves and make them part of the citizenship of his great empire. But there is one interest at least that he cannot so manage. He has ordered all the drinking places closed after January 1st, 1886, and 90,000 saloons will have to go out of business, but the sale of liquor may be continued in hotels and eating-houses. Had the Czar taken counsel of the experience of New York, he would have tried some new experiment, if his purpose is to restrict the evil of liquor drinking. When a similar measure was adopted in the Empire State, every saloon forthwith put out a hotel sign.

The Current reminds its readers that twenty-six years ago on the 2nd of December John Brown's body was hanged and put into its grave, but his soul went marching along. Had his idea or Washington's failed they would have been villains, but the one became a hero and patriot, and the other a patriot and saint; and as the Current says, "In any Northern city the Glory Hallelujah of John Brown's weird song has become the gloria of the people's mass." We have, as opposers of the lodge, an especial interest in John Brown, since he was by some over-ruling providence prevented from taking Morgan's place. Brown was a Mason and contemplated an exposition for the same patriotic motives as actuated Morgan. He lived to become a martyr to another cause, but because his sacrifice came to an earlier triumph, we cannot say that it was more glorious than the other at Batavia.

The sudden and unexpected death of Vice President Hendricks, while it modified the tone of many discourses on the following day, yet reveals another cause for thankfulness to God. Spain at the same time has lost her king, and instantly the troops are called to quarters and sleep on their arms. Revolutionists are plotting on the right and on the left: some to restore the putridity of Bourbonism, some to overthrow all constitutional government and inaugurate the terrible reign of the commune. In America the death of a ruler intercepts no function of government. No man's peace is broken; no uprising of the people needs to be quelled. For one of the most peaceable and stable of governments are we by this providence led to thank the Lord the King of nations, while we are admonished by his judgments.

Mr. Hendricks was the representative of the old Democracy, and as such had his place on the ticket. The best pleading for Cleveland in the nominating convention was that he stood for the new life that was coming into the party, one of the young men; and the bold, adroit, audacious attacks of the Tammany leaders could not overcome this argument. The course of Mr. Hendricks as he is reported to us in the papers, did not promise that he would be a very valuable adjunct of the party as presideat of a Senate which could cast a Republican majority. But we must not judge of his conduct in a position he was never permitted to fill. He had at least more good sense and honesty than scores of his Republican adversaries, who for place and power are most devoted worshipers of the lodge. Mr. Hendricks is said to have belonged to but one secret society during his life. He assisted the Odd-fellows in starting a lodge at Wellsville, Indiana, being a charter member. But for many years he ceased to have any connection with that order, probably convinced of its evil tendency and wearied of its folly.

The sudden death of the Vice President following so soon after the equally sudden decease of General McClellan, ex-Governor Fenton and Horace B. Claflin, the great New York merchant, is a warning to our headlong American people. It is not so many years ago that a death like theirs used to strike our communities with awe. But year by year the number has increased, until there is nothing novel about them, and they hardly awake an emotion of dread. These four men should ordinarily have looked forward to a peaceful and comfortable old age. But they fell with hardly a moment's notice. They were all men of active life, and while not guilty of what we term excess, yet had made heavy drafts upon heart and brain, in their long public lives. No other country has such a record for sudden deaths as ours, and this, too, is a warning against our hurrying, money-worshiping American life. If the same causes and effects continue why should they not pass into some hereditary condition, and so become a permanent and awful judgment on us for our worldliness?

Although Congress has taken no action looking to the admission of Dakota as a State, justice to the people of that Territory would admit them to the prilvieges of the sisterhood of the Union and, anticipating what should be a fact they have framed a State constitution. The convention was severely let alone by the professional politicians, and was remarkably representative of THE PEOPLE, full of moral earnestness and not to be thwarted by the tricks and distractions of politicians. Prohibition was fairly and frankly discussed and was adopted, seventy-five to ten. The adoption of a motto for the new State brought out the Christian convictions of the members, and brother Gault might almost have mistaken it for one of tne National Reform meetings had he heard the discussion thus reported by President Joseph Ward to the Advance: "A committee was considering the motto: 'Under God the people rule.' Serious objection was made by one member. He declared that Christianity had no right to form itself into the fundamental law of the State. In reply it was said: 'But we are a Christian people, and are not ashamed of it and why not acknowledge our dependence on God?' The objector replied: 'They have got God in the Preamble, and God in the Bill of Rights, and now we must have God in the Motto.' 'Yes,' said another, 'you will find that you must meet God everywhere, and you better get ready for him.'"

The vote of Atlanta, Georgia, last Wednesday was a prophecy. Soon after the war this city became known as the center of a revival of commercial and religious interests of more liberal and philanthropic type than had been known at the South. Christians from all parts of the country were made welcome at her great religious conventions, and the Cotton Exposition was a fine conception, generously executed. The attention of the whole country has just again been turned to this enterprising city, for her citizens were to vote on the question of local prohibition. A correspondent of our Northern dalilies wrote: "This city is in a blaze of excitement over the prohibition question, which has become the sole topic of conversation. Hotels, churches, and private houses are turned into theaters for the discussion of the grave problem whether the sale of liquor should be suppressed in the city. The streets are nightly paraded by processions headed by brass bands; Democrats salute fellow-workers of color as 'brother;' women are holding prayer-meetings for the success of prohibition, and all distinction between Democrat and Republican has for the moment been forgotten. This movement has a unique history. The law of Georgia provided for the phohibition of the sale of liquor within so many miles of a college, school or church, on petition of the citizens. Under this arrangement the prohibitory territory increased and the sale of liquor decreased, the temperance people taking care to have schools and churches judiciously located. Then came a request from a county in a rural district to vote on prohibition. It was granted, and the county 'went dry.' Another and another were added until the liquor dealers waked up to the fact that two-thirds of the State had ceased to patronize them. They began to resist the movement but the temperance people growing bolder determined to take the capital of the State." The canvas was a remarkable one, and has gloriously succeeded. The vote on the 25th ult. was for the suppression of the sale of liquor in the city. Now may faith and nerve be given to the victors to smite again and again until the enemy of their homes be utterly destroyed: and may the noble name of Atlanta not be long alone on the roll of great cities free from the drink curse.

THE BAPTIST FOREIGN MISSIONARY BOARD AND THE MISSION IN GREECE.

Whether it is wise for everybody to criticise the actions of the Missionary Boards is a hard question; for the officers of these Boards as a general thing are recognized as of good Christian standing. But when wrong actions are taken in this world, whether they are taken by Christians or men of the world, they are actions to be condemned: and especially when such actions are taken by such men who send out missionaries to teach heathen how to do right and they themselves have not learned yet to do right. For, as you know, it is very easy for a surgeon to cut off a limb of a person, and this is as a general thing true in regard to young doctors. When the least thing is the matter with the arm or leg, they want to cut it off; and the reason is, that they want to learn to cut off limbs. This may be well for him, but the person who loses the limb has his whole life made miserable. We might give a multitude of examples, but we do not think that it would help any to better understand the subject.

This Board committee come together and take whatever action they please, without notifying the churches as to what they have done or what they intend to do. They cut off one missionary from one place, send another missionary to another place, and what is still worse, they cut off a mission entirely, leaving the work there to go to destruction.

The only apology they give, we believe, for giving up the mission in Greece, is, "That it does not pay." When they appointed Mr. Sakellarios as a missionary here, they knew whether the mission paid or not, for they had occupied this mission field for twenty years or more by Dr. Arnold and others before Mr. Sakellarios came. Then in what way do they think it will pay? Did they send him here to buy wheat or to engage in any barter of merchandise? He is to preach the truth to these people. When God sent Noah to preach repentance, he kept him one hundred and twenty years there. God did not ask himself the question (that we are told in the Bible) whether it paid to keep Noah there so long preaching, and even after one hundred and twenty years, Noah did not have a single convert outside his own family. And we can say it is not very easy to convert men in this world, for man likes the way of perdition rather than of salvation.

Then we would like to know how that Board, four years ago, came to ask us if we would like to become one of their missionaries. For if it did not pay to have one, why did they want to have another? If they did not keep Mr. Sakellarios, who has established a church and Sabbath school, how could they keep us who are in a new field and are not so much advanced in the work, comparatively, as is Mr. Sakellarios? For how many years or months did they want to keep us here and then cut us off?

We are sorry for the action of the Board and we pity the work which is given up now. But we believe that the work will not be lost, for it is worked up by a very good Christian man and with prayers and tears and supplications. We pity the man for he has spent almost all his life in the Christian work and we do not see what else he can do in his advanced age to get a living. We hope that the day will soon come when the churches will be wakened up and every church or two will send their own missionary and that the the money which is collected for these missionaries will not go through so many hands and so much of it expended before it reaches the mission field.

We remember hearing a speech by a gentleman in America, that it needs so much for agents, for secretaries and for the rent of offices; while, if it were otherwise, all this expense would go toward the missionary cause. We beg our brethren, the editors of the Baptist press in Chicago and other cities of the Union, to look at this action which the Board took in regard to the mission in Greece. The editor of the Standard knows the man, the Rev. D. Z. Sakellarios, pretty well.

In regard to Bro. Sakellarios, he was born in Macedonia, in that State which Greece is preparing to take by force. While he was a young man he came to Greece. One day he went swimming and came near being drowned; but providentially with a great effort his life was saved. The American missionary who was then in Greece, hearing the news of this young man being nearly drowned, prayed that God would spare his life and also save his soul. He was converted after a time by the same missionary. He went to America about twenty years ago and studied theology there in one of the seminaries. Before returning to Greece he married a lady from a prominent Christian family by the name of Edmunds, of Boston, Mass. We are acquainted very well with the whole family. Mrs. Sakellarios, before she was married, had a great deal of zeal for Greece, and so God gave her her desire and sent her as a missionary here.

We fully sympathize with Bro. Sakellarios in this time of trouble and affliction. He needs no recommendation for he is known now for so many years. He is known by all his friends in America and by American travellers who pass through Greece from time to time, as a man of great spirituality and as having zeal for the Master's work. If we wanted to recommend him we would say that he is one of the rarest men with whom you meet; honest and true in every respect. In writing to us the news from America he does not say much. These are his own words: "We have disagreeable news from America. Our Board has left us to our own fortune; but we hope and believe that the Lord will not leave us, for the work is the Lord's." We, therefore, as being interested in this matter, appeal to the Baptist churches; not for ourselves, but for this dear brother; for it is a disgrace and shame for the Baptist denomination to leave this dear brother to suffer here in Greece after so many years spent in the missionary work. We believe that if the Baptist denomination forsake him, God will not forsake him; for God has not forsaken us for now seven years. If the Board has left him and the churches do not care about him, God in his mysterious ways will feed him as he fed Elijah. For so the Board acted with us and the churches did not pay us much, if any attention at all; but God in his wisdom and mercy has taken care of us these seven years. The Baptist Board turned their back on us before we came to Greece, and we came to Greece with a great deal of difficulty, and after we came here we had difficulty for some time. Then the Board came out and asked us to unite with them; but we answered that we began with God and we do not care to end with man. And since then we have had no other communication with the Board. And soon after that a few of the Baptist churches who used to correspond, dropped us.

After our letter was all ready, your excellent paper came to us which has an article by a brother, the Rev. E. W. Hicks, pastor of the Baptist church in Toulon, Ill., and which is in full sympathy with our letter. If this article was in another paper we would quote every word; but because it is in the Christian Cynosure, the reader will be so kind to refer back to Sept. 10th, 1885. We beg our readers to read especially the 1st, 2nd, 6th and 10th arguments; but after all to read them all over very carefully again and again. And we must express our thanks to Bro. Hicks for publishing these arguments; they will do a great deal of good because they come from an experienced American, living in America. Yours with Christian love,

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES.

Andros, Greece.

WEEK-DAY SERMON.

BY E. E. FLAGG.

There are plenty of people in the world who believe that the doctrine of perfection belongs exclusively to a set of austere religionists, when the real fact is that perfection as a divinely possible ideal is the law of the universe.

A talented and enthusiastic pupil in one of our Art schools was set to painting a fish from a natural specimen; but his satisfaction with the result was sadly damped, when the master, after a critical examination of his sketch, pronounced judgment upon it in the following fashion:

"Your picture is a failure; you have left out one of the scales."

Art demands perfection, and so well is this understood by the true artist that nothing short of it satisfies him. Is not Nature herself, with all her abortions and misshapen growths, ever struggling towards the dimly discerned glory of heaven's perfect design? How like ever-burning candles shining through the veil of a sanctuary, the mystic words of Revelation, "Behold I create a new heavens and a new earth," point with radiant foreshadowings to the time when this ideal shall be reached! And why should it be such a hard doctrine when applied to things spiritual?

Didn't Raphael and Angelo strive to paint perfect pictures, and carve perfect statues? Yet nobody wonders at this. Hasn't every true poet and philosopher since time began labored after perfect rhymes and perfect theories, and the world has taken it as a matter of course? And when a Christian attempts to shape his life in complete agreement with God's word, so that even his lightest act shall be in time with the celestial harmonies, he is not doing any more than poets and painters and philosophers do. It is true that "no man liveth and sinneth not." Probably Raphael never painted an absolutely perfect picture, and no philosopher ever thought out a system in which there were no weak links; but out of that hungry, passionate grasp after impossible height of achievment has come all the beauty and truth that has ever blessed this sad world as with backward falling light from the lost Paradise behind us.

When we have all eternity to attain perfection in, the possibility or impossibility of ever reaching that stage during this brief mortal life does not seem to me worth debating,—still less making it a reason for giving up the effort altogether. Is it no gain that by that effort, however short we may come of a life of sinless holiness, our spiritual energies are gathering momentum for all the future ages?

That will be a grand day for the church when she once more teaches from her pulpit the apostolic doctrine of perfection. It will be as a fire burning up the rubbish of mistaken belief; as the Redeemer's whip of small cords driving out the profane and unholy from her courts and altars; as the voice of a trumpet saying, "Come out and be ye separate, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you and be a father unto you, and ye shall be my sons and daughters, saith the Lord Almighty."

THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

BY REV. D. SIMON.

[Concluded.]

A second object of the G. A. R. is stated in their Rules and Regulations, as follows:

"To assist such former comrades in arms as need help and protection, and to extend needful aid to the widows and orphans of those who have fallen."

A member of the order explains: "If a member is out of employment, it is the duty of his comrades to assist him in obtaining a situation." "The members are not compelled to assist any member to obtain an office." An army of men bound together by the tie of secrecy will stand together, help and protect each other. And how are they going to do this? Oh, that's a secret! And are they going to help and protect only the worthy? They don't say so. "Former comrades in arms" are to be protected, regardless of their present character. Our informant tells us that "they do not take any part whatever in preventing a member from being punished for any crime he may have committed, but conform to the usages of all societies; a member who is found guilty of crime by the courts is expelled from the order." This would seem to show that they are going to help only the worthy. But who is going to decide respecting his character when a member gets into trouble, when he is to be arrested, or tried? He is as yet a member, and they are obligated to help and protect him until, in spite of their efforts to clear or liberate him, he is "found guilty of crime by the courts." This is done by secretists generally, and we are not willing to make this association an exception, and that all the less, because they agree to help and protect one another.

But what shall we say with regard to their charity? Is it not right that they should look after "the widows and orphans of those who have fallen?" The government provides for these and disabled soldiers by means of pensions, orphans' homes and soldiers' homes. Besides the special provisions made by the government, these needy persons enjoy all the provisions made by the government for the citizens in general. They deserve special attention and help, and they get it without the intervention of the Grand Army.

The third object as given in their Rules and Regulations is "To maintain true allegiance to the United States of America, based upon a paramount respect for, and fidelity to its Constitution and laws, to discountenance whatever tends to weaken loyalty, incite insurrection, treason or rebellion, or in any manner impair the efficiency and permanency of our free institutions; and to encourage the spread of universal liberty, equal rights and justice to all men."

Do those who are not "comrades" not maintain true allegiance to the United States? Do they not respect the Constitution and the laws of the land, and are they not faithful to their country? Do those not united with the "Army" not discountenance disloyalty, and oppose whatever incites to insurrection, treason or rebellion? Do those outside of the order not labor to promote the interests of our free institutions? Must a person put himself under an extra commander-in-chief, and thus literally sell his own liberty, in order to be able to spread universal liberty, and contend for equal rights and justice to all men?

This third object is certainly all wind; it sounds big and is calculated to deceive. It would seem as if this nation could not continue without the G. A. R., but when carefully considered it becomes evident that all these ends can be better accomplished without the Army than with it. The very existence of an army in the land under its own control is an incentive to insurrection, treason and rebellion, a trampling on universal liberty and destructive of equal rights and justice to all men. As a citizen of these United States, I have the right to know the movements of an army of men under the same government under which I live and whose laws I am in duty bound to obey. The Grand Army denies me the right to inquire into its affairs, and, because I have not been a soldier or sailor, excludes me forever from knowing anything about its "private affairs." The Governor of a State, the President of these United States, if not a soldier, sailor or marine, and connected with the G. A. R., has no right to inquire into their "private affairs." The government and the millions of citizens, forever excluded from their inner precincts, must allow them to muster and plan anything they may see fit, and ask no questions. Is this fidelity to the Constitution of the United States, and what is even more, is it rendering obedience to the powers which God has placed over them as citizens of these United States? By establishing themselves under a commander-in-chief, other than the Commander-in-chief under whom they are placed by the voice of the people, they virtually renounce their allegiance to the ruler of the land. And right here is the sin of belonging to the Grand Army. God has placed a ruler over you, and by uniting with the G. A. R. you have chosen another ruler and sworn allegiance to him. Should it become necessary for the ruler of the land to issue a proclamation that would require you to violate your allegiance to the lodge, you would more than likely disobey the ruler of the land and follow the directions and orders of the lodge ruler. But should a member make himself guilty of such a relation to the government, let him hear what the Word of God says: "Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers. For there is no power but of God: the powers that be are ordained of God. Whosoever, therefore, resisteth the power, resisteth the ordinance of God: and they that resist shall receive to themselves damnation."

The commander-in-chief has almost absolute control of the entire organization. When an application is made for membership, the application is referred to a committee for investigation. "The commander-in-chief or department commander may grant a dispensation in writing to a post, to waive in any particular case the rule prohibiting an investigation committee from reporting upon an application on the evening of their appointment." (Chap. 2: Sec. 3.) The commander-in-chief has a controlling power in the election.

The same supreme ruler of the lodge appoints, according to Art. VI. Sec. 1., the Adjutant-General, the Quartermaster-General, the Inspector-General, the Judge Advocate-General, as many Assistant Inspectors-General and as many Aides de-Camp as he may deem necessary. He shall appoint all other national officers and committees not otherwise provided for, aud may remove these officers at his pleasure, etc.

"The supreme power of this association shall be lodged in the National Encampment." (Chap. IV., Art. 1.) As seen above, the important and controling officers are all appointed by the commander-in-chief, aud "removed at his pleasure." There is no appeal from the National Encampment, because the supreme power of the association is vested in it; and since the commander-in-chief controls this supreme power, he may justly be called the supreme ruler of the G. A. R. This would correspond with the obligation to yield implicit obedience to the Encampment, which means implicit obedience to the commander-in-chief. Where is there any room for the government, where the universal liberty, where the equal rights, and where the justice to all men?

The Grand Army not only comes in conflict with the Constitution of the United States in the appointment of its officers, (see Constitution of the U. S. A. Art. II. Sec. 2, 1st clause. Also Art. I. Sec. 8, 12th, 13th, 14th, 15th, 16th and 18th clauses), but this organization infringes upon the rights and duties of citizens and of officers appointed by the people.

Under the article "Discipline" we are informed: "Offenses cognizable by the Grand Army of the Republic shall be: 1. Disloyalty to the United States of America." "3. The commission of a scandalous offense against the laws of the land."

Whence this authority to exercise discipline over the citizens of the United States! Has the divinely appointed government made no provision for the punishment of traitors? Has this country failed to provide sheriffs and judges and advocates and jails and penitentiaries and gallows? Have our rulers been bearing the sword in vain? And if all these things have been provided, why this extra provision on the part of the G. A. R! Why this meddling in other people's business!

Now this association transacts its business secretly, publishing to the world only what they may see fit. They have taken upon themselves a large share in the government of our nation, and we citizens of the nation are to ask no questions. We are simply to submit.

Dear reader, consider well what we have said, and whether in the order or out of it let your conscience direct you in the course you ought to pursue. According to the command of your Supreme Ruler the Lord Jesus Christ, "render unto Cæsar the things that are Cæsar's," living in harmony with the Gospel of Christ and the laws of your land.

Prospect, Ohio.

WORKINGMEN AND THEIR LODGES.

From "Danger Ahead," by Rev. Lyman Abbott in the Century for November.

One-half our workers are wage-workers; one-third of our population, including the vast majority of our wage-workers, are either of foreign birth or children of foreign-born parents. They are restless and are growing more so. There is no power in any church to which they owe allegiance adequate to prevent an outbreak. There is no power in the State, no police, no military, capable of quelling it. Large numbers of them acknowledge no fealty to any religion which teaches them the duty or endows them with the power of self-restraint. The churches too often address not their conscience but their imagination. The schools address not their conscience, but their intellect. Men who have been taught that modern order is despotism and modern property theft, find themselves in a country where the only support of order is an enlightened conscience, and the only protection of property is an enlightened self-interest; and neither their conscience nor their self-interest is enlightened. Believing that property is theft, they believe that spoiliation is redress; believing that the world's wealth is their inheritance of which they have been too long unjustly deprived, they are ready with no gentle voice to demand of society, "Give me the portion of goods that falleth to me;" and we may be sure that if it were given to them it would soon be spent in riotous living not followed by repentance and a request for employment as hired servants.

Two other facts must be added to these which I have so rapidly sketched.

1. Labor is organizing for the protection of its interests. It is thus deepening the chasm and intensifying the hostility between the laboring class and the capitalist. Nearly every trade has now its trades-union,—some local, some national. They exist in every State of the Union, except Florida, and in most of the Territories. The annual income of the larger unions has ranged from five thousand to fifteen thousand dollars. Of their full membership there is no adequate census. A coalition has been formed, not yet fully perfected, for the union of them all in one confederation. Agriculture is the only considerable industry which has not its industrial organization. These unions are essentially warlike, both in their aims and their methods. Let me explain what I mean by that assertion. Commercial organizations may be rudely divided into two classes: those fer the promotion of industry, and those for the protection of rights. The former are industrial; the latter are military. All corporations, co-operative societies, associations for amicable discussion of mutual interest, are of the first description; all trades-unions are of the second. They give aid to their members in case of sickness or inability to work; and are in so far philanthropical. They have lodge rooms, with meetings for reading, debate, and mutual improvement, and in so far are educational. But the reason for their existence is self-protection. They are not organized to promote education in their several industries; to facilitate apprenticeship; to introduce new and improved methods; to encourage the introduction of labor-saving machines; to equalize wages by equalizing intelligence and industry. On the contrary, apprenticeship is discouraged, new methods are obstructed, the introduction of labor-saving machinery has been more than once made the occasion of a strike, and the equalizing of wages is attempted by leveling down, not by leveling up. The trades-union is not organized, like a political club, for purposes of persuasion, nor like a literary club, for purposes of education, nor, like a co-operative club, for purposes of industrial benefit; it is organized to protect its members against the oppression of employers, or to wrest from employers a larger share of the profits. It is founded on the assumption that the interests of employer and employed are antagonistic; and that combination is necessary to protect the employed from their employers. As it is essentially military in its aims, so also is it in its structure. It is ruled over by a directory scarcely less absolute than that which governed the revolutionists in the days of Mirabeau. This directory sits in secret, issues its orders, demands implicit obedience, and enforces it by industrial excommunication, and often by open violence or secret assault. A condition of society in which the working class is leagued together in a clan whose hostility to employers is not concealed, whose watchword is absolute obedience to the decress of chiefs, whose designs are perfected in secret conferences, whose tendency, and sometimes whose aim, is to widen the chasm between classes, is a dangerous condition; the danger is but hinted at in frequent strikes often accompanied with violence, occasionally bursting forth in rioting, and once flaming out into a national conflagration. Every new strike, whether it succeeds or fails, widens the chasm and increases the danger.

But trades-unions are organizations of honest workmen who desire only fair wages for fair work; who submit to the despotism of a military organization because it is less despotic than that of the capitalist with whom they believe themselves to be at war. But there are other organizations of workingmen in America, men who do not conceal their belief that property is theft, and robbery is righteousness. In September, 1883, a procession of over ten thousand so-called working-men marched through the streets of New York city, bearing on their banners such inscriptions as, "Workers in tenement houses—idlers in brown-stone fronts;" "Which shall it be, the ballot or Judge Lynch?" A like procession is perpetually marching through the United States in constantly augmenting numbers, * * *

I wish I had the ear of the working-men's organizations, I would put these figures before them, and then I would address them in some such terms as the following:

Do you not see the fatal defect of all your organizations? You combine only that you may not work. In one summer's telegraphic strike you spent $400,000 for the right to be idle. Why did you not expend it for the right to be independent? Half a million dollars, plus all the best telegraphic talent in the United States, with the sympathies of the nation as a reserve, combined to establish postal telegraphy, might have given you success instead of failure. Strike, not for better wages in servitude, but for independence. Organize not to be idle, but to be busy. Combine not against your employers, but that you may employ yourselves. You battle not for the rights of labor, but for the right not to labor; it is a barren, fruitless right not worth fighting for. Victory is as bad as defeat. For combination put co-operation; for few hours and fair wages put independence: for a right to be idle put power to work. Make yourselves capitalists, combine your capital with your industry, and add to it by your credit, and so become your own masters.

The conflict between labor and capital can be and is ameliorated by every influence which tends to produce kindly feeling between the two. America is at least partly protected from the revolutions such as destroyed Rome and ravaged France; for America has what neither Rome nor France possessed—Protestant Christianity. But kindly feeling can only give a truce, not peace. Peace will come only with a completion of the progress of democracy—ouly with the final triumph of what I may call social and organic Christianity,—only when an industrial democracy is organized, identical in its principles and its spirit with the political and religious democracy which already characterizes our country,—only by processes which will convert the laborer himself into a capitalist and endow him with the power, the intelligence, and the virtue to be his own master. The first step in this process is co-operation. The first contribution to it is a broader, better, more universal, and more practical education.

NOT SETTLED BY VOTES.

There are many people in this world who seem to think that almost any great question can be settled by the votes of a majority of the people. They are mistaken; moral questions are not so easily settled. In a country where the will of the majority is the rule of action, there would seem to be little or no difficulty about settling such questions by vote; but even there the problem is not as simple as many persons suppose. In the first place, an honest vote is not always obtainable. There are plenty of instances in political circles, and not a few in religious, where persons who vote according to the direction of party leaders, find it much easier to get in their votes and have them counted, than do persons who are governed by honest principles, and who refuse to be made the tools or dupes of unscrupulous partisans.

Though voters and legislators may make laws, they do not execute them, and many a judicious law sleeps upon the statute book as dead as Pharaoh's mummy, simply because its enforcement is in the hands of men who have no desire to enforce it; and because there is no public sentiment which frowns upon iniquity and holds men up to their duty in this respect.

The real battle on great moral questions is fought, not in the courts of law, but in those centres of thought where public opinion is formed and where majorities are made, by the slow and diligent toil of faithful, conscientious men. When a majority has been secured, large enough and influential enough to accomplish desired legislation and frown down the iniquity which has been so rampant, the battle is substantially won. Votes simply register the work which others have done, and put into power men who in many instances did not fight the battle, but happened along in season to bag the spoils.

When important questions have been argued amd settled by faithful, uncompromising, conscientious men, then, seeing which way the majority is likely to move, on come the spoils-men and place-seekers, men of seven principles, five of them loaves and the other two fishes, and they proceed to drown in their patriotic enthusiasm the voices of the men who have testified against wrong-doing and borne witness for God and his truth.

Thus great parties are formed whose leaders speedily become corrupt and recreant. The men who made the parties go unhonored and forgotten; while the men whom the parties made, ride on the high places of honor and power, and sell out the principles they were appointed to guard, until it soon appears that no matter what the platform may be, that party which has the most plunder to bestow, has the most vagabonds in its train ready to divide it.

The man who thinks to reform mankind by a mere show of hands or count of noses, dimly apprehends the true state of this world. The man who tells the truth, who turns on the light, who exposes iniquity in friend or foe, as no partisan can do without being kicked out of all parties, is the man whose words will tell, and who rules results, though he may not reap rewards. A solitary man telling the exact and honest truth, is likely to be more powerful, and to exercise greater influence in the decision of important questions, then ten thousand men who follow party leaders, and who consequeutly are exposed to all the suspicions of partisanship.

Votes can be manufactured, manipulated, and miscounted: voters can be lied to, deceived, bribed, intimidated, flattered, coaxed, corrupted, bought and sold, and so cannot be depeuded upou; but a man who tells the exact truth is beyond the reach of the politician's arts, and can do a work by beariug testimouy which he could never accomplish by casting votes and marchiug in processions. What is needed both in the church aud in the world to-day is a liberal supply of men who will tell the truth. One such mau will do more to purify politics than a hundred meu who vote from force of habit, and who, when they get going in one direction keep on without regard to facts or the merits of the case.—The Christian (Boston).

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Congress comes and business revives.—The devil likewise busy with his lotteries, gambling and saloons—The churches but a slight check.—Dr. W. A. Bartlett gives the lodge a lift—Mission and W. C. T. U. work.—Mr. Bowes as a lecturer.—The President at church.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—Had Bryant lived in this city he would never have written of November,

"The melancholy days have come,
The saddest of the year," for perhaps none in all the twelve has a pleasanter and more invigorating temperature than this.

Absentees have all returned; members of Congress are coming; the churches are fuller; business is more active, and Washington assumes its normal condition. There is a steady growth in all material interests. Fine large buildiugs are taking the place of the old inferior structures in all parts of the eity. The new Pension building approaches completion. It will be one of the finest, though less costly than some of the others. The extensive improvements about the Capitol progress slowly. When completed they will add very materially to the beauty of the building as seen from the west. Capitol Hill will be another story added on below instead of above.

Would that there was like progress and improvement in the moral condition of the people. Alas! Washington is no exception. As it comes to be a large city it becomes like the others in the prevalence of iuiquity. The large number of persons who live on salaries, with much leisure and no business interests, makes them especially accessible to gamblers and policy sellers. There are tolerably stringent laws against these vices and a reasonable desire to see them enforced, but it is the unwary and comparatively innocent that are punished. The great rascals altogether escape. Within a short time two men of small note have been punished by fine and imprisonment for policy selling, while a military company has openly carried on a lottery, and openly boasts of thousands of dollars that they have made for "benevolence." The Louisiana Lottery tickets are constantly sold. No one can estimate the vast sums that are paid out, but it is now and then announced that some one has taken a prize, and fools are intoxicated with hope of success.

There is uo diminution in the number of drinking places that are licensed, though the Prohibition Union is making an effort to secure the suppression of those opposite government reservations. Such dram-shops are clearly illegal, as the law expressly says that the written consent must be obtained of a majority of all property holders on both sides of the street as a condition of granting a license. The matter has been brought before the President, and he has it under advisement. After some spasmodic efforts to close the liquor-shops on Sunday, the whole matter is allowed to sleep and there is abundant evidence that there is as much liquor sold and more drunkenness on Sunday than on any other day of the week. This is abundantly evident not only from the intoxicated persons seen on the streets, but from their testimony as to their ability to get intoxicants whenever they choose.

So it is that while we have a large and vigilant police, and the number of arrests per capita is larger than in any other city in the nation, the laws are but imperfectly enforced. This is in part due to the fact that men who are addicted to drinking, gambling and licentiousness, can hardly be expected to enforce the laws against these vices, and it is partly, I may say mainly, owing to a failure on the part of the leaders of public opinion to be faithful to the truth. The Metropolitan Baptist church sends out on the same handbill an advertisement of its church services, its Sunday-school, a tobacco and cigar store, and a dealer in wines and liquors. One M. E. church is used for an Odd-fellows celebratiou, the pastor giving the address. Another M. E. pastor is advertised to lecture on the "Boss Devil," while the Rev. Dr. Bartlett of the New York Avenue Presbyterian church has eaused himself to be advertised in the Presbyterian churches as giviug a paid lecture for benevolence, when iu fact it was for the benefit of "The Royal Arcanum," a secret society with an insurauce attachment. When such things are doue, and wheu the preachiug, though learned and able, is as a rule pointless, neither helping or hurting any one, it is not strange that bad men wax worse and worse.

Aud yet there is much for which we may well be encouraged. There is a genuiue interest in the temperanec reform, and much earnest labor on the part of the W. C. T. U. There is also a growing regard for open rather than secret methods for its promotion. The report of the Graud Lodge of the I. O. G. T., just published, shows a net loss of 245 members during the year, aud several charters surrendered. Surely the good people who have been working in the lodges are beginning to fiud that there is "a more exeellent way."

The work at the Central Union Mission at 909 Pennsylvania Avenue, N. W., and at the Salvation Army barracks corner of L and 4th streets, N. W., eoutinues with unabated interest. There have been many genuine conversions, some of a very marked character. Nor has the effect on the Christian workers been less beneficent. Those whose religion has led them to oppose secret societies have eome to the front, while those who are conueeted with them have taken back seats, and some have been led to see the exceeding folly and wickedness of these unfruitful works of darkness. Nearly all the workers in the mission read the American with interest and are endeavoring to extend its circulation.

I should not forget that your former correspondent, Mr. Joseph Bowes, gives weekly lectures of great interest on the Sunday-school lesson. Recently he has twice given a most able lecture on "the Character of the Covenanters." I have rarely heard a more able production, aud trust that he may have invitations to repeat it in the West.

The President is a pretty regular attendant at the First Presbyterian church, and what is better, takes pains to come rainy days when the congregation is smaller. If no other good results from this course it will be a good example to the young. But there is every reason to think that he has a genuine belief in the doctrines and the value of Christiauity.

H. H. HINMAN.

On the 22d of September last the corner-stone of the court house at St. Clairsville, Ohio, was laid. The Freemasons got the job from the County Commissioners. A petition signed by 250 citizens protesting against the Freemasons laying the corner-stone was presented to the Commissioners to be put with other records on the corner-stone. These county officers refused to thus preserve this protest. The indignation of the people was shown by refusing to step aside to let the procession of Freemasons pass by up to the court house. But few of the Freemasons got near the corner-stone. While the Freemason chaplain was getting off his Christless prayer, the brass band kept on playing and were cheered by some irreverent citizens. How long will this Christless order run nation, State, county and town?—Christian Instructor.

BIBLE IN THE SCHOOLS.—An election was lately held in Concordia, Kansas, in whieh the chief issue was, whether the Bible should be read in the public schools or not. There was intense excitement, all the ministers and many of the Christian women being at the polls all day. Out of 964 votes 684 were for the Bible. It is strange that opposition is made to the reading of the Bible in the schools. Readers contain selections from writers of all religions and of no religion. Latin and Greek books containing all sorts of heathen mythology are read and no one even questions the propriety of their use, but the Bible, which contains the highest and purest system of morals in the world is to be the only forbidden book. What a liberal thing liberalism is. It begins to look as if Christians have no rights in this country which liberalists are bound to respect. —Midland.

A physician has discovered that nitro-glycerine is a superior heart-stimulent to brandy, and may be safely substituted for the latter in many cases. It has the merit of creating no unnatural craving. Thus do the doctors continue to batter down the bulwarks of the liquor trade.—Current.

One hundred years ago it was manly to drink. Now it is manly to let drink alone.—Boston Record.

THE SECRET EMPIRE.

SUPREME COUNCIL MASONRY.

The Masonic trial of Rev. Henry D. Moore in Cincinnati brings up the whole quarrel in the highest Masonic degree generally regarded among Masons as "legitimate," namely the 33d or Supreme Couucil of "Sovereign Grand Inspectors General." This degree is the last conferred in what is known as the "Ancient and Accepted Scotch Rite." This rite was organized in Franee early in the last century, accordiug to Mackey, though at first supposed to have originated in Scotland, whence its name. It has been extended widely, only one of its Supreme Councils existing in one natiou. The United States is an exception, the war having split the body. The degrees of the A. and A. Seotch Rite arc Entered Apprentice, Fellowcraft, and Master Mason, which differ only in a few trivial points from the ordinary Blue lodge degrees of the York rite. The following degrees: Secret Master, Perfect Master, Intimate Secretary, Provost and Judge, Intendant of the Buildings, Elected Kuights of Nine, Illustrious Elect of Fifteen, Sublime Knight Elected, Grand Master Architect, Knight of the Ninth Areh, Grand Elect, Perfect and Sublime Mason, are conferred in what is ealled a Lodge of Perfection. The next two: Knight of the East and Prince of Jerusalem are couferred in a body called a "Council of Princes of Jerusalem." The next two: Knight of the East and West, and Sovereign Prince of Rose Croix are conferred in a chapter of Princes of the Rose Croix. Then follow from the 19th to the 32nd degrees: Grand Pontiff, Grand Master of all Symbolic lodges, Noachite or Prussian Knight, Knight of the Royal Axe or Prince of Libanus, Chief of the Tabernacle, Prince of the Tabernacle, Knight of the Brazen Serpent, Prinee of Mercy or Scotch Trinitarian, Sovereign Commander of the Temple, Knight of the Sun, Grand Scotch Knight of St. Audrew, Grand Elect Knight of Kadosh, Grand Enquiring Commander, Sublime Prince of the Royal Secret. These degrees are conferred in a consistory. The names here giv en are from Mackey, and differ somewhat from Richardson in his monitor and Bernard's Light on Masonry, but in nothing essential. This is the rite that dominates in Masonie circles. The Supreme Council must be composed of nine members, "five of whom," says Mackey, "must profess the Christian religion." It has been the practice to give the 33d degree to numerous "honorary" members of this Council. The two Councils in this country are over the Northern and Southern jurisdictions, Albert Pike presiding over the latter, which is the older, includes all of the United States west of the Mississippi and South of the Ohio river and Pennsylvania, with headquarters at Charlestown, S. C.

These are the bodies which we will introduce by the following circular issued last year in San Francisco, but having to do with matters transpiring elsewhere, promising another leaf of this history in a subsequent paper:

{ ORIENT OF SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.,
{ January 26, 1884, V. E.

We, the undersigned, active and honorary Inspectors-General, of the thirty-third degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, resident in California, and deriving our authority from the Supreme Couneil of the Ancient and Accepted Rite for the Southern jurisdiction of the United States, hereby make known to you that we have received trustworthy information that eertain persons, named Charles E. Pinkham and Cornelius Kellogg, have in the city of Saeramento, within the jurisdiction of said Supreme Council of the Ancieut and Accepted Rite for the Southern jurisdiction of the United States, obtained the names of over one hundered Masters Masons and have collected from them several thousand dollars under the preteuse of conferring the degrees of the Ancint and Accepted Rite, from the fourth to the thirty-second, inclusive; the conditions upon which said bogus degree to be communicated being, that each victimized recipient of useless imitations of genuine Freemasonry shall pay the sum of $50, of which sum $15, (if not the whole $50) is retained by the party, who, without the color of lawful Masonic authority, pretend to communicate said degrees.

The pretense is further set up that these peddlers of cheap degrees are aeting in behalf of a so-called "Supreme Couneil of the United States of America."

We declare to you that there is uo lawful body of Freemasonry known as the "Supreme Council of the United States of America," and that any so-called degrees communicated by parties pretending to represent such body are valueless and void. That the money obtained in consequence of such degrees of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, by parties or bodies in California, acting, or pretending to act, under authority, or so-called authority, other than that of the Supreme Council of the thirty-third degree of the Ancient Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the Jurisdiction of the United States, whose Grand Orient is at Charleston, S. C., and whose Grand Commander is Albert Pike, is money obtained by fraud; and that all such degrees are spurious, and not only do not confer any Masonic standing in any regular body of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in any part of the known world, but in some of the Jurisdictions of the United States, the conferring, communicating or peddling of such degrees constitute a Masonic crime, the penalty for which is expulsion from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

The Grand Commandery of Michigan has declared that it recognizes, as the only legitimate bodies of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Freemasonry, those which derive their power either from the Supreme Council of the thirty-third degree of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of the Northern jurisdiction of the United States, whereof Henry L. Palmer is Grand Commander, or the Supreme Council of the thirty-third degree of the Ancient and Accepted Rite of Scottish Freemasonry from the Southern jurisdiction of the United States, of which Albert Pike is Grand Commander.

At the quarterly communication of the Grand Lodge of Massachuetts, held June 14, 1882, the Grand Constitutions were amended as follows:

"Section 24. Whereas, this Grand Lodge recognizes no degrees in Masonry except those conferred under the regulations of the Grand Lodges of the various States and Territories of the United States and the government throughout the world; and whereas, it admits the following-named organizations to be regular and duly constituted Masonic bodies, namely: The General Grand Royal Arch Chapters of the several States and Territories of the United States; the Grand Royal Arch Chapters of the several States and Territories of the United States and the Royal Arch Chapters and other bodies under their jurisdiction; the General Grand Council of Royal and Select Masons of the United States; the Grand Councils of the several States and Territories of the United States, and the Councils under their jurisdiction; the Grand Encampment of the United States; the Grand Commanderies of the several States and Territories of the United States, and the Commanderies under their jurisdiction; the Supreme Councils of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite for the Northern and Southern jurisdictions of the United States, of which Henry L. Palmer and Albert Pike are M.·. P.·. Sov. . Grand Commanders, respectively, and the various bodies under their jurisdiction.

"Now, therefore, it is hereby declared that any Mason who is hereafter admitted, in this jurisdiction, into any other orders as Masonic, whether called the Rite of Memphis or by any other name, is acting un-Masonically, and for such conduct shall be liable to be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry, and shall be ineligible to membership or office in this Grand Lodge."

In 1883 the Grand Lodge of Massachuetts supplemented the above action by enacting that "any Mason in this jurisdiction who shall confer, communicate or sell, or assist in conferring, communicating or selling, or solicit any one to receive or apply for any so-called Masonic degrees, limited to Freemasons, not heretofore recognized or admitted, may be expelled from all the rights and privileges of Masonry.

We therefore denounce the action of the persons above named who are obtaining money in Sacramento and elsewhere for the degrees of the so-called "Supreme Council of the United States of America," as a dangerous fraud, the sufferers by which will be all those who are unfortunate enough to invest fifty dollars for spurious degrees, which have been peddled elsewhere for prices varying from ten to fifteen dollars. Whether the present enhanced price is due to the assumed greater wealth or the assumed greater gullibility of Masons in California, is a subject for your private opinion to decide.

We earnestly request you to warn all Master Masons within your reach against this revival of an old and oft-exposed fountain of Masonic fraud.

Thomas H. Caswell, James S. Lawson and Chas. G. Brown, 33d degree, active; Alex. G. Abel, Wm. D'Arey Haley, Isaac S. Titus, Geo. J. Hobe, Theo. H. Goodman and John W. Shaeffer, 33d degree, honorary.

The underwriters, members of the Northern Supreme Council, 33d degree, unite in and indorse the foregoing.

James C. D. Wadsworth and William Filmer, 33d degree, honorary.

THE MEMPHIS OUTLOOK.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 27, 1885.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Please allow me space to return thanks to numerous friends who have helped us in our parsonage to the amount of $233.25. I am glad to state that our building is up and roofed in, and is now ready for floor, windows, and all inside work, which we hope to be able to do by the grace of God and the assistance of friends.

But I feel that some are anxious to know something of the present state of affairs. I can perceive but very little change. There appears to be a spirit of quietness, but it has always proven to be, so far, an omen for an unexpected attack. I received last Saturday an extensive letter full of hard names and threats, telling me I should never sleep in the new house, but I am in God's hands, and ask him daily to use me as seemeth best in his sight; and I am willing to be used to the breaking down of the kingdoms of anti-Christ, and the complete annihilation of the powers of Baal (secret societies). My heart is often heavy and I am at times very much depressed in spirit, but I cannot, I will not complain. There is only one thing that I am interested in, and that is the salvation of my people from the delusion of lodgery. I have great hope of an ultimate breaking down of the lodge force, both in our city and in the surrounding country. The leaven is in and is commencing to work. In the rural districts a little Baptist church, called Haliburton, was completely given up to the society element. The meetings were held in the church, but the pastor, a brave little man, called to see me. I gave him a few Cynosure tracts, and on yesterday he came rejoicing that he had succeeded in breaking the whole thing up. He has been in the work only two months.

The religious sentiment of our people is susceptible of being easily bent to an acceptance of the pure Word of God; and all we need is some one to help us work in this cause. Some effectual work can be done now, especially in the rural districts. The whole country for miles around is aroused, but the men are afraid to lay hold of the work; there is little to fear outside of the city, but the elements here are red.

I was in hope of seeing the senior editor here, that some kind of systematic effort might have been made all along the line. The iron is now hot and we are trying to bend it.

I am yet deprived of attending my night service, and will be until our house is completed. We have thus far spent $715 on our building, and are now without a dime to carry the work further, but we hope, and trust, and pray.

Sister Wright made her first appearance upon the street to-day. She experiences a little pain, she says, in walking. Her wound is nearly healed. My brother is comparatively well; my own wound in the head is still painful and causes me considerable anxiety.

I am not alarmed by any means, but I feel that this work of destroying the powers of Baal ought to be pushed forward, no matter what the cost. The Lord our God is able, and we are in great hopes of doing much here in this city, which is almost swallowed up with societies, and there is not a single church here among the colored people out of debt or completed, except, I believe, that of Bro. Imes. Nearly all the preachers are Grand Masters or something else. We have here thirty-five churches, all eaten up with societies, secret and local; and nearly all of the ministers lead the people into them. And I feel that I must try by all the power there is in me and the grace that God may bestow upon me, to use every effort to draw the people out. Bro. Imes helps valiantly, and Bro. Brinkley stands out bravely in the defense of the truth. Many Christians in other churches endorse our efforts, and we believe that they will eventually agitate the matter in their churches. I append a list of the secret and local societies in our midst. They pay an annual rent of nearly $7,000, and $21,600 in monthly dues; and pay out for picnics and frolics about $10,000 yearly, and realize out of it about an average of $100 each. Thus our substanee is wasted, God's ehureh is negleeted, and our people kept in poverty and want:

Masons (thirteen lodges).
Odd-fellows (six lodges).
Independent Order of Immaculates.
Sons and Daughters, People's Proteetion.
United Brothers and Sisters of Friendship.
Sons and Daughters of Unity.
Knights of Pythias.
Knights of Crusades.
Knights of Wise Men.
Knights of Tabor.
Mosaics Templars of America.
Daughters of the Mysterious Ten.
Household of Ruth.
Heroines of Jericho, or Eastern Star.
Daughters of Olive.
Sirs and Daughters of the Tabernaele.
Immaculate Gems.
Friendship's Nursery.
Tabernacle, Tent.

These last three are for children from six to sixteen years: dues 10 cents per month, sick dues $1.00 per week; burial when dead.

The following are local organizations, not secret, but very harmful, being controlled and governed by worldlings.

United Sons and Sisters of Zion, No. 1
United Sisters of Zion.
United Sons and Daughters of Ham.
Social Benevolent Society, Nos. 1, 2 and 3.
Sons and Daughters of Canaan.
The Charitable Treasure.
Independent Order Pole Bearers.
Mutual Relief.
Sons and Daughters of Jerusalem.
Sons and Daughters, Union Forever.
Union Aid Society.
The Laborer's Union.
Christian Aid Society.

Again we thank our numerous friends for their tokens and expressions of sympathy and Christian love, trusting we will soon, by the grace of God and the assistance of his people, be in our new home, when we can be more able to effectually work against the power of Baal (secretism). Yours in hope of the glory of God. R. N. COUNTEE.

[In another letter received a few days earlier Bro. Countee writes:]

We are by the grace of God moving on, and the enemy keeps in line by his constant letters threatening to yet take my life. I informed you some time since that I was in town, and this morning our landlord came and was very uneasy. They continue to send him letters threatening to burn his house; and as constant drops will wear away a stone, so he is becoming nervous. I insisted that he let me remain until our house is done, or another month at least. Even here in town my friends stay with us at night. I am within a stone's throw of six of the most miserable dens of vice in the city—perfect rum-holes. I fear not, the power of God I know is all sufficient, but at times my heart grows sick. This morning when your letter came I had only eighty-five cents, yet I was not despondent. I believe God will take care of me while I go forward with his work.

Sunday morning I attended services and preached at my church from the S. S. lesson. Hezekiah's destruction of the brazen serpent gave an excellent opportunity, showing no matter how good a thing may have been, when it out-lives its usefulness, or when it supercedes or takes the place of God it must be destroyed. When I had finished my remarks a brother came forward and told his experience as follows: "I am a member of a lodge, and my eyes have become open, and I see that the lodge is in my way, much more is it in my God's way; it gets between me and my duty to God. I am a financial member until June, 1886, but I am done with them right now forever, amen." It was a grand time, for this man is a man of influence. All the colored pastors here fight us, but by the grace of God I intend to go forward.

ANOTHER CASE OF MASONIC JUSTICE.

On the night of the second of April, 1885, the dwelling of an aged resident of Fairfield Co., O., was broken into and burglarized by three masked men. The occupants, rudely aroused from slumber, were robbed of what they possessed; the husband was shot in the breast and struck with a billet of wood, and the wife forced to fly from the house with bare fect, over frozen ground, to be marched back at the muzzle of a revolver.

The gang, consisting of George Blackburn, John Kelly and Frank Walters, were arrested in Columbus and lodged in Fairfield county jail for trial. Blackburn, the leader of the gang, was an old expenitentiary eonviet who had been sentenced four times to the penitentiary, the aggregate of whose terms amounted to thirty years, only sixteen of which he had actually served in consequenee of executive elemeney. The last time, in August, 1884, he was pardoned out by Gov. Hoadley, a 32-degree Mason, on the reeommendation of the Masonic managers of the Ohio Penitentiary, also appointed by Gov. Hoadley.

The first act of Blackburn after being arrested was to secure a High Mason, Knight Templar, and member of several other secret societies to defend him. Walters was tried first and fouud guilty. He, being no Freemason, little or no sympathy was expressed for him. Blackburn was then tried and the most strenuous efforts made to secure his acquittal. Freemasons crowded the court-room and loudly proclaimed on the streets that he was an innocent man, and that there was not a single grain of evidence against him, hoping thereby to influence the jury in his favor. The judge on the bench, also a Mason, throughout the entire suit, ruled arbitrarily in his favor, in plain violation of the rules of law and evidence, and in his charge to the jury freely intimated that it was their duty to render a verdict of acquittal. A large number of witnesses were brought down from Columbus to prove an alibi, many of them of the most dissolute character, and not a few wearing the emblems of secret orders. It is reported that Blackburn was one day overheard to say to the judge, "Judge, remember your obligation!" Whether this be true or not, it is evident that the judge did remember his obligation, as did also a part of the jury; the latter standing nine for conviction and three for acquittal. It was conceded by all parties that the evidence was as strong against Blackburn as against Walters.

The spring term of court having expired it became necessary to retain the prisoners until the fall term. The judge, true to his obligation to "relieve the distress of a brother Mason," gave orders that the prisoners should not be kept in close confinement, but should be allowed the limits of the jail: and this in the face of the fact that the jail is very unsafe, and the prisoners of the most desperate character, Blackburn having once escaped from the penitentiary. According to programme the desperadoes made a bold attempt to escape during the summer, being assisted by various articles that had been spirited into the jail for their use. They were foiled, however, by the vigilance of the sheriff, who is not a Mason. At the October term Blackburn and Kelly were tried jointly on a charge of burglary and larceny, and although the same tactics were employed in their favor that had been successful in the former trial, they were found guilty. Their attempt at breaking jail had stimulated the popular indignation to such an extent that Blackburn's friends dared not espouse his cause openly as before. The judge in passing sentence gave Walters and Kelly each seven years in the penitentiary, and Blackburn, the leader of the gang, and most guilty of the three, five years. Blackburn is said to be a Freemason; the others are not. If Blackburn is not a Freemason why was he favored so much over the others from beginning to end?

In this connection it is interesting to read the following extracts from the obligation of a Master Mason: "I further promise and swear that I will keep a worthy brother Master Mason's secret inviolate, when communicated to and received by me as such, murder and treason excepted. . . . Further, that I will give him due and timely notice, that he may ward off approaching danger. . . . Further, that if ever I should see or hear the Grand Hailing Sign of Distress given by a worthy brother in distress, I will fly to his relief if there is a greater probability of saving his life than of losing my own." And the following from the Royal Arch, or seventh degree: "I furthermore promise and swear, that I will assist a companion Royal Arch Mason, when engaged in any difficulty, and will espouse his cause so far as to extricate him from the same, whether he be right or wrong! Further, that I will keep all the secrets of a companion Royal Arch Mason, when communicated to me as such, without exception."

Citizens of America, do you realize what a dark, despotic power is in your very midst, corrupting government, subverting justice, and intimidating by its powerful influence alike the pulpit and the press? If you would preserve your free institutions in their original purity you must throttle this monster ere it throttles you. Reason dictates, and your own welfare demands that men should not be chosen to administer the laws over the whole community who are under secret sworn obligations to a part of it. No man can obey two masters; nor can he obey his Masonic oaths and his oath as an officer of the State or the United States.

C. M. STRICKLER.

TRACTS AND PAPERS FOR THE SOUTH.

PINE BLUFF, Ark.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—We hail with pleasure the invasion of the South with men of might armed with the truth against secret societies, and I am sure it will produce an abundant harvest, for these people are anxious for the truth and when their eyes are opened you will find you will have adherents that will gladden your hearts, who know the pernicious tendency of evil associates and will not likely fall in with them again.

You have little idea of the power exerted by tracts in the midst of these people. I dropped one in the town of Brinkly which came nigh causing me bodily harm. I also made a speech against the orders, which caused some to fall out with me. Frieud Woodsmall will use his power against the system of inquity and will do it effectually.

If it so happens that funds are at your command to send papers to many of the Southern clergy and prominent men connected with the lodges, I wish you to fill the enclosed list, and mail to them each a copy, for they are ones that with a little light will turn and draw many with them. Yours for the truth,

L. JOHNSON.

PITH AND POINT.

THE POLE STAR SHINES IN THE SOUTH.

Having read one copy of the Christian Cynosure, I do sincerely believe it to be one of the best papers I have ever read, particularly as to its mission against secret orders. It is worthy a place in every civilized family, and indeed is just the paper for the country at large. Freemasonry and other secret societies are doing as much harm to church and country as the eating cancer does to its victim. What first dumb-founded me with them was this expression from one who claims to be a firm believer in Christ and the teachings handed to us by him, that "Freemasonry is a better institution than the church, because," said he, "none but gentlemen can become Freemasons," and he added that eventually it would substitute religion and Christianity altogether. I claim that they are mistaken.—P. A. JONES, Donaldsonville, La.

ANOTHER WORKER FOR REFORM.

I have been a hard worker against secret societies, and in Norway delivered a series of lectures against them, and edited a book against the humanistic and so-called Christian Freemasonry. A controversy in our synod (Evangelical Lutheran) which is against all secret societies, will apparently lead to a division. I hope the Cynosure may be able to overthrow everywhere the great enemy of the Christian religion.—H. G. STUBB, Luther Seminary, Madison, Wis.

BIBLE LESSONS.

FOURTH QUARTER.

STUDIES IN THE KINGS AND PROPHETS.

LESSON XI. Dec. 13, 1885.—The Suffering Saviour. Isa. 53: 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The Lord hath laid on him the iniquity of us all. Isaiah 53: 6.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Christ came to a nation scornful of him and full of unbelief in his message—the same characterics which are in the world to-day. vs. 1-3. We wonder at the stupid obstinacy of the Jews in rejectlng Christ. Is it any more marvelous than to think that his llfe and teachings have been before the world for eighteen centuries without converting it! There is still the same old enemy to combat—unbelief; still the same gross blindness. The natural heart sees no beauty in a crucified Redeemer that it should desire him; and even his professed followers too often crucify him afresh by their indifference or cowardly fear.

2. The value of Christ's Sacrifice. vs. 4-10. The Gospel will never make great progress where Christians feel no deep nor vivid sense of what the Lord has done for them. Do we actually feel that our griefs and pains and sins have all been lald on him?—that the chastisment we should have recelved has been visited upon the Sinless? Then we shall long to see the whole world accept such a Saviour. And just in proportion as we realize the depth of his sufferings, and the divine might of that love which made him willing to endure the agonies of Gethsemane and Calvary, we shall "hate every false way" that keeps men from him. Such a false way is Freemasonry. It recognlzes no need of atonement, therefore it has no place for Christ. Among all its symbols and signs not one points to him. It teaches a mock regeneration while it tears Christ's name from his own New Testament that it may not offend the Jew or the infidel who happens to be a member. It is difficult to see how Christians, pastors or laymen, can have a spark of holy zeal for their Redeemer's honor, and not hate a system which treats his person and work with such utter contempt. The saloon, impure literature, and the deadly tobacco habit are other false ways. It is not enough to simply point men to their suffering Saviour. We must fight continually the fiends of sinful customs, bad habits and false beliefs that would block up the way of human salvation.

3. A glorious victory is for all who are on the side of Christ. vs. 10-12. Christ himself we are assured will be satisfied with the fruits of his earthly anguish. Then every disciple who has followed him through reproach and fiery trials will be satisfied too. He will be a sharer in the Master's joy! What an incentive to be faithful in the service of such a Master!

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

What have Christ's sufferings accomplished for us? Heb. 9:14; 10:19, 20. What do all adhering Masons practically do? Heb. 10: 29.

"Who hath believed our report?" The prophet had foretold the redemption of the nation by the Saviour King from God. He looked upon the future as on a prospect spread out before him in his vision. He saw the messengers go forth to publish peace (chap. 52: 7). He saw afar off many nations coming to the Saviour (52: 15), but at first and among his own people these messengers were asking, "Who hath believed our report?" The speakers here are the prophets and the Gospel heralds of chap. 52: 7, giving the result of their first labors in preaching the Gospel.—Cowles.

"Is the arm of the Lord revealed?" The arm is a symbol of power, as it is the instrument by which we execute our purposes. It is put for the power of God (Isa. 51: 9; 52: 10). It hence means God's power in defending his people, in overcoming his enemies, and in saving the soul.—Peloubet.

"As a tender plant," or sucker, growing out of a parent stem. He grew up small and of no reputation, from a family nearly extinct, like a tender plant springing unnoticed from its root hid in a barren and dry land, out of which nothing eminent was expected.—Bishop Horne.

"As a root (springing) out of dry ground. The root is a shoot which springs from the root left in the ground after the tree has been felled. The sprouts that come up from a root in the dry ground lack strength, beauty, comeliness, and present a strong contrast with other plants of the same sort, which may not be a yard away, but whose roots can reach the water. Such sights may be seen in any oriental garden.—Prof. Isaac H. Hall.

"He hath no form nor comeliness." No beautiful form or appearance, referring to his state of abasement rather than to his own personal beauty. He had no royal robes, no diadem, no splendid retinue, no gorgeous army.—Barnes. It refers to all the circumstances of his manifestation, parentage, position, education, following, etc. (see Luke 2: 7; Matt. 13: 54–58; Luke 7: 34, 39).—Todd.

"And rejected of men." The name, "the rejected of men," will explain all the melancholy history,—rejected by the Jews; by the rich, the great, and the learned; by the mass of men of every age and grade and rank. No prophecy was ever more strikingly fulfilled.—Barnes.

"And we esteemed him not." Set no value upon him, did not recognize his worth. In unrequitted love there is the sharpest pang. The rejection of Jesus was the consummation of his sorrow. Then his cup was full.—R. Millman.

"Hath borne our griefs." The reference here is clearly to sins and heart sorrows; in Matt. 8: 17, to physical disease. Matthew interprets the one by the other, and leaves us to draw the conclusion that as Christ bore the sickness of those he healed, in like manner he bears the sins of those he redeems. But how then did he bear the infirmities of the sick? Not literally. He removed them from others, he did not become diseased himself. Neither in removing sins from others does he become stricken with sin himself.—Lyman Abbott.

"And the Lord hath laid on him." The word "laid" means to light, in hostile encounter, whether as many burdens laid on one shoulder, or many shafts aimed at one common target. Each sin of every sinner would be like a separate wound in the heart of this Man of sorrows.—Birks.

"Who shall declare his generation?" Meyer, Alford, and others understand this as equivalent to, "Who can describe his posterity?" i. e., his spiritual children, born of the travail of his soul. R. Payne Smith renders it, "Who will care to bestow thought on a career so prematurely cut short?" This agrees better with the spirit of the passage than either of the other interpretations.—L. Abbott.

"And he made (or, 'One appointed') his grave with the wicked, and the rich in his death." An enigma which only history could explain. Jesus was put to death with the wicked on the cross, and they thought to bury him in a criminal's grave. But by a striking providence the same authority gave permission to a rich man, Joseph of Arimathea, who provided him with an honorable burial in his own rock-hewn tomb (Matt. 27: 57–60).—This striking and minutely accurate prophecy could not have been the result of conjecture. How could a pretended prophet, 700 years before the event, conjecture of one who was executed as a malefactor, that he would be buried with the rich, contrary to the ordinary course of events?—Barnes.

"He shall see the travail of his soul, and shall be satisfied. They will abundantly repay him for all his sufferings. This is the grandest promise in the Bible with reference to the number of the saved.—Todd.

"And made intercession for the trangressors. Makes, and ever will make. "He ever liveth to make intercession for us." Not merely in the restricted sense of prayer for others, but in the wider one of the meritorious and prevailing intervention (Rom. 8: 34; Heb. 9: 24; 1 John 2: 1).—Alexander. A Saviour; "all that God could give, and all that man can want."—Josiah Gregory.

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

H. H. Hinman, Willimantic, Conn.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, Geo. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, address in care of Free Press.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W. B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D.Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.
Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.
In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men

OUR CLUB LIST.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)
Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.
Brethren (Dunkers or German Baptists.)
Christian Reformed Church.
Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)
Congregational—The State Associations of Illinois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.
Disciples (in part.)
Friends.
Lutherans—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferences.
Mennonites.
Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.
Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conference.)
Moravians.
Plymouth Brethren.
Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.
Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)
United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowship and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Sandford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.
Sugar Grove Church, Green county, Pa.
Military Chapel, M. E., Lowndes county, Miss.
Hopewell Missionary Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Cedar Grove Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Simon's Chapel, M. E., Lowndes Co., Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Brownlee Church, Caledonia, Miss.
Salem Church, Lowndes Co., Miss.
West Preston Baptist Church, Wayne Co., Pa.

OTHER LOCAL CHURCHES

adopting the same principle are—

Baptist churches: N. Abington, Pa.; Menomonie, Mondovi, Waubeck and Spring Prairie, Wis.; Wheaton, Ill.; Perry, N. Y.; Spring Creek, near Burlington, Iowa; Lima, Ind.; Constableville, N. Y. The "Good Will Association" of Mobile, Ala., comprising some twenty-five colored Baptist churches; Bridgewater Baptist Association, Pa.; Old Tebo Baptist, near Leesville, Henry Co., Mo.; Hoopeston, Ill; Esmen, Ill.; Strykersville, N. Y.

Congregational churches: 1st of Oberlin, O.; Tonica, Crystal Lake, Union and Big Woods, Ill.; Solsbury, Ind.; Congregational Methodist Maplewood, Mass.

Independent churches in Lowell, Countryman school house near Lindenwood, Marengo and Streator, Ill.; Berea and Camp Nelson, Ky; Ustick, Ill.; Clarksburg, Kansas; State Association of Ministers and Churches of Christ in Kentucky.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ILLUSTRATED.

By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." The lodge-room, signs, countersigns, grips, etc., are shown by engravings. 25 cents each; per dozen, $2.00. Address the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.
PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.
NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.
1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.
1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.
1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884.

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

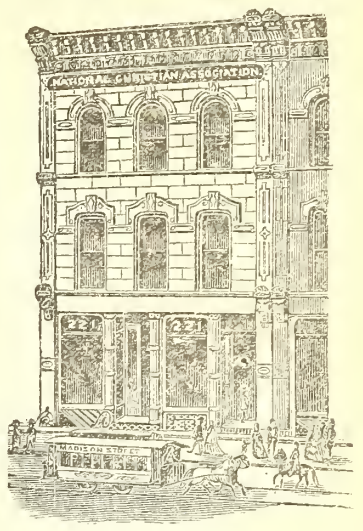
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and honest currency.

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N. Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:
"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D
SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Ulsh Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B. Higgins, Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1885.

A SENSIBLE QUOTATION.—To justify the W. C. T. U. in going for a new Prohibition party, Miss Willard quotes the following, which, while it justifies, condemns her and her party, who "sit in full view of civil wrong" inflicted on society by secret orders from court house to communion table, waiting, like Micawber, for "something to turn up." She knows the horrible nature of the lodge as well as we do:

"Some propose to wait the slow growth of civilization, as if it were a planetary movement, to be looked at through a telescope. Why, human beings are the motive power of progress. Its speed depends upon our courage, activity, integrity. It is an insult to a forebearing God and the civilized world for us to sit in full view of civil wrongs, manifestly bad and curable, saying we must wait for this or that, and claiming that, geologically considered, we are getting on quite rapidly. Such talk never won a battle or a race."

THE POPE'S ENCYCLICAL, of November 1st, (telegraphed translation) entitled De Civetatum Gubernatione Christiana, exhorts all Roman Catholics to attend caucuses, and make party politics part of their religion. Cardinals and bishops hardly needed this singular exhortation. We should never confound popery with the Holy Catholic church. There was no pope for the first five centuries. Hence popery is but a huge wart on the forehead of the Bride of Christ. The following is an extract of this brassy bull:

"We exhort all Catholics who would devote careful attention to public matters to take an active part in all municipal affairs and elections, and to further the principles of the church in all public services, meetings and gatherings. All Catholics must make themselves felt as active elements in daily political life in the countries where they live. They must penetrate wherever possible in the administration of civil affairs; must constantly exert the utmost vigilance and energy to prevent the usage of liberty from going beyond the limits fixed by God's law. All Catholics should do all in their power to cause the Constitutions of States and legislation to be modeled in the principles of the true church. All Catholic writers and journalists should never lose for an instant from view the above prescriptions. All Catholics should redouble their submission to authority, and unite their whole heart, soul, body and mind in defense of the church and Christian wisdom."

THE UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

The Telescope contains some of the feeblest articles, probably, ever written by men professing Christian learning. Its leading article Nov. 18th, is by President D. D. De Long, D. D., who asks, "What attitude should we, as a church, assume and maintain with reference to secret societies?" and after a long, lank and wordy preface answers: "It is not in harmony with the practices and teachings of Christ to legislate against worldly organizations as such." * * "Organized evil was quite as common then as now, and far more objectionable; among which were the institutions of slavery," etc.

Now, Albert Barnes says that "Christ probably never saw a slave in his life." There were neither slaves nor harems in Judea, and Christ, unlike this Dr., did not discuss dead or distant evils, but applied God's ideas to the ways of men who were before him. This teacher would have us believe that the lodge is a "worldly organization as such." Whereas there are a dozen elementary books by Masonic authors which declare Masonry to be a "religious institution;" and if no such declaration were contained in the fundamental works of the lodge, its altars, prayers, creeds, priests, high priests, and grand high priests settle the question of its religious character. And the omission of Christ, and mangling the Bible for the purpose of ejecting him from its rituals, show that the lodge religion belongs to that class of false religions which are denounced and "legislated" against from Genesis to Revelation: from the first page to the last of the Bible.

The only charitable supposition respecting such men is that they are ignorant, purposely, of the contents of Masonic books. The prophet Ezekiel was commanded to say to such men, "Woe to the foolish prophets that follow their own spirits and have seen nothing." Ezek. 13: 3.

The commission of twenty-seven appointed by the last May General Conference will do well to defer their report till an inter-denominational congress of churches can be got together to consider this whole subject and advise what should be done.

THE TRIPLE EXPOSITION.

We hope the readers of the Cynosure may have "Editorial Correspondence" from New Orleans by the senior editor in the course of the coming winter. The Exposition continues open till March. It is conceived on a magnificent scale. The chief magistrates of the United States, of the several States and of Canada are invited, and days set apart for hearing them. Fred. Douglass and ex-Senator Bruce are to represent the Africa-Americans and speak for the emancipated race. The following instructive note is given in the American:

"The New Orleans Exposition is calling attention to our commercial relations with the South and Central American States and reveals the fact that to our great injury, we are comparative strangers to our nearest neighbors. According to the reports from the department of state there is an annual demand for imported goods in Mexico and the countries to the South amounting to $475,000. These articles are such as can be and are successfully produced in the United States, and yet we send them but one sixteenth of that amount. The remainder they get from Europe. So too they export annually products to the amount of $479,000,000, articles of which we are consumers but cannot produce. And yet but about one-third comes to us, the remainder going to Europe. Other things being equal, there could be no better solution for the labor problem than to enlarge our commercial relations and open up new markets for our accumulated productions."

THE ANTI-SECRET PRESS.

Some thirty years ago the senior editor of the Cynosure started a little monthly at Galesburg, Ill., advocating the principles of the Cynosure. The name of the little monthly was the Christian Era, at 25 cents a year. Removing from Knox to Wheaton College, the Era was issued as a fortnightly and the price raised to 50 cents. It was then published by Leroy Hand, now a successful Congregational pastor, and consistent friend of the reform. The Christian Era having been suspended by the sickness of the editor; its mission was renewed in the Cynosure, in the summer of 1868, and issued as a fortnightly organ of the N. C. A. against threats of arson and war of elements. Hon. Philo Carpenter was chief patron and protector of the paper, and gave the building (221 W. Madison street, Chicago) whence it is now issued. Ezra A. Cook, a young business man who had spent some three years in the Union army, said he would publish the Cynosure. On being asked why he risked a good business against Masonic opposition, he answered, "I feel as I did when I saw Lee and Grant facing each other, as if I wanted a hand in that fight." In the conflagration of the city, he was burnt a thousand dollars below water. He owed that amount more than he could pay. He boldly pushed his paper up to its present size of 16 pages weekly, with Mrs. Cook as his head clerk and publishing agent; and Mr. Kellogg steady at the wheel as pilot. At Secretary Stoddard's suggestion the N. C. A. resumed and removed the paper to its present quarters. When the Washington property was purchased and the American was started at the seat of our National Government, at a lower price and of smaller size, some trembled for the Cynosure. They said with these advantages the new paper would cut into and cripple the first. It has not done so: and all now see the wisdom of starting and acknowledging the ability of the Washington paper.

The United Brethren in Christ was started in Chambersburg, Pa. The Richmond Star arose at Richmond, Ind., and the two are consolidated in the Christian Conservator at Dayton, Ohio. Prof. S. C. Kimball has conducted his Christian Witness at New Market, N. H. for years; and last, not least, the, Birmingham Free Press, by Rev. Geo. Warrington and Dr. J. N. Norris, has taken its place in the skies of Iowa, with the Blanchard Record in the southwest corner of the State. Mr. Needles' American Freeman, after doing good service for years has merged in the American, and one or two other reform papers started by the reform, have blended their beams with other stars. The Cynosure has given its benison to every one of these prints, as they have, one by one, walked into the field, and asked for a portion of her subscribers. No mother ever with honester pride beheld new children come to her table and ask to divide the bread.

But the presses, started avowedly by the reform, are the smallest part of the success vouchsafed to us. The stanch old denominational papers, and some miscellaneous and political sheets have felt the breeze of the reform, and in sailor's phrase have "jammed their vessels into the wind" of it; and we now only want a grand National Congress of churches, outside the N. C. A. and the American party to set a beacon light on every hill-top in the United States, and so light up the heavens by their universal glow, that the mousing owls of lodgery will not only secrete their societies, but terminate their thievish, insignificant existence.

THE W. C. T. U. TWELFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER 30TH TO NOVEMBER 2ND.

The proceedings of this meeting cover twenty-four close printed pages of the Union Signal. Three hundred and fifty-one delegates voted. Miss Willard was re-elected president by a vote virtually animous. Her opening speech is one of extraordinary ability. Judith Ellen Foster, who during the Blaine campaign attempted a schism in favor of the Republican party, carried the Iowa State Union, and organized a National opposition non-partizan party, was presents and seems about to take the current and go along with Miss Willard. Of the thirty-eight United States, the great majority which have spoken, have voted for a new party with prohibition as one of its cardinal doctrines: and the sentiment of the great Philadelphia meeting went overwhelmingly for party action and against Mrs. Foster's pretended non-partizan movement.

Miss Willard's argument for a new party made up of the best ingredients of the two old parties, was simply crushing. She said: "We cannot consistently stand as non-partizans in equal friendship with politicians who deny, who ignore, and who espouse the cause of prohibition." She took the simple, bold ground that "the two old parties are but extinct volcanoes of past eruptions from the people's heart; that the Democratic party is the open, while the Republican party is the secret ally of the liquor oligarchy." She quoted the Brewers' League, which declared that the Republican party has been in power twenty-five years, and has done for us all we have asked; and "in Cincinnati 600 saloon-keepers voted to support the Republican ticket."

"THE NAME OF THE NEW PARTY,"

Miss Willard said, "may be the Prohibition party, and may be something else:" something broader and more comprehensive. This is what the Cynosure has always insisted on. The name "Prohibition party" is not national, but a mere protest; a sled built on a single runner. And no name can be invented so fit as American: no name so true. Not Native American—that name built a party on the accident of birth; and would have excluded a large share of the Americans who fought out and formed our government—but simply American, which includes the Decalogue and the Declaration of Independence, and excludes aristocratic "orders," "titles" and "shams" of every kind.

THE W. C. T. U. AND SECRET SOCIETIES.

The only allusion of Miss Willard's opening speech to secret societies, is in these words: "If the Good Templars or Sons of Temperance choose to do so, that is their own affair. For one, I expected better things of them." That is, if the secret temperance lodges choose to stand in equal friendship with "those who espouse, ignore, or deny" temperance principles, "that is their own affair!" Yet further on in the meeting some Sons of Temperance delegates were introduced, and Miss Willard complimented them. She said, "Their (the Sons') labors have preceded ours, and made ours possible, and more effective." This remark of Miss Willard is misleading. Open temperance societies were more than thirty years older than the secret orders. And only when prayer and self-denying labor had carried the argument, and temperance had become popular, did secrecy seize on it, as on all popular reforms, to make itself popular, divide the reformers and swindle the many for the advantage of the few. To suppose Miss Willard to be ignorant of this would be to discredit her intelligence. Jewett, Gough and Finney, who was Miss Willard's trusted teacher, and the admired teacher of her parents, condemned secret societies as a curse and drawback upon morals.

Miss Willard knows, too, that every secret lodge, temperance or other, has its altar, prayers, ritual, and worship, and that not the worship commanded by Christ, but invented by men. Let us hope that extensive and deserved popularity may not turn this gifted woman's head, or render her heart callous.

While it is a matter of rejoicing that the pomp and paganism of the secret orders cut so insignificant a figure in the great Philadelphia meeting, it is melancholly that they should be admitted to make any figure at all there. The secret society voters for St. John could in many places be counted on one's fingers, and in some places where their lodges were numerous, prohibition had no votes at all. The great mass voted with distillers, brewers, and saloon-keepers. They sent in just a handful of representatives to the W. C. T. U. on the Masonic principle of keeping in with both sides, and advertising their secret wares, and drawing people into their nets.

Is it not amazing that in four days' sessions, and twenty-four pages of close print, these reform ladies should studiously ignore, and never once mention the American party which gave their candidate some thousands of votes; and whose platform has this article: "We hold that the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks is the true policy on the Temperance Question." Why should a body of Christian women shun all mention and ignore the existence of an earnest and growing body of men and women holding and teaching their own sentiments, openly as Christ taught, and lavish compliments on "orders" who meet and plan openly with them, and, when the convention is over, retire behind tyled doors and plot by themselves? The twenty or thirty influential papers which advocate open, fair, and Christian methods should rebuke the inconsistency of these Christian ladies, and all Christians should pray for those who practice it.

WILL SATAN CAST OUT SATAN?

A STAR CHAMBER COURT FOR THE TRIAL OF THE EDITOR OF THE MASONIC REVIEW.

The Cincinnati Enqnirer of Thursday last reports a great "Masonic sensation" in that city. Rev. Henry D. Moore, editor of the Masonic Review, was on trial before a secret court of Freemasons in the Emery Hotel for articles published in his paper which gave offense to Charles C. Keifer, of Urbana, Ohio, Past Grand Master of the Ohio Grand Lodge and Past Eminent Grand Commander of the Ohio Knight Templar Masons. This mighty man among the Masons charges that Moore has been disrespectful toward him, using in his paper unmasonic and unbrotherly language. Judge Foraker, governor elect of Ohio, defends Moore in the trial. The explanation given is not very clear, evidently confounding York rite Masonry with the Cerneau Council of 33-degree or Scotch rite Masons, which is a rival of Albert Pike's constituency or Gourgas Council. Between these two councils a truceless war is raging. A Masonic friend of Moore's explains the row thus:

"This is simply a piece of spite work against Brother Moore, engineered by prominent Masons whom he has antagonized. It is the 33d degree men and Scottish rite men against the York men. Colonel Carson went into the Grand Commandery and legislated to have a resolution passed for the expulsion of a man who went into any other order than the Scottish rite. This was because he was jealous of the new order at Columbus, the Cerneau rite. It is war against the Templar or York rite.

"Now, Brother Moore claimed that Colonel Carson had no right to do this, and that all the different rites should be allowed to stand on their own bottoms without legislature in favor or against, as they were all Masons. An article in the Review of last August said that a certain Past Grand Master, etc., had gone to a lodge-room one night and presided over one of the orders outside of the Scotch rite and then gone into the Commandery and spoke in favor of the expulsion of any man who would do this. The writer did not think that was consistent, and it was for the alleged authorship of the article that charges have been preferred against Brother Moore. He did not write the article, however. It was written by a gentleman up in the State, and he will be able to prove it."

The Enquirer writer continues the subject:

"The Rev. Moore is the editor of the Masonic Review, a monthly periodical published in this city. The October number is full of meaty matter on the subject alluded to. The particularly objectionable passages are in a communication signed 'Master Mason,' and some of them are as follows:

"'In your August number Brother T. B. Fisher recites the outrage committed in Marion Commandery, engineered by a Past R. E. G. C. and Past G. M. It is pretty generally known who this venerable conspirator is, and the writer was not surprised that he should have implicitly obeyed his Master, for while he was Grand Master he evinced his lack of courage to sustain the dignity of Craft Masonry and its laws. For example, a certain Master of a lodge has violated a plain law of the Grand Lodge, etc.'

In an editorial a letter from Eli Fasold, which was published in the Enquirer, is denounced as a forgery, and it is intimated that the Masonic Note editor of the Enquirer is responsible for it.

"Mr. Moore is familiarly known in the lodges as Buffalo Bill, on account of his long hair, and it is said that the leading Masons are anxious to get rid of him on account of frequent reckless utterances in the Review."

This publication of their secrets caused another sensation in the lodge. Enoch T. Carson, who is the leading Freemason of Cincinnati, wrote an indignant reply to the above statement characterizing it as base calumny and utterly untrue, intimating that the anti-Pike, 33-degreee Masons were counterfeit and must be stamped out. Others were vexed at the paper. It was not a matter for the public. The charges against Moore were "sacred and secret." In short the Masonic lodge can try its members and punish them without asking leave of church or state. In our Secret Empire department will be found some interesting reading on this Council quarrel.

—Bro. W. B. Stoddard is too busy to send a letter for publication this week, but sends a copy of his circular inviting attendance at the Columbus meeting on the 15th. He held meetings at Rix Mills and West Union last week, and on Friday he started on a visit to the towns of Ashley, Mt. Gilead, Mansfield, etc. Over 100 delegates have been appointed, and there is a bright hope for the meeting. But Satan also is busy and there will not be a meeting at Columbus, where so many high-titled Masons reside, without the opposition to the truth being expressed in some way. But a greater than "the strong man" of sin is on our side and will help.

—The convention of the American party at Fairfield, Iowa, buffeted with hard fate for a right to be. The court house was promised, but kept closed, and the announcement was indifferently made in the place. But a meeting was held in the Free Methodist church and M. N. Butler addressed it. Short speeches also were made by the president, George Heaton, and the secretary, Rev. George Warrington, and committees were chosen to report at a future meeting.

—Our readers will follow eagerly from week to week the progress of affairs in Memphis. The new parsonage for Bro. Countee is now up and covered, but until means are at hand they must postpone further operations for the present. The Memphis Watchman, a religious paper printed by Baptist preachers, seems to be devoted to the increase of the lodges. It publishes a long list of lodge meetings and both editorially and by its correspondents it argues for secretism. The American Missionary Association, for its defense of such godly men as Rev. B. A. Imes, has a portion of its abuse. A few points from its columns will show the temper of the opposition to Imes, Countee and Brinkley which comes from the Baptist churches themselves:

"That the pamphlets concerning our ancient and honorable orders, circulated under the direction of some pusillanimous ingrate, don't seem to take at all."

"That old Tuck, as big a devil as he is, would tuck his tail and die before he would be guilty of such an atrocious act—arraigning societies."

"That Bro. Martin gave the anti-society folks fits on last Sunday night to a crowded house."

"That his sermon was to the point, and all anti-society-humbug grumblers ought to have been there to hear their doom."

OHIO CONVENTION.

A convention voted by the State Christian Association opposed to secret societies will be held in the City Hall, Columbus, Ohio, beginning at 6 P. M. December 15th, and continuing through the following day and evening. All opposed to the lodge, of whatever denomination, are invited to be present. Among the speakers are expected Pres. C. A. Blanchard of Wheaton College, Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., of Xenia, O.; Prof. Lewis Davis, D. D., of Dayton; Elder J. F. Browne, Berea, Kentucky, and J. P. Stoddard, General Agent of the National Christian Association. Reduced fare can be obtained on all the railways by applying to W. B. Stoddard, at 214 West Second Avenue, Columbus. Free entertainment for those from a distance.

SUNDAY NEWSPAPERS.—Few modern inventions have had such disastrous influence upon personal and family religion as these printed Sunday sheets, which, like the Egyptain frogs, "go up and come into thy house and into thy bed chamber and upon thy bed." They are supplanting the reading of the Bible in many a family; they are preverting the taste of those who once enjoyed a religious book; they are unfitting the attendant upon the church for engaging in its solemn services, or for the wine and milk of the Gospel. There can be no spiritual appetite for the meat of God's house when the only appetizer that has been sought is the reading of the worldly gossip and of the evil details served in the Sunday paper. If the sanctuary is visited after a Sunday morning's debauch in the newspaper, how can the preacher hope to interest, when his only theme must be the verities of the message God has given him? These Sunday papers in Christian households are the bane of their religion. They should be ostracized, or they will become the winding-sheets of piety where it once flourished, and where it would still diffuse its beauty, peace and bliss upon every member.—Pulpit Treasury.

THE BRITISH CRISIS.

The elections in the United Kingdom bring into view three distinct principles, viz.: those of the Tory, the Reformer and the Destructionist. First, the present Premier as conservative of the church and state connection, of the House of Lords as it is and with aversion to changes of any kind, but ready always to accept things as they are, as the best that can be. Next, is the party of Gladstone, Bright and the Liberals, who are ever ready to adopt improvements when the people are ready for them and whence the great reforms of the last sixty years have emanated. The third party is the Parnell or Irish party.

The hope of the Liberals was to have such a majority as would control both Salisbury and Parnell. The game of these two extremeists was to play into each other's hands so as to defeat Gladstone, and then to so legislate as to retain power by supporting each other. A very curious team they would make, Parnell's party being professedly impelled by the hope of ultimate Irish independence, and the Tories blindly grasping their hands in hope that something may turn up to preserve them in power. To that end they cry, "The church is in danger," as if that was, but is not, the test question made by Gladstone. Irish reform is really the test question.

In other words the first say, "Let things alone;" the second, "Let things be improved;" the third, "Let them be overturned altogether." The first and third fire their artillery at the second; the first makes an ally of the third for its own ends. The second appeals to the common sense of the people and wins reasonable men even from both extremeists. The third has its strength in the hidden purpose, which, by an open avowal, would ruin almost every candidate. The Queen and the Constitution is professed by all, but still it is felt that the probable eighty Parnell votes may have power to make or unmake the ministry, and yet that Irish independence would be an utter impossibility from any ministry of the United Kingdom. What then remains? Of necessity Ireland must be content with the local self-government of Gladstone, whether from Liberal or Tory, or go into open rebellion if too many of them do not, as hitherto, continue to honor miscreants and murderers as honorable heroes, and to regard dynamite and daggers as the proofs of true patriotism.

Before your next issue the fate of the present administration in the United Kingdom will be indicated by the result of the general election. The problems laid down by the three representative leaders, Salisbury, the Tory Premier; Gladstone, his Reform predecessor and probable successor; and Parnell, the opponent of Irish grievances, differ greatly. The probability seems to be that Parnell may hold the balance of power with his expected eighty votes, and that he will thus try to extort from either party those concessions for Ireland which he or his supporters may demand. The Tory ministry has his support at present and Gladstone and the reformers are roundly denounced. Parnell seems to acknowledge the fairness of Gladstone's proposal of local self-government as most liberal and fair; and still, although without anything so good from Salisbury, he assumes to find fault with Gladstone, not in office, for not submitting a complete plan for such Irish self-government, without a word of censure on Salisbury, who is in office, for such an omission, or furnishing the slightest outline of suggestion by himself. Why? Oh, because it is easier to find fault with the plans of others than to form one likely to please the electors of the three kingdoms! Nor does Parnell give credit to the Gladstone ministry for their many political reforms which have placed Ireland on as liberal an electoral footing as either England or Scotland. The crime of the Gladstone ministry was to punish and imprison some murderers and miscreants, such as the assassins of Lord Cavendish. This is rather a poor feature from which the Irish party try to make parlimentary capital and however successful it may prove among a certain part of their countrymen in this country, the true Americans of these United States will be slow to believe that Gladstone and the Liberals are inferior to any political party in their own or any other country.

A SCOT.

Prof. Waller, chemist to the New York Health Department, will have a suggestive article in the December number of The Century, entitled, "Dangers in Food and Drink." Prof. Waller has had unusual experience in the detection of the dangers he here describes.

THE HOME.

ENTER WITH US.

As when the rapt disciples stayed
The Stranger by the Emmaus gate,
Whose wondrous heavenly-dropping word
Had cheered their hearts once desolate,
So pray we as they clinging prayed,
Enter this house, O Lord!

Thou didst go in, O gracious One;
Not all in vain that pleading prayer.
Thou didst sit down beside their board,
And with a tender Master's care
Teach them to know as they were known.
Enter our house, O Lord!

Not less, dear Lord, our longing need;
Our hearts and doors are open wide;
Thy presence and thy gracious word
We wait for, while we humbly plead
With love that cannot be denied,
Enter this house, O Lord!

—Am. Messenger.

GOAD PRICKS, OR THOUGHTS ON GIVING.

BY REV. J. F. AVERY.

It has been said the pocket nerve is the most sensitive indicator of Christianity and church life. We cannot fully endorse, because we remember that some give largely to be seen of men, and to hear the trumphet sound of their liberality heralded to the world, or else the prompting motive is selfishness.

It is not so much the moving of a liberal, thankful heart, that brings their gold and myrrh to the feet and service of Jesus, as a hope to gain applause in this world and some reward or easement in the world to come. Such gifts may serve a temporal purpose, but they have no record on high and are not laid up there. Verily they have their reward. But let not the giver think God can be bribed. He loveth the cheerful giver, and when with honest intent it is given, no mite can be too small to please the King. But let not the mean-souled man who giveth grudgingly think that he shall receive anything at the Lord's hand. Few have love and faith enough to give all that could or should be given. Few love Our Father enough to cheeerfully place in his hand for his service, all. But many turn back because they think God's service demands too much. Forgetful that all true increase and power to get, to have and hold, is with him, and that in him we live and move and have our being. The enjoyment and sweetness of life consisteth not in the abundance of our earthly store.

Under the law the Jewish church were tithed; a tenth at least of all their gain and getting had to be put on one side as the Lord's, for religious purposes. Besides, many and various gifts and thank offerings were required. Once in seven years the entire land had a rest, giving the people to understand that whilst men plough and plant it is from God cometh the increase. That to rob God of his share of time and service, on the plea of our own necessity is a grand mistake and sin. Such with-holding tendeth to poverty in both worlds. We are not under the law, but under grace, love has larger demands upon and greater power to control our persons and purses, than the law of Sinai. If the one-tenth was what the Jews gave, should not we, the New Testament saints, who believe in God and in Jesus also, constrained by the manifested love of God, make one-tenth the minimum, the lowest figure, the zero and starting point of our giving, and then in faith go on multiplying as the Lord prospers us? If found faithful, who can tell where-unto our power for service and liberal giving might grow. Liberal sowing has promise of a liberal harvest. If God's children would clip the golden feathers of their incomes by proportionate giving, it would be found that their riches would not take the wings of wild speculation and fly away, but in the abundance of contentment they would yield profit and pleasurable increase. The love of money is the root of evil. Money itself is a God ordained, and recognized convenience, and a medium whereby his children can not only pay men their dues, but by throwing it into the Lord's treasury, give their acknowledgment that from God all blessings flow. With a sanctified heart and a full purse the liberal man can devise liberal things. He can build a house for the Lord, send ships and men across the sea, and so use the talents in his keeping that when the account is rendered the Lord himself may say, "Well done, good and faithful servant." We need be faithful with the little, it has its responsibilities. The love scale can be turned by very little. Who can tell the importance, worth and value of the giving, when it comes out of the last handful from the meal barrel in famine time.

The widow woman having faith in Israel's God, found there was no waste in scattering and sharing with the prophet who bade her be liberal at such a time, for his Master's sake, "give and it shall be given."—Halifax, N. S.

RICH POVERTY.

There is a story of a widow of limited means who was remarkable for her liberality to benevolent objects. But a sad change came into her life by an unexpected legacy which made her wealthy, and then her contributions began to fall below the amount of her straightened finances. Once she volunteered; now she only gives when importuned, and then it is as meagre as if the fountains of gratitude had dried up. Once when asked by her pastor to help a cause dear to her heart in her comparative poverty, and to which she gave five dollars then, now she proffers twenty-five cents. Her pastor called her attention to the surprising and ominous change. "Ah," she said, "when day by day I looked to God for my bread, I had enough to spare; now I have to look to my ample income, and I am all the time haunted with the fear of losing it and coming to want. I had the guinea heart when I had the shilling means, now I have the guinea means and the shilling heart." It is a fearful risk to heart and soul to become suddenly rich. This is one of the reasons why God lets many of his best children acquire wealth so slowly, so that it may not be a snare to them, may not chill their benevolence; that when wealth comes the fever of ambitious grasping may be cooled, and that benevolence may overtake avarice.

A parishioner, who was a dear friend, read his pastor a page from life's history to this effect: When a small boy he gave his heart to Christ. He was engaged in a brickyard to carry clay, often on his head, for twenty-five cents a day. Then he vowed that one-tenth of his income he would give to his God. This he conscientiously did, and prosperity followed until he was worth $10,000; and then the trial of his life came, in which he went down in financial disaster. He would not give one-tenth of $10,000. Here his faith balked. He said: "After disaster had swept all away I learned what I had not known before—that it is easier to give one-tenth of $1.50 a week than of $10,000. A man is truer to God who works for twenty-five cents a day, and has less temptations and more strength to meet them, whose income is $6 a month, than $833⅓." He regained wealth, but it was in strict compliance with the vow of his youth, which his disaster enabled him to fulfill until his death.—Sel.

THAT MIGHTY NAME.

William Reynolds, of Peoria, Ill., the earnest and successful Sunday-school worker, tells the following story, which he heard from the lips of the missionary himself:

Rev. F. P. Scott, while laboring as a missionary in India, saw on the street one of the strangest looking heathens his eyes had ever lit upon. On inquiry he found that he was a representative of one of the inland tribes that lived away in the mountain districts, and which came down once a year to trade. Upon further investigation he found that the Gospel had never been preached to them, and that it was very hazardous to venture among them because of their murderous propensities. He was stirred with earnest desires to break unto them the bread of life. He went to his lodging place, fell on his knees, and pleaded for divine direction. Arising from his knees he packed his valise, took his violin, with which he was accustomed to sing, and his pilgrim staff, and started in the direction of the Macedonian cry.

As he bade his fellow-missionaries farewell, they said, "We shall never see you again. It is madness for you to go." But he said, "I must preach Jesus to them." For two days he travelled without scarcely meeting a human being, until at last he found himself in the mountains and suddenly surrounded by a crowd of savages. Every spear was instantly pointed at his heart. He expected that every moment would be his last. Not knowing of any other resource he tried the power of singing the name of Jesus to them. Drawing forth his violin, he began with closed eyes to sing and play,

"All hail the power of Jesus' name!
Let Angels prostrate fall;
Bring forth the royal diadem,
And crown him Lord of All."

Being afraid to open his eyes, he sang on till the third verse, and while singing the last stanza,

"Let every kindred, every tribe,
On this terrestrial ball,
To him all majesty ascribe,
And crown him Lord of all,"

he opened his eyes to see what they were going to do, when lo! the spears had dropped from their hands, and the big tears were falling from their eyes.

They afterwards invited him to their homes. He spent two and a half years among them. His labors were so richly rewarded that when he was compelled to leave them because of impaired health and return to this country, they followed him for thirty miles. "O missionary," they said, "come back to us again! There are tribes beyond that never heard the Gospel." He could not resist their entreaties. After visiting America, he went back again to continue his labors among them till he sank into the grave among them. Who would face such dangers but a soldier of the Cross? Missionaries are often the bravest men on earth. Such invincible courage, blended with the love of Jesus, will yet conquer the world.—Missionary Outlook.

WAIT PATIENTLY FOR HIM.

"Rest in the Lord, and wait patiently for him," is a divine command. The waiting time may seem long and weary, but it is not in vain; and we may be sure that He who bade us wait will not forget us nor abandon us.

There is a story told of Havelock and his son, who were one morning crossing London Bridge. Suddenly Havelock thought of something forgotten, and for which he needed to return. Leaving the boy on the bridge he bade him wait till he should come back. He was detained by business, and his mind being occupied, he forgot the boy and did not return to the bridge at all, but went another way. Reaching home late in the evening his wife inquired where Harry was. In a moment it flashed upon him.

"Why, Harry is on London Bridge!"

And hurrying away to the bridge he found him just where he had left him in the morning. The boy had waited all day, and at last his patience was rewarded. So all who patiently wait their heavenly Father's will will find a reward. But they may be sure, even in their waiting, that they are not overlooked or forgotten; for he that keepeth Israel shall "neither slumber nor sleep."—Common People.

PRAYING BEN.

"I was once preaching," said Father Gray, "in the free church near Oatis' Creek, Craven county, North Carolina. I saw an old colored man sitting on one of the back seats; the big tears coursed down his cheeks. After preaching, when I had eaten my 'snack' all alone. I started for my next appointment, twelve miles distant. Going about three miles I overtook the same old colored man, and asked him his name. 'Ben, sir.' I asked him, 'Do you belong to the church?' 'Oh, yes, massa, been a member forty year; was converted under Elder Brown. I commenced at once to work for my colored bredren; my massa, Ben Benders, forbid me pray wid my bredren; whipped me several times, but I git happy and forget myself, and shout loud. Massa burnt down my house, and sent me down to help load a vessel with stores; sent a letter to the captain to bind me at night and take me to the West Indies and sell me if he could get but a hogshead of rum.

"'That night the Lord made my soul happy; I shouted loud; the sailors jumped up and seized handspikes and said they would kill me if I did not hush, but the captain told them to let me alone. Next morning the wind was ahead; we started off; had to tow the vessel. The captain said he would put me ashore if I would hide till he came back; he would buy me then and let me stay with my folks. I told him, 'no, massa, my Lord is in the West Indies too.'

"'We got about a mile off Neuse river, sun an hour high, where we saw a boat coming with four hands rowing for life, with a letter from Massa Benders to send Ben back. When I got back I found Massa on his knees in his room crying for mercy. He said, 'Ben, I want you to pray.' I said, 'Massa, you must pray for yourself too.' We prayed and wrestled together until about daybreak. God set his soul free, and massa set me free.'

"This was a true history, as we learned from the old reliable settlers in that country."—Raleigh Advocate.

DYING RICH.—What an awful thing it is to die rich! Imagine the Master auditing the account of a servant who has left behind him a million. If that poor wretch who had but one talent was cast into outer darkness because he laid it up, instead of using it in his Master's service, what will be the doom of those who, with their half millions and millions (while giving, it may be, a few thousands for decency's sake) have, year after year, hoarded up countless treasures which they could never use? Think of the poor saints pinched with cold and hunger! Think of the Redeemer's cause languishing for the want of that filthy lucre, which they hold with close-fisted selfishness.

WHAT BESSIE SAW.

This morning, when all of the rest had gone down,
I stood by the window to see
The beautiful pictures, which there in the night,
Jack Frost had been making for me.

There were mountains, and windmills, and bridges, and boats;
Some queer looking houses and trees;
A hammock that hung by itself in the air,
And a giant cut off at the knees.

Then there was a steeple so crooked and high,
I was thinking it surely must fall,
When right down below it I happened to spy
The loveliest thing of them all—

The cutest and cunningest dear little girl!
I looked at her hard as I could,
As she stood there as dainty—and looked back at me—
In a little white ulster and hood.

"Good-morning!" I whispered, for all in a flash
I knew 'twas Jack Frost's little sister.
I was so glad to have her come visiting me
I reached up quite softly and kissed her.

Then—can you believe it?—the darling was gone!
Killed dead in that one little minute.
I never once dreamed that a kiss would do that.
How could there be any harm in it!

But I am so sorry! for though I have looked
If ty times at that window since then,
Half hoping to see her once more, yet I know
She never can come back again.

And—it may be foolish—but all through the day
I have felt—and I knew that I should—
Just as if I had killed her, that dear baby girl,
In the little white ulster and hood.

—Carrie W. Bronson in Youth's Companion.

THE TALKING CHIP.

John Williams, a missionary to the South Sea Islands, was engaged one day hewing timber for a chapel, surrounded by many natives.

"As I had come to work," he says, "without my square, I took up a chip and with a piece of charcoal wrote upon it a request that Mrs. Williams would send me that article. I called a chief and said to him:

"Friend, take this, go to our house and give it to Mrs. Williams."

Giving me one inexpressible look, he said:

"Take that! she will call me a fool and scold me, if I carry a chip to her."

"No," I replied, "she will not; take it and go immediately; I am in haste."

He took it from me and asked, "What must I say?" I replied, "You have nothing to say."

On arriving at the house he gave the chip to Mrs. Williams, who read it, threw it away, and went to the tool-chest whither the chief, resolving to see the end of this mysterious business, followed her closely. On receiving the square from her he said:

"Say, daughter, how do you know that this is what Mr. Williams wants?"

"Why," she replied, "did you not bring me a chip juit now?"

"Yes," said the astonished warrior, "but I did not hear it say anything."

"If you did not, I did," was the reply; "for it told me what he wanted. And all you have to do is to return with it as quickly as possible."

With this the chief leaped out of the house, and catching up the mysterious piece of wood, he ran through the settlement with the chip in one hand and the square in the other, holding them up as high as his arms would reach, and shouting as he went, "See the wisdom of these English people! They can make chips talk! they can make chips talk!"

On giving me the square he wished to know how it was possible thus to converse with people at a distance. I gave him all the information I could; but it was to him such a mystery that he actually tied a string to the chip, hung it around his neck and wore it for some time. For several days after we frequently saw him surrounded by a crowd, who were listening with intense interest, while he told them of the wonders which the chip had performed.

That place is now a Christian land. It has its churches and Christian schools, and is governed wisely and well by "Isaia," a native chief. He never forgets in his laws and plans for the good of the people, that "righteousness exalteth a nation."—Selected.

SAYING AMEN TO JESUS.

"Lionel, get your Bible and card, and read your scripture portion," called mother, as she drew her work-table closer to her side, and turned up the lamp.

"All right, mother," said Lionel, although he was deep in an interesting book; and taking his Bible from his drawer, and seating himself by his mother's side, he commenced reading aloud to her. And then they had one of their pleasant talks together—talks which seemed to Lionel to bring God and Christ and heaven so very near to him, and to help him to understand how it was his mother's face looked always calm and sweet and beautiful.

By-and-by they got to talking about faith, and mother asked Lionel what faith was. Lionel thought gravely for a time, and then said:

"Of course, mother, it is the same as 'believing' and 'trusting.' I wish you would put it a little plainer, though, for sometimes I get so puzzled over the words and think—and think—until I hardly know whether I do or do not believe in Jesus."

"A little child once defined faith as 'just saying amen to Jesus,' Lionel," answered his mother, watching him with her tenderest smile, "and I think it was a very plain way of putting it. When Jesus hung on the cross for our sins, he said, 'It is finished.' You and I who believe he died there for our sins, say 'amen' to that. God raised him from the dead, and tells us he is well pleased with all who look to his son for salvation. Let us say 'amen' to that. He tells there is 'no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus,' and we gladly answer 'Amen.' It does not matter whether he bids us take up the cross or share his joy—whether he bids us follow him on earth, or serve him in heaven—whatever he says to us 'amen' to. It seems to me that our lives ought to be one long 'amen' to all God's promises."

"I like that thought, mother," said Lionel. "It is easy to say 'amen' to all God's love, but not so easy to say 'amen' to all God's will, I think."

"You are right, my boy, and now run off to bed."

"Oh! wait a bit, mother; it's only nine, and I'm not a bit tired," urged the boy.

"My darling," said his mother, as she closed his book and kissed his brow, "God's will for you is obedience to your mother's wishes. I know you don't always find it easy to say 'amen' to them, but try to do so cheerfully and willingly."

"Mother, you've caught me," cried Lionel, as he threw his arms around her neck for a good-night kiss, "but I'll really try."

Young reader, have you said "amen" to the call and promise of Jesus? Have you heard his voice saying, "Come unto me," and have you said—"Lord, I come?"

And if you have come to him, is your life saying "amen" to his will, however that will crosses your plans and pleasures and wishes.—Episcopal Recorder.

WHERE METEORS COME FROM.

If, about 200 years ago, a witness had stated that he had seen a witch at midnight riding through the air on a broomstick, he would have been believed; but if he had stated that he heard a loud explosion, and found a large hole in the ground, and, thrusting his hand in, had found a stone which was warm, his veracity would have been doubted. Meteors must have fallen in olden times, but it is only in later days that these cases have ceen reported. Until 1794 it was the belief that meteors were visitations from God. A Danish astronomer was the first to write on this subject. Pallas found a meteor which the former examined, and recognized its true character, being a composition of iron and nickel. In 1883 a large shower fell in Normandy, which was of meteoric origin. A Hindoo claimed that a meteor followed him for two hours before it fell to the earth. The most celebrated one fell in 1492, in Alsace, and it was hung for three centuries in a cathedral. It weighed 230 pounds and fell with the sound of a clap of thunder. It penetrated the earth six feet. The best known meteor is one of 1874, which fell in Wolverhampton, England. A farmer saw a hole in the ground and an examination showed the ground to be warm, and a meteor was finally unearthed which weighed 700 pounds. Being polished, it resembles polished iron, and is now stored in the British Museum. In falling, meteors start from above the atmosphere, where there is very little resistance, and come down with a velocity twenty times greater than that of a bullet. Coming in contact with the atmosphere great heat is generated and the meteor is broken in pieces. The most common meteors are stones, and cannot be found because they resemble stones on the earth's surface. In Siberia and South America the most are found. Where they come from has caused much discussion. One theoey is that meteors originally came from the earth, and were due to stupenduous volcanic eruptions of ages gone, when the meteors were thrown beyond the attraction of the earth and sent revolving around the sun. When the earth in its orbit comes near one of these wandering meteors it attracts it, and it plunges into the earth. Any stone thrown at the rate of six miles a second would not return to the earth again, but would be thrown outside of attractive power. Every one of these must in time enter the orbit of the earth and must, of course, return to it.—Prof. Ball.

TEMPERANCE.

RUM-BOUGHT GEWGAWS.

I have a loathing, I have a thorough disgust for the gewgaws of rum-bought wealth. When I get into the horse-cars and smell the foul stench of liquor, when I get into the streets and find the same, I see behind me that brown-stone mansion on our Neck, built of rum, and behind that again I see the pallid faces, shivering forms, and fluttering rags of a numberless host. And I would have had one of the daughters of the owner of that mansion stand by at the door, and watch her father's victims as they march into the dock of the police court every day. I would take another child, and the police should lead her through all the dark alleys and passages where broken-hearted mothers, and children without parents or food, attest to the manner in which her parent made his money. Intemperance cannot be cured by legislations or by sermons. The rumseller is the root of all evil, and until it is made a crime to sell intoxicating beverages, intemperance will continue to exist.—Wendell Phillips.

PHYSICAL EVILS OF TOBACCO.

Tobacco contains an essential oil, and nicotine, both of which are highly poisonous.

Tobacco, when first smoked, chewed, or snuffed, deranges the whole system.

Tobacco by perverting the nourishment saliva, prevents the due elaboration of chyle and blood.

Tobacco exerts a special influence on the brain and nervous system generally.

Tobacco by weakening the nerves, produces morbid excitability and irritability.

Tobacco impairs the senses of smelling and tasting, and often of hearing and seeing.

Tobocco seriously affects the action of the heart and circulation of the blood.

Tobacco mars beauty, destroys the complexion and impairs the brilliancy of the eyes.

Tobacco smoke in confined rooms is very injurious to sickly women and children.

Tobacco consumers are more liable to disease than if they were in a natural condition.

Tobacco weakens the constitution, and renders recovery from sickness a greater difficulty.

MARRYING A MAN TO SAVE HIM.

The woman who marries a man to get rid of him, is a fit companion for her who marries a drunkard to reform him. All sorts of promises are made by men when drunk or in love; for in love and war everything is counted fair. But she who trusts in the promises made under the excitement of such circumstances only prepares herself for disappointment; and the man who promises to reform on condition that a woman will marry him, can never be depended on. He who will not reform his life out of love to his father and his mother, his brothers and his sisters, his soul and his God, will not be likely to change his course on account of the love of a young girl whose acquaintance he has just made. She will find when too late, that the poorest possible way to reform a man is to marry him. She has far more power over him before marriage than she is ever likely to have afterward.

To plunge into matrimony expecting to rescue a husband from strong drink, would be as rash as to plunge into a whirlpool in the hope of rescuing a madman. A man who cannot control himself is not likely to be controlled by a wife; and what true woman wishes to marry a man whom she is to rule and control? This is not the divine order. A man who is a man is not likely to be controlled by a wife, and a man who is not a man is still more difficult to manage, unless he becomes imbecile; and what woman wants to spend her life quarreling with a brute, watching over a fool, or bringing up a drunkard's idiotic offspring?—Safeguard.

THE CHURCHES.

—Rev. J. C. Elliott, pastor of the United Presbyterian church at Swanwick, Ill., received a considerable addition to his membership at a late communion. Mr. Elliott was president of the Illinois Christian Association two years ago.

—Rev. T. H. Hanna, of the First United Presbyterian church of Monmouth, would probably be attending and addressing the Illinois State meeting this week but for the preparations for communion season next Lord's day in his church.

—At a recent communion in the Second United Presbyterian church, Washington, Iowa, Rev. J. R. Logue, pastor, sixteen were added to the membership. Rev. J. C. McKelvey, of Morning Sun, assisted in the service. The meetings, in connection with the communion, were continued for several days.

—Rev. David Gregg, pastor of Third New York Reformed Presbyterian church, has been called by the Pittsburgh congregation to become the successor of their late pastor, Dr. A. M. Milligan, and has accepted the call.

—Rev. A. T. McDill, late associate editor of the Christian Instructor, has removed to Denver, Col., on account of the health of his family, and has formed a connection with a daily newspaper of that city.

—Basil Stephanoff, the young Macedonian who was studying two years since in Evanston Theological Seminary, is visiting different places as an evangelist, and was lately at Grand Rapids, Michigan. He desires to return to his own country, to preach the Gospel, as soon as possible.

—Bro. Palmer, a student of Oberlin and the Chicago Theological Seminaries, having completed his course, is now pursuing medical studies with Dr. A. H. Hiatt, of this city, in preparation for the missionary work in India. He expects to go out under the Faith Missionary Society of Oberlin, of which Rev. George Clark is president, and Dea. O. M. Brown, secretary. Bro. Palmer is the son of an old Wesleyan local preacher of Illinois, and is thoroughly in sympathy with the reform against the lodge.

—Mrs. S. I. Clemans, wife of the Rev. F. M. Clemans, of the Cincinnati Methodist Conference, met her death recently under peculiar circumstances. A meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was held at her home, and while she was kneeling in prayer she received a stroke of paralysis which caused her death.

—Rev. W. F. Manley, pastor of the First Free Methodist church in this city, reports a number of conversions in the church of late.

—Brethren Agnew and Kelley, missionaries at Inhambane, southeastern Africa, wrote during the last of September to the Free Methodist of their health, house building, and anxiety to begin publishing the Gospel among the throngs of natives about them. They are much interested in the native people and are in fair health, though somewhat troubled with the African fever.

—A Chicago correspondent of the Temperance Reformer of Elgin, Ill., thus notices the mission work in the N. C. A. building: "At number 221 W. Madison St., the mission started by Bro. Loveless and Dr. Walker, the audience is continually increasing. Seekers every night, and God is saving their souls constantly. People come from Wheaton there to confess their sins and seek forgiveness, and exclaim, Did you ever see anything like it! Over seventy souls professed to be saved there in one month. They had visits from Christian workers there last week from Elgin, Wheaton, Washington City, and other places. How beautiful are those that bring glad tidings of great joy to all the people."

—The Gospel Messenger (German Baptist of Huntingdon, Pa.,) says last week: "D. L. Moody is holding a three days' meeting in Altoona, Pa. A number are up from this place, and they report very large meetings. As there is no house in the city large enough to accommodate the vast assemblage, overflow meetings are held in adjoining churches, which are presided over by Sankey and other prominent ministers. What the result of these meetings will be we know not, neither shall we guess at it, but may we not hope that every work that lessens the works of sin and leads men towards the good, will be owned by Him who hath said, 'He that is not against me is for me?' The world needs to be led up higher before it can accept Christ, and he who does the leading is a fellow-helper to the one who receives. Breaking up, fertilizing and cultivating are all essential to a profitable sowing."

—A large portion of our readers, says the Christian Statesman, will hear with the profoundest sorrow that A. J. Dodds, M. D., medical missionary at Latakia, Syria, who sailed from Liverpool on his return to his field of labor on the steamer Sidon, appears to have been lost at sea in the wreck of that vessel, which occurred fifty miles off Corunna, Spain, on the 27th of October. It has been hoped until this date that Dr. Dodds was among the saved, but a cablegram just received overthrows this hope. Dr. Dodds was the son of the Rev. R. J. Dodds, D. D., one of the pioneer American missionaries to Syria, who went to that country in 1856. The son inherited the father's intellectual acumen as well as his missionary zeal, and had already established himself firmly in the confidence and affection of the people of Latakia. His death is a severe blow to what has been one of the best manned and most successful missions in the Turkish Empire. It is under the care of the Reformed Presbyterian (Covenanter) church. This mysterious dispensation of Providence will be felt, as former similar events have been, as a solemn call to increased diligence and prayer for the salvation of a land which grows more sacred and more dear as more and more precious lives are given for its redemption.

—The Sunday school of Surry Chapel, London, established by Rowland Hill in 1785, celebrated its centennial October 26. It has 700 scholars and 70 teachers, and 25,000 children have been members.

—Mr. Spurgeon's church, among its many other works of benevolence, carries on an effective system of colportage. During the last year its sales of Bibles, religious books, and magazines amounted to nearly $45,000. It employs 78 men who visit more than 1,500 towns and villages.

—The Rev. Mr. Grenfell, of the English Baptist Society, reports the exploration made by him of the Mobangi river, which enters the Congo a little southward of the point where the great river crosses the equator. The Mobangi was not explored by Mr. Stanley, though it comes from a region which is now a blank on our African maps. Mr. Grenfell ascended the river over three hundred miles, finding it a most magnificent stream, full of islands, its banks more densely populated than any section of the Congo of equal extent. The journey was made in the missionary steamer, the Peace.

—The Moravian missionaries who sailed from San Fransisco for Alaska, May 18th, Rev. W. H. Wineland and Rev. J. H. Kilbuck, after a voyage of twenty-six days, anchored in Behring Sea, near where they expect to begin missionary operations among the Esquimaux. The first news from these Alaska missionaries shows that they have entered a needy, but promising field for work.

—Several instances of rare kindliness toward Christian missionaries from enemies of their religion are recorded by the Missionary Review. A Buddhist in Ceylon has given 2,000 bricks for a new Wesleyan chapel. Another Singalese has given the land and 100 rupes for another chapel. Mohammedans in West Africa have placed their mosque at the service of Christian missionaries who preach the Gospel there.

MOODY AT CAMBRIDGE AND OXFORD.

The Christian Intelligencer gives a graphic account of Mr. Moody's work in these old time-honored universities; and never since rulers, elders, and scribes took knowledge of Peter and John, ignorant and unlearned men, and "perceived that they had been with Jesus," was there a more marked triumph of Gospel truth amid the pride of learning and authority. We subjoin extracts:

"The fifth of November, 1882, was the date of Mr. Moody's first appearance at Cambridge. This was the day consecrated to the free fight between the students and the citizens, known as 'town and gown.' Fifteen hundred attended Mr. Moody's meeting, partly from curiosity and chiefly with the purpose of putting him down. Everything he said was greeted with uproarious applause, so that scarcely anything could be heard. The meeting was 'upset.' The attempt to gain a hearing was persevered in, accompanied by much prayer, and by Friday night the audience were so quiet that a whisper could be heard. The most remarkable conversions followed, both as to the kind of men reached and the profound change which took place in them. Precisely the same thing occurred at Oxford. Among the converts were eight of the most prominent athletes, including the captain of the university eleven and the 'stroke' of the university boat crew. The movement was merely started by Mr. Moody. The young men carried it forward with growing power, a power which is active to this day. Mr. Studd's brother and Stanley Smith, who I understood him to say was the leading cricketer of England, were especially energetic and successful."

THE CHRISTIAN MISSION "for evangelizing the lost in city and wilderness," conducted by Wm. F. Davis, of Chelsea, Mass., has issued its semi-annual report, April to September, 1885. Bro. Davis was arrested last summer along with H. L. Hastings, Dr. Gordon and others for reading the Bible and preaching on Boston Common. He alludes to this in the extract from the report below:

"During the past six months the work of the Christian Mission has been carried on chiefly in Massachusetts and Michigan. In Massachusetts it has been my joy to preach the glorious Gospel of Jesus Christ out of doors and in doors in Boston, Dedham, Weymouth, Saxonville, Chelsea, Melrose and Stoneham. Every Lord's day except three since the tenth day of the fifth month of this year, I have preached an incarnate, crucified, risen, ascended and glorified Redeemer to large congregations of people of many nations and classes on Boston Common. At these meetings many have signified their acceptance of Christ as their Saviour. Anti-Christ has attempted to put an end to the free public preaching of the Gospel in Boston through the agency of the police and criminal courts, but the Word of God has not yet been bound.

"The Supreme Court of Massachusetts is expected in November to render an opinion as to whether the Massachusetts Bill of Rights guaranteeing the largest religious liberty to citizens can be nullified by a city by-law. If Boston can compel all the ministers of Christ within her borders to wear a gag in public, which may only be taken off by a special permit from a committee of three, whose chairman is a wholesale and retail liquor dealer, no doubt our Lord's enemies in the rest of the world will avail themselves of this Boston notion to be speedily rid of those Christian missionaries who go hither and thither, turning the world upside down.

"Frequent letters from the little band of missionaries in East Saginaw speak of the spiritual blessing which they have received in their testimony to Jesus. * * * But though some of us have been assaulted in our persons for Christ's sake, none of us have as yet resisted unto blood, striving against sin. We understand perfectly well that since we are in the world so as he was, the reproaches of those that reproach Christ must fall on us. How can the disciple be above his Master? How can the servant be above his Lord? It is sufficient for us to be in this world, as our only Lord and Master was in this world. The sneers, contempt, and false accusations of money-loving, lodge-worshiping, alcohol-drinking, tobacco-smoking, card-playing, theatre and rink-frequenting, harlot-embracing, Sabbath-desecrating, Christ-denying church members, non-church members, and open infidels, we wear as our daily garments and garlands, often made up anew from the same old stock of utter fleshliness, selfishness, and hatred against God and his people."

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE-STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year. clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Until January next we will send five sample copies of the Cynosure to one address for TEN CENTS! Has the Cynosure been a household blessing to you? then we want you to help us make it such to your relatives, friends and neighbors. We are dependent on your good will, good word and good work for that which will make this paper what you wish it to be, and give it the circulation you wish it to have. How many homes will you introduce the Cynosure into in the next two months?

☞The above is not clearly understood by some. Just five sample copies of the Cynosure, and no more, will be sent to one address for ten cents. This offer will be continued until January.

DR. HIATT who first introduced Compound Oxygen in this city, is having wonderful success in the treatment of Lung, Nervous, and Chronic diseases, curing many cases which had been tried and pronounced incurable by the old methods. Notable among these are Asthma, Catarrh, Consumption, Neuralgia, and Debility. Dr. Hiatt sends his "Home Treatment" safely all distances. Correspond with him before giving up in despair. His address is Central Music Hall, Chicago, Ill.

American Triumph at the London Inventions Exhibition.

The MASON and HAMLIN ORGAN and PIANO CO. have just received a cable despatch from their London Agents, Messrs. Metzler & Co., announcing that the only gold medal for Cabinet or Reed Organs has been awarded their instruments. This seems to be a fitting climax to the uniformly highest awards at all Great World's Exhibitions which this famous Organ Firm has received during the past nineteen years.

Interesting Newspaper Statistics.

Of the statistics of all the departments of the Census Bureau none is more valuable and interesting than that which collects the data of the press of our country.

As the reports of the Census Bureau are issued but once in ten years, it can be readily seen that if we were obliged to depend on them alone, we would lose much valuable information and time, and would only receive our information after it had become almost useless by its age. Thanks to private enterprise and capital, however, we are able to keep ourselves posted from year to year on the data of the press throughout the country. Of these private enterprises none is more relied upon or of more value than that of EDWIN ALDEN & BRO'S. American News paper Catalogue which is published each year by that puishing firm of Advertising Agents, at Cincinnati.

Are You Going to New Orleans or Florida?

If so, you can go via the MONON ROUTE via Louisville or Cincinnati, and see the Mammoth Cave, Nasbville, Blount Springs, Birmingham, Montgomery, Mobile and the Gulf coast for the same money that will take you through the dreary, uninhabited Mississippi swamps. We are confident you cannot select a line to the South enjoying half the advantages that are possessed by the Monon Route and its Southern connections.

No one should think of going South without visiting the Mammoth Cave, the great natural wonder of this continent. So much has been written of this world-famous wonder that it is impossible to say anything new in regard to it. It cannot be described; its caverns must be explored, its darkness felt, its beauties seen, to be appreciated or realized. It is the greatest natural curiosity—Niagara not excepted—and he whose expectations are not satisfied by its marvelous avenues, domes and starry grottos, must either be a fool or a demi-god. From Mobile to New Orleans (141 miles) the ride along the Gulf coast is alone worth the cost of the whole trip. In full sight of the Gulf all the way, past Ocean Springs, Mississippi City, Pass Christian, Bay St. Louis, and Beauvoir, the home of Jeff Davis.

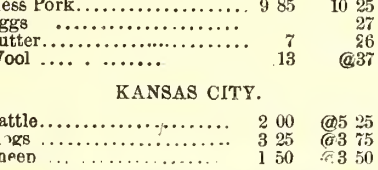
When you decide to go South, make up your mind to travel over the line that passes through the best country and gives you the best places to stop over. This is emphatically the MONON ROUTE, in connection with the Louisville & Nashville and Cincinnati Southern Railways, Pullman Palace Sleepers, Palace Coaches, and double daily trains. The best to Cincinnati, Louisville, New Orleans or Florida. For full information, descriptive books, pamphlets, etc, address E. O. MCCORMICK, General Northern Passenger Agent, Monon Route, 122 E. Randolph st eet, Chicago, or WM. S. BALDWIN, General Passenger Agent, 183 Dearborn street, Chicago.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2	83⅛	@84¼
No. 3		69
Winter No 2	92½	96
Corn—No. 2		@41
Oats—No. 2		28⅛
Rye—No. 2		62
Bran per ton		12 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@11 50
Mess pork per hbl	8 80	9 87½
Butter, medium to best	11	@25
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 45	@1 67
Flax	1 08	1 12
Broom corn	03½	@ 07
Potatoes	50	@ 60
Hides—Green to dry flint	06½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 15	@5 65
Common to good	2 00	@4 70
Hogs	2 50	@3 85
Sheep	2 00	@3 00

NEW YORK.



Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	96	@ 97
Spring		94
Corn	50	@56
Oats	37	@44
Mess Pork	9 85	10 25
Eggs		27
Butter	7	26
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@5 25
Hogs	3 25	@3 75
Sheep	1 50	@3 50

WEBSTER

In various Styles of Binding, with and without Patent Index.

JUST ADDED
A NEW PRONOUNCING
GAZETTEER
OF THE WORLD,
Containing over 25,000 Titles, describing the Countries, Cities, Towns, and Natural Features of every part of the Globe.

GET THE BEST Holiday Gift

Webster—it has 118,000 Words, 3000 Engravings, and a New Biographical Dictionary.
Standard in Gov't Printing Office. 32,000 copies in Public Schools. Sale 20 to 1 of any other series.

It is an invaluable companion in every School, and at every Fireside.
G. & C. MERRIAM & CO., Pub'rs, Springfield, Mass.

NOTES BY "C. H. M."

Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Duteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books:

Some years since I had my attention called to C. H. M.'s notes, and was so much pleased and at the same time profited by the way they open up Scripture truths, that I secured at once all the writings of the same author, and if they could not be replaced would rather part with my entire library, excepting my Bible, than with these writings. They have been to me a very key to the Scripture.

D. L. MOODY.

Mr. D. W. Whittle says:

Under God they have blessed me more than any books, outside the Bible itself, that I have ever read, and have led me to a love of the Bible that is proving.

The Notes on each book are complete in one volume and are most precious and edifying expositions.

A new edition printed from new plates, handsomely bound in cloth, with red stamp Price postpaid to any address, 75 cents per volume; $3.25 per set of five volumes.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

PHYSIOLOGY of Woman, The.—Embracing girlhood, maternity, and mature age, with lectures on "Co Education of the Sexes in Medicine," "The Physiological Basis of Education," "Temperance from a Physician's Point of View," "A Plea for Moderation," by SARAH HACKETT STEVENSON, M. D., Adjunct Professor of Obstetrics, and late Professor of Physiology in the Woman's Medical College of Chicago.

This is an ably written volume of 230 pages, and, as indicated by its title and name of its distinguished author, is eminently a Woman's Book for Woman. The author says in her introduction: "This is not in any seuse a medical book. Medicine is not and never can become a popular science I oppose self-prescribing in every form. * * The target at which I have aimed is the false teaching which women have received. * * I believe that no true physician can object to any information these pages seek to impart."

At the solicitation of the publishers, Mrs. Stevenson has prepared "Physiology of Woman." It is published with the hope of saving the women of the future from the penalty of ignorance concerning themselves—a penalty which untold thousands are suffering Price, in fine English cloth, postpaid, $1.50. ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 LaSalle st., Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Best Commentary
IS
JAMIESON, FAUSSET & BROWN'S

In four large 12mo. volumes of about 1,000 pages each. Two volumes for the Old Testament and Two for the New. It is printed from new electrotype plates, on type of good size, distinct, clear and easy to read.

This Commentary has now become a standard work on both sides of the Atlantic, and is much sought after by students of the Bible.

The unqualified commendation of this Commentary, from the highest sources, has given it a position in the religious world superior to that of any other similar work. It will soon be universally adopted by Association workers, Sabbath-school teachers and Bible readers generally, to whom its use has now become indispensable.

From a host of testimonials we cull the following:

REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

I think it the best Commentary upon the whole Bible which has been issued within the last fifty years, and I should be very sorry to be deprived of the pleasure of consulting it.

REV. STUART ROBINSON, D. D., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Having for more than twenty years been myself engaged in the popular exposition of the Scriptures from the pulpit, every Sabbath evening—and, of course, availing myself of all the aids within my reach—I have met with none among them which so well accomplishes the great end of a popular exposition—viz.: to show the people in the fewest words, how to read the Bible for themselves, as the very comprehensive Commentary of Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. J. H. VINCENT, D. D., EDITOR S. S. JOURNAL.

The best condensed Commentary on the whole Bible is the Commentary on the Old and New Testament by Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. JAS. M'COSH, D. D., PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON COLLEGE.

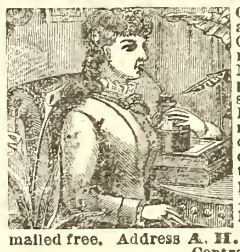
It is the work of highly competent scholars, who have succeeded in bringing out the mind of the Spirit as revealed in the Scriptures. It is clear, brief, judicious and eminently fitted to be useful alike to pastor and people.

Sent free to any address on receipt of price. 4 vo s. handsomely bound in cloth, $8.00; half morocco, $10.00.
ARCADE PUB. CO., 147 LaSalle St., Chicago.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM ILLUSTRATED.

A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery, comprising the degrees of Royal Master, Select Master, Super-Excellent Master, Knight of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00; $8.50 per dozen. Paper covers, 50c; $4.00 per dozen. Furnished in any quantities at

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART."
AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A
"NUT-SHELL."



SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc, of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.

For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Established 35 years.
Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by all. Send for University Journal and full particulars free.
TROOP, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

To introduce our New Catalogue of rare and curious Novelties we will GIVE AWAY 4000 sets of elegant gold edged Christmas cards Send 3 one cent stamps for postage and write at once to World M'f'g Co. P.O. Box 2633 N.Y. City

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.
BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

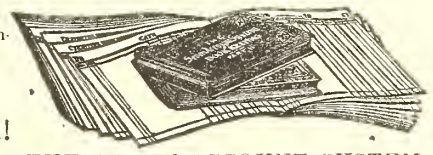
$5.45 FOR 27c. Any one sending us 27 cents, and the address of 10 of their friends, will receive, by mail, Staple Goods, no receipts, trash or jewelry, but goods that retail for $5.45 This is a genuine offer and a fortune to you. Certain Satisfaction.
Niagara Supply Co., Drawer 168, BUFFALO, N. Y.

Free Perfumery An elegant sample casket of perfumery will be sent to you for 6c in stamps (to cover postage and packing). A harvest for agts. World Mfg. Co. P. O. box 2633, N. Y. city.

ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy. Sold under POSITIVE GUARANTY. Sample FREE.
L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.



CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—
Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.
SING THEM!
HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.
Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

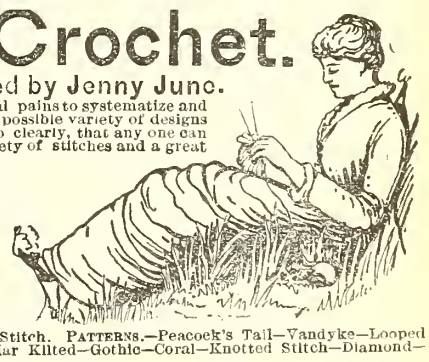
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treatise on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING,
SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price, 25c per copy.



A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited, $50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

Knitting & Crochet.

Edited by Jenny June.

Knitting and Crochet.—A guide to the use of the Needle and the Hook. In arranging this work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over 200 Illustrations.

The knitting stitches illustrated and described are: To Cast On with One and Two Needles—To Narrow—To Widen—To Purl—To Cast Off—To Slip a Stitch—Round Knitting—To Join Together—Edge Stitch. PATTERNS.—Peacock's Tail—Vandyke—Looped Knitting—Cane Work—Leaf and Trellis—Triangular Kilted—Gothic—Coral—Knotted Stitch—Diamond—Wave—Cable Twist—Scales, etc.

MACRAME STITCHES.—Solomon's Knot—Simple Chain—Spiral Cord—Waved Bar—Spherical Knot—Slanting Rib—Open Knotting—Picot Heading—Cross Knot—Fringe—Tassels, etc.

CROCHET STITCHES.—Chain Stitch—Single Crochet—Double Crochet—Half Treble—Treble—Double Treble—Cross Treble—Slip Stitch—Tricot—Muscovite Tricot—Shell Patterns—Basket Pattern—Raised Spot Stitch—Ring Stitch—Hair Pin Crochet—Crochet Lace, etc.

DESIGNS AND DIRECTIONS are given to Knit and Crochet—Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.
147 La Salle st., Chicago

AGENTS WANTED—STOCK-DOCTOR
FOR THE PICTORIAL COMPLETE
Embracing Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees and Dogs. By Hon. J. Periam and Dr. A. H. Baker, V. S. Covers every subject pertaining to Stock of Farm both in Health and Disease. Two charts for telling ages of Horses and Cattle; 720 Engravings and 14 Colored Plates. Farmers clear $100 a month. ACT NOW! Exclusive Territory. Book absolutely without competition. For confidential terms and "Extracts from Agents' Reports," etc., address
N. D. THOMPSON PUB. CO., St. Louis, Mo., or New York.

HOME AND HEALTH.

BATHING IN WARM WATER.—Cleanliness is not only essential to good health but it is a mark of good breading. The laborer in the field by the clinging of dust to his perspiring person becomes a fit subject for the bath-tub very frequently, and by all means should take at least twice a week a plunge in pure, soft water, using Castile soap and wiping dry with a crash towel. Too frequent bathing is weskening; we would not advise morning and evening baths, as some of the medical journals do, but a good washing, frequently enough to keep the person clean. Warm baths are often the best remedies that can be used as they will prevent the most virulent diseases. A person who may be in fear of having received infection of any kind should speedily plunge into a warm bath, suffer perspiration to ensue and then rub dry; dress warmly to guard against taking cold. If the system has imbibed any infectious matter, it will certainly be removed by resorting to this process, if done before the infection has time to spread over the system: and even if some time has elapsed, the drenching perspiration that may be induced by hot water will be very certain to remove it. In cases of congestion, bilious colic, inflammation, etc, there is no remedy more certain to give relief. In cases of obstinate constipation also, wonderful cures have been wrought. For sore throat, dipptheria, and inflammation of the lungs, a hot compress is one of the most potent remedies. —Tribune and Farmer.

NICE BEEF STEW.—To make an appetizing beef stew, take out the bone and bind the pieces of beef tightly, putting a lemon, pared and cut in two, and some herbs in before binding. Place it in as small a stew pan or kettle as will allow of its being covered with water. Let it cook slowly and gently; do not add any water unless absolutely. Slice a large onion and fry it brown, and add to the water also any sliced vegetables you choose, or cook the vegetables in a kettle by themselves and serve on a platter with the beef. If you do not add any water you will have a very rich gravy, and a portion of it may be reserved for soup stock.

HOW TO SWEEP A RAG CARPET.—In sweeping a rag carpet be careful to brush from width. I have often been complimented on the smoothness of my carpets, when in reality they were no smoother than many others. The secret lay in the manner of being swept.

APHORISMS FOR EMERGENCIES.—When dust gets into the eyes avoid rubbing with the finger, but dash cold water into them. Remove cinders with a camel's hair pencil.

When choking from any cause get upon all fours and cough.

Remove water from the ear with warm water. Never use a prob or other hard substance for the ear lest you perforate the drum.

When an artery is severed compress above the spurting surface. Blood from arteries enters the extremities.

If a vein be severed compress below the spurting surface. Blood in veins returns to the heart.

Suck poison wounds unless the mouth is sore.

One in a faint should be laid flat on his back, then loosen his clothes and let him alone.

PUMPKINS FOR INFLAMMATORY RHEUMATISM.—At a meeting of the New York Farmer's Club, a correspondent wrote of the virtues of the pumpkin, giving the following instance of its value for inflammatory rheumatism: A woman's arm was swelled to an enormous size and painfully inflamed. A poultice was made of stewed pumpkins, which was renewed every fifteen minutes, and in a short time produced a perfect cure. The fever drawn out by the poultices made them extremely offensive, as they were taken off. I knew a man cured of severe inflamation of the bowels by the same kind of application.

LEMON FOR A COUGH.—Roast the lemon very carefully without burning it; when it is thoroughly hot, cut and squeeze into a cup upon three ounces of sugar, finely powdered. Take a spoonful whenever your cough troubles you. It is good and agreeable to the taste. Rarely has it been known to fail of giving relief.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

For Overworked Professional Men.

DR. CHAS. T. MITCHELL, Canandaigua, N. Y., says: "I think it is a grand restorer of brain force or nervous energy."

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE

REMEDY

—OF—

SWEET GUM

—AND—

MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr L. A. Sayre, said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. MME. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Proprietor, 48 Bond St., New York. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers throughout the United States, Canadas, and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

HOW PRINTING PAYS

MODEL IMPROVED.

"The Proof of the Pudding," &c. How richly it pays to own a Model Press is shown in a handsome little book, containing several hundred "proofs," from the 15,000 people who have Model Presses. Business men, Clergymen, Teachers, Boys, Girls, persons out of work,—everybody interested. A Press and Outfit complete, from $5.00 to $10.00 and up. Book mailed free. Address,

The Model Press Co., Limited, 912 Arch St., Philadelphia Pa.

ATTENTION!

A Broom Brigade, composed of 16 young ladies of your church, is the most novel, attractive and entertaining exhibition, that can be gotten up with the least work and expense, and is the best medium to raise money to pay for anything connected with the church. After the exhibition the brooms and dust pans can be auctioned off, and have been known to bring from $5 to $18 each because they were carried by young ladies of the congregation whose friends prized them. Easy to learn; get one up in your church. I will send an illustrated book with full directions, for 25c., postpaid, or 16 for $3.50. Embracing School of the Soldier, Manual of the Broom, School of the Company, Instructions for Skirmishing, Silent Manual, etc. It captivates the audience; a very enjoyable entertainment.

Address, Lieut. JOS. H. BARNETT, 162 Clark St., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cures BLOOD Diseases, CANCER, ECZEMA, Salt Rheum, etc., when all other remedies fail.

Send for 20-page descriptive circular and testimonials.

D. NEEDHAM'S SON'S

World renowned Red Clover Blossoms and Fluid and Solid Extracts of the Blossoms, 116 and 118 Dearborn street, Chicago.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND. A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

FREE $2 SAMPLES

fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

"NOTES FOR BIBLE STUDY."

32-PAGE MONTHLY. FIFTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

Commended in the strongest terms by C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Major Whittle, Rev. Dr Brookes, the late Rev. Dr. MacKay, and hundreds of others.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 35 CENTS.

CLUB RATES: To one address (if to separate address, add 3 cents per copy), 6 to 10 copies, each, 30 cents over 10 to 50 copies, each, 25 cents; over 50 copies, each, 20 cents.

P. S.—Parties subscribing now will receive the NOTES until the end of 1886. Address

S. R. BRIGGS, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

BOOKS.

Special list of books at very low prices. These books are second hand and in first-class shape for libraries, good as new:

	Pub. price	Our pr.
American Cyclopedia, 16 vol., cloth..	$80.00	$60.00
People's " 3 " 1-2 mor.	20.00	14.00
Shakespeare, 7 vol., Leipzig ed., 1-2 "	5.25	3.50
Zell's Cyclopedia (condensed), map..	6.50	4.00
Knight's History England 4 vol. cloth	4.00	2.50
Lippincott's Biographical Dictionary map	10.00	5.00
Shakespeare, Handy vol, cloth, 8 vol.	5.00	3.00
Carlyle's Wilhelm Meister, 3 vol. cloth	2.25	1.25
Success with Small Fruits, by E. P. Roe, cloth	5.00	2.50
"All Religions of World," cloth	3.50	1.75
How Women can Make Money, cloth	2.00	.75
Ladies of White House, cloth	3.50	1.25
Middlemarch, Geo Elliott, 2 vol. cloth	3.00	1.50
Art, its Laws and Reason, cloth	3.00	1.25
The Artist and his Mission, cloth	2.00	1.00
Taine's Ideal in Art, cloth	1.50	.75
Harvey's Meditations, cloth	1.50	.75
The Desert of Siam, by Bonar, cloth	1.50	1.00
Taine's English Literature, cloth	3.00	2.00
Ladies Repository bound, half morocco, years 1869, '70, '71, '74, per vol.		1.25
Manual of English Literature, by Arnold, cloth	2.50	1.25
Shaw's American Literature	1.50	.75
The Teachings and Acts of Jesus of Nazareth, by W. C. Dillard, cloth	1.00	.75

Any of the books in this list sent on receipt of price.

ARCADE PUB. CO

145--149 La Salle st., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free. DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

WOMAN OR MAN WANTED TO MAKE 125 Per Cent. PROFIT, taking orders for our celebrated oil portraits. Previous knowledge of the business unnecessary. $2.25 Outfit Free. The agent realizes $86 profit per week on only 4 orders per day. Reilly Bros. & Co., 444 Broome St., N. Y.

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler, $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50. Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

MAGIC LANTERNS

And STEREOPTICONS, all prices. Views illustrating every subject for PUBLIC EXHIBITIONS, etc. A profitable business for a man with small capital. Also Lanterns for Home Amusement. 136 page Catalogue free. McALLISTER, Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

Sibley's Tested Seeds

Catalogue free on application. Send for it. HIRAM SIBLEY & CO., ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

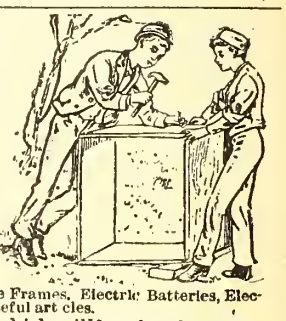
WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

Useful to Every Lady!

Madame Worth's New Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving designs and directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work, and all kinds of Fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 25 Cents.



Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Alphabets, Edgings, Cross Stitch, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool, Applique, Kate Greenaway designs for Doylies, etc. Handkerchief borders, Holbein Work, Java Canvas, Fringes, Toilet Cushions, Foot Stools, Work Baskets, Work Bags, Scrap Baskets, Table-top Patterns, Folding Screens, Sofa Cushions, Slipper Patterns, Wall Pockets, Towel Racks, Tidies, Catchalls, Chair Bolsters, School Bags, Patch Work, Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Bibs, Shoe Bags, Jewel Boxes, Pillow Shams, and many others. Plain Directions with each Design.

This book gives practical directions for making Wax Flowers and Painting on Silk, etc.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion to all who love fancy work. Price, post-paid, only 25 Cents; Five Books for $1.00. Get four friends to send with you, and get your book free. Agents wanted. Address

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle St., Chicago.

Boys' Useful Pastimes.

Boy's Useful Pastimes: Pleasant and profitable amusement for spare hours. By PROF. ROBERT GRIFFITH, A. M. This volume comprises chapters on the use and care of tools, and detailed instruction by means of which boys can make, with their own hands, a large number of toys, household ornaments, scientific appliances, and many pretty, amusing and necessary articles for the play-ground, the home and out of doors. It is bound in showing how to make Boats, Steam Engines, Steamers, Bob-Sleds, Ice-Boats, Windmills, Aquariums, Hand Carts, Tops, Flags, Photograph Camera, Telephone, Telegraph, Microscope, Kaleidoscope, Steam Acrobats, Traps, Dog Houses, Bird Cages, Coons, Dove Cotes, Squirrel Cages, Summer Houses, Fences, Fountains, Furniture, Gymnasium, Step Ladders, Trunks, Nets, Wire Work, Clay Modeling, Brass Work, Picture Frames, Electric Batteries, Electroplating, Electrotyping, Running Mice, Wig-Wags and many other useful art cles.

Handsome Cloth Binding, with 300 Illustrations,

In looking for a book to put into the hands of your boy which will be of real and genuine use, and at the same time a source of healthful entertainment, this is the one you should choose.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

Jenny June's Books for Ladies.

KNITTING AND CROCHET: A Guide to the Use of the Needle and the Hook Edited by JENNY JUNE. In arranging this new work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Knitting, Macramé, and Crochet Work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs and directions are given to Knit and Crochet Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc. etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published. Price, postpaid, 50 cents.

NEEDLE-WORK: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by JENNY JUNE. In this new book an attempt is made to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover and contains

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Needle-work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs in Needle-work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining-Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artists' Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Muffiers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doylies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of Needle-work. Price, postpaid, 50 cents. The two books for 90 cents. Five books for $2.00. Get four friends to send with you and get your book free. Stamps taken. Agents wanted.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

MORE EGGS IN WINTER.

This is the very time when eggs are worth the most, when hens want to lay as much or more than they do at any other time, and when they are not allowed to do so by most poultry keepers. Folks think there is a great mystery about making hens lay in winter. There is none; anybody can do it; that is, the hens will lay if you let them. They bear a good deal of cold in the sunshine, and even freeze their combs and toes, and yet will not stop laying altogether if they can sleep warm. Now do not begin to plan setting up a stove in the hen-house, or introducing steam pipes. Artificial heat is not poisonous perhaps, but very nearly so to chickens. They are warm themselves, and only need to be crowded on their roosts, with the roosts all on a level. The ceiling of the roosting-room should only be a few feet above the fowls' heads, and provided with ventilation from the floor if possible. Give them very close quarters, with no drafts of cold air, and clean out every morning. The combs will then redden up, and eggs will be plenty on less feed than usual. It must not be corn, however, or only a small percentage of it, for this will make them too fat to lay well if they sleep warm.—American Agriculturist.

HEALTH OF HORSES.

The health and comfort of horses have of late years been greatly improved by the better construction of stables. They are made more roomy and lofty, and provided with means of ventilation. In many new stables lofts are done away with, or the floor of the loft is kept well above the horses' heads, and ample shafts are introduced to carry away foul air. By perforated bricks and gratings under the mangers and elsewhere around the walls, and also by windows and ventilators, abundance of pure air is secured for the horses; while, being introduced in moderate amount and from various directions, it comes in without draught. Too much draught is almost an unknown stable luxury. To secure a constant supply of pure air, horses require more cubic space than they generally enjoy. Even when the animals are stabled only at night, a minimum of 1,200 cubic feet should be allowed. In England the newer cavalry barracks give a minimum of 1,500 feet, with a ground area of fully 90 square feet per horse, and the best hunting and carriage horse stables have more room.

HARVESTING PARSNIPS.

Those who harvest their parsnips in the autumn, under the impression that they are in full perfection for the table, labor under a great mistake; and those who gather a portion of them, with the idea that they cannot be dug in winter, are also mistaken. A friend of our, who kept abreast, if not in advance, of the times, has adopted a method of so protecting his parsnips in the autumn that they can be dug at any time during the winter and thus have them fresh as well as well ripened. His plan is to cover the ground where the parsnips grow with a sufficient growth of eel-grass to keep the frost out. In the interior, where eel-grass cannot be obtained, a sufficient quantity of meadow-grass might be used for a protection, or leaves covered with boards could be used; where sawdust could be obtained, it would be a good material, providing it be covered with boards, so as to keep most of the water out. The cost of covering a sufficient quantity for family use would be very slight, and the advantage of being able to obtain fresh parsnips at any time very great. Whenever the frost has been out of the ground in January or February, we have always availed ourselves of the opportunity to dig a few parsnips, and have found them then to be much more delicious than when dug in autumn. Although we have never tried the process of covering, we have no doubt that it will secure roots of a much better flavor than if dug either in the autumn or the spring; for, when dug in the autumn, the roots do not arrive to perfection; and, if not dug until spring, the tops begin to grow, and the fibrous roots start out frequently before the frost is out at the bottom of the roots: but we can readily see that, when well-covered, the roots will be kept back, and thus be in good condition much later in the spring than if not covered.—Mass. Ploughman.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the United States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners..... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,

Toronto Willard Tract Depository,

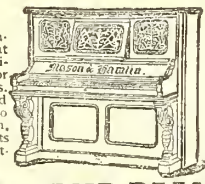
TORONTO, CANADA.

Headquarters for the Northwest FOR

TEMPERANCE PUBLICATIONS.

A Complete Stock of all the NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S Publications.

Catalogue sent free on application.

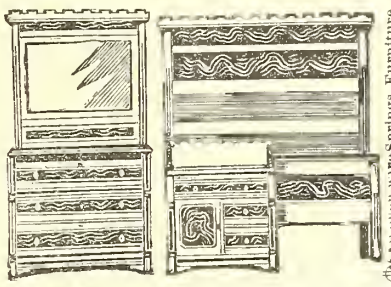


C. H. WHITING,

Publisher and Bookseller,

137 Wabash ave. - - Chicago.

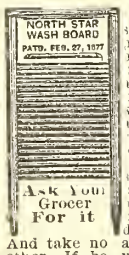
Mason & Hamlin



ORGANS: Highest Honors at all Great World's Exhibitions for eighteen years. One hundred Styles, $22. to $900. For Cash, Easy Payments or Rented. Catalogues free.

PIANOS: New mode of Stringing. Do not require one-quarter as much tuning as Pianos on the prevailing "wrest-pin" system. Remarkable for purity of tone and durability.

ORGAN AND PIANO CO.



154 Tremont St., Boston. 46 E. 14th St. (Union Sq.), N. Y. 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

Covers, Springs, Furniture On easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.

The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

The best is the cheapest.

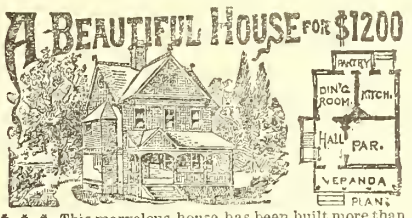
We will forward board on receipt of price.

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

MANUFACTURED BY

PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.

82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill



Advertisers who WISH to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

MISCELLANEOUS.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

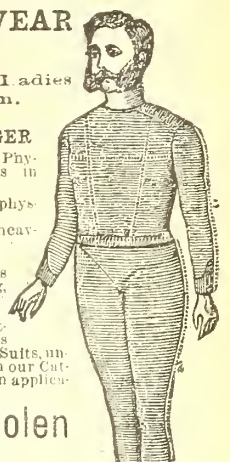
CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

* * * This marvelous house has been built more than 300 times from our plans; it is so well planned that it affords ample room even for a large family. 1st fl or shown above; on 2d floor are 4 bed rooms and in attic 2 more. Plenty of Closets. The whole warmed by one chimney.

Large illustrations and full description of the above as well as of 39 other houses, ranging in cost from $401 p to $6,500, may be found in "SHOPPELL'S MODERN LOW COST HOUSES," a large quarto pamphlet, showing also how to select sites, get loans, &c. Sent postpaid on receipt of 50c. Stamps taken, or send $1 bill and we will return the change. Address, BUILDING PLAN ASSOCIATION (Mention this Paper.) 24 Beekman St., (Box 2702,) N. Y.

MISCELLANEOUS.



HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.

System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health

Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors Shoes for Indoor and Outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.

Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure Special prices ma to clergymen and the workers.

AGENTS WANTED—STOCK-DOCTOR

FOR THE PICTORIAL COMPLETE

Embracing Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees and Dogs. By Hon. J. Periam and Dr. A. H. Baker, V. S. Covers every subject pertaining to Stock of Farm both in Health and Disease. Two charts for telling ages of Horses and Cattle; 720 Engravings and 14 Colored Plates. Farmers clear $100 a month. ACT NOW! Exclusive Territory. Book absolutely without competition. For confidential terms and "Extracts from Agent's Report," etc., address

N. D. THOMPSON PUB. CO., St. Louis, Mo., or New York.

THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF

GEN. U. S. GRANT.

His Early Life, his Military Achievements, his Administration as President, his Political and Business Career, together with his "Tour Around the World." By L. T. REMLAP, author of "Grant's Tour Around the World," "The Home Guide," "The Gospel Awakening," "Chautauqua, Historical and Descriptive," "The Great Redemption," etc., etc.

Contains a full and accurate description of Gen. Grant's early life, habits, cadetship at West Point, his military record in the Mexican War; his private life subsequently; his great military achievements during the Civil War; his political successes and administration as President; his unique and celebrated tour around the world—the receptions tendered him, with addresses of welcome, his replies, his conversations with public men—his political and financial reverses; his distressing sickness, death and funeral obsequies.

Elegantly illustrated; eighty full page and other engravings. Bound in cloth. Sent, post paid, on receipt of price, $1.75. One large octavo volume, 772 pages. Address

THE ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,

145—149 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

NEEDLE WORK

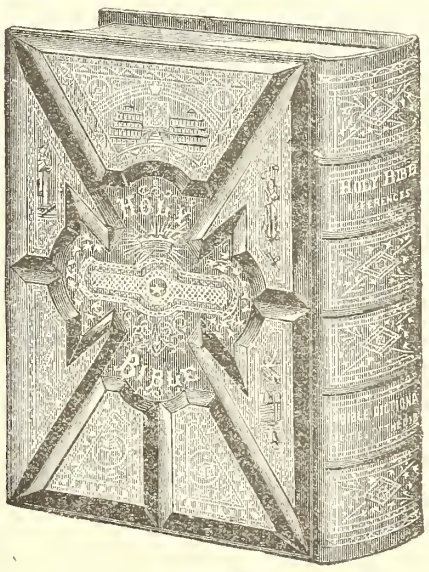
Needle-Work: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by Jenny June

This manual is an attempt to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. When the Angel of Mercy begged that woman might not be created because she would be abused by man, as the stronger, the Lord listened, but felt that he could not give up the whole scheme of creation, so he gave the loving Angel permission to bestow upon her any compensating gift she chose, and the Angel pityingly endowed her with tears and the love of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover, and contains

200 Illustrations

The list of stitches, with illustrations, are: Buttonhole—Hemstitch—Brier Stitch—Crow's Foot—Herring Bone—Fedder Stitch—Two Tie—Three Tie—Drawn Work—Stem Stitch—Twisted Chain or Rope Stitch—Split Stitch—French Knot—Solid Leaf—Satin Stitch—Padding—Darning Stitch—Skeleton Outline—Couching, Kensington, Filling, Coral, Italian, Leviathan and Holbein Stitches—Applique—Interlaced Ground—Weaving Stitch—Gold and Silver Thread—Arrasene Ribbon Work, etc.

Designs in Needle-Work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Covers—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artist Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Mufflers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doilies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers, etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of needle-work.



Large 8vo. paper cover. Mailed free for 50 cents.

Arcade Publishing Company, Chicago, Ill.

SPECIAL OFFER.

PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE,

with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.

A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.

Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.

Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.

Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.

Cities of the Bible with Magnificent Views and Descriptive Scenes and Events in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.

Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible.

A History of all the Existing Religious Denominations.

The History of the Translation of the English Bible.

A Chronological Index to the Holy Bible.

Alphabetical Table of the Proper Names in the Old and New Testament.

A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.

The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.

Scripture Illustrations.

Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.

Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.

Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similies of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.

Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.

A Complete Concordance.

And many other important and useful aids to the study of the Holy Scriptures.

THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING

The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.

Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.

The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.

On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,

147 La Salle St., Chicago.

Miss Flagg's Latest and Best!

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

☐ Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Major J. W. Sparks, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., shipped by express two live possums, which were caught on the battlefield of Murfreesboro, one being presented to the President, and the other to the Assistant Secretary of State Porter for their Thanksgiving dinners.

President Cleveland, late Sunday afternoon, came to the conclusion that it was his duty to remain in Washington, instead of going to the funeral of the late Vice President, as he intended and desired. Messages from Mrs. Hendricks and the urgent advice of many prominent men of both parties led him to this reluctant conclusion.

CHICAGO.

The Union Mutual Insurance Company of Maine, the creditor of the Chicago University, declines the proposition of its trustees to settle all claims for $150,000. The university trustees, it is understood, will accordingly complete the collegiate year at the old stand, but will then abandon that location, seeking a new field and fairer auspices.

Andrew Paxton, agent of the Citizen's League, was brutally assaulted by some roughs as he was emerging from a justice's office, where he had been prosecuting a saloon-keeper for selling liquor to minors.

Leading citizens of Chicago are almost a unit in favor of the project of having a grand world's exposition in Chicago in 1892, and from the enthusiasm shown, there appears little doubt that a strong management will soon have hold of a definite plan of operations which will assure the exposition's being a great success.

COUNTRY.

Vice-President Hendricks died suddenly at his home in Indianapolis Wednesday afternoon, about 5 o'clock. He had only been ill a few hours. His death caused a sensation throughout the country. His physicians say neuralgia of the heart was the immediate cause of death. It was decided to hold the funeral Tuesday at noon, the interment to take place in Crownhill Cemetery. At meetings of Senators and Representatives at Washington special committees were appointed to attend the obsequies.

Unusually heavy snowstorms were reported early last week in sections of Pennsylvania and Maryland. In the Mount Carmel District two feet of snow have fallen, and twenty two inches are reported at Penobscot, near Wilkesbarre. Travel and work in the mining region are impeded, and at Westminster, Md., the snow was six inches deep

Mrs. William Dunlap was convicted Tuesday at Delaware, Ohio, of cruelty toward her step-children, and sentenced to be imprisoned for sixty days, be fed on bread and water, and pay $100 fine. She had suspended a little boy in a deep well by a rope, while she had covered the body of his little sister with soft soap, then placed her under a pump, and scrubbed her with a broom.

The New York and West Shore Road were sold at Newburg Tuesday, to J Pierrepont Morgan, Chauncey M Depew, and Ashbel Green for $22,000,000.

On Wednesday a half-burned, unoccupied, double framed building, in Jersey City, fell and buried in its ruins about a dozen children who were in the place gathering firewood. Nearly all of them managed to get out with bruises, but at least six were crushed beneath the timbers and killed.

Friday night Thomes Stanton, while cooking his supper over a fire on the outskirts of San Bernardino, Cal., was approached by four Indians, who demanded whisky. Having none to give them, he was most unmercifully beaten, then held over his fire and roasted alive. His legs were burnt to a crisp, and he cannot live. The Indians will by lynched if discovered.

FOREIGN.

Telegrams have just been received here from Calcutta announcing the breaking out of a rebellion at Nepaul. The Premier has been murdered and the Maharajah of the province has been taken prisoner.

The execution of the eight Indians found guilty of murder at Frog Lake and Battleford, during the Riel rebellion in North West Territory, occurred at the hour appointed Friday morning.

King Alfonso of Spain died Wednesday morning of consumption. The Queen was appointed regent at a meeting of the cabinet.

The Carlist chiefs in Paris have received a number of telegrams from Don Carlos. The dispatches indicate that Don Carlos expects a Republican uprising in Spain as the outcome of the death of King Alfonso, and that he believes the army will suppress the rising and rally to his support.

The steamship City of Pekin, arrived at San Francisco, brings advices that the steamer Greyhound, trading between Hong Kong and Pakhoi, started from Hong Kong Oct. 17th with 110 passengers and a general cargo. About seventy miles from that port about forty apparently innocent passengers suddenly opened fire on the crew. The captain was killed and the crew were battened down in the hold. The pirates held the vessel nine hours and escaped with $10,000 in plunder.

The Pall Mall Gazette analyses of election returns in England, show a Conservative gain of 80, against a Liberal gain of 36. The political situation indicates that the Conservatives will remain in power. It now seems impossible for Mr. Gladstone's party to secure that majority of members in the next Parliament which Lord Salisbury has declared necessary to prove that the British people desire a change in the government.

Vienna dispatches state that the Bulgarian garrison at Widdin made a sortie, but were repulsed after desperate fighting. The slaughter on both sides was heavy. Reports from Prince Alexander's headquarters, received at Sofia, state that the Bulgarians continue their forward movement. A severe battle was fought at Pirot, in which the Bulgarians forced the Servians to retire at the point of the bayonet, and captured that town. A London dispatch from Belgrade says that an armistice between Servia and Bulgaria was concluded at 3:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The cessation of hostilities was brought about by the Austro-Hungarian Minister at Belgrade.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Invaluable to Every Lady!

The Ladies' Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving plain directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work and all kinds of fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed on fine tinted paper, has a handsome cover, and contains over 500 Illustrations, Price only 50 cents!

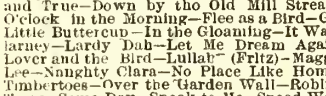
Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Knit Edgings, Cross Stitch Patterns, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool designs, Applique designs, Kate Greenaway designs for Doyleys, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Macramc Lace work, Holbeim work, Java Canvas work, Worsted Fringes, Turkish Rugs, Toilet Cushions, Footstools, Hat Racks, Pin Cushions, Ottomans, Work Baskets, Pen Wipers, Bed-Quilts, Lambrequins, Work Bags, Book Covers, Wood Boxes, Door Panels, Scrap Baskets, Sofa Coverlets, Toilet Bottle Cases, Table Top Patterns, Folding Screens, Church Font Decorations, Sofa Cushions, Music Portfolios, Slipper Patterns, Persian Rugs, Wall Pockets, Carriage Rugs, Chair back Covers, Towel Racks, Perfume Sachets, Tidy Designs, Flower Pot Covers, Lamp Shades, Needle Cases, Watch Cases, Fancy Work Bags, Catch-alls, Match Safes, Eye Glass Pockets, Collar Boxes, Chair Bolsters, Umbrella Cases, School Bags, Patch-work Designs, Coin Purses, Designs for Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Commodes, Bibs, Glove Cases, Air Castles, Gypsey Tables, Hair Receivers, Paper Weights, Table Mats, Night-dress Cases, Shoe Bags, Needle Books, Jewel Boxes, Door Mats, Knitted Jackets, Bottle Cases, Paper Racks Pillow Shams Hair Pin Holders, Floss Winders, Mosaic Window Shades, Book Marks, and every design in fancy work a lady can desire, to the number of over 400.



Every lady will find this book a useful companion and invaluable to all who love fancy work. Plain directions with each design.

Jenny June in her preface to this book, says: "The present volume does not pretend to furnish the theory or practice of the highest Needle work art, but it does aim to supply within its compass a greater variety of excellent designs—every one of which is useful for dress or household decoration—than have ever before been gathered within the leaves of one manual."

Large quarto, paper cover mailed free for 50 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

Burt's Selected Gems of Song.

A choice collection of SIXTY-TWO FAVORITE SONGS, from the works of the BEST COMPOSERS, with accompaniments for PIANO and ORGAN. The titles of the songs in this book are:

All on Account of Eliza—Bailiff's Daughter—Banbury Cross—A Bird in Hand—Blue Alsatian Mountains—Bob up Serenely—Boogie Man—The Bridge—Chorus of Charity Girls—Come Back to Erin—Dannbe River—Douglas, Tender and True—Down by the Old Mill Stream—Dream Song—Every Inch a Sailor—The Fairy Jane—Five O'clock in the Morning—Flee as a Bird—Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by—Home, Sweet Home—I'm Called Little Buttercup—In the Gloaming—It Was a Dream—Johnny Morgan—Katy's Letter—Kerry Dance—Killarney—Lardy Dah—Let Me Dream Again—Letter in the Candle (Quartette Chorus)—The Lost Chord—Lover and the Bird—Lullaby (Fritz)—Maggie's Secret—Man in the Moon—My Love Beyond the Sea—Nancy Lee—Naughty Clara—No Place Like Home—O Fair Dove, O Fond Dove—O Fred, Tell Them to Stop—Old Timbertoes—Over the Garden Wall—Robin Adair—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Smiles May End in Tears—Some Day—Speak to Me—Speed Well—Still Love's Dream I Cherish—Take Back the Heart—Tar's Farewell—Thirteen, Fifteen, Fourteen—Torpedo and the Whale—True Blue—Turnham Toll—Twickenham Ferry—Two's Company, Three's None—A Warrior Bold—The Watermill—We'd Better Bide A'wee—Whoa, Emma—You Never Miss the Water.

REMEMBER! This Book Contains 68 POPULAR VOCAL SONGS,

with music, full sheet-music size, and bound with a handsome engraved cover. This is the best collection of Songs and Ballads ever offered in one book.

Mailed free to any address on receipt of 60 cents.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

Is used by thousands of first class Manufacturers and Mechanics on their best work. Received GOLD MEDAL, London, '85. Pronounced strongest glue known. Send card of dealer who does not keep it, with five 2c stamps for SAMPLE CAN FREE

Russia Cement Co., Gloucester, Mass.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN

ESTABLISHED 1845

The most popular Weekly newspaper devoted to science, mechanics, engineering discoveries, inventions and patents ever published. Every number illustrated with splendid engravings. This publication furnishes a most valuable encyclopedia of information which no person should be without. The popularity of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is such that its circulation nearly equals that of all other papers of its class combined. Price, $3.20 a year. Discount to Clubs. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & CO., Publishers, No. 361 Broadway, N. Y.

PATENTS.

Munn & Co. have also had Thirty-Eight years' practice before the Patent Office and have prepared more than One Hundred Thousand applications for patents in the United States and foreign countries. Caveats, Trade-Marks, Copy-rights, Assignments, and all other papers for securing to inventors their rights in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany and other foreign countries, prepared at short notice and on reasonable terms. Information as to obtaining patents cheerfully given without charge. Hand-books of information sent free. Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American free. The advantage of such notice is well understood by all persons who wish to dispose of their patents.

Address MUNN & CO., Office SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, 361 Broadway, New York.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

Five Useful Books!

Talks with Homely Girls, on Health and Beauty: Their Preservation and Cultivation. By FRANCES SMITH. A manual of advice and instruction upon the general care of the health, exercise, bathing, the care of the head, teeth, hands, feet and the complexion; with chapters upon dress, manner, conversation, and all topics pertaining to a young lady's appearance and deportment.

A Classical and Mythological Dictionary. For Popular Use. With seventy illustrations. By H. C. FAULKNER. A brief and concise explanation of the ancient Mythological, Biographical, Historical and Geographical Allusions most frequently met with in English Literature.

"The work deserves great praise. Its information is carefully condensed."—Evening Telegram, New York.

The Usages of the Best Society: A Complete Manual of Social Etiquette. By FRANCES STEVENS. Nothing is given in this book that has not the sanction of observance by the best society—best not merely in the sense of the most fashionable, but the most cultivated, natural, and the most worthy of imitation.

"Useful to all who wish to obtain instruction on matters relating to social usage and society."—Demorest's Magazine.

A Handy Dictionary of Synonyms: With which are combined the words opposite in meaning. By H. C. FAULKNER. A collection of 40,000 words in general use, arranged with reference to their similarity and opposition. Designed for the use of those who would speak or write the English language with exactness and fluency.

"Will be found of great value to those who are not experienced in speech or with pen."—Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Famous People of All Ages: Who they were, when they lived, and why they are famous. By W. H. VAN ORDEN. A volume of condensed biographies of the most notable men and women who have lived, from the beginning of history to the present time; including soldiers, statesmen, authors, artists, scientists and people most prominent in history.

"An excellent book, giving in a compact form biographies of the persons in whom the student and writer would naturally take most interest."—New York Tribune.

These books are bound in cloth with gold and ink designs, uniform in size and binding. Price, postpaid, 50 cents each.

SPECIAL OFFER.—The five books in a neat box sent, postpaid, for $2.00. Address the publisher,

ARCAD PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

THE BROKEN SEAL;

Or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene.

One of the most interesting books ever published. In cloth, 75 cents; per dozen, $7.50. Paper covers, 40 cents; per dozen, $3.50.

This deeply interesting narative shows what Masonry has done and is capable of doing in the Courts, and how bad men control the good men in the lodge and protect their own members when guilty of great crimes. For sale at 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 12. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1885. WHOLE No. 815.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
The Sun Rising in the South..... 8
Southern Institutes..... 8
Garrison's Memoirs..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Queries of the Credulous. 1
Gospel Work in Western Asia..... 2
The Privileges of the Lodge in Indiana..... 2
The Social Cup..... 2
SELECTED:
The Church Politician.... 2
Abolition History..... 3
Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers..... 3
THE SECRET EMPIRE:
Supreme Council Masonry 4
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
REFORM NEWS:
The Illinois Convention; On the Eve of the Ohio Meeting; County Meetings in Iowa; From the Illinois Agent; From Bro. Hawley's Work; A New Center of Reform..... 4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
A Day of Prayer; The Grand Lodge on Countee; In Defense of the Truth; The Murder Record..... 5,6
Washington Letter..... 9
LITERATURE..... 9
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE CHURCHES..... 12
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
HOME AND HEALTH..... 14
BUSINESS..... 13
MARKETS..... 13

The rejoicing in Atlanta, Ga., for the prohibition victory in the county is checked by the report that the city proper voted last Wednesday for councilmen, and defeated the prohibition candidates in every ward. The day before a surprise had occurred in the nature of a temporary injunction by Judge McCoy of the U. S. District Court against the publication of the official count of the first election. The injunction was asked by the agent of an Indianapolis man who owns a brewery in Atlanta. The case rests for precedent on the decision of Roger B. Taney, whose Dred Scott decision forever tarnished his memory. Taney declared that the right to import wine implied the right to sell it. The liquor power of Atlanta is in arms. Eight wholesale liquor houses and fifty saloons are arrayed for victory or death. They may succeed for a time, but their end draws nigh. The decree has passed the judgment of conscience and of common sense, and cannot be recalled.

A movement is on foot in Chicago to close the saloons on the Lord's day. It is led by the Citizen's League and Reform Alliance. The first society is engaged in suppressing the sale of liquor to minors and drunkards and in securring the general enforcement of law. The other day the agent, Andrew Paxton, a man of noble and self-sacrificing life, was set upon by a lot of saloon rowdies and severely beaten: and this was not the first time. This circumstance may have hastened the union of the two societies to enforce the State law against the Sunday saloon business. The Reform Alliance has this as one of its special objects. The saloons are represented by several societies, and propose to make a united fight. Now let the churches and the press be heard for decency and order and resolve to abide the shock of war: for war it will be. They will in the end be victorious if they stand firm. God grant that there may be no holding back when he calls.

Both houses of the forty-ninth Congress organized Monday noon without particular incident. Senator John Sherman, of Ohio, was elected president pro tem of the Senate by a party vote, 34 to 29, and Mr. Carlisle, of Kentucky, was chosen speaker of the House. Rev. W. H. Milburn, the blind preacher, has been agreed upon by the Democratic caucus for chaplain of the House. From the abstracts of the department reports it appears that there will be some $15,000,000 deficit and appropriations will be cut down heavily in consequence. The estimated revenues are $315,000,000. The annual report of Postmaster General Vilas for the year ending June 30, shows a deficit of $8,000,000. It will surprise some to read that the number of appointments was 2,638 less than the year preceeding, but the removals were 297 more. The Commissioner of Public Lands reports about 21,000,000 acres sold and taken up during the year, which is 6,500,000 less than the year before. He recommended that the homestead law be amended so that actual settlers, who have come to stay, shall be the only persons who can acquire any rights under the law. It is believed that the present sesssion of Congress will be a long one, perhaps six months. The Senate is Republican by a small majority and will put itself in opposition to the administration. In the House 142 of the the 325 members are Republicans, and 140 are new members. Thomas B. Reed, of Maine, will be the leader of the Republicans in the House, thus making with Blaine and Frye the third in succesion from that State. Morrison, of Illinois, and Randall, of Pennsylvania, will champion the Democratic side of the House.

The absence of the lodges at Vice President Hendrick's funeral last Tuesday was suitably noticed by the Illinois State convention, as was also the initiation of Senator Logan by the Knight Templar Masons. This step was the next after that lately reported when he was made a Royal Arch Mason with the greatest publicity allowable in Masonry. This ambitious politician has now yoked the Masonic lodge to his chariot as he had already the Grand Army of the Republic. A banquet divided in two the prolonged initiatory ceremonies and among the toasts Logan responded to "Our Babies; the Z—s." His speech showed that he has learned the genuine Masonic twang. Masonry he said had been from the earliest dawn of history the bandmaid of Christianity. Where Masonry had gone walking upon the level of Christianity, there freedom had gone, there true knighthood had held its banner aloft. The history of all civilization teaches the fact that the men who had belonged to the order of Masonry had been men of no mean rank in the world. This organization had upheld government. The world should understand that this order was not political, (O John, what's the matter with you, then?] was not identified with any one particular faith or creed [As good for a heathen as a Christian]. It kept pace with Christianity [Trying to mimic and counterfeit it]. Such a speech proves that Logan has the root of Masonry in him and it's all the religion he wants. God forbid that such a mountebank and demagogue should ever get any more political power than he now has!

Are the Mormons made mad for their own destruction? The occurrences of a few days past almost inspire the hope that their abominable system is ready to be overthrown—their cup of iniquity full. On the 28th of November a Mormon named McMurrin was shot by U. S. Deputy Marshall Collins. Collins in performance of his duties as officer of the court had been assailed by one Burt, who was punished by sentence of Judge Zane. McMurrin, it is said, laid wait with three other Mormons to assassinate Collins; but was himself shot, dying last Saturday. A large crowd at once collected, and Collins knowing it would be death to fall into the hands of the Mormon city officers, surrendered himself to the Federal authorities and was placed for safe keeping in the penitentiary. The fury of the Mormons surprised the Federal officers with its vehemence. The Salt Lake Herald issued extras calling upon the faithful to avenge the murder of a saint and rousing the mob to violence. The faithful assembled at their headquarters and organized for the murder of Collins, but as the mob approached the penitentiary they found it too well guarded. The Mormon leaders then resorted to strategy, but in vain. Late in the week the situation became more serious as armed bands came in from the South. Governor Murray received such information as led him to call for the U. S. troops, and Collins was taken to Fort Douglas and on the death of McMurrin the mob advanced to the fort, but were so promptly met, that they feared to attack it, threatening to return again. The handful of troops at Salt Lake would be unable to long withstand a determined assault and reinforcements were sent from Omaha and other points Saturday. A gentleman who left Salt Lake Thursday says the Mormons have 20,000 soldiers enlisted in the Nauvoo Legion who are eqnipped and secreted in the Endowment House enclosure.

The latest returns from the British elections show the return of 313 Liberals, 243 Tories and 70 Parnellites, with seventy districts yet to vote. This ties the two parties, if the Irish Nationalists act with the Tories as at present. Parnell continues to be the center of contention. Gladstone was defeated by the withdrawal of the Nationalists, when he knew that had all his party been present they would have out-voted the combined opposition. He was disgusted with his relations with the Irish party and resigned to secure by a new election a British majority independent of Parnell. His hopes have been nearly disappointed by the mistakes of the Radical leaders who have put forward the disestablishment question until they have driven from the Liberal party many of its conservative members. Parnell, meantime, after counting the Liberals so as to make the best terms possible with the opposite party, has made a compact with the Marquis of Salisbury. He is now again reported to see a prospect of some greater advantages in returning to Gladstone and will hold to his pledges no longer than he believes it for his own advantage. The Conservatives are not united in their arrangement with Parnell. Lord Churchill favors Parnell's demands for local self-government in Ireland in return for the Nationalist support of Tory measures. But the more powerful among the Tory leaders are opposed to the Irish coalition. If the two parties remain nearly equal Salisbury and the Tories will remain in power. The Liberals are divided in their opinions about taking control of the government, but the Radicals demand that a change shall take place if a majority of twenty is secured. Others wish to unite the moderate Liberal wing with the Conservative Tories, thus forming a uew party with such an immense majority that the Parnellite party would be in such a powerless minority that it would soon go to pieces. It is said that many business men mistrust Gladstone, regarding him as too philanthropic in his foreign policy. Amid all these complications it is manifest that the convictions of the British people are favoring the cultivation of peace, the separation of church and state, and such forms of national independence as shall best serve the happiness and increase the intelligence and prosperity of all the people. The English are a praying people, and do not forget that a Divine hand is shaping their destiny, and will bring them through all political complications into a more useful place as a Christian nation.

QUERIES OF THE CREDULOUS.

BY PRES. C. J. KEPHART.

As the years pass, and I see more of its work, and learn more of its object, I am more fully convinced of the importance of the National Christian Association. The facts of the existence of the legion of secret fraternitise furnishes a sufficient reason for an organized effort ot lay their ideas and methods before the public.

With the mass of the American people the character of these organizations is yet an open question. The fact that so many men of upright character, affirm so positively, that these organizations have no improper purpose, employ no improper methods, extend their influcnce no farther than to those within their pale, is one which stands squarely in the way of convincing people generally to the contrary.

Facts to the contrary, such as the abduction and murder of Wm. Morgan, the mobbing and abusing of seccders and others in recent years, do not readily reach the masses of people, and when they do, they are frequently offset by arguments which seem to make these occurrences matters of little significance. A few of these argnments I will mention.

Respecting the murder of Morgan, it is frequently answered in two ways: First, that it is still a question as to whether the order of Freemasons, as such, had anything to do with his death. Very many people are yet unconvinced of this fact. Can anything more be done to establish this as a fact beyond question?

Second, it is announced that if this be a fact, we have yet to decide whether the Freemasonry of to-day was, to any considerable degree, properly represented by the Freemasonry of that time. The Christian church, it is said, acknowledges having committed more murders than have ever been charged against Freemasonry. Yet we do not condemn the church of to-day for its deeds of horror in the ages of darkness. In other words, men are not convinced that the character of this institution is any more permanent, than is the character of the Christian church, which all admit has in many very important respects changed within the past thousand years.

Again, when the character of the institutions is presented by leading members of the different orders, the question is asked what assurance have we that the these men truly represent the character of the institutions?

Archdeacon Farrar said, recently, that one will get a very poor idea of Christian doctrine as Christ meant it by studying the different systems of theology as published in the different ages of the church. The different writers presented each his own idea of what the Word of God teaches. So, we are told, have the men done, who have written respecting these different organizations. Dr William Smith wrote a "Dictionary of the Bible," very generally accepted as good authority on the subjects he discusses. Yet evidently he presents his own ideas as reached after careful study. Mackey wrote and published a "Lexicon of Freemasonry." The question is, What assurance have we that he has presented anything more than his own idea of the subject? He says plainly, "Masonry is a religious institution," and teaches that its system is sufficient to qualify men for future happiness. Yet the question is, Is that a presentation of the character of the order, or is it simply Mackey's idea of it? We all admit that the character of any organization must be judged from the motive or purpose which forms the nucleus of the organization. So far as the act itself is concerned, it was no more wrong to drown Morgan in the Niagara river, than it was to burn Servetus at the stake. These things render necessary not simply a statement of facts, but an interpretation of them. These underlying questions should, it seems to me, receive a large share of the attention of the leaders in this great reform. I have my answers to the argument. For some reason they do not seem as satisfactory to others as they do to myself. Perhaps this is not hard to explain. May I not request the editor of the Cynosure to discuss some of these subjects?

Allow me to express my satisfaction with the fact that an effort is being made to inform the public of the character and purpose of the Grand Army of the Republic. I would like to know more of it than I do. I see no reason for its existence in the manner in which it does exist. How it shall be possible to completely harmonize the North and the South, while strong organizations are fostered which serve so well to perpetuate the feelings of animosity that already exist, I cannot understand.

Toledo, Iowa.

GOSPEL WORK IN WESTERN ASIA.

ADA BAZAR, Asia Minor, Nov. 6, 1885.

This year has been characterized by the establishment of a high school for girls at Ada Bazar. It was opened September 7th. Its trustees are ten Armenian gentlemen, nearly all of whom are members of this congregation. They contributed with considerable liberality to found and maintain such a school. Two American lady teachers, Miss Farnham and Miss Parsons, assisted by two Armenian teachers, manage the school. Miss Farnham and Miss Parsons, formerly of Bardizag high school, (which school also has been removed to Ada Bazar by the approval of the American Board) are well esteemed in this region for their character and well qualified for this work. They are managing the school in a highly creditable manner. There are now more than fifty scholars, of whom eighteen are boarders and more are expected. Most of them pay for their tuition and board except such boarders who are very poor, they are boarded at the expense of private friends. A scholar must pay $35 a year, both for tuition and board. The course of studies of the various classes for the ensuing term is: Armenian grammer, geography, arithmetic, algebra, physics, astronomy, English and Turkish languages. All the scholars study the Bible and thus are imbibing a knowledge of those truths and principles which will lead them, we trust, to repentance and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ.

At the last annual meeting of the Bithynia Union in Constantinople, several members referred to a subject which is troubling a good many pastors and laymen—the interfering of the church of Disciples and of Baptists with the work carried on in connection with the Evangelical Armenian churches. Had they addressed themselves to the non-evangelical population, or to the Mohammedans who are much in need of the Gospel, we would say to them God-speed. But what is the meaning of spending so much money to convert the already evangelicals into the Baptist denomination, we Armenians are not able to understand.

A spiritual lethargy lies on all the Protestants in this region. There is manifest decline in some places. Both missionaries and we have much reason, with one accord, to address our petitions to the Holy Spirit who alone can give life to those who are dead in sin, and break the deadly influence of sectarianism and worldliness. "Help Lord, for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men." In the Greek village alluded to in my last, the good work seems to be in progress. From that village one individual, already connected with us, has been examined and admitted to the church; a young man has been sent to Mr. Brooks's school at Constantinople; two young maidens, one in Broosa Girls' School, the other in our new school, are studying now. ALEXANDER DJEJIZIAN.

THE PRIVILEGES OF THE LODGE IN INDIANA.

The General Assembly of the State of Indiana enacted a law, Feb. 12, 1855, repealing certain laws "authorizing the formation of voluntary associations" of former date, and passed a new law concerning the "organization of voluntary associations" with the conditions on which they may exist and hold and convey property, etc., reading as follows:

"Any persons may voluntarily associate themselves together for any of the following purposes:

First. To establish and maintain horticultural, literary and scientific associations.

Second, To organize military or fire companies.

Third, To provide suitable grounds for the burial of the dead, for public walks and commons, and to ornament the same with suede trees and shrubbery.

Fourth To plant cultivate and preserve shade trees in the public squares and along the streets of towns and cities.

Fifth To organize Masonic or Odd-fellow's lodges subordinate to their several Grand Lodges. (Note here, it does not say subordinate to the State, but to Grand Lodges Treason is couched here) and also divisions of the Sons and Daughters of Temperance or other charitable associations or orders.

Sixth, To erect and maintain suitable buildings for public meetings.

Seventh, To import horses, cattle, sheep, hogs and other animals for agricultural purposes.

Eighth, To erect and maintain public ferries.

Sec 3. Every such association shall be formed by written articles specifying the objects of the same, the conditions of membership, the corporate name, with the impression and description of corporate the seal, and signed by each person who may be a member at the time of the organization under this act."

Sec. 5 limits the continuance of all such associations to a term of fifty years.

It seems that not till March 6 1865, did they insert in the fifth article of Sec. 2 the words: "and to organize churches, conferences and religious societies." Thus it appears that Masonic lodges, etc., were incorporated ten years before churches were, by one State laws; and it is worthy of our careful attention to notice the cunning slyness with which the Masonic clan slide themselves into public and legal privileges, being careful to associate their incorporation with societies of general public good. I wish to call attention to section 3 when the objects or purpose of each of these societies mentioned shall be written out for public inspection.

Now I ask candidly, is this law complied with by the Masonic or other secret societies included there? May we not rather ask, if this section 3 was really complied with, would it not virtually prohibit their incorporation? Why? Because Masonry in particular is a foreign government of its own, a Secret Empire claiming to owe no allegiance to the State or even to the United States. Its real objects are loyalty to itself and treason to all outside of it—to convert our best men and patriots to its falsehoods. So they are loyal to it, Masonry cares not if they are traitors to all outside of it.

Now note this in particular: the State as such does not know, nor assume to know the objects of the Masonic clan, only what it pleases to say of itself; and being a secret institution it pleases to say nothing bad of itself. Why should it? for if the State as such knew its real design, it would never allow it to be incorporated and have any legal privileges in the State. The State as such is not apprized of Masonry's illegal and extra judicial oaths with horrible death penalties, fostering the spirit of murder and treason, the very elements of its own existence—for if it knew this of Masonry it could no more consistently grant charters to lodges to make Masons than it could grant privileges to traitors to invade the State to pillage and destroy, at their own pleasure, the property and lives of loyal people. L. D. B.

THE SOCIAL CUP!

In Bunyan's "Life and Death of Mr. Badman" we have an illustration of the regard in which the social glass was held by society in this good man's day, as a mark of courtesy to visitors. In enumerating the proofs of the badness of Mr. Badman, even as he neared his end, he gives the following as as his sixth proof:

"When these good men went away from him he would never say, 'Pray when will you be pleased to come again, for I have a desire to have more of your company and to hear more of your good instruction?' No, not a word of that; but when they were going, WOULD SCARCE BID THEM DRINK, or say, 'Thank you for your good company and good instruction.'"

What abominable usage of good men it was in Mr. Badman to "scarce bid them drink!" Hospitality and friendship demanded free and frank supply and indulgence in the "drink," and the olden manners would have been as much shocked by a refusal to partake heartily and cordially, as by withholding it from visitors; as well might a man refuse to speak when spoken to, as not to drink when the glass was presented. But the world is improving. T. H.

THE CHURCH POLITICIAN.

The world has come, not without reason, to despise the politician in the manipulations of political life. The name is now usually the synonym of insincerity, of cunning and underworking. A politician might be the synonym of nobility, but evidently as a class they have not been so esteemed, or the recognized type would not be so apparent to all. The character of a political schemer is as definite an impression in the public mind as the popular picture of Washington.

But that which is so despicable, according to the popular conception in politics, is indescribably more so in church management. One is as much more detestable than the other, as the subject is more sublime and sacred, and only charity makes the character less odious. There are but few who finally succeed in this profession, because, to the honor of religion, few will stoop to its hourly degradation. It is painful to the best men to be insincere; it is humiliating to be watching traps set for the trusty and true; it is demorlizing to be disguising one's real purpose in life; it is worse to be putting motives forward in which we do not believe. But every church is cursed by its petty managers, always making providences for God; oftentimes doing dirty work in his name. They come to look like their works, as their works come to be exponents of the men.

In ecclesiastical courts they appear and disappear, and reappear again, like porpoises in the sea. They talk in bated breath, their ears are erect and dilated, they stand the central figure of groups, or are signalling men away to the rear, to fill them with schemes in which the world is to be regenerated as the ultimate end, while their present purpose is but to enrich or glorify themselves. It is sweet to carry the church in their pocket, to shape its destiny by their management, to be not only interpreter of the Holy Ghost, but to seem to put him under obligation for valuable suggestions. Such characters usually go a day or two ahead of the appointed time of ecclesiastical meetings, to meet the members, to shape the committees, to get henchmen into places, to work up measures, to have sinister suggestions thrown out in regard to other men and policies. We need not add other points of identity. The character is already identified. Such men, we thank God, die, for it has been upon their graves that the divine life of the church has climbed upward, while they end life in dishonor, happy if in their death, like the dishonored prophet, so much as an ass keeps wake over their corpses.—Presbyterian.

PRESIDENT ELIOT, of Harvard University, has avowed himself in favor of religious instruction in the public schools. This occurred recently at a meeting of what is called the Schoolmaster's Club in Boston. The fact that in Harvard attendance on religious instruction is made optional, made this announcement a surprise. It is gratifying that one in so influential a position should, after the experience of indifference in the Institution of which he is the head, come out so emphatically in favor of religious instruction in schools. Whilst the plan which President Eliot recommends is altogether impractieable, yet we are glad to know that he believes in and is willing to advocate the theory.—Instructor.

ABOLITION HISTORY.

The first two volumes of "William Lloyd Garrison; the Story of his Life told by his Children," have been published by the Century Company, of New York.

One can but sympathize with the loving admiration of sons who place a father in the front rank of the historical personages of the country, but the verdict of the historian must make large allowance for filial exaggeration. The claim so often advanced in these volumes that Garrison was the "founder" of the anti-slavery movement in the United States cannot be made even plausible, except by the suppression of all antecedent history. Before he was born slavery had been excluded from the Northwestern Territory and from some of the Northern States. During his boyhood the African slave trade was abolished by law and there was a rapid succession of abolition acts in other States. He was sixteen when the Missouri controversy convulsed the Republic, nineteen when the protracted struggle to exclude slavery from Illinois ceased with a victory for freedom, and twenty-two, an editor, when the great State of New York, on a Fourth of July, struck the chains from more than ten thousand slaves. In all these movements there were heroes. Their names would fill pages. No writer of history can ignore them or their transcendent virtues in the interest of any individual who came after them. The place which will be assigned to Garrison will be not at the beginning but toward the end of a long line of men who devoted their best energies to the extinguishment of slavery; not as the "founder" of a movement local in its character, but as a participator after his fashion in a movement which extended to all civilized countries, and which was the natural and inevitable effect of the industrial system in them and of the developed humanity of the Christian world. No one can properly appreciate the movement in the United States unless he regards it as part of that which abolished slavery in the French West Indies in 1794; in Chili, Buenos Ayres, Columbia, the British Possessions, at the Cape of Good Hope, between 1811 and 1823; in Mexico, in 1829, and in the British West Indies, under the law of 1833. In the light of these facts, we are constrained to reject the claim that the movement originated with Mr. Garrison.

Several millions of human beings had been freed from slavery before he established the Liberator, and if he had not existed at all, the probability is that slavery would have come to its end in this country in the way and at the time it did. The "irrepressible conflict" was latent in our institutions, and the Rebellion was the sternly logical result of the antagonistic principles of slavery and the wages system which had been incorporated into the political, social and industrial life of the United States. For an admirable development of this, see the Constitutional History of the United States, by Von Holst.

FOUNDER OR DISCIPLE?

That no claim to have been the "founder" was made in the earlier years of Garrison's career, either by himself or his friends, is evident by the facts given in the biography. He styled himself the "disciple" of Rankin and claimed the same relation to Lundy. Nor did the paper, of which he was the founder, receive much patronage from anti-slavery white men. In April, 1834, more than three years after the issue of its first number, the Liberator had only about five hundred white subscribers. The editor regarded it as the organ of the negroes, among whom it had about fifteen hundred subscribers. But neither white nor colored paid promptly; the arcas of subscriptions ran up to $2,000, and the urgent question was, "Shall the Liberator die?" This feeble life of the paper appears to have continued during the time covered by these volumes and several years after the American Anti-Slavery Society at New York had entered upon its marvelous career in the publication of abolition newspapers, pamphlets, and books. The prosperity during this period of the Emancipator, edited by Joshua Leavitt, is a fact established by the contemporaneous correspondence of Mr. Garrison. This and similar facts to be gleaned from the biography are strikingly incongruous with the recognition by the leading anti-slavery men of that day of Mr. Garrison as "the founder." The claim must have originated after 1840.

IMMEDIATE ABOLITION.

Mr. Garrison's sons in a frank and manly way abandon the claim heretofore made that their father was the first in the United States to advocate "immediate abolition." They give the credit of this to the Rev. George Bourne, who wrote in 1815, and to Rev. James Duncan, who wrote in 1824. They might also have mentioned in this connection Rankin, Lundy and many others; indeed, nearly all who wrote on private manumission. These treated slavery as a sin, and, like other sins, to be abandoned at once. The favor shown to "gradualism" was chiefly when there was question of compulsory abolition by the State or by the rule of a church, to be enforced by expulsion from membership. The new views, ideas, and arguments added to the abolition cause after 1830 related mostly to the political condition of the country, and authorship of them is not claimed by Mr. Garrison.

Although the term "leader" is applied to Mr. Garrison in his biography, the narrative demonstrates its inaptness. It implies followers, and of these he had a smaller number than almost any other American who has attracted much public attention. Those who adhered to him through all his changes to new doctrines may be reckoned on the fingers. Fortunately for him, a few of them were able and willing to give pecuniary aid as well as moral support. These he grappled to himself "by hooks of steel." One was an orator and two were writers of rare productive capacity. To this devoted band, Garrison owes what he has of fame. All other classes and conditions of men were alienated by his idiosyncracies. Instead of a broad and liberal education, he had learned what he could at the printer's case. His mind was logical in its operations and narrow. Premises being once clearly formulated, he forced the conclusion relentlessly. He knew no exceptions, no limitations, and he was rebuffed by no absurdities. He hesitated at no inconsistency. From extreme bigotry he oscillated to the largest liberality. Every new idea was projected upon his public with all the force he could apply. He alienated the friends of the Christian Sabbath by attacking it, and of the Bible by denying its divine authority; the clergy by the fiercest denunciations, and the doctors and lawyers by his intemperate hostility. "Resist not evil," was pushed by him into the denial of the rightfulness of force in any form; it was wrong to protect one's person, or his wife or children by force from the violence of a ruffian; wrong to carry arms for the defense of one's country; wrong to pass laws or to enforce them; wrong to vote even for the abolition of slavery. Governments, legislatures, courts, jails—every institution requiring force for its preservation was to be abolished and the Divine government was to rule on earth through love! It is not certain that any human being followed him through all these vagaries; most of the few who remained faithful to his fortunes repudiated his erratic notions. Among these was Wendell Phillips.

GARRISON'S INSTINCTS.

No man had a better instinct than Garrison for dramatic situations. When the English abolitionists invited him to a world's conference at London, he appeared with several women, well known advocates of women's rights, and demanded admission and membership for all. When the demand was refused, for nothing like it had been known in England, he and the women retired to a front seat in the gallery and remained there, the observed of all observers. Next day Garrison's name was in every newspaper. Of a piece with this was his frequent vituperation of Washington, his running up to the masthead of his paper the charge that the National Constitution was a "league with hell and a covenant with the devil," his advocacy of secession, etc., etc. It is needless to say that few sensible men followed him into these extremes. The task of defending or extenuating them is a serious one for his biographers, but they acquit themselves of it as skillfully as the subject will admit.

It was impossible for Mr. Garrison, constituted as he was, to avoid controversies and quarrels with other Abolitionists. The details prior to and in 1840 are given in these volumes with such elaborateness as to weary the general reader. Some of them are of no historical value and might have been omitted altogether. Why rekindle among descendants the dying embers of personal jealousies and enmities by republishing the bitter taunts and rancorus paragraphs of forty years ago? Are the constantly recurring broils of Mr. Garrison with his associates to be perpetuated? Because the fathers ate sour grapes, are the children's teeth to be set on edge?

HIS MISTAKE.

At the close of the second volume the authors have fairly entered upon their apology for the great mistake of Garrison's life—his separation from the body of the Abolitionists when they laid the foundations of the national political party which was to grow strong enough to abolish slavery and wield the powers of government. From that moment Garrison sank to be the chief of a petty and extreme faction, without influence upon events. During the war he sought to throw himself into the great anti-slavery tidal wave, but without success. His advances to conciliate the Republican and soldier elements of the country were coldly met, and he sought a retirement which has sheltered his career from criticism until the appearance of this biography. The book must be regarded as a claim, a defense, and a vindication, for all these parts, though not distinctly separated or presented, are to be read between the lines like the points in a lawyer's brief.

Though we have intimated the limitations of Mr. Garrison and of his biography, we recommend the book cordially to all students of reformatory movements. It is eminently suggestive and instructive. —Gen. Wm. Birney, of Washington, in the Philadelphia News.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS.

The Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers has a membership of over 17,000 engineers, and 294 subdivisions in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Its head officer is Grand Chief Engineer Arthur, who for twenty years has ruled it.

One of the engineers at the reunion of the Brotherhood, speaking privately of engineers' work, said: "The boys are all lovely as far as the Brotherhood is concerned, but when they get back to work they are the most jealous set of men in the world. No one could help it. Engineers are governed by innumerable rules, the breaking of the least of which means suspension or discharge. No excuse will be taken. Only a perfect and a lucky man can hold his place. Scores of good men are waiting to take it. The jealousy between engineers is often so bitter that their wives, although old acquaintances, will not speak. One engineer may be in luck; the other, without blame, may have had the series of three accidents that sometimes come to an engine. If she has one, she is sure not to stop till she has had three, and the engineer may be in danger of discharge.

"This intense rivalry sometimes leads to acts of meanness. A young man just promoted fears even the old engineer that he fired for, and that loved him like a brother—when he was a fireman—and will not run out his engine until he has inspected every inch of her, to see that no one has put up a job on him. A young engineer on the Nickle Plate cut out all the bearings of his engine on the first trip, and was laid off. He was a close observer, and found that some wretch had put emery in his oil can. He was able to prove this fact, and regained his situation. Another new engineer was suspended for burning out the flues of his boiler. He had worked and waited for years for promotion, and to have the coveted prize snatched from him just as he has grasped it drove him to the grave. He had insisted that the engine's gauges had registered plenty of water, but the master mechanic disbelieved him. When he was dead, it was found he had told the truth. A conscience-striken rival confessed that he had put oil in the tank, so that it foamed and showed water at the top gauge when there was scarcely a quart in the boiler. Another method of meanness is to choke up the water hose leading from the tank to the boiler with cotton waste.

"It is a great event in the life of an engineer when he gets a chance to make some special run that will give him a record, and he becomes a special object of envy. When the Nickel Plate was the rival of the Lake Shore, a Nickel Plate engineer made the run with thirty cars of stock, leaving Chicago at the same hour that the Lake Shore train did, and beating it into Buffalo more than ten hours. That engineer got promoted.

"An accident often makes an engineer famous and prosperous, and then he becomes an object of envy. Dan McGuire, one of the luckiest of men, was running the front engine on the double-header that pulled the Lake Shore train the night of the Ashtabula accident. His engine managed to get across the bridge just as the train went down. The engine was saved, but stopped so near the awful brink that the tender hung poised over the edge. This crowing piece of good fortune called McGuire into prominence, and now, whenever Vanderbilt's train takes a trip over the road, McGuire is generally chosen to run it over his division. McGuire, by the way, is quite a prominent name among engineers. Shandy McGuire, an engineer running out of Elmira, N. Y., has become famous, not only as a good runner, but as the writer of poetry."

Alexander the Great being asked how he had conquered such vast regions, and made so great a name, replied: "I used my enemies so well that I compelled them to be my friends, and treated my friends so faithfully that they became unalterably attached to me.

THE SECRET EMPIRE.

SUPREME COUNCIL MASONRY.

In continuation of the history of the Supreme Council or ruling body in the Masonic order, the reply of the Cerneau or United States Council is given herewith to the letter published last week. There is a volume of history and illustration of Masonic falsehood in this controversy; and if the head is so diseased, what of the body? The whole system is "a lie all over" as Dr. B. P. Aydelotte, a seceder, tersely put it. The reply reads:

"The Supreme Council, thirty-third degree, of the Ancient and Accepted Rite of the United States, their Territories and dependencies, under which the new organization in this city will be established, is not, as this would-be "red letter" indicates, a "fountain of Masonic fraud;" it is a regular and legitimate body, established in 1807, under patent of powers from the Grand East of France, and has had an uninterrupted existence of over seventy years. It was early recognized by the prominent bodies of the rite in foreign countries, too numerous to be mentioned here, and which recognition has never been withdrawn. An organization under its jurisdiction existed in San Francisco years before the resuscitation of the one under which this dictatorial document is issued.

"Henry L. Palmer, the Commander of the Northern Masonic jurisdiction, whom the circular recognizes, received his Scottish Rite degrees under the United States Council. If the degrees he then received were "bogus," how is it that they are now considered genuine?

"We now turn our attention to the Southern Masonic jurisdiction, under whose authority the publishers of this circular affix to their signature the figures "33°" and whose Grand Commander is the illustrious Albert Pike. We give special attention to Mr. Pike's credentials, to see how regular they appear, and draw a conclusion as the to solidity of the foundation upon which he stands. We will quote his own words by giving an extract from his address delivered before the Supreme Grand Council, Southern jurisdiction, at its annual meeting in 1878. The italics are ours. He said (proceedings 1878, page 19):

"'I am often asked why we do not publish our old transactions, to which I am compelled to reply, that we have none. There is not in the Secretariat, so far as I can find, any minute of any session from 1801 to 1860. I do not know when I was elected a member or when Grand Commander. The memory of the Secretary-General is the only means of proof of the election of any dignitary or member from 1802 to 1857.' Mr. Pike's claim to legitimacy and regularity reminds us forcibly of Choate's description of a certain piece of land: 'Bounded on the north by a blue jay, on the south by a flying cloud.' The Supreme Grand Council at Charleston (Southern jurisdiction) at its inception gave the law of the rite in the constitutions of Frederick the Second, King of Prussia, purporting to have been drawn by him at a special convocation at Berlin, May 1, 1786. This Albert Pike acknowledged in a lecture before the Grand Lodge of Louisiana, February, 1858, in these words: 'These constitutions of 1786 became the law of the Scottish Rite, because they were accepted as such by all who became members of that rite.' A few words as to the genuineness of these constitutions. The Grand National Mother Lodge of the 'Three Globes,' at Berlin, after investigating the alleged connection of Frederick II. of Prussia, with these so-called constitutions, issued its protocol, under date of December 19, 1861, from which we give the following excerpts:

"'The collection of these constitutions, etc., has the title "Statutes and Regulations," institutes, laws and Grand Constitutions of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite, compiled, with notes from authentic documents for use of the order, by Albert Pike, thirty-third M.·. P.·. Sov.·. G.·. Com.·. of Supreme Council for the Southern jurisdiction of the United States.

"'According to the contents of these documents Frederick the Great is said to have revised, reorganized and increased from twenty-five to thirty-three degrees the system of high degrees in a Supreme Council held at Berlin, and which have often been the subject of critical examination in consequence of the doubts of their authenticity which have always been uttered.

"'Kloss attends to this subject in a long examination in his "History of Freemasonry in France" (page 409), and stamps the constitutions and statutes of the Ancient and Accepted Rite as "the grand lie of the order."

"'As harsh as this judgment may appear at a first glance, the Directory of the Grand Lodge of the Three Globes, after repeated researches in the archives, cannot help sustaining it, by declaring the constitutions entirely false, because:

"'King Frederick the Great attended to Masonic affairs for only seven years (from his initiation in 1738 to 1744), and was never engaged in them afterwards.

"'It is therefore a falsehood that King Frederick the Great had convoked on the 1st of May, 1786, in his residence at Berlin, a grand Council for regulating the high degrees. The documents kept in the Grand National Mother Lodge do not show the slightest trace of the above-mentioned documents or the existence of a grand council at Berlin.

"'The Grand Lodge resolves to insert this report of the Directory into the protocol' and so to promulgate it to all the lodges.'

"So much from the best authority. If the reader will take the trouble to consult Carlyle's 'Frederick the Great,' and Dover's 'Life of Frederick II.,' will find on page 532, vol. VI. of the former, and page 310, vol. II. of the latter, that Frederick, a physical wreck, was moved from Berlin to his San-Souci palace April 17, 1786, where he remained until he died, just four months after. He could not, therefore, have been at Berlin with a convocation of High Masons on may 1st following, revising and signing documents. Thus vanishes the baseless fabric of Mr. Pike's ancient accepted authority, and with it the underpinning of dictatorial thirty-thirds who have issued this document from the High East of San Francisco. In a few words, Albert Pike, Grand Commander, etc., his authority traceable to no earthly source, grandiloquent in his autocracy, proclaims through his satellites the Great I Am, and pronounces his the simon-pure, and all else spurious. Aqoiding personalities as much as possible, we are compelled to say that first on the list of those who have issued this San Francisco circular is Thomas H. Caswell, whom Mr. Pike has appointed Grand Inspectator General; and to the credit of Mr. Caswell be it said, that in issuing this circular he is attending strictly to business, for it is well known that he is invested with power to communicate the Scottish Rite degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second, inclusive, (a la Pike) upon any Master Mason whom he may deem worthy, notwithstanding there are organized under the same jurisdiction struggling for existence in the same locality. And it is further understood that the exorbitant fees for communicating said degrees are devided between himself and and Grand Cammander Pike. Business is business.

The New York Independent says: "It is high time that government of the saloon, by the saloon, and for the saloon, should perish from the earth."

REFORM NEWS.

THE ILLINOIS CONVENTION.

This meeting was a State couvention only in name, the meager attendance being unprecedented; but three members of the executive committee even were present. This feature of the meeting should suggest to that committee hereafter to call a State convention only when they have some definite and valuable end to be accomplished by it. Few people care to spend much in railway fares only to hear annual reports.

The evening meetings, for which the Free Methodist brethren kindly opened their church, were under the circumstances fairly attended, and were well addressed by Elder Barlow of Wheaton, Rev. William Fenton of St. Paul, and Geo. T. Dissette the State lecturer. Elder J. L. Barlow was chosen president, and the other officers and executive committee remain with little change from last year.

Letters of encouragement were read from Rev. T. H. Hanna, D. D., of Monmouth, Rev. W. H. Chandler of Plymouth, the retiring president, Bro. E. Ronayne and Rev. James Sprague of Fairbury. The convention took no action on the excellent recommendation of Bro. Sprague, but his letter is printed elsewhere to stir up the readers of the Cynosure on an important topic.

The report of the Executive Committee marks a year of considerable activity in Illinois. The agents of the State and of the National Associations have been engaged a considerable part of the year in the State, and not without result. The treasurer's report shows $835.32 raised during the year, $203.03 of which is unexpended. The office expenses for postage, etc., are, however, much out of proportion; the Executive Committee should be wise enough to cut them down at least one half.

Bro. Dissette reported many encouraging incidents in his work. He has prepared a fine chart, painted in colors, picturing the exact appearance of the lodge room during the different stages of initiation.

The daily papers gave very fair reports of the meeting, but would hardly find room for the resolutions, which, though long, are not lacking point and interest. They are as follows:

Whereas, Many Freemasons are sitting in gross darkness concerning the heathen character of the religious rites and ceremonies which they practice in their lodge worship, and are thereby in such a state of bewilderment that they can neither discern nor appreciate the truth concerning Freemasonry; and at the same time many of them are members of churches and some of them even pastors of churches;

Resolved, That we do urge upon all enlightened Christians, especially pastors, to faithfully perform their duty in regard to warning all lodge worshipers to flee from the lodge idolatry and the consequent wrath to come.

Whereas, All the esoteric work of Blue Lodge and Chapter Masonry is completely revealed and all the higher degrees of Scottish Rite Masonry are shortly to be laid before the public; and,

Whereas, There are no "Hidden mysteries" in Freemasonry as stated in the Entered Apprentice oath, except the mystery of iniquity; and,

Whereas, The Freemason is cruelly bound to that mystery of iniquity in a vile, perjured system by wicked, puerile vows, involving murder and other crimes, such that no man ought to regard as binding upon his conscience;

Resolved, That we would urge upon all uninformed Christians the importance of acquainting themselves with the true character of Freemasonry; and that we earnestly seek that enduement of power from on high that only can enable the truth to be effectual in delivering Freemasons from the cruel bondage of the lodge.

Resolved, That while we are glad to note that many pastors and papers oppose the lodge because of minor considerations, we yet deprecate the manner in which some seek to oppose the lodge, by treating it merely a system of sham benevolence, means of absorbing time and money that might be more profitably employed, and as a means of keeping people away from the prayer meeting, whereas it is a system of idolatry ruinous to church and state as well as to the bodies and souls of men.

Resolved, That the proposition for a National Congress of churches to discuss the danger that impends both upon the churches of Christ and our prosperous and God given government from the secret lodges, be heartily approved by this Association; and that we co operate with the committees and delegates already appointed by the National Christian Association, by several Wesleyan, Methodist and United Brethren conferences in promoting such an inter-denominational conference; and elect H. L. Kellogg, Rev. Wm. Moerdyk and E. A. Cook as a committee who shall represent this Association in the preliminary measures, and as delegates.

Whereas, The developments in Memphis, Tennessee, show, by the threats, personal assaults, secret and open slander and repeated attempted assassinations, the terrible power of the lodge over the colored people; and,

Whereas, The same causes are operating at the North as among the colored churches. Secret societies, with their promises of sick benefits, insurance payments and a pompous burial service, are absorbing the money and time of the colored people to such a degree that the churches and schools are neglected, impoverished and starved, while the lodges have well furnished rooms, banquets, picnics, processions, and parades with bands and banners, and rob the members of time and money without regard to the demand of the family or calls of the church; therefore,

Resolved, That these exhibitions of lodgery call for the severest reprobation and punishment; and should be most carefully examined and studied by all the Northern churches, that we may, before it is too late, avoid the desperate condition which is found at the South.

Resolved, That our warmest sympathy is given to Bro R. N. Countee, of Memphis, Tennessee, in the persecution and personal suffering he is enduring for Christ's sake from the secret orders, and we pray that his faith and courage may never fail him, since God, who is above all, is for him and against those who make themselves his enemies.

Whereas, General John A. Logan has been a chief promoter of the political character of the Grand Army of the Republic; he is reported to have all the degrees of Scottish rite Masonry; and has just received in this city the Chapter and Commandery degrees, amid such demonstrations that his purpose is evidently to make the utmost use of lodge influence and votes,

Resolved, 1. That it is, in our view, one of the saddest proofs of the decay of the Republican party that it places such a politician at its head.

2. That the election of a man of such principles to the Presidential chair would be a great public calamity.

Resolved, That we are pleased to note that the lodges were not paraded in the funeral procession of Vice President Hendricks; and we regard this unusual circumstance as proof that the late Vice President, who was a withdrawn Odd-fellow, had no sympathy with the secret orders.

Resolved, That the warmest thanks of this Association be given to the Free Methodist church, and its pastor, Rev. W. F. Manley, for the cordial tender of their church building for our evening meetings; and we shall earnestly pray that the glorious Gospel light which they are upholding amid the darkness of this great city may through their faith and zeal dispel that darkness from thousands of souls.

COUNTY MEETINGS IN IOWA.

MOLINE Depot, 10 o'clock P. M.

I have drifted into this port in the first real "blizzard" of the season. At Morning Sun, Ia., I met the friends in convention and Bro. Hawley opened the exercises with a most admirable and telling address; Rev. T. P. Robb presiding and Rev. J. W. Dill acting as secretary. The meeting protracted through the following day and evening and was reasonably well attended. An organization embracing Louisa and Des Moines counties was formed and funds raised for all expenses and to aid in the general State work. A festival at the Presbyterian church on the last evening doubtless dimished the attendance slightly, although there was no rivalry or diversion intended. It is to be hoped that good was accomplished and the way prepared for yet greater enlargement.

The Washington County Convention opened at 10 A. M. on Thursday, with a limited attendance. The afternoon session was a marked advance and the evening's audience still better. Bro. Hawley gave a rousing lecture at 10:30 A. M. on Friday, and was to follow it with another in the evening. The county was already organized, but there was apparently a lack of enthusiasm on the part of officers and leaders. Brethren here have differed upon some matters, and more especially in regard to politics and there was less of that strength which is found in union than would be desirable in the face of a vigilant and determined foe. I presume the secretaries of both conventions will report officially the proceedings, and I will only add that I am under personal obligations to friends at both Morning Sun and Washington for hospitality and words of cheer, which I shall ever remember with gratitude. May the Lord help these faithful reformers to practice that perseverance which they hold and teach.

J. P. STODDARD.

ON THE EVE OF THE OHIO MEETING.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 4th, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—As the time draws near for our convention the interest increases. I am commencing to realize the truth of the statement, "If the Lord be for us, who can be against us?" Every mail brings letters from those who will attend. There are some twenty on the desk now before me to be answered.

Since my last letter I have visited the city of Mansfield, and the towns of Mt. Gilead, Iberia, Galion, Shelby, Bellville and Utica. At all these places I found persons who hoped to attend the convention. At many I found aged persons that are praying for our success. At Mt. Gilead father J. B. Lyons, though 79 years of age, circulates the Cynosure and works with untiring zeal. At Galion father Abraham Cox has now reached his 80th year. Like Abraham of old he has implicit faith in the promises of God. I failed to meet father Auten at this place, but learned from friends that he felt as young as a boy and was still on the old line. At Iberia father Archy Brownlee made me welcome at his home. He enquired after the senior editor of the Cynosure, said he remembered the debate he had with Rice on slavery. Mr. B. is a cousin of the Brownlee who was murdered by the Masons in Illinois for revealing their secrets. He may come to the convention, but could not promise. A number expect to attend from Iberia. Bro. Atkinson, a well-to-do farmer near by, said he would try and come to the convention. If he could not come he would contribute toward the expenses. He has been a reader of the Cynosure for years; is a member of the Methodist church, but will not go to hear a Methodist preacher who is a Mason. At Mansfield I found our State Secretary and Treasurer in good spirits and hopeful for the convention. At Bellville I had the pleasure of meeting father Samuel Eby, who is now in his 85th year. He regretted that he could not attend the convention and remembered the work with a contribution.

If there are any others that should help in this matter who can not attend the convention they can either give or send their contributions to any of the State officers and it will be duly reported to the treasurer. We hope our friends will remamber Bro. Countee in his work among the heathen in the South.

At Utica I found friends on all sides. Father Caleb Lyons will head the list of delegates from this poiut. Brethren Harvey, Johnson, Kirkpatrick, Alsdorf and others hope to attend from here. Utica ought to send at least ten delegates. I found this town in a commotion. The occasion of this stir was the introduction of a saloon. I understand that the draymen have refused to haul the liquor from the station, and the stores have refused to sell the liquor dealer groceries. Temperance meetings are being held every night. If he keeps his pest-house open in this town he will have an interesting time. Time and space forbid our further mention of persons and places. I had a very interesting interview with the master of the lodge at Bellville, of which I might write at a future time. The programme as made out by the secretary is as follows:

FIRST EVENING.

6, to 7 Getting acquainted, organizing, and appointing committees.
7. Prayer and welcome by the president, Rev. H. R. Smith.
7:30. Short address.
8. Address by Dr. J. G. Carson.

MORNING SESSION.

9. Devotional exercises
9:15. Report of Committee on Organization, State Agent and treasurer.
10. Remarks by Dr. L. Davis
11. Address by Rev. J. P. Stoddard.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

2. Prayer, report of Committee on Resolutions.
3. Address by J. F. Brown.
4. Report of State Agent and Committee on State Work.

EVENING SESSION.

7. Prayer, reports of Committee on Enrollment and Finance.
8. Address by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.

Those who desire reduced rates on any railway in this State, who have not already done so, should write to this office at once, stating over which road you wish to come, and you will receive a certificate which will give you the rate we advertised. Any who can use bills, advertising to advantage, should write and get them. Remember the time is short: Dec. 15th will soon be here. W. B. STODDARD, 214 W. 2nd Ave-, Columbus, O.

FROM THE ILLINOIS AGENT.

THORNTON.

At this place one of the trustees promised to cooperate in securing the use of the M. E. church for lecturing purposes in the near future. I obtained one subscriber for the Cynosure, and then pushed on to where I met Rev. Wm. Morrow, pastor of the Presbyterian church, who invited me to preach for him on Sabbath and among whose people I was warmly welcomed, as they are a unit on this question of reform. On Sabbath afternoon I preached for him at Glenwood,and the spirit of the Lord was present. In the evening I preached for him in this place. The old subscribers all continue their subscriptions to the Cynosure and one new name is added to the list.

BLOOM,

CRETE.

When I applied for the Congregational church at this place, I was refused on the ground that Rev. Mr. Harris, the pastor, was a Freemason, and it would be offensive to him. Otherwise they should not objeet. I could not obtain the M. E. church until its pastor consulted the trustees.

I called on Rev. Samuel Hewes, a superannuated M. E. minister of the same church, and he said that if he had anything to say about that church, I should "not be allowed to either preach or lecture in it." In a fine mercantile establishment I exhibited my chart to a company of ladies and gentlemen. While doing so I described the process by which a free citizen is deluded into surrendering his "right of private judgment," and made the slave of designing men. A gentleman present appealed to another of the company referring to what I said,"Has he got it?" The other, who was a Scotchman, replied, "'Deed has he. Ah! indeed, I've been there myself and had to sign my name with blood in the lodge book. You've got it right enough, young man, but you had better get out of this town before dark, if you want to get out alive. They'll fix you if you talk in that way here. There's a strong lodge of them here."

"Well, but I've told the truth haven't I?"

"You have, you have, but I've been there myself, and when a man"—turning now to explain to the crowd—"talks as he does they'll fix him."

Rev. Mr. Porter, a retired Congregational minister, invited me home with him and requested me to do the same in his home as I did in the store. So I reviewed there also for the benefit of his household.

Recently a man said to me, "I expected this to come next"—referring to this reform—"I used to keep a saloon and restaurant; but I could see that prohibition is coming, and said I to myself, 'Now you'd better get out of the way.' And I'm out. Yes, sir, the men who cannot see that are blind, and the men who do not want to see it shut their eyes to their own interests. It's coming, and coming to stay."

"But why do you think this reform is coming next?"

"Well, sir, my saloon was right near the Masonic and other lodges, and I that noticed I sold a great quantity of liquor to be carried up into those lodges whenever they met. I watched that awhile and soon found that the bulk of my business was done on lodge nights, and I had to make calculations accordingly and lay in a good supply to meet the demand on those nights. Those fellows used an awful quantity of liquor! Bye and bye they began hinting around and hinting around; they wanted me to join their lodge. But I knew enough. They could not swindle me. They thought that if I went in there they'd get my money, and that after I was in the lodge I would not charge them so much for whiskey and beer. But I kept out. It is no place for a decent man (!). And the very same set of men who are now busting the saloon, will be knocking down the shutter of the lodge. But let them come: I'm out: they won't hurt me."

GEO. T. DISSETTE.

FROM BRO. HAWLEY'S WORK.

WASHINGTON, IOWA.

Iowa's State lecturer, Rev. C. F. Hawley, spent Thursday and Friday Nov. 26 and 37, in this vicinity, lecturing in the Covenanter church, in Washington, on Thanksgiving day, and in a school house north of town on the evenings of the 26th and 27th, to very attentive audiences; his subject, "The Relation of Freemasonry to Religion." Mr. Hawley left his hearers well impressed by doing ample justice to his subject. Those friendly to the anti-secret cause should engage Mr. Hawley to lecture in their neighborhood, having the time and place of such meetings fully announced so as to secure a large audience. Those intending to secure this lecturer would do well to have the meetings well worked up before sending for him, thus enabling him to do more lecture work in the same amount of time.

J. T. STEVENSON.

A NEW CENTER OF REFORM.

TWIN BROOKS, Dak., Dec. 1, 1885.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—I am very glad to read of the reform still going on as it is reported in your columns from time to time. There surely is great need of the most earnest activity on the part of all true lovers of the reform movement. The evils of that oathbound element intrenched behind the bulwarks of the lodge are not to be laughed

(Continued on 12th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

A DAY OF PRAYER.

FAIRBURY, Ill., Dec. 1, 1885.

DEAR BRO.:—I have been conviuced for a long time that what I am going to suggest would be well pleasing to God, and when I saw the notice of the "Christian Association," meeting in Chicago, to-day and to-morrow, it did strike me as being a good time to bring the idea before that body. If it is thought to be wise, it will gain force as coming from the head-quarters of the anti-secret cause. If we believe as we speak and write, are we not convinced that secretism is of the devil? There can be no doubt as regards this. The proofs are accumulating every day. The dark system must emanate from him whose kingdom is "darkness." But while it is so, I am more and more convinced that man is not able to cope with its foul power. It loves to hate its opposers. It loves to fight those who dare be manly and speak what they feel it duty to speak. Man's hand cannot reach within its secret temples; but God can, and we believe he will demolish them.

Now the suggestion is this: That there be a day set apart for special prayer and fasting to Almighty God' that he will destroy this system of iniquity, by drying up its treasuries, coufounding its members, etc. Let us pray that the hand of God may be laid upou its whole machinery, and that its votaries may be saved from Satan's power and brought to the Saviour. I see nothing wrong in this suggestion. If you do, let it die.

The above idea is not to supercede other efforts to which we are called. "Faith without works is dead."

JAMES SPRAGUE.

[NOTE.—The above excellent letter was read in the State convention last week, and was generally approved, although no action was taken.]

THE GRAND LODGE ON COUNTEE.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Nov. 26, 1885.

About two weeks before Bro. Countee was shot I talked with a colored presiding elder of the Methodist church, who told me that he attended the meeting of the Masonic Grand Lodge when they turned out Bro. Countee. I asked what was the charge against him. He gave me to understand that he was charged with immorality. I told him that I doubted the truth of that charge, as that matter had never come up until he had seceded from the Masons. I asked him why they had the same charge against all seceding Masons, and said again that I doubted about Countee being guilty, and also the whole testimony in the case. He said he did also.

I passed the same man after Countee was shot and said, "Hurt not Countee. 'Touch not mine annointed and do my prophets no harm.'" He answered that he would not himself.

On the 31st of October last I met with another colored preacher who claimed to be a member of the Grand Lodge. He said that Masonry was a big thing and that one Mason had "gone up a plank." I asked who, and he answered that Countee had been talking too much. I told him that I expected that it would all come out that the Grand Lodge was guilty of the shooting of Countee. He answered, "That is none of your business, and you need not tell all I say; for if you do, you'll get your foot in, for I'll deny it." It would be no strange thing if the Grand Lodge is found guilty of that whole shooting affair in Memphis. I have made daily prayer for brethern Countee, Imes and all there persecuted on account of their opposition to lodgery. I hope that the A. M. A. will continue to fear the Lord greatly, and will uphold Bro. Imes with their means and their prayers. If they will fully trust the Lord they will be able yet to feed more than one hundred prophets out of caves and there will be many more Anti-masons who will on that day show themselves to the enemy, and the people will begin to declare, "The Lord he is the God.

ELI TAPLEY.

IN DEFENSE OF THE TRUTH.

DADEVILLE, Mo., Nov. 27, 1885.

DEAR EDITOR:—"If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." 1st Pet., 4: 11. "Search the Scriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they which testify of me," "and of my doctrine." John 5: 39, also 7: 17. And "I speak as to wise men; judge ye what I say." 1st Cor. 10: 15. The first of the above quotations is designed to apply to the writer, the second to what is written, and the third to those addressed. The only reason that I lift my pen at all, is, that in this part of the country, the Gospel preached to us comes very largely through the instrumentality of the Baptists and C. P. Presbyterians, and while I have nought to say in regard to their theology respecting the foundation principles of the Gospel, viz: repentance, faith, the new birth, regeneration, etc., these are all elaborate and brought out as far, and as favorably, as is generally done by all orthodox denominations. But strange and sad to relate, the very moment the great plain of gospel rest, as evidenced and established by the Bible doctrine of being wholly sanctified; heart purity; perfect love; loving God with all the heart, soul, mind and strength; or holiness of heart, is approached, there is not only a very sensible fluttering, but an actual going backward: and the announcement, publicly made, that such a state or experience is not designed to be taught. Now, while we rejoice to hear the primary or first principles of the Gospel explained and enforced in all their fulness, we are compelled to wonder why it is the doctrine or fact for which the Son of God especially came to earth to establish or effect, i. e. to save his people from their sins, should be so palpably ignored, or passed by in silence, to say the least of it? Echo answers, why this partial or superficial reading of the Word of God? Whereas, if the second quotation, heading this humble article, "Search the Scriptures, etc.," be only consulted and carried out, it will be found that while all the first enumerated doctrines or principles are fully established, the latter, the great crowning doctrine of the whole system of godliness, is attested either directly or indirectly, by one hundred times "Thus saith the Lord," or, in other words, by the many quotations from his revealed will to man. This being a fact, is this a subject that can be treated lightly or passed over in silence? My object is by no means controversy, but to elicit thought, examination, and a happy experience of the blessed possibilities of all that has been promised in the Gospel. Amen and amen. Yours truly for Gospel truth,

J. W. THOMPSON.

THE MURDER RECORD.

HOLLISTER, Cal., Nov. 22, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I see in the Cynosure of Nov. 12th, an article on the 5th page, headed "An Important Suggestion," on a compilation of Masonic outrages. It struck me with great force, as I have been wanting such a tract, or even book, if necessary. I would have ventured to write one long ago if the facts had been in my possession. There are so many people who think that Morgan has been the only victim, and that, even, they doubt, or accept the Masons' defence, that if it was done, it was done by hot-headed individuals on their own responsibility, and not as Masons, nor involving Masonry in the guilt of the murder. But if we could show a long list of murders and assaults, it would be convincing proof that it is the legitimate work of the order, and that they are all guilty as accessories to the crimes.

I once had a full list of the Cynosure tracts. I read all of them, and in one was a brief account of their murdering, I think it was twenty-two. I thought more of that tract than of all the rest, but I have lost it. When Pres. J. Blanchard was out here I inquired of him where these statistics could be found. He told me of a book that contained them. He knows where to find it, but I do not. I go with Bro. Callender to the fullest extent, and would gather every murderous fact that can be found, going back to the first murder and reaching to the latest date. I am ready to furnish one case of attack with intent to murder, here in Hollister, committed on Rev. Mr. Hill. I saw it and beat off the assassin with my hickory cane. I will give particulars if called for. It was a desperate effort to murder, and that in the presence of perhaps ten or twelve disinterested persons.

Masons are proud of their good men, and I think these facts, made public, would make them ashamed of their bad ones, and of their bad institution. If they can be made ashamed of their company, it would thin their ranks, and nothing would deter them from outrages, more than the making it known in that way.

L. B. LATHROP.

BIBLE LESSONS.

FOURTH QUARTER.

STUDIES IN THE KINGS AND PROPHETS.

LESSON XII. Dec. 20, 1885.—The Gracious Invitation Isa. 55: 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—Ho, every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters. Isaiah 55: 1.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The freeness of the invitation. vs. 1-3. Every religion, or system of religious belief promises something to mankind. Mohammedanism holds forth a paradise of sensual delights for the faithful; Buddhism, the painless self-annihilation of Nirvana; Masonry, free admittance to the Grand Lodge above; and even the most degraded heathen are not without some idea of a state of future rewards. But in no false religion shall we find so much as a hint at free grace. The pagan devotee must buy his heaven by works of merit, offerings to his false gods, or self-inflicted tortures. Masonic salvation is only for able-bodied white men, who can pay their initiation fee and dues. God gives like a God—a free, full, salvation; while man-invented systems are like their human source, selfish and narrow, exclusive rather than inclusive. The "whosoevers" of the Gospel are God's seal-manual, stamping it as his own—a seal no false religion can counterfeit, and dare not if it could.

2. Christ the chosen Leader. vs. 4, 5. Christ was not given simply to suffer and die for the world, but to realize as no other being ever can humanity's longing for a universal Leader. In the Old Testament times he appeared as the captain of the Lord's hosts on the eve of Israel's struggle for the possession of Canaan; and in St. John's vision he is represented as a Conqueror, leading the armies of heaven to the great and final victory over every evil. But as the Jews rejected their Messiah, so the people, the toiling masses, to whom God gave him for a Leader and Commander, as a whole turn away from him and choose other leaders. Laboring men join Christless secret societies, to be the prey of selfish demagogues. Yet there can be no true labor reform of which he is not the Leader and his doctrines the basis.

3. The one condition of pardon. vs. 6, 7. The Gospel requires a changed heart, a mind whose very thoughts are in harmony with God's. We can always distinguish true religion from its counterfeit by bearing these two points in mind—that it offers on the one hand free salvation, and requires on the other that the soul be born again; and herein differs radically from all other systems.

4. God's word never fails. vs. 8, 11. As the rain and snow never fail of their mission, so no work for Christ is in vain. His work never returneth to him void. Here is a special encouragement for reform workers. Their labors shall not be in vain. The end will be a harvest of precious souls saved from Satanic snares, to bring forth eternal fruit to God's glory.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

What companion verse to Is. 55:1 in Rev. 22:17? What will befall those who refuse to accept Christ as their Leader. Rev. 19:15. What encouragement have we to labor? 1 Cor. 3:8; 15:58.

"And he that hath no money." The poorest can obtain these living waters. It is not always nor everywhere that one can come to the waters without money. Throughout the lands of the Bible, a spring of water has for ages determined the site of a village or city, and that necessarily. The people of one village often resent the approach of strangers to their fountain, and exact payment.—Prof. Hall.

"Come ye." Salvation is free to all; still there is something to be done by him who would enjoy it; he must come and take it (so Matt. 11: 28; John 5: 40; 6: 35; Rev. 22: 17). There must be voluntary acceptance of the salvation by him who would be saved. The fountain may be overflowing, but it will not quench the thirst of any one unless he comes to it and drinks.—Todd.

"Buy and eat." Satisfying hunger is now joined with quenching thirst. Food and drink are essential to the life of the body; so are the spiritual blessings Christ gives essential to the life of the soul. Our Lord resumes both these figures—that of water in John 4: 14; 7: 37; that of feasting in various parables (e. g. Matt. 22: 1-10; Luke 14: 15-24), and also in his representation of his own flesh as the bread of life (John 6: 32-58). The central idea is, the best and most needful things for the body made the symbols of the best and most vital blessings for the soul. The abundance and freeness of the former represent the yet richer abundance and freeness of the latter—Cowles.

"Without money and without price." The freeness of the offer is again repeated, that there may be no mistake, and the poorest and most needy may feel sure of a welcome. The best things in this world are those which money cannot buy, and which are absolutely free to all. Fresh air, and sunlight, and pure water, and health, and character, and contentment, and love, and forgiveness, and joy, and peace, cannot be purchased; but all may have them who will. Money has its uses, but it never brings the things which are best worth having. The poor can have the choicest treasures of the rich, whatever else they lack. It is only the lower plane possessions which are dependent upon money.—Rev. H. C. Trumbull. Much more is this true of salvation; since salvation is spiritual and belongs to the character, it cannot, from its very nature, be bought. Forgiveness, the gift of the Holy Spirit, the blessings of atoning love, heaven, must be received as free gifts from God, or they cannot be received at all. —Peloubet.

"And your labor for that which satisfieth not." There never was a more simple and true description of this whole world than in this expression of Isaiah. The immortal mind will not be satisfied with wealth, pleasure or honor; it never has been. There is a void in the heart which these things do not, cannot fill. Nothing but God can meet the boundless desires of the soul.—Barnes.

"Let your soul delight itself in fatness." Fatness in the Scriptures is used to denote the richest food (Gen. 27: 28-39; Job 36: 16; Ps. 65: 11), and hence is an emblem of the rich and abundant blessings resulting from the favor of God (Ps. 36: 9; 63: 5).—Barnes. The blessings which Christ gives are not merely good, they are full of the choicest delights of which human nature is capable; as it is written, eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit. 1 Cor. 2: 9, 10.

"I will make an everlasting covenant with you." An agreement with promises which can never be broken. This covenant constitutes permanent relations between God and men; God, on his part, becoming their Father and friend, their refuge and portion; they, on their part, engaging in like manner to be his people in humble trust and true obedience.

"Even the sure mercies of David." Even according to and including those blessings which I promised so surely to David, and of which the Messiah was the great central element. The account of this covenant may be seen in 2 Sam 7: 12-29 and 1 Chron. 17: 7-27; restated substantially in Ps. 89: 1-4, 19-37. (See Luke 20: 41-44).

"Let him return." Man in the Scriptures is everywhere described as having wandered away from the true God. Religion consists in returning to him for pardon, consolation, protection and support.—Barnes.

"And he will have mercy upon him." He is assured that however far away he has gone, however aggravated his sin, God will not reject him. This takes away one great hinderance to returning to God. And this is the first essential condition of restoring men to God. A religion without forgivness is of necessity a failure in saving men. For sinners cannot come to God freely, as children, leaving the past behind them, without first having the assurance that God will receive and forgive.—Pel.

"So shall my word be that goeth out of my mouth." Here God's word, compared to the descending, fertilizing rain, admits of two possible applications: either (1) to his Gospel promises with reference to their sure fulfilment, or (2) to his Gospel truth in general, with reference to its moral power in renewing human hearts and regenerating the moral face of the world. Both are blended and involved in these verses. God's word of promise is to be fulfilled; his word of truth shall go forth and fall upon the face of the earth as rain falls from heaven, and like it shall be gloriously fertilizing and renovating, till it has richly furnished seed for the sower and bread for the eater, and made the sin-cursed earth a second Eden.—Cowles.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c. cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone. comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-Fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd fellowship Judged by its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," by Miss K. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret labor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies, Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims. by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c

A Masonic Conspiracy. by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock. Conn. 5c

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

☞ In dealing with advertising firms, or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 West Madison street, Chicago.

H. H. Hinman, Willimantic, Conn.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, Geo. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.

Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion

Iowa, C. F. Hawley, address in care of Free Press.

Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.

New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.

Ohio, W B. Stoddard, Columbus.

Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe

Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]

J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa
A. Mayu, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men	2

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Who depend on voluntary contributions of Christian people in whole or in part for their support:

J. F. BROWNE, Berea, Ky.

ELI TAPLEY, Columbus, Miss.

J. F. GALLOWAY, Okahumka Florida.

WM. HAZENBURG, Cape Town, S. Africa.

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES, Andros, Greece.

C. B. WARD, Secunderabad, India.

The Evangelists associated with Rev. John G. Fee, of Berea, Ky.

Contributions for either of these brethren may be forwarded through the Treasurer of the N. C. A. PLEASE DESIGNATE to which one such funds shall be sent.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884.

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the probibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

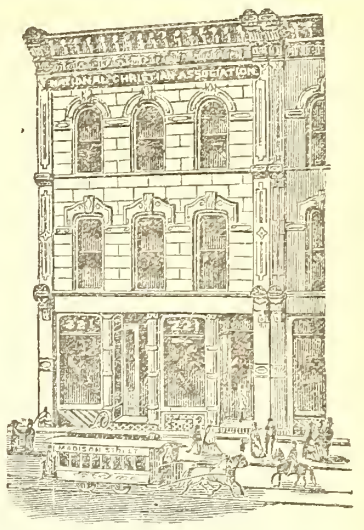
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE, 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N.Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collius, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips. Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Ulsh Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood Barahoo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B. Higgins, Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 10, 1885.

THE SUN RISING IN THE SOUTH.

In winter the sun rises south of us: in summer, north. This wonder of our childhood is repeating itself in the moral world. Morally and mentally the South has had a long, dreary winter. Slavery was a Humboldt glacier, smothering and freezing out the plants of virtue and intelligence. But when slavery fell by Lincoln's proclamation, (Jan., 1863) every good cause lifted up its head: and now Georgia out-runs Maine; and Arkansas, "the dark and bloody ground," bids fair to eclipse Iowa in the race of reform.

The Memphis (Tenn.) Living Way, Nov. 19th, gives a whole page to the anti-secret reform, the tone of which may be judged by a paragraph from a dialogue between a son and his father. Thus:

"Son: Papa, what is a secret lodge?

Papa: It is a p'ace my son, where wicked men and women meet together and consult how to keep dark secrets, and serve the devil

Son: But Pa. Christians belong to them, for Uncle John goes most every week: does he serve the devil?

Papa: Yes my son. Christ said, 'Know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness?' Rom 5: 16."

This center shot at the target is but an average specimen of the whole page.

THE ARKANSAS BAPTIST,

Little Rock, Arkansas, Nov. 15th, seems more moderate and cooler in its tone. It warns against "an effort to create a division among the colored Baptists in Arkansas;" and yet the same number under the head "Attempt to Kill a Baptist Minister," gives a dignified and powerful vindication of the right of Countee and Brinkley to freedom of speech; and a crushing condemnation of their would-be assassins and impudent expulsionists, who order their betters to leave the city, as if Ku-Klux vagabonds and nightly assassins owned the country and the laws. This is an extract:

"When the spirit of secret societies prompts ignorant, vicious men to shoot Baptist preachers who leave and oppose them, and shuts the mouths of their brethren who are in these orders from condemning the outrages or expressing sympathy with a persecuted brother in the church, it is certainly high time for every Christian man to come out from them, and give his time and influence and money to build up the church, Christ's society, established by him to save sinners, care for the poor and sick and do good in every way, and leave the people of the world to manage their societies in their own way."

How this brave, manly, and Christian language contrasts with the craven poltroonery of much of the Northern religious press; which seeks to make an excellent appearance of religion by "philosophy and vain deceit; after the rudiments of the world and not after Christ." No wonder such dreamers want a "probation after death." Their probation is a failure here.

SOUTHERN INSTITUTES—FOR CHRIST AND FOR SATAN.

Rev. Prof. H. Woodsmall, of Iuka, Miss., is now holding "Institutes" for the Baptist preachers, deacons, and Sunday-school teachers of West Tennessee, East Arkansas, and North Mississippi; his appointments run through the entire winter until March. Why not open these institutes to preachers, deacons and teachers of all denominations, leaving them to be conducted by Baptists as now?

Following is an extract from Prof. Woodsmall's series of topics contained in the programme of his institutes. Would that church members would crowd them in masses. Instruction is given on these and other topics by brethren selected:

"The Bible, the Baptist rule of faith and practice;" "Church Polity;" "Being and attributes of God;" "Bible Session;" "The Fall, its results and remedy." "Call, qualifications, etc., of ministers." "Books needed by preachers, and how to use them." "Public Worship, Prayer, Prayer meetings." "Morals and Manners of Pastors." "Atonement." "Marriage and Divorce." "Gospel Temperance." "Person and Work of the Holy Spirit," etc.

These institutes are held under the auspices of the American Baptist Missionary Society of which Prof. Woodsmall is secretary. They constitute a circulating theological seminary: and, if we lay the late drivellings of Andover and the "Progressives," who are seeking to throw light on the economy of God outside of the Scriptures, which he has not thought it necessary to reveal, aside of this honest, straight-forward Gospel work, one almost thinks Mrs. Stowe's prediction in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," that the "last shall become first," and the negro people excel the whites, may now be in process of fulfilment and near to come.

The Cynosure editor hopes ere long to meet these Southern "Apostles and brethren," and consult together for a grand National Institute to seek the best method of work to divorce the gospel of darkness from the Gospel of light: the secret lodge system which now covers, enwraps, and poisons church, family, and state, from those holy institutions which God has given and sanctified by the teachings of Christ.

Prof. Woodsmall sees clearly, and teaches boldly, that the swarms of secret orders which now deluge the South, as the grasshopper armies lately invaded some of the western and south-western States, are devouring the substance, and disintegrating the churches of the 800,000 colored Baptists of the South. But it is not sufficient to show the antagonism of the lodges to the churches of Christ. They must be shown to be heathen, false worships antagonizing God and all goodness.

Those who do not see the Southern newspapers of the colored people can have no idea of these "abominations of desolation," their number or their venom. The Southwestern for October 22d, Marshall W. Taylor, D. D., editor, gives the "Celebration of the Sons and Daughters of Jacob," reported by J. D. Smith, W. G. R., of Home Park Lodge, Mississippi. Five lodges met in Pleasant Green Baptist chapel. "The chapel was crowded in the forenoon with anxious Jacobs and friends to hear Jacobism proclaimed. Rev. W. H. Clark of Colmton, Hinds county, Mississippi, chairman. Religious and other exercises as lodges were held. The following officers were elected: Mrs. M. E. Smith, G. S.; Rev. I. Hight, W. C., and Bro. Redding Braxton, usher. Devotional exercises were conducted by the W. C., I. Hight; after which three times three honors were given by the members. Then followed orations and essays;" when, the writer says, "All discussed the I. O. of the Sons and Daughters of Jacob."

The report shows that the whole thing was mere goblinism, mingled with prayer and feasting, by a set of ignorant blacks, incapable of ordinary English.

Another paper contains "The eighteenth annual session of the most worshipful Grand Lodge of F. and A. T. Masons (colored) of the State of Kentucky." This meeting reports seventeen officers, every one with the prefix, "Grand," to his title, and the proceedings, written in bungling English, are on a par with "The Sons and Daughters of Jacob," given above.

Then we have "Adoptive Masonry" of the Lexington District, Methodist Episcopal, whose presiding elder is Rev. H. W. White, of the Lexington Conference, who is also "Deputy Worthy Venerable Patriarch of the Kentucky jurisdiction of the Eastern Star Court of the West," whose next session is to be held in Toledo, Ohio. The report states that this Eastern Star lodge was derived from France, and, "Its especial value is that it undertakes to better, by classifying and leading women into habits and associations of virtue and usefulness. Only Master Masons, their wives, widows, sisters, daughters, and mothers are eligible to this degree."

There are eighty-two such secret lodges in Louisville alone, and there are above one hundred in the city of Washington; and doubtless a like proportion in other Southern cities. He must be behind indeed, who does not see in these night lodges a reproduction of the "High Places," the national brothels which dissolved the government of the Hebrew commonwealth.

*GARRISON'S MEMOIRS.

We have received for notice two volumes, of the six promised, of William Lloyd Garrison's Life by his two sons, Wendell Phillips Garrison and Francis Jackson Garrison.

The books are handsomely brought out by the Century Company, New York; large octavos, well printed with clear type, on beautiful paper. Thus introduced, the reading public can scarcely do less than to purchase them and read them. But the period which they cover, and the person who is the subject of them, place these volumes in a profoundly interesting light, and will doubtless secure for them a wide circulation.

We give our readers in this Cynosure an able letter from Gen. Wm. Birney, of Washington, D. C.; whose father, Hon. James G. Birney, was voted for as President of the United States by 7,000 Abolitionists in 1840, and by some 67,000, in 1844; and but for a final prostration of his health, might have still led the accumulating anti-slavery hosts at the time of their victory.

*WILLIAM LLOYD GARRISON. 1805-1879. The Story of his Life told by his children. Vol. I. and II. Illustrated. Price for the two volumes $5.00. The Century Co., publishers, New York.

Mr. Garrison opposed political action, when the party was formed at Albany in 1840, with keen and crushing satire; though launched under the auspices of such men as Myron Holley, Gerrit Smith, and other devoted men of great ability and national reputation. Besides his opposition to the Liberty party, Mr. Garrison opposed the doctrine of the Sabbath, regarding all days alike, and treated with utter neglect and contempt all outward religious ordinances, such as baptism and the Lord's Supper, while claiming to be a follower of Christ and a believer in perfect sanctification and holiness in this life. He brought out his peculiar views in a Declaration of Sentiments which he wrote at a single sitting, September 20th, 1838, when the Liberator was six years old; formed a new Non-Resistant Society on the basis of that Declaration, and procured its adoption by a convention of his own followers in Boston, at that date. Following are extracts from the "Declaration:"

"We cannot acknowledge allegiance to any human government.

"We love the land of our nativity only as we love all lands.

"We conceive that if a nation has no right to defend itself against foreign enemies, or to punish invaders, no individual possesses that right in his own case.

"The doctrine that all the governments of the world are approvingly ordained of God, and that 'THE POWERS THAT BE' in the United States, in Russia, in Turkey, are in accordance with his will, is not less absurd than impious.

"As every human government is upheld by physical strength, and its laws are enforced virtually at the point of the bayonet, we cannot hold any office which imposes on its incumbent the obligation to impel men to do right, on pain of imprisonment or death. We therefore voluntarily exclude ourselves from every legislative and judicial body; and repudiate all human politics, worldly honors, and stations of authority. If we cannot occupy a seat in the Legislature or on the Bench, neither can we elect others to act as our substitutes in any such capacity."

The Declaration from which the above are promiscuously taken, fills four close printed, large octavo pages in volume 2d of these Memoirs, pp. 230–4; and a new society was formed to carry these sentiments into practical effect.

It is amazing that a man of Mr. Garrison's mental power should have expected the Abolitionists to follow him in this new departure from the received opinions and practices of civilized society. Yet he did; and he assailed those who refused to follow him and support his paper in the new views with extraordinary bitterness. And when Amos A. Phelps, who was a devoted Abolitionist; Rev. Charles T. Torrey, who died in a Baltimore prison for aiding flying fugitives; the Tappans; Joshua Leavitt, and others, began to draw off and start another Abolition organ in Massachusetts, Mr. Garrison accused, complained of, and, though they acted openly, denounced them as "plotters," who sought the ruin of the anti-slavery cause by destroying him and his paper! From that time Mr. Garrison drew around him a class of men and women who were attracted more by his denunciations of "The Clergy" and their "Corporations" as he was want to call the churches, than by his opposition to slavery.

The senior editor of the Cynosure first met the slavery question in a lyceum at Plattsburg Academy where he was preceptor in 1833, and took the side of Immediate Emancipation. In the two years following, 1834–5, in Andover Theological Seminary, he took the same ground. While here I saw Mr. Garrison for the first time in his office in Boston. He was surrounded by persons who seemed to me dreary, Christless fanatics; without prayer, without Christian ordinances, and whose chief or only concern with religion seemed to be to denounce ministers and professing Christians who neglected or shunned their duty to the slave. Henry C. Wright was a coarse reviler of what ordinary Christians deem sacred. James Boyle, a converted Catholic and evangelist, who became a Garrisonite, said that Christ had come to him, so that he needed neither ordinances nor worships. James Miller McKim, W. T. Allen, Ichabod Codding, C. C. Burleigh, Oliver Johnson, and others, all concerning the faith made shipwreck; and these are the heroes of these volumes. Many of them, as Wright and Allen, became worshipers of familiar spirits, and the Garrison party formed the nucleus of the infidel element of Massachusetts society at the present day. From Andover I entered the lecture field for a year in Pennsylvania, and became nine years a pastor in the city of Cincinnati. When the Tappans, Leavitt, Phelps, and others drew off from Mr. Garrison, Dr. Bailey of the Philanthropist, and with him, the Ohio anti-slavery society to which I belonged, utterly separated from and had nothing to do with the Garrison party. Mr. Garrison was popular in England. This I never understood till I attended the World's Anti-slavery Convention in London, in 1843. I then understood it. Many British Abolitionists hated American principles as well as American slavery. Leavitt, Phelps, and others protested against the drinking usages in their dinner speeches near St. Paul; and they were popular only with the radical English reformers, while Mr. Garrison waived his no-government principles so far as to accept the freedom of the City of Edinburgh from the city government, and paid court to the aristocratic orders. There, as here, it mattered not to him what men did, or did not do, if they endorsed Mr. Garrison and condemned American slavery.

Well, the voting and praying Abolitionists toiled on without the help of the Garrison party. Dr. Bailey's paper was removed to Washington. In 1857 the American Home Missionary Society, which had eleven hundred ministers on their pay-roll, withheld aid from slave-holding churches, till they would clear themselves from slave-holding, and four years later the Republican party was formed at Pittsburgh, and seven years later the slave system fell by the proclamation of a President elected by voting Abolitionists.

Mr. Garrison was an important instrument in the hands of God in arousing the American people to the sin of slave-holding.

"And his deeds as they deserve,
Receive proud recompense.

But it is to be regretted that the volumes under review are infidel in their tone, and countenance the error that those who came off from him after his new society was formed in 1838, were actuated by "sectarianism," "bigotry," etc. How could slavery, the creature of law, have been abolished without votes; and who would have voted had all believed with Mr. Garrison that voting was sin?

"God builds on wants and on defects of mind,
The glory, peace, and virtue of mankind."

J. B.

—Secretary Stoddard returned from Iowa last Saturday moruing in time to enjoy his own fireside during the first cold weather of the season. He writes elsewhere of the Iowa conventions.

—What more appropriate gift for the New Year than the beautiful little volume just issued by the N. C. A., "Between Two Opinions." One must search far and long to find a more valuable book for the family reading these winter evenings.

—Bro. Dissette, who came in from his country eampaign to attend the State convention, started out again Saturday afternoon. His course bears toward the south along the eastern part of the State. He has prepared some finely executed paintings of initiation scenes that give his narrative of personal experience wonderful reality.

—One of the most constant attendants of our Illinois State meetings is Bro. John A. Rouser of Bloomington. He had the satisfaction this year of being among the few from outside the city who were willing to take the time and bear the expense of coming to the convention.

—Last week Tuesday we were honored with a visit from Dr. William Wishart, late of Hayesville, Ohio, who was on his way to Monmouth, Ill., having removed his family to that place. Monmouth will learn to appreciate the worth of her new citizen, and we shall in Illinois find that we have another and an earnest reformer to aid us.

—Bro. E. R. Worrell, son of Rev. B. F. Worrell of Kansas, aud a graduate of Wheaton at last commencement, was married on Thanksgiving day to Miss Clara E. Pickens, at her father's house in Bloom, Ill. Many readers of the Cynosure will join their congratulations with ours.

—The employes of the Chicago postoffice have been querying why the chief accountant should have retained his place and fine salary through the political changes which have taken place since March. The reason is plain to them now. He died suddenly last week and it appeard that he was a member of several secret societies, and had just taken the Scotch Rite degrees up to the 32nd, and had become a Sublime Prince. Of course he was not to be molested.

—Few men of 83 years show the mental and physical vigor of Elder Solomon Knapp, of Joliet, Ill., who preached on Sabbath a Gospel sermon and a funeral discourse, and rose Monday before day with the thermometer at about 14 degrees below zero, to prepare to come to Chicago. His soul is marching on valiantly in the ways of the Lord also, for he never calls at the Cynosure office without looking after his neighbors' subscriptions.

—We are rejoiced to see a letter from Rev. H. Kinsley, of Geneva, Ohio, to Bro. W. B. Stoddard, endorsing the Columbus meetiug. Father Kinsley is now 86 years old, and though he is a superanuated Methodist Episcopal preacher, he yet preaches occasionally. He lately gave a discourse in the M. E. church at Geneva in which he proclaimed Jesus Christ against the secret lodge system with earnestness and power. His name used to be seen often in these columes during the early years of the Cynosure, and would be again most welcome if the infirmities of age will permit.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Dear Cynosure:—Our National Thanksgiving was duly celebrated. There was a general suspension of business; all the departments were closed and public services were held in many churches. Four Presbyterian and one M. E. congregation united in a service at the Central Presbyterian church, a fine new building at the corner of 3d and I streets, N. W. Rev. Dr. Pitzer is pastor, but the sermon was by Rev. Dr. Kelly of the Fourth Presbyterian church. It was of great beauty and power, from the text, Psa. 144: 15: "Blessed is that people whose God is the Lord." The house was crowded, and President Cleveland, coming rather late, was invited to an available seat on the side isle, not far from the entrance.

The most notable Thanksgiving was at the Central Union Mission, 909 Pennsylvania avenue, where the patrons, workers, converts, and the multitude of hungry people were amply provided with food for both body and soul. The services commenced promptly at 12 M., and were conducted by Rev. E. D. Bailey. Many hungry faces waited longingly until 1:30, when the doors of the upper rooms were thrown open and the tables laden with abundance, both of choice and substantial food, were surrounded. They fed the multitude including the people of every condition until 6 P. M. The admirable and remarkable fact was, that there was, as is usual in this mission, an abolition of all caste and color lines. It was my privilege to sit and eat turkey and cranberry sauce, together with oranges and Malaga grapes, beside an ancient African woman, who blessed the Lord for the good gifts from his hand and for the kind hearts that made her welcome. At side tables the street gamins, white and colored, ate drumsticks, sandwiches and fruit, and in turn gave place to another hungry multitude. Between 500 and 600 were fed, and of the broken fragments more than twelve baskets full were sent to poor families who were either too feeble or too proud to come. Meanwhile the religious meeting still continued, and in the evening was marked with great earnestness and power. Quite a number told us that it was the first Thanksgiving, for years, that they had spent in sobriety. Others expressed their determination to lead a new life, and asked the prayers of God's people. Amoug these was a gentleman of fine appearance and culture, and an eloquent speaker, who has since declared entire deliverance, by Divine grace, from the power of evil habit and appetite.

There was but one sad event to mar the joyousness of the occasion. The sudden death of Vice President Hendricks on the 25th. Though not highly distiuguished as a statesman, he had filled important positions as member of the legislature of his State, Representative in the House, Senator and Vice President. He was doubtless an upright man and a patriotic citizen, and was greatly admired by the members of his political party. His death will be most sincerely mourned and all the more from the possible contingency that in the event of the decease of President Cleveland before the meeting of Congress, we should be left without an executive head.

The public buildings which, until only a few weeks ago, were draped in mourning for Gen. Grant are now again in black and all the flags are at half-mast. The President and his household were, as usual, at the First Presbyterian church last Sabbath, and Dr. Sunderland together with an able plea for evangelical religion, made touching allusion to the late Vice President.

H. H. Hinman.

LITERATURE.

Chronic Sore Throat, or Follicular Disease of the Pharynx, its Local and Constitutional Treatment, with a special chapter on Hygiene of the Voice, by E. B. Shuldam, M. D. Pp. 85. Price, $1. W. A. Chatterton, Chicago.

The American people are becoming a nation of speakers and singers, and are learning by many bitter experiences that habits and climate often have a serious effect upon the delicate organism of the voice. Not only are preachers, in multitudes, compelled to give up their chosen occupation, but many in other walks of life have experienced many trials because of throat ailmeuts. The numerous medical advertisments of remedies for the throat are a proof of this fact. A work of valuable character, well authorized and written in popular style must, therefore, be in wide demand. Such a work Dr. Shuldam has eudeavored to produce. He is himself a public lecturer of experience, and has, therefore, happily devoted much of the book to the art of breathing and general hygiene of the voice.

The North American Review for the month is an historical uumber and largely devoted to General Grant. General James B. Fry writes as a friend and companion, yet not as a blind hero-worshiper, of his "Acquaintance with Grant." Col. Fred. Grant responds to a request of the editor with numerous selections from letters and dispatches to show that Halleck was unjust to his father after the capture of Donelson. In his account of the battle of Chattanooga in the Century, General Grant incidentally mentioned some facts which were a severe comment on the patriotism and ability of Rosecrans. The latter general was perhaps the only Roman Catholic Democrat who held high command in our army, and his religion and politics seem both unfortunate for his military record, but his defense of the Chickamauga campaign is ably written, though contradicting pointedly several of Gen. Grant's statements. Israel Green, the army officer whose only claim to a place in history is that he attempted to murder old John Brown, now lives at Mitchell, Dakota. It rouses a just indignation that the Review should give him a place in its columns to tell of his capturing Brown in the old Harper's ferry engine house. Hon. Geo. S. Boutwell writes of "Johnson's Plot and Motives" in pushing forward his reconstruction policy. Other articles are "The Progress of Texas," "Rome and the Inquisitions," "A Chapter on Monetary Policy," and "A Disfranchised People."

The English Illustrated Magazine issues a holiday double number and fairly excels in illustration all its preceeding issues. The twelve full-page illustrations are the strongest feature of the number. Head of the Figure of Fortune, Ross Castle, The Eagle's Nest, Study of a Head, Dinan, Well at Callac, Pottery Making at Laimion, Shrine at Ploumauach, My Sweetheart, The Confession of Love, The Wife of Pygmalion, A Scene in Heligoland. A chapter from the Spectator of Addison on Sir Roger de Coverly is well illustrated with striking and amusing cuts, and a character sketch of the "House of Lords" has a number of humerous drawings to which several leaders of English public opinion have involuntarily lent their portraits. "Through the Cotes du Nord" is a pen and pencil sketch of the peasantry of one of the Freuch provinces. This magaziue has undoubtedly found that competition with the Century and Harper's Monthly is no child's play, but its work in this number shows it a fair rival in the the character and execution of its illustrations.

The December number of Dio Lewis' Nuggets starts out with an article on the subject of the Chinese in California. The subject is treated from the standpoint of Dr. Lewis' personal experience with them during a three years' sojourn on the Pacific coast. Whoever reads this first article will want to keep on until the number is finished, which is made up of selected and original articles from the writings of Dr. Lewis.

The American Agriculturist, for December, 1885, is the largest number issued during its half century existence. It contains a large number of full page and smaller illustrations, executed by Edwin Forbes, Bennett and other well-known artists. D. D. T. Moore writes on "Seasonable Duties of Farmers;" Seth Green descants on "Farmers and Fish Culture;" Chester P. Dewey discourses upon "The Milk Supply of Cities;" Jos. Harris writes about "Our Apple Harvest;" M. C. Weld discourses upon "Cross Breed Beef Cattle;" Dr. Geo. Thurber contributes numerous articles on horticulture. "Fruit in the Southern States;" Andrew S. Fuller tells how to secure early fruitage from grafts and cuttings of fruit trees; D. W. King presents drawings of a cheap house adapted to either village or country. The Household and Children's Departments are unusually interesting, while the Humbug Department exposes several uew frauds. The Agriculturist is clubbed with the Cynosure for $2.50 per year. The fine new Everybody's Law Book will be sent also for an additional 45 cents.

—The continuation of the Supreme Council history this week has special interest that because of this same quarrel among the 33ds, Rev. Henry D. Moore, editor of the Masonic Review, of Cincinnati, has just been tried, found guilty, and sentenced to indefinite suspension, virtually expelled, by a secret lodge court of high Masons appointed by the Grand Commander of the Knight Templar Masons of Ohio. An article was published in the Review apparently recognizing the Cerneau, or United States Council, as of equal authority as Pike's. Judge Foraker, governor-elect of Ohio, is Moore's counsel and will appeal to the Grand Commandery.

THE HOME.

QUIETNESS AND ASSURANCE.

God works in silence, and his vast designs
Are brought to pass in quietness and peace;
Unheralded the sun comes forth at morn,
And without tumult on the nations shines;
Unwept again his ministrations cease,
And twilight worlds are born.

The years sweep onward, but their chariot wheels
Vouchsafe no echo to our yearning call:
The swift attendant seasons as they pass
Are shod with silence, and no sound reveals
The rapid hours, whose steps are as the fall
Of snowflakes on the grass.

In quietness through dreary winter days
The buds of next year's summer take their rest,
Assured of happy waking by-and-by;
Though long the sweetness of the spring delays,
Though tempests move in wrath from east to west,
They neither strive nor cry.

Patient in long reserve of hidden power,
God's judgments tarry their appointed time,
But from his love, wherein all fulness dwells,
Mute tokens come about us hour by hour,
In silence sweeter than the voiceless chime
Of fragrant lily bells.

The perfect bliss for which his people crave—
The final victory—he sees across
The cloud and sunshine of a thousand years;
While the frail garland on a baby's grave
May circumscribe life's utmost gain and loss
To eyes grown dim with tears!

Oh, troubled heart, no storms of adverse fate,
No wave of circumstance may overleap
The jasper borders of eternity;
Acquaint thyself with him, and soon or late
He shall appoint a resting-place for sleep
Wherein no dreams shall be.

He giveth quietness and peace serene
Here and hereafter, unto those who rest
Son!-centered on his own eternal calm;
While sweet assurance entering realms unseen
Leads onward to the triumph of the blest,
The white robe and the palm!

—Mary Rowles, in Leisure Hour.

"YE HAVE NEED OF PATIENCE."

"Unheard because our ears are dull
Unseen because our eyes are dim,
He walks the earth—the Wonderful—
And all good deeds are done to him."

—Whittier.

A long, bright, perfect day in June. A day with a cloudless brow, and a face radiant within its own blissfulness. A day to which only the wild, jubilant notes of the bobolink are a fitting prelude. A day in which to breathe in life with every breath, and with every breath to bless the Giver.

"The day is golden to its close," thought Barbara Clifford, the district school teacher, as she walked slowly toward her boarding-house. But the tone was weary. She did not feel that this had been a golden day. All through the bright hours she had listened to the careless moving of books and slates, the dull, tiresome buzz of children's voices, irksomely familiar. And now, the drooping spirit was insensible to the magic of nature's beauty.

"How pale and tired you look, Barbara!" said the kind-hearted landlady, "hadn't you better lie down and rest a little before tea?"

"Perhaps I will," replied Barbara, glad to get away to the quiet of her own chamber. But her heart was too restless for repose, and she knelt beside the open window, leaning her head on her clasped hands. and thought.

"Another day of this wearisome, useless life gone. How many will tell the sum total, I wonder? I am twenty-four years old. What have I given the Maker for these years? I toil from sun to sun, only to earn my bread; and what is that life worth that is only spent to prolong its own existence? I have no talent to bless the world, no wealth to aid it, no time ever to make my life lovely and attractive. Oh, this crushing sense of utter worthlessness! to feel that one has the heart and soul but not the brain of genius; its fire and passion without its power. Only those who endure it know how hard it is to force the hands to perform their daily, trivial labor when the heart has refused to support them." The brown head dropped lower, and tears fell on the window-sill.

"Master, I have not been accounted worthy to glean in the whitening fields, but I have searched in the highways and hedges, yet not so much as a flower can I find to lay at thy nail-pierced feet."

The hopeless prayer was scarcely recorded, e'er a sudden calm fell around her, and soft and sweet, as only His voice can speak to the soul, was whispered, "Ye have need of patience." Oh, what a loving reminder of his promise! And the penitent prayer that followed, brought sweet peace, as only those know who place their hopeless, useless lives unquestionably in his hands.

Before she slept that night, she took her writing desk and wrote:

"Dear Little Maggie: I am very tired to night, but I cannot sleep without telling you how constantly I think of you. How often I ask the loving Saviour to bless you and lead you. My little motherless girl! We have both a mother on the other side of that jasper wall that we read about. They are waiting for us to come. Every day, I ask myself, 'Has my little Maggie kept close to me to-day, and have we walked together toward heaven?' Read often the lessons we learned in the Bible. I shall write you a long letter when I am rested. Don't forget that I love you and pray for you always. BARBARA CLIFFORD.

In the cottage across the field from where Barbara boarded, a widow toiled to support herself and two children. And to-night as she bends over her sewing, her face bears the marks of a sharper anguish than toil or poverty can give.

Her little girl by her side sewing on a garment much too heavy for her slender hands, hums a pretty tune, and the look of contentment on her childish face strangely contrasts with the mother's. Presently the widow lays down her work.

"Connie, come here," and clasping her arms around the child, she asks:

"What makes my little girl so different lately from what she used to be?"

A bright eager look came over the child's face.

"Am I really different, mother?"

"Very different; what causes it, my dear?"

"Well, mother, you know how I love Miss Clifford, and at school I try to get my lessons to please her. But one day I could not get my geography lesson; I had tried and tried, but could not remember the place. and it was 'most time for the class to be called. I didn't know the teacher was 'round and I laid my head down on the desk and was going to cry, when Miss Clifford bent over me and whispered, 'Try again, little one; I'll give you an extra ten minutes. And somehow after that I got the lesson right off. And that night, after school, she said, 'Connie, I'll walk with you a little way;' and she told me that she had noticed how penitent I was, and that I tried so hard to get my lessons. I was so glad she noticed it. Then she said, the Lord Jesus noticed if we were patient and tried to learn the lessons he gave us, and if we tried and failed he would always give us more time to learn them in; and she asked me to love him and pray to him; and I do, and I am so happy because I am learning his lessons."

The mother held the child close to her beating heart. She, too, had been learning his lessons, but it brought no peace to the rebellious heart. But the crust of stubborn unbelief was breaking up. The long sealed fountain flowed at last. The patient, earnest effort of the Christian teacher had led the little lamb to its Shepherd, and now the mother followed. And that night she committed herself and her two orphaned children to Him who is able to keep them till his appearing.

"O mother, I shall have such a long night, to-night, I know!' and the sick boy moaned wearily, and tried to turn his weak and shrunken body in his bed.

"A long night, when He will watch with you?" said a sweet voice.

"O Miss Clifford, is it you? You mean the Saviour don't you?"

"Yes, Jamie,,' and laying her hand softly on the brow, that was soon to wear its crown, she told of that terrible night when his dearest disciples would not watch with him one hour, and how, since then, he had never refused to watch with his children through the longest, darkest hours.

"You are very near the kingdom, Jamie; you will be patient to the end?"

The large wistful eyes met her's, filled with the light that is not of this world. The gates of pearl were swinging back.

"I will be faithful unto death," he said, slowly, and Barbara left him; but the invisible Presence sat by his bedside. He was not alone, the Lord would watch with him "amid the shadow of earth's 'little while.'"

Let us follow Barbara's letter.

In the attic chamber of a dismal-looking house, a black-haired, black-eyed girl stands; her bare arms, ridged with red marks left by the lash of a whip. Not a trace of tears on her face, dark with a passion, terrible in one so young. The Spanish eyes glittered, and from the set teeth is hissed:

"The old Satan! if she dares to lick me again, I'll kill her!"

The door opens from below. "Here's a letter for you Mag," and Barbara's letter is thrown to the top of the stairs.

The child grasps it ere it scarce touches the floor. Only one person in the wide world would write to her. The gleam has faded from the black eyes, and as she reads, they grow soft and velvety as the heart of a pansy.

She trembles as she reads the last words, then falls upon the floor, and sobs shake the childish form. Then she creeps to a small darkened closet, and, with tears dropping upon the hands clasped over Barbara's letter, prays:

"Lord Jesus, make me just like her. I will try hard to be good, show me how. I'm awful wicked, but she loves me, so please forgive me."

Weeks afterwards, as Barbara walked home, after a weary, trying day at school, she stopped at the post-office and received a letter, whose wretched superscription could belong to none but Maggie. It read:

"Dear Teacher: I'm trying real hard to read. I'm not good, but I'm trying. I'm ever so much better than I used to be. I've learned all the verses you marked in my Bible you gave me, and say them every day, and pray some days lots of times. I read your letters to Mrs. Harding, and once when you spoke of your little sister dying, I see her crying a little. She had a little boy once. I guess she is trying to be good. She don't lick me now. I pray for her every day. Please write awful often, or I'm afraid I'll get wicked. I love you forever and ever.

MAGGIE."

"Dear, brave little soul," said Barbara, with trembling lips. And she lifted a prayer of gratitude that the wind had been tempered to the shorn lamb.

But she did not know that it was her long labor and patient tenderness that had won this strange, passionate child to walk in her teacher's footsteps. She did not know that the childish heart that had not yet learned "for Jesus' sake," plead, "She loves me, please forgive."

Her's was not the loud-toned ministry. Only a gentle taking of the hand, and leading to that gate that has no crooked paths. Just the tender telling of that old, old story, all the more precious, because done under "the least of these."

Sowing beside the waters, going forth weeping, bearing the seed of eternal blessedness. Barbara Clifford walked life's lowly ways. And though she saw him not, beside her walked the gleaming Angel, and gathered the priceless sheaves she bound.

And in that day, when earth's jewels are set in heaven's diadem, He who counts the heart's sacrifice shall judge if the patient life was worthless.—Maine Farmer.

POPPING CORN.

Oh, the sparkling eyes,
In a fairy ring!
Ruddy glows the fire,
And the corn we bring,
Tiny lumps of gold,
One by one we drop,
Give the pan a shake,
Pip! pop! pop!

Pussy on the mat
Wonders at the fun;
Merry little feet
Round the kitchen run,
Smiles and pleasant words
Never, never stop;
Lift the cover now,
Pip! Pop! pop!

What a pretty change,
Where's the yellow gold?
Here are snowy lambs
Nestling in the fold;
Some are wide awake,
On the floor they hop;
Ring the bell for tea!
Pip! pop! pop!

—Our Little Ones.

ESKIMO BABY-LIFE.

When a baby Eskimo's mother makes the hood for her reindeer suit, she stretches it into a long sack or bag, that hangs down behind and is supported by the shoulders, and this bag of reindeer's skin is his cradle and home, where he lives until he knows how to walk, when he gets into his first suit of clothing.

This, however, is while the baby Eskimo is out-of-doors or his mother is making a social visit. When at his own home, in order not to trouble his mother while she is sewing or cooking or doing such other work, the little babe is allowed to roll around almost without clothing, among the reindeer skins that makes the bed, where it amuses itself with anything it can lay its hands on, from a hatchet to a snow-stick.

You doubtless think little Boreas should have a nice time rolling around to his heart's content on the soft, warm reindeer skins; but when I tell you more about his little home, you may not think so. For his winter home is built of snow.

"But wont the snow melt and the house tumble in?" you will ask. Of course it will, if you get it warmer than just the coldness at which water freezes; but during the greater part of the year it is so cold that the snow will not melt, even when the Eskimo burn fires in their stone lamps inside these snow houses; so by closely regulating the amount of the fire, they can just keep the snow from melting. In short, it must always be cold enough in their home to freeze.

So you can see that the little Eskimo can not have such a very nice time, and you can't see how in the world he can be almost naked all day when it is so cold. But such is the fact.

Yet, in spite of all this, the little fellow really enjoys himself. He gets used to the cold, and has great fun frolicking around on the reindeer skins and playing with his toys: and when I have told you some other stories about the cold these little folks can endure, you can understand how they can enjoy themselves in the snow huts, or igloos, as they call them, when it is only a little colder than freezing.

At times the fire will get too warm in the snow house, and then the ceiling will commence melting, —for you all, perhaps, have learned at school that when a room becomes warmed it is warmer at the ceiling and cooler near the floor. So with the hut of snow: it commences melting at the top because it is warmer at the ceiling and cooler near the floor,— and when two or three drops of cold water have fallen on the baby's bare shoulders, his father and mother finds that it is getting too warm, and cuts down the fire.

When the water commences dropping, the mother will often take a snow-ball from the floor, where it is colder than freezing, and stick it against the point where the water is dripping. There it freezes fast and soaks up the water just like a sponge until it becomes full; and then she removes it. and puts on another,as soon as it commences to drip again. Sometimes she will forget to remove it, and when it gets soaked and heavy with water and warm enough to lose its freezing hold, down it comes! perhaps right on the baby's bare back, where it flattens out like a slushy pancake,—or into his face, as it once served me.—Lieut. Frederick Schwatka, in St. Nicholas.

BOOKS FOR CHILDREN.

Children usually have but one object in reading, and that is to amuse themselves. Left alone they select those books which give them the most pleasure. What these books are depends on the character of each child's mind. It becomes very important, therefore, that parents and teachers, whose duty it is to guide children in a choice of books, do not let there objects of mental discipline, instruction or formation of literary taste, oppose too strongly the child's object, which is amusement.

No instructive reading appeals so strongly to children as books of travel, They contain a flavor of adventure, and in their descriptions of strange places and persons they satisfy the love of the novel and marvelous. Fortunately, of late, many excellent books of travel have been written. "Rollo's Tour in Europe" continues to be a standard, although the Paris of to-day is hardly the Paris Rollo saw. For younger readers we have the delightful "Bodley Books," and for the older children the equally delightful "Zig-Zag Journeys." Of somewhat less worth, though still good books, are Thomas Knox's "Boy Travellers." Boys in their teens enjoy R. H. Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast," and also Mrs. Brassey's "Round the World in the Yacht Sunbeam." Higginson's "Book of American Explorers" is full of exciting adventure and useful knowledge.

Next to books of travel, works of history and of biography are of the greatest interest to young people. Dicken's "Child's History of England," and Higginson's "Young Folks' History of the United States," afford a comprehensive knowledge of the chief facts in the history of the English-speaking nations. There are also many historical stories which give an acquaintance with the greatest men and the most important epochs. Hawthorne's "True Stories" are perhaps the best, but Miss Striekland's "Stories from History," and Miss Yonge's "Cameos from English History," "Church's "Tales from Homer," Lanier's "Froissart's Chronicles" and "King Arthur for Boys," are exeellent. Towle's 'Heroes of History," and Miss Strickland's "Lives of the Queens of England," will interest any child who has thirst for historical knowledge.

Religious readiug for children should be most carefully seleeted. It seems a hard thing to say, but yet it is to be feared that it is true, that children are better off without most of the so-called religious stories of the day. So large a proportion of them teach false ideas of Christianity and life, that it becomes a difficult task to seleet any that can be recommended. Although religious books for the young have poured from the presses the last few years, I am not aware that any improvement has been made over the books extant twenty years ago. Mrs. Barbauld's "Early Lessons for Children," and "Evenings at Home;" "Line upon Line," and its companion books,—when read to a child, are among the best of religious books. But, above all, the Bible itself, in its simple and quaint language, has a wonderful fascination for children of all ages. "Christ in Art," an illustrated quarto containing the Gospel narrative woven into a continuous history, is a work for a child to treasure. Miss Havergal has written two little books of devotion for children, which are admirably adapted to the purpose for which they were intended. "Morning Stars" and "Little Pillows" will prove great aids in establish ing the habit of devotion in children.

In regard to a love for poetry children greatly differ. Few children are fond of the higher forms of this literature, but most are attracted by the jingle and rhythm of some kinds of poetry. The love of it is of slow growth, and can be fostered only by allowing the boys and girls to read such poetry as interests them. Scott will usually attract young people in their teens. Some excellent eolleetions of poems have been made especially for children. "Rhymes and Jingles," for the very little ones who are surfeited by Mother Goose, will be fouud a genuine delight. "Yonng Folks' Book of Poetry," by Campbell, will suit the next older set of boys and girls. Eliot's "Poetry of Childhood," and Whittier's "Child Life," are suited to a still more advanced age; and in these the reader will find genuine poetical thought and expression.

A large number of miscellaneous books for young folks may be recommended. E. E. Hale's "How to do It" offers suggestions on reading, writing, and conversation. "The Book of Golden Deeds," by Miss Yonge, tells of some of the heroic acts which have blessed the world. "Bits of Talk about Home Matters," by H. H., is full of wise and practical suggestions. "Politics for Young Amerieans, by Nordhoff, gives young America an insight into the workings of our political system. "The Child's Book of Nature" introduces the reader to some of the wonders of the physical world.

How a child reads is, after all, more important than what he reads. The practice of reading aloud is one to be encouraged. No reading is half so beneficial as family reading. When the father and mother, the big brothers and little sisters sit down together and enjoy the same book, it is a day to be marked with a red line. The little folks can ask queer questions, and the older ones answer them, until even a dry book takes on the color of a romance.

A son of a professor in one of our schools expressed a desire to read dime novels. His father told him if he really wished to read some of these books, he would take him to a railway-stand, and buy a few, and read them together. "But," said he, "I know another book which you would like just as well. Suppose we read together 'A Tour on the Praries,' from the 'Crayon Miseellany' of Washingtou Irving." The boy assented. They read the book together to the enjoyment and improvement of both. Having read the "Tour on the Prairies" with his father, and having become familiar with Irving's style, the boy was prepared to go on alone with the "Sketch Book," and other of Irving's works. Whether a book will bear reading aloud is a good test of its value.

It is a mistake to confine the reading of children to juvenile books. They should early be taught to use books understandingly. Most homes have at least the Bible, a dictionary, some kind of atlas and a cyclopædia. With these books a child should be made thoroughly familiar. The least desire for information on any subject which he may show, or be induced to show, should be turned to account. A little girl asks, "Mamma, how long will it take Aunt Mary to get home to Chicago?" Induce her to take her atlas, and find Chicago. Show her the scale of miles at the foot of the map, and explain its use. She ean estimate the distance very exactly. If she asks how to spell or pronounce a word, send her to the dictionary, if she asks a date, send her to cyelopædia. Whether your library is large or small, see that the children understand how to use it. They will soon love the books like old friends. Chapters can be selected from almost any history or biography that will interest a child. I have known a boy of ten to read Harvey's "Webster" with great avidity. Let only good books come into the house; and, if taught how to use these, a foundation for habits of good reading is laid.—From "Reading of Books," by Chas. F. Thawing.

TEMPERANCE.

CHARGED WITH FIVE CRIMES.

BY V. M. PEEL.

Even in Chicago, a man would stand but a poor chance for his life, if five distinct crimes could be as clearly charged upon him as they will be in the ease we propose to consider. He might as well begin to pray, unless he were very wealthy, or stood high in Freemasonry. (Such people seldom pray until death stares them in the face.) But Christ will save even saloon-keepers, and make honest, useful citizens of them, if they but confess and forsake their sins. "He that confesseth and forsaketh, shall find mercy."

I. WHOLESALE, UNPROVOKED MURDER.

The liquor traffie is a withering curse to any community that tolerates it. In this life it produces despair, not hope; misery, not happiness; sickness, not health; death, not life; and after blighting, cursing and ruining men's lives in this world, it eonsigns them to an eternal hell in the next. The men engaged in the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors of all kinds in the United States, in 1884, killed 100,000 of our people—90,000 men and 10,000 women! And the people, the victims among the rest, actually gave them legal right to do it, by the way their ballots were cast. I voted to prohibit this monstrous crime, but my friends who fondly clung to the Republican party, voted to continue it, by "throwing away their votes" in favor of license. I am sorry to say that this class actually included a few ministers of the Gospel of Jesus. But I feel better when I remember that some of them have since said to me personally, "I won't do it next time." Unless Christians, especially preachers, will vote as they pray, there's no hope for a better state of things.

II. WANTON DESTRUCTION OF PROPERTY.

Inthis eountry the liquor traffic destroys every year $1,400,000,000, with no benefit to man or beast. This equals $2,500,000 a day; and this in twenty years equals all the assessed property in the United States, and must be carned agaiu by the hard toil of the people. And this is done, year in, year out, mainly by men whose families most need their earnings. When will the poor, hard-working men of our nation cease to let in this thief at their months to steal away, at once, their bread-and-butter and their brains? The very class that most urgently need prohibitiou, the laboring meu, are so iguorant on this all-important subject and so full of party prejudice that you ean hardly get them to listen to even a brief statement of faets. By virtue of their political affiliations, and the servitude in which they are held by a few erafty, scheming office seekers, they remain wedded to their destroyer, the liquor interest. God help you, men! Break loose! From heneeforth esteem the welfare of yourselves and your families as more worthy of your cousideration and your vote, than a rotten old party!

III. BREEDING ALL MANNER OF CRIME.

The best information available shows that of the 315,000 criminals that yearly crowd our prisons aud seaffolds, rum furnishes 84 per cent—nearly nine-tenths of all crimes committed in our country are due to this "legitimate business" of making and vending intoxicating drinks! To this souree nearly all murders, highway robberies, aud the deepest crimes generally, particularly belong. For, no matter how base a man may be at heart, he ordinarily possesses sufficient self-control to behave himself, and not to harm another unprovoked. He will not commit these blacker crimes when his reason is enthroned and his mind clear; but when his reason is befogged, and his whole miud temporarily upset by liquor, he is ready for the most fiendish acts. In short, this hellish trade is the father of all crimes, the sum of all villainies, the devil's best friend, the poor mau's worst enemy. Poor men, rich meu, men who love your fellow man, men who fear God and expect to render to him an account, what are you going to do about this matter?

IV. MAKING PAUPERS AND TRAMPS.

In our "free country" nearly $80,000,000 are yearly paid for the support of 536,000 liquor-paupers. This is the regular liquor-pauper tax, a large share of which must be paid by men and women who never touch liquor, and who are in no way responsible for the enormous list of dependent beings whom they must mainly support. Isn't this taxation without representation? The vast bulk of paupers in this country are "representatives" of work done in the saloons. Who ought to support these people, whose fortunes and means of living have been taken from them by saloon-keepers, brewers, and distillers? Any man of honesty and common sense must feel constrained to answer, "The men who are responsible for their condition." But they don't do it.

Then, there's the army of tramps that infest the land. Most of them are young fellows, from eighteen to twenty-five. Before forming dissolute, drinking habits, these were the young hopefuls of their fond parents, the subjects of their mother's prayers. Their future looked as bright and promising as anybody's. But, full of self-confidence and unwilling to heed timely admonition, they sought diversion in the society that hangs about the club-rooms and pool-rooms. The glass of beer with a friend soon fastened the awful appetite. Their habits soon grew loose and, before they were fully aware of it, they were out of employment, without any settled home or definite purpose in life, knocking about the country, stealing their transportation and begging their bread. Public sentiment is so corrupt that young men receive the impression, before they are old enough to vote, that it is a reproach to have it said that they are Prohibitionists. For shame!

Young men, with characters yet unsullied, two things you need to satisfy your mothers' hopes and to glorify your God—grace and grit. Jesus has the former for you; the latter, to some extent at least, is your heritage as Americans, and may be developed. For want of these, thousands of the brightest and most promising youths of our nation are being sacrificed upon the altars of rum and sensuality. If you would be men, learn to think and act for yourselves.

V. STEALING CHARITY FUNDS.

In 1879, during the Irish famine, this and other countries sent $6,305,000 to save the people from starving. They took this charity and the same year drank up $46,875,800 of their own money. Thus charity was betrayed.—The Voice.

Can she do no better with her hard earnings than to feed the voracious maw of rum? I believe Ireland is oppressed, and feel sorry for her. But so long as the Irish people continue to squander their means for the gratification of an ungodly, self-created appetite, and their time, which should be spent in earnest, intelligent work, in fighting with British police and watching their chance to dynamite somebody because he's English, I can't see what right they've got to ask us to help them. Can you?

And the worst feature of the whole thing is that the curse is yearly attaining vaster proportions, and the people don't seem to be alive to a sense of their duty. U. S. statistics show that during the last twenty years distilled liquors have increased three times as fast as our population, and beer twenty-three times. For a hundred years we have tried to regulate it, and now we pay seventeen times more for saloons than for common schools, and have twelve times as many saloons as churches. We pay three times more for poison-drink than for bread, and $270 for this broth of hell, to every dollar for home and foreign missions for the salvation of immortal souls.

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

down, but can be overthrown only by the most persistent warfare on the front line, and strengthened by the aid of our Father.

Last Sabbath I preached to our (United Brethren) people at Twin Brooks, from Rom. 12: 2, making it a point to meet all conformity to the world, which certainly included the evils of secrecy as found in the lodge. The church class here have passed a resolution to allow no member to fellowship in any "major" or "minor" "order," and thus sustain me in my position on this question. There were two Good Templars (at least) in the audience, and the children of one or two Masons, and all I said against the "orders" was carefully noted.

After service, as I was passing through the crowd one of the G. T.'s who had shaken his head very emphatically many times during the services when I struck at the Christ-rejecting principles of the lodge, said: "You had no business to preach that sermon; you told what you do not know. I know more Christians in secret societies than you have in the U. B. church." I remarked that I knew some good people in the secret societies, but that the principle of organized secrecy was no less an evil than I had made it, and added that I not only knew all I had said, but could demonstrate satisfactorily much more.

The other Good Templar is a warm friend of mine, and although he is Deputy G. W. C. Templar of Dakota, I think he will leave the lodge soon. A sister remarked to me that I had now "stirred up a hornet's nest," and would soon be unpopular in this community outside of the church, but she urged me to battle on.

The element is now aroused, and the community is very generally in favor of secrecy, and our people are few, and most of them are very young, so that I am at a critical place and time; but as Dr. Talmage has said, "Four and Almighty God are a majority;" and I have more than the majority, and a faith that keeps me firmly trusting in Jesus, and I do not court popular favor. I'd rather be right without a friend than have all the lodge-worshipers on my side.

I am anxious to organize a branch of the National Christian Association here, and gather up the anti-secretists and educate the young and rising generation to reject the lodge-worship around us. I desire the prayers of the praying readers of the Cynosure, that I be blessed and encouraged to go on. Yours fraternally, C. E. WALKER, (U. B. Pastor.)

THE CHURCHES.

—At Company Shops, N. C., Bishop H. H. M. Turner, of the African M. E. E. church, ordained to the ministry Miss Sarah A. Hughes (colored), the service exciting intense interest among the congregation. The bishop hesitated for a time before placing his hands upon her head.

—Rev. W. W. McMillan, for many years pastor of the Covenanter church at Olathe, Kans., has resigned.

—The Kansas Reformed Presbyterian Presbytery passed the following resolutions at their meeting in Hebron, Oct. 14th:

"1. That this Presbytery has heard the address of Rev. R. Loggan, Kansas State Lecturer of the N. C. A., with much pleasure, and pledge him and the cause he represents our moral and material support and encouragement, and recommend him and the anti-secret cause to the favor and support of all our congregations.

2. That we utterly condemn Masonry as Christless and directly antagonistic to Christianity, and blasphemous in many of its rites, and warn all our people against being trapped thereby."

—The annual meeting of the Foreign Sunday school Association was lately held. This society aids the Sabbath-school work in foreign lands, employing missionaries and distributing literature. It prints eight children's papers, and there are schools in India, China, Japan, Portugal, Spain, Germany, France and Italy that almost owe their existence to these papers.

—Messrs. Moody and Sankey will conduct services in the hall of the Young Men's Christian Association Rooms, of Brooklyn, for one week, beginning December 8. A choir of a hundred voices, led by Mr. George Stebbins, will sing at these meetings. New Brighton, Staten Island, expects a brief visit from the evangelists during the same month.

—The Illustrated Christian Weekly says the Nyanza Mission, in Central Africa, of the Church Missionary Society, has had another severe affliction in the martyrdom of three of its young converts. They were bound alive to a scaffolding, under which a fire was made, and they were slowly roasted to death. Their persecutors taunted them, bidding them pray to Isa Masiya, Jesus Christ, and see if he would rescue them. The lads clung to their faith, singing their hymns in the fire. One of their tormentors was so impressed by their Christian fortitude that he has determined to learn to pray also.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER.

TOPICS SUGGESTED BY THE EVANGELICAL ALLIANCE FOR EXHORTATION AND PRAYER JANUARY 3–10, 1886.

Sunday Jan. 3—Sermons.—"Occupy till I come—Luke 19: 13.

Monday, Jan. 4—Praise and Thanksgiving.—For the spirit of prayer vouchsafed to us; for all the bounties of Providence; for God's long suffering goodness in that he has not taken away his Holy Spirit from us on account of our little faith and many provocations; for his faithful promises in Christ Jesus; for continuing and multiplying opportunities of proclaiming his Gospel of grace; for the progress of Christian missions among Jews and Gentiles, and the free course given to the Word of the Lord, notwithstanding all the opposition of infidelity and abounding iniquity. Psa. 147. 2 Sam. 6: 12–19. Psa. 116. 1 Chron. 29: 10–15. Isa. 61. Acts 4: 18–33. Isa. 54.

Tuesday, Jan. 5—Humiliation and Confession.—National sins; social sins; personal sins. Want of appreciation of the love of Christ; hardness of heart; unfaithfulness and slothfulness in service; false shame in confessing the Name of Christ before men, and especially among our own class and kindred. Want of zeal in missionary work, both at home and abroad. Want of brotherly kindness and charity. —Isa. 58. Psa. 51. Rom. 2. 1 Cor. 3. Isa. 47. Jer. 3: 12–23. 1 Thess. 5.

Wednesday, Jan. 6—Home and Foreign Missions. —For the revival and increase of a missionary spirit in the hearts of all who believe; for Home Missions and evangelistic efforts—that more laborers, full of the spirit of love and power, may be sent forth, and that a great ingathering of souls may take place; for native Christians among the heathen, that they may be kept steadfast and zealous in seeking the salvation of their countrymen; for missionaries and teachers, that great grace and wisdom may be given to them; for God's ancient people, Israel, that they may be brought into the faith of Christ; and for the maintenance of religious liberty in all lands.—Ezek. 37. Acts 10: 34–48. Rom. 11: 22–36. Joel 2: 21–32. Acts 26: 12–23. 1 Thess. 1. Micah 4. Zech. 4.

Thursday, Jan. 7—The Church and the Family.— That the church of Christ may be more united in the bonds of faith and love; that, holding fast the head, it may grow with the increase of God; that it may be delivered from false apostles and wolves in sheep's clothing; that Christ may be all in all in its teaching; and that the grace and power of the Holy Spirit may rest more and more on Christian families; on all instructors and pupils in institutions of learning, on Sunday schools and on Christian Associations of young men and young women.—Eph. 4: 1–24. John 15: 1–12. John 17: 6–26. Col. 3: 1–17. Prov. 23: 13–26. Gal. 5. Acts 20: 28–38. Epistle Jude. Prov. 4.

Friday, Jan. 8—Nations and Governments.—For rulers and all in authority; for the spread of justice and peace; for the defeat of malicious plots and conspiracies; for the manifestation of a Christian spirit between employers and employed; for the removal of all race and sectional prejudicies; for the abolition of traffic in slaves, opium, and intoxicating drinks, and all other immoral trades and parctices; for a favorable reception of Christian missionaries by heathen rulers and peoples; and for the coming of Christ in his kingdom.—1 Tim. 2: 1–6. Psa. 11. 2 Tim. 3. 2 Thess. 2. Psa. 72. Rom. 13: 1–8 Psa. 29. Mat. 24: 29–51.

Saturday, Jan. 9—The Christian Life—For increase of Faith, Hope, and Charity; for the deepening of our spiritual life in Christ and such conformity to him as may fit us for being more used for our Saviour's glory; for more love to the Bible; for the better observance of the Lord's day and of family worship; for the success of efforts to prevent or cure intemperance, to relieve the sick and to rescue the perishing; for benevolent institutions and Christian work of all kinds.—Eph. 1: 15–23. Mat. 9. 1 Cor. 13. Phil. 2: 1–16 and 4: 1–13. Rom. 12. James 1.

Sunday, Jan. 10—Sermons.—"Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning; and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord."—Luke 12: 35–36.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year.
clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

BUSINESS.

The Christian Cynosure is sent to some who have never subscribed for it, by some friend in order that you may become acquainted with its principles, and if possible that you may be lead to hearty co operation in its work. You will be notified when the time paid for has expired, and you will not be called upon to pay for any copies you may receive.

THE TIME HAS COME for the greatest activity in securing new subscribers and the renewal of old ones. In behalf of the cause, many thsnks are due to you who are continuing the contest against the power of the lodge. It is a contest for Christ against Satan. The Cynosure in the home is a mighty power in this reform. How many homes will you bless with it this year?

P. B. Bates of Constantine, Michigan, writes:

I prefer the Cynosure to any other reading matter we have. I value it especially for Sabbath reading, I will say now that I will try and get more names for the Cynosure this year."

Mrs. M. M. Ames of Menominee, Wis, writes: "We will look after renewals, etc., as best we are able."

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

Names of those sending in cash for Cynosure from Dec. 1st to 5th inclusive: L. B. Lathrop, Glover Milton, M. A. Harris, Jas. Kennedy, Peter Brane, W. W. Roberts, G. T. Dissette, Burgess Gaddis, Dr. A. Benham, I. H. Hall, J. A. Rouser, Robert Burk, Jno. M. Clark, J. J. Bower, Wesley Roscoe, A. C. Jennings, M. R. Britten, Peter Howe, Mrs L Greene, W. Pitt Norris, T. B. Nilson, Richard Platt, Moors Lubri Agency, L. D Hollingsworth, Jno. Lantz. Philo Millard, Enos Mitchell, Geo. W. Little, J. S Shock, M A. Adams, A. Putnam, H. S. Limbocker.

The best cough medicine is Piso's Cure for Consumption. Sold everywhere. 25c.

We with pleasure ask the attention of of our readers to the advertisement of Sigler's Popular California Excursions. Southern California, the land of sunshine and flowers during the entire year, has become the favorite resort for health and pleasure seekers and others, and these excursions under the able management of Mr. H. C. Sigler are becoming widely known and more popular every year. We understand the preparation for this season is far more extensive and perfect than heretofore, and those joining cannot fail to be delighted with every arrangement for their safety and comfort. Read carefully the ad. and note the places and times of departure, and write or call on Mr. Sigler for full information.

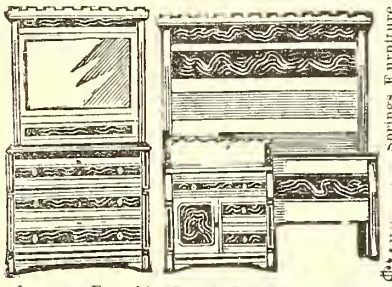
The Branson Improved Knitting Machine is a perfect knitter, adapted for either family or manufacturer's use In 1872 the Branson machine was considered the best knitter made, and excited the wonder and praise of all who saw its operation. The improved machine for simplicity and solidity stands at the head; always meeting with unbounded praise whenever used; winning the highest award at the American Institute, New York City, in 1873. So simple that any child may work it. Many have bought machines for their own family use; soon paid for them by unsolicited work from neighbors and friends, and found them a source of unexpected revenue, many making from two to five dollars a day. The manufacture of hosiery is an extensive business. Take a single county with say 40.000 inhabitants, which is an average. Each person must have at least four pairs of hose each year. Here then is 160,000 pairs, or 13,333 dozen pairs. This would require eleven machines with an average of four dozen pairs a day each, one year to knit. And if a net profit of only 25 cents a dozen were made on these hose, over $3,300 would be realized for the knitting in this one county alone. We would advise our readers to write for circulars and information to Jesse L. Branson, 30 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

MISCELLANEOUS.

1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886 Send for particulars.
H. C. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street Chicago.



$10 TO $50 saved every year in doctors' bill in every family that owns a copy of "OUR FAMILY PHYSICIAN," a standard medical guide, prepared especially for home use, and giving both the Alopathic and Homeopathic treatments for each disease, and full directions for nursing the sick; has "Table of Symptoms" by which you can tell readily what is the matter without sending for doctor; elegant binding; 541 pages; sells everywhere for $3! To make friends for THE SATURDAY EVENING CALL, the model family and story paper, we shall, during December, If you want one, write to GIVE AWAY 1,200 COPIES OF THIS BOOK!
HENDERSON & SMITH, Publishers, Peoria, Ill

AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing. Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days No pain Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking easily cured. Advice free.
DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

THE SECOND COMING OF CHRIST AT HAND.—We live in those days wherein the Lord will gather his Israel out of both Jew and Christian churches, that their spirit, soul and body, may be preserved blameless to receive the Lord at his coming. Rom. ix. 4; Isa. xl. 11, 12; Rev. vii, 4; Rom. viii. 29. Rev. xiv, 1; 1 Thess. v, 21, 21, 23; 1 Cor. xv, 52, 53; Philip iii 21; Mark xiii, 20; Matt. xxiv, 14; Rom. viii, 11, 22, 23; Rev. xxi, 1, 4, 5: John xiv, 16, 17, 26. Further information can be obtained in two different books at 12c each. Mention this paper. Address:
J. WIELE, 143 N. Sixth st., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Springs. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

"NOTES FOR BIBLE STUDY."

32-PAGE MONTHLY. FIFTH YEAR OF PUBLICATION.

Commended in the strongest terms by C. H. Spurgeon, Rev. Dr. Pentecost, Major Whittle, Rev. Dr. Brookes, the late Rev. Dr. MacKay, and hundreds of others.

SINGLE SUBSCRIPTION, 36 CENTS.

CLUB RATES: To one address (if to separate address, add 3 cents per copy), 6 to 10 copies, each, 30 cents over 10 to 50 copies, each, 25 cents; over 50 copies, each, 20 cents.

P. S.—Parties subscribing now will receive the NOTES until the end of 1886. Address
S. R. BRIGGS, Toronto, Ont., Canada.

NOTES BY "C. H. M."

Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Duteronomy.

Mr. D. L. Moody says of these books:

Some years since I had my attention called to C. H. M.'s notes, and was so much pleased and at the same time profited by the way they open up Scripture truths, that I secured at once all the writings of the same author, and if they could not be replaced would rather part with my entire library, excepting my Bible, than with these writings. They have been to me a very key to the Scripture.
D. L. MOODY.

Mr. D. W. Whittle says:

Under God they have blessed me more than any books, outside the Bible itself, that I have ever read, and have led me to a love of the Bible that is proving.

The Notes on each book are complete in one volume and are most precious and edifying expositions.

A new edition printed from new plates, handsomely bound in cloth, with red stamp Price postpaid to any address, 75 cents per volume; $3.25 per set of five volumes.
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM ILLUSTRATED.

A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery, comprising the degrees of Royal Master, Select Master, Super-Excellent Master, Knight of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00; $8.50 per dozen. Paper covers, 50c; $4.00 per dozen.
Furnished in any quantities at

The Best Commentary
IS
JAMIESON, FAUSSET & BROWN'S

In four large 12mo. volumes of about 1,000 pages each. Two volumes for the Old Testament and Two for the New. It is printed from new electrotype plates, on type of good size, distinct, clear and easy to read.

This Commentary has now become a standard work on both sides of the Atlantic, and is much sought after by students of the Bible.

The unqualified commendation of this Commentary, from the highest sources, has given it a position in the religious world superior to that of any other similar work. It will soon be universally adopted by Association workers, Sabbath-school teachers and Bible readers generally, to whom its use has now become indispensable.

From a host of testimonials we cull the following:

REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

I think it the best Commentary upon the whole Bible which has been issued within the last fifty years, and I should be very sorry to be deprived of the pleasure of consulting it.

REV. STUART ROBINSON, D. D., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Having for more than twenty years been myself engaged in the popular exposition of the Scriptures from the pulpit, every Sabbath evening—and, of course, availing myself of all the aids within my reach—I have met with none among them which so well accomplishes the great end of a popular exposition—viz.: to show the people in the fewest words, how to read the Bible for themselves, as the very comprehensive Commentary of Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. J. H. VINCENT, D. D., EDITOR S. S. JOURNAL.

The best condensed Commentary on the whole Bible is the Commentary on the Old and New Testament by Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. JAS. M'COSH, D. D., PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON COLLEGE.

It is the work of highly competent scholars, who have succeeded in bringing out the mind of the Spirit as revealed in the Scriptures. It is clear, brief, judicious and eminently fitted to be useful alike to pastor and people.

Sent free to any address on receipt of price. 4 vols. handsomely bound in cloth, $8.00; half morocco, $10.00.
ARCADE PUB. CO., 147 LaSalle St., Chicago.

FREE $2 SAMPLES fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

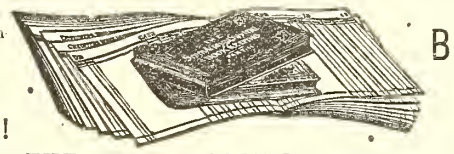
Useful to Every Lady!

Madame Worth's New Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving designs and directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work, and all Kinds of Fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed, and contains over
200 Illustrations. Price 25 Cents.

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Alphabets, Edgings, Cross Stitch, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool, Applique, Kate Greenaway designs for Doylies, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Holbein Work, Java Canvas, Fringes, Toilet Cushions, Foot Stools, Work Baskets, Work Bags, Scrap Baskets, Table-top Patterns, Folding Screens, Sofa Cushions, Slipper Patterns, Wall Pockets, Towel Racks, Tidies, Catchalls, Chair Bolsters, School Bags, Patch Work, Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Bibs, Shoe Bags, Jewel Boxes, Pillow Shams, and many others. Plain Directions with each Design.

This book gives practical directions for making Wax Flowers and Painting on Silk, etc.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion to all who love fancy work. Price, post-paid, only 25 Cents; Five Books for $1.00. Get four friends to send with you, and get your book free. Agents wanted. Address
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.



ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy. Sold under POSITIVE GUARANTY. Sample FREE.
L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Established 35 years. Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free.
TROOP, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

AGENTS WANTED—STOCK-DOCTOR
FOR THE PICTORIAL COMPLETE
Embracing Horses, Cattle, Sheep, Swine, Poultry, Bees and Dogs. By Hon. J. Periam and Dr. A. H. Baker, V. S. Covers every subject pertaining to Stock of Farm both in Health and Disease. Two charts for telling ages of Horses and Cattle; 720 Engravings and 14 Colored Plates. Farmers clear $100 a month. ACT NOW! Exclusive Territory. Book absolutely without competition. For confidential terms and "Extracts from Agents' Reports," etc., address
N. D. THOMPSON PUB. CO., St. Louis, Mo., or New York.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL
A monthly treaties on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING, SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price, 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited, $50 00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

Invaluable to Every Lady!

The Ladies' Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving plain directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work and all kinds of fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed on fine tinted paper, has a handsome cover, and contains over 500 Illustrations, Price only 50 cents!

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Knit Edgings, Cross Stitch Patterns, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool designs, Applique designs, Kate Greenaway designs for Doylys, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Macrame Lace work, Holbeim work, Java Canvas work, Worsted Fringes, Turkish Rugs, Toilet Cushions, Footstools, Hat Racks, Pin Cushions, Ottomans, Work Baskets, Pen Wipers, Bed-Quilts, Lambrequins, Work Bags, Book Covers, Wood Boxes, Door Panels, Scrap Baskets, Sofa Coverlets, Toilet Bottle Cases, Table Top Patterns, Folding Screens, Church Font Decorations, Sofa Cushions, Music Portfolios, Slipper Patterns, Persian Rugs, Wall Pockets, Carriage Rugs, Chair back Covers, Towel Racks, Perfume Sachets, Tidy Designs, Flower Pot Covers, Lamp Shades, Needle Cases, Watch Cases, Fancy Work Bags, Catch-alls, Match Safes, Eye Glass Pockets, Collar Boxes, Chair Bolsters, Umbrella Cases, School Bags, Patch-work Designs, Coin Purses, Designs for Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Commodes, Bibs, Glove Cases, Air Castles, Gypsey Tables, Hair Receivers, Paper Weights, Table Mats, Night-dress Cases, Shoe Bags, Needle Books, Jewel Boxes, Door Mats, Knitted Jackets, Bottle Cases, Paper Racks Pillow Shams Hair Pin Holders, Floss Winders, Mosaic Window Shades, Book Marks, and every design in fancy work a lady can desire, to the number of over 400.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion and invaluable to all who love fancy work. Plain directions with each design.

Jenny June in her preface to this book, says: "The present volume does not pretend to furnish the theory or practice of the highest Needle work art, but it does aim to supply within its compass a greater variety of excellent designs—every one of which is useful for dress or household decoration—than have ever before been gathered within the leaves of one manual."

Large quarto, paper cover mailed free for 50 cents.

Burt's Selected Gems of Song.

Allegro.

A choice collection of SIXTY-TWO FAVORITE SONGS, from the works of the BEST COMPOSERS, with accompaniments for PIANO and ORGAN. The titles of the songs in this book are:

All on Account of Eliza—Bailiff's Daughter—Banbury Cross—A Bird in Hand—Blue Alsatian Mountains—Bob up Serenely—Boogie Man—The Bridge—Chorus of Charity Girls—Come Back to Erin—Danube River—Long as Tender and True—Down by the Old Mill Stream—Dream Song—Every Inch a Sailor—The Fairy Jane Five O'clock in the Morning—Flee as a Bird—Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by—Home, Sweet Home—I'm Called Little Buttercup—In the Gloaming—It Was a Dream—J. Rufus Morgan—Katy's Letter—Kerry Dance—Killarney—Lardy Dah—Let Me Dream Again—Letter in the Candle (Quartette Chorus)—The Lost Chord—Lover and the Bird—Lullaby (Fritz)—Maggie's Secret—Man in the Moon—My Love Beyond the Sea—Nancy Lee—Naughty Clara—No Place Like Home—O Fair Dove, O Fond Dove—O Fred, Tell Them to Stop—Old Timbertoes—Over the Garden Wall—Robin Adair—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Smiles May End in Tears—Some Day—Speak to Me—Speed Well—Still Love's Dream I Cherish—Take Back the Heart—Tar's Farewell—Thirteen, Fifteen, Fourteen—Torpedo and the Whale—True Blue—Turnham Toll—Twickenham Ferry—Two's Company, Three's None—A Warrior Bold—The Watermill—We'd Better Bide A'wee—Whoa, Emma—You Never Miss the Water.

REMEMBER! This Book Contains 68 POPULAR VOCAL SONGS,
with music, full sheet-music size, and bound with a handsome engraved cover. This is the best collection of Songs and Ballads ever offered in one book.
Mailed free to any address on receipt
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

HOME AND HEALTH.

THE AIR WE BREATHE.—A college professor of chemistry, who had made a long study of different systems of house ventilation, said that the more he investigated it the less did he feel that he knew about it. How to secure, in our severe winter climate, the warmth without vitiation, and the pure air without draughts, is a problem that is not often solved in a practical and practicable manner. The use of open grates and fireplaces has done much to improve matters, but these are by no means so common as they ought to be, and they do not, save in a few cases, introduce fresh air as well as take out stale air. And this is one of the greatest lacks in all ordinary methods of house warming. It is hardly too much to say that no air can pass through the common furnace, as commonly run, without suffering a deterioration that makes it unfit for "food for the lungs." Steam heat is better in some particulars, but persons who are dependent upon pure air soon feel nature's signals that something is wrong, in the burning cheeks and dullness in the brain, in a close room even slightly overheated from a radiator. The common need is the introduction of a supply of uncooked and unbreathed oxygen from nature's great reservoir outdoors. A strip of board under the lower sash, or better yet, one of the box ventilators, admitting a supply of air between the sashes and from the bottom as well, serves an excellent purpose. It is complained that these "cool the room;" but, with the ordinary heating apparatus, there should be no difficulty in keeping the temperature at from 65 to 70 deg., and that is warm enough for persons who are not invalids, if they become habituated to it. There would be fewer "colds," and much less suffering from winter diseases, if living rooms were not kept so frightfully hot. How rational people can expect to stand the shock of passing frequently from rooms heated to 80 deg., or higher, into an outdoor air at the zero point, or even 20 or 30 deg. above it, is unexplainable.

The tendency to return to low studded rooms in dwelling houses is welcomed by an English authority as conducting to warmth, comfort and health, as well as economy. The low ceiling acts as a radiator, and prevents the dangerous draught, stagnant air and general discomfort often found in the "palatial rooms." He urges his readers not to consider hot air and foul air as necessarily synonymous. Cold and foul air are more often seen in winter in ill-ventilated rooms. Considering that the air we breath has the most direct relation to our health, clear headedness, and that aggregation of effects which we call our "feelings," it is strange that even twenty-five years of agitation and effort have failed to secure one decently ventilated public building out of twenty, or houses or offices that are fit to live in during the winter.

AMMONIA.—A very useful article. We quote the following from competent authority: "Put a teaspoonful of ammonia in a quart of warm soapsuds, dip a cloth in it and go over your soiled clothing, and see how rapidly the dirt will disappear; no scrubbing will be necessary. To a pint of hot soapsuds add a teaspoon of the spirits, dip in your fork or spoon (or whatever else you wish to clean), rub with a soft brush and then finish with chamois skin. For washing windows and mirrors it has no equal. It will remove grease spots from every fabric without injuring the garment. Put on the ammonia nearly clear, lay on blotting paper, and set a hot iron on it for a moment. Also a few drops in water will cleanse and whiten laces and muslin beautifully. A few drops in a bowl of water, if the skin be oily, removes all uncleanliness and disagreeable odors. Added to a hot bath it entirely absorbs all noxious smell, and nothing is better to remove dandruff from the hair. For cleaning nail and hair brushes it is equally good. For heartburn and dyspepsia the aromatic spirit of ammonia is especially prepared; ten drops taken in a wine-glass of water will give relief. For house plants five or six drops to every pint of water, once a week will make them flourish. It is also good to clean plant jars. So be sure to keep a bottle of it in the house, and have a glass stopper, as it eats away cork."—Exchange.

TO BREAK UP A COLD.—Hot lemonade taken freely at bed-time will be a great relief to a "fresh bad cold."

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE.

Unanimous Approval of Medical Staff.

DR. T. G. COMSTOCK, Physician at Good Samaritan Hospital, St. Louis, Mo., says: "For years we have used it in this hospital, in dyspepsia and nervous diseases, and as a drink during the decline and in the convalescence of lung fevers. It has the unanimous approval of our medical staff."

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE
TAYLOR'S
CHEROKEE

REMEDY
—OF—
SWEET GUM
—AND—
MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

PHYSIOLOGY of Woman, The.—Embracing girlhood, maternity, and mature age, with lectures on "Co-Education of the Sexes in Medicine," "The Physiological Basis of Education," "Temperance from a Physician's Point of View," "A Plea for Moderation," by SARAH HACKETT STEVENSON, M. D., Adjunct Professor of Obstetrics, and late Professor of Physiology in the Woman's Medical College of Chicago.

This is an ably written volume of 230 pages, and, as indicated by its title and name of its distinguished author, it eminently a Woman's Book for Woman. The author says in her introduction: "This is not in any sense a medical book. Medicine is not and never can become a popular science. I oppose self-prescribing in every form. * * The target at which I have aimed is the false teaching which women have received. * * I believe that no true physician can object to any information these pages seek to impart."

At the solicitation of the publishers, Mrs. Stevenson has prepared "Physiology of Woman." It is published with the hope of saving the women of the future from the penalty of ignorance concerning themselves—a penalty which untold thousands are suffering. Price, in fine English cloth, post-paid, $1.50. ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 LaSalle st., Chicago.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1845

The most popular Weekly newspaper devoted to science, mechanics, engineering discoveries, inventions and patents ever published. Every number illustrated with splendid engravings. This publication furnishes a most valuable encyclopedia of information which no person should be without. The popularity of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is such that its circulation nearly equals that of all other papers of its class combined. Price, $3.20 a year. Discount to Clubs. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & CO., Publishers, No. 361 Broadway, N. Y.

PATENTS. Munn & Co. have also had Thirty-Eight years' practice before the Patent Office and have prepared more than One Hundred Thousand applications for patents in the United States and foreign countries. Caveats, Trade-Marks, Copy-rights, Assignments, and all other papers for securing to inventors their rights in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany and other foreign countries, prepared at short notice and on reasonable terms. Information as to obtaining patents cheerfully given without charge. Hand-books of information sent free. Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American free. The advantage of such notice is well understood by all persons who wish to dispose of their patents.

Address MUNN & CO., Office SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, 361 Broadway, New York.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR 25 CTS.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!

"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."

THE PILLOW-INHALER.

A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH.
BRONCHITIS.
CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."

E. L. HEDDEN, 88 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELE, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Free Perfumery An elegant sample casket of perfumery will be sent to you for 6c. in stamps (to cover postage and packing). A harvest for agts. World Mfg. Co. P. O. box 2633, N. Y. city.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Sibley's Tested Seeds
Catalogue free on application. Send for it.
HIRAM SIBLEY & CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Ties, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.
Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

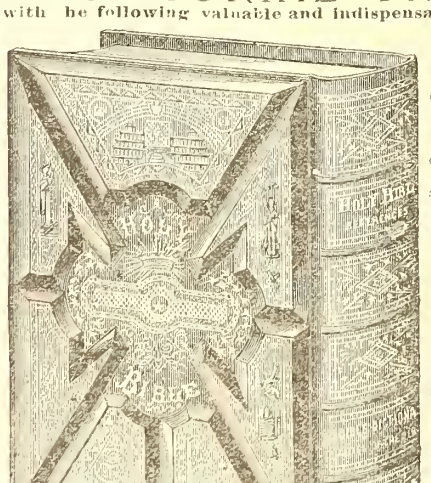
COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY
sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND. A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Gilt Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Songster, 1850 Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts.
IVY CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts.
TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

Jenny June's Books for Ladies.



KNITTING AND CROCHET: A Guide to the Use of the Needle and the Hook
Edited by JENNY JUNE. In arranging this new work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over
200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.
All known stitches in Knitting, Macramé, and Crochet Work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs and directions are given to knit and Crochet Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc. etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published. Price, postpaid, 50 cents.

NEEDLE-WORK: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by JENNY JUNE. In this new book an attempt is made to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover and contains
200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.
All known stitches in Needle-work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs in Needle-work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining-Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artists' Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Muffers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doylies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs Photograph Cases—Book Covers etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of Needle-work. Price, postpaid, 50 cents. The two books for 90 cents. Five books for $2.00. Get four friends to send with you and get your book free. Stamps taken. Agents wanted.

Arcade Publishing Company Chicago, Ill.

SPECIAL OFFER.
PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE,
with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.
A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.
Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.
Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.
Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.
Cities of the Bible with Magnificent Views and Descriptive Scenes and Events in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.
Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible.
A History of all the Existing Religious Denominations.
The History of the Translation of the English Bible.
A Chronological Index to the Holy Bible.
Alphabetical Table of the Proper Names in the Old and New Testament.
A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.
The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.
Scripture Illustrations.
Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.
Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.
Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similies of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.
Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.
A Complete Concordance.
And many other important and useful aids to the study of the Holy Scriptures.

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).

THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING
The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.
Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.
The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.
On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the United States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners..... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,

Toronto Willard Tract Depository,
TORONTO, CANADA.

Readings and Recitations!

100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No. 24 NOW READY.

This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings, combining Sentiment, Oratory, Pathos, Humor, Fun. 216 pages. Price 30cts., postpaid. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants Something New should get the whole set, 24 Nos. only $4 80. Every number different. Nothing repeated. Club rates and full list of contents free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Also, MODEL DIALOGUES, 382 pages, $1.

SHORTHAND taught by mail or personally; Situations procured all pupils when competent; end for circular. W. G. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

DR. CONANT'S Compound Vapor Baths

FOR HOME USE.

Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.

Ladies—Room 5.
Gents—Room 6.

Call or send for circular.

MI-CELLANEOUS.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN AND FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

It has a record of 18 000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.

The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM. Finely Illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!

We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient)in preference to stamps, and address

The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,
Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

Boys' Useful Pastimes.

Boy's Useful Pastimes; Pleasant and profitable amusement for spare hours. By PROF. ROBERT GRIFFITH, A. M. This volume comprises chapters on the use and care of tools, and detailed instruction by means of which boys can make, with their own hands, a large number of toys, household ornaments, scientific appliances, and many pretty, amusing and necessary articles for the play-ground, the home and out of doors. It is bound in showing how to make Boats, Steam Engines, Steamers, Bob-Sleds, Ice-Boats, Windmills, Aquariums, Hand Carts, Tops, Flags, Photograph Camera, Telephone, Telegraph, Microscope, Kaleidoscope, Steam Accrobats, Traps, Dog Houses, Bird Cages, Coops, Dove Cotes, Squirrel Cages, Summer Houses, Fences, Fountains, Furniture, Gymnasium, Step Ladders, Trunks, Nets, Wire Work, Clay Modeling, Brass Work, Picture Frames, Electric Batteries, Electroplating, Electrotyping, Running Mice, Wig-Wags and many other useful articles.

Handsome Cloth Binding, with 300 Illustrations,

In looking for a book to put into the hands of your boy which will be of real and genuine use, and at the same time a source of healthful entertainment, this is the one you should choose.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF GEN. U. S. GRANT.

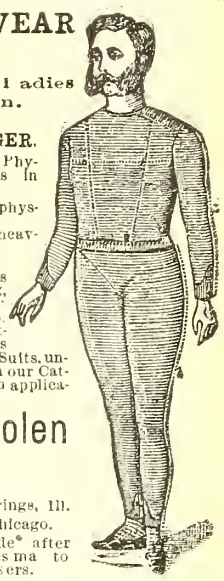
His Early Life, his Military Achievements, his Administration as President, his Political and Businesss Career, together with his "Tour Around the World." By L. T. REMLAP, author of "Grant's Tour Around the World," "The Home Guide," "The Gospel Awakening," "Chautauqua, Historical and Descriptive," "The Great Redemption," etc., etc.

Contains a full and accurate description of Gen. Grant's early life, habits, cadetship at West Point his military record in the Mexican War; his private life subsequently; his great military achievements during the Civil War; his political successes and administration as President; his unique and celebrated tour around the world—the receptions tendered him, with addresses of welcome, his replies, his conversations with public men—his political and financial reverses; his distressing sickness, death and funeral obsequies.

Elegantly illustrated; eighty full page and other engravings. Bound in cloth. Sent, post paid, on receipt of price, $1.75 One large octavo volume, 772 pages. Address

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.



HYGIENIC WEAR

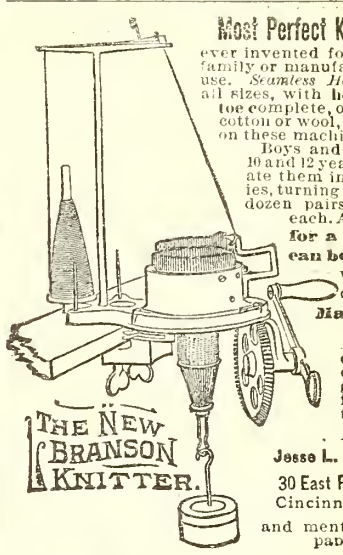
(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.

System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.



Safeguards erected for physical health
Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors, Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.
Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure Special prices made to clergymen and the workers.

Most Perfect Knitter

ever invented for either family or manufacturers' use. Seamless Hoisery of all sizes, with heel and toe complete, of either cotton or wool, are knit on these machines.

Boys and girls of 10 and 12 years operate them in factories, turning out four dozen pairs a day each. A living for a family can be made with one of these Machines.

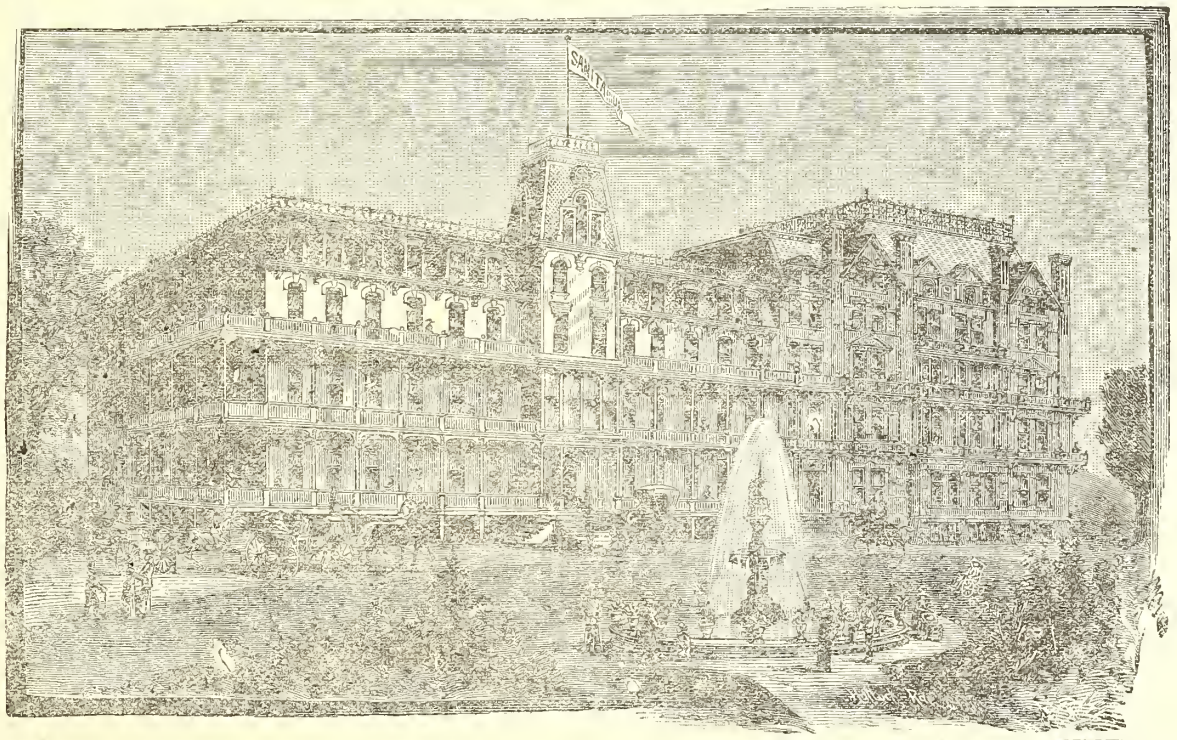
For descriptive circulars giving full particulars.

Address

Jesse L. Branson,
30 East Fourth St.,
Cincinnati, O.,



and mention this paper.

Just published, 12 Articles on Practical Poultry Raising, By FANNY FIELD.

The greatest of all American writers on Poultry for Market and Poultry for Profit, Tells how she cleared $449 on 100 Light Brahma in one year; about a mechanic's wife who clears $300 annually on a village lot; refers to her 60 acre poultry farm on which she clears $1,500 annually. How to put up buildings, raise green food, etc. Tells about incubators, brooders, spring chickens, capons, and how to feed to get the most eggs. Price 25cts. Stamps taken. Address R. B. Mitchell, 69 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

THE MEDICAL AND SURGICAL SANITARIUM.

This Institution, one of the Buildings of which is Shown in the cut STANDS WITHOUT A RIVAL IN THE PERFECTION AND COMPLETENESS OF ITS APPOINTMENTS.

SPECIAL DEPARTMENTS FOR THE Eye, Ear, Throat and Lungs, Etc.

The Largest Sanitarium in the World.

The following are a few of the special methods employed:

Turkish, Russian, Roman, Thermo-Electric, Electro-Vapor, Electro-Hydric, Electro-Chemical, Hot Air, Vapor, and every form of Water Bath; Electricity in every form; Swedish Movements—Manual and Mechanical—Massage, Pneumatic Treatment, Vacuum Treatment, Sun Baths. All other remedial agents of known curative value employed.

AN ARTIFICIAL CLIMATE, possessing the advantage of PERFECTLY PURE AIR AND AN EQUABLE TEMPERATURE, is produced for the benefit of those invalids who annually visit the South and other warm climates. Porches enclosed in glass afford fine opportunity for promenading without exposure, and a fine gymnasium offers every facility for thorough and systematic physical training.

PURE WATER, GOOD VENTILATION, STEAM HEATING, PERFECT SEWERAGE. For circulars with particulars, address

SANITARIUM, Battle Creek, Mich.

Miss Flagg's Latest and Best!

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWS OF THE WEEK

WASHINGTON.

At the caucus of Republican United States Senators at Washington, Friday, the Presidency of the Senate was tendered to General John A. Logan by unanimous vote; but he declined to accept.

The Commissioner of Indian affairs has submitted his annual report for the fiscal year ended June 80 He looks to agriculture as the chief means available for civilizing the red man. There are at present in the United States, exclusive of Alaska, 260,000 Indians.

COUNTRY.

The remains of Vice President Hendricks were interred in the Crown Hill cementry at Indianapolis Tuesday afternoon, the procession, comprising four grand divisions, being very large. The streets were thronged so densely that the passage of the procession was slightly interfered with. In St Paul's Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Bishop Knickerbocker conducted the services, and the Rev Dr. Jencks preached the sermon, eulogizing the life-work of the deceased. Railway officials report that from Monday at midnight 30,000 visitors arrived in the city.

The customs report just issued, shows, since the passage of the Chinese restriction act in 1882, 18,000 Chinese have landed at San Francisco, and out of that number nearly 4 000 have been permitted to land without the legal customs certificate.

The arrangements for lighting the Chicago Board of Trade tower with electric lights have been completed, and 40,000 candle power illumination will take place on the eve of Jan. 1, 1886.

Charlotte Wickliffe (colored), who claimed to have handed Washington a cup of water at the battle of Yorktown, died at Louisville, Wednesday night, aged 117 Of her seventy-five surving children and grand children the oldest is nearly 100 years old.

C L. Winans, a spiritualist leader, recently went to Strawberry Point, Iowa, to give the people an opportunity to speak with their departed friends. His fraudulent apparitions were exposed, resulting in his arrest, and, failing to secure bail, he has been lodged in jail on a charge of obtaining money by false pretenses.

Since Saturday last four men have been killed in the rioting at the Brevier Coal Mine, near Macon, Mo., and the firing between the black and white miners was kept up incessantly all Monday night. The authorities have done nothing to suppress the trouble

The first blizzard of the season is reported from points in Montana Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois, the snowfall averaging about five inches The snow is driven by high winds, resulting in drifts that threaten to retard railway travel. Anxiety is felt at Milwaukee for the safety of many vessels known to be en route for that port. The sleighing is good at St. Paul.

A hurricane swept over portions of Missouri, Nebraska, and Colorado, Friday, resulting in serious losses. The wrecking of buildings at Kansas City, Omaha, and Lincoln, Neb., is reported. A woman was killed at River View, Mo., and a man was blown from a building and fatally injured at Kansas City. The Union Pacific refused to dispatch trains across the bridge at Omaha.

Seven men robbed Bentel & Co 's bank at Freedom, Pa , Friday morning, blowing open the safe, and securing $12 000 in cash and securities. The fire following the explosion destroyed several thousand dollars. The burglars kept the citizens at bay with revolvers, which they fired several times.

Some fifty farmers living in Washington township, Indiana, on Wednesday sent a communication to Eckert Burket that if he did not get out of the county in twenty-four hours they would hang him.

The tow boat Iron City was blown to pieces Wednesday morning while stuck on the bar at the head of Herr's Island, in the Allegheny river, near Pittsburg. The engineer, George Ashton, was killed and a number of others seriously injured, one of them fatally. The explosion was caused by natural gas, the vessel striking a gas main, and the gas catching fire from the furnace.

In Workman's Cut, near Washington, Pa., Wednesday afternoon two Baltimore and Ohio freight trains were in collison, wrecking both engines and a number of cars. Two men were mangled and then scalded to death, while several of them were wounded, three of them probably fatally.

The Illinois Revenue Commission Wednesday adopted propositions to tax telegraph companies $2 annually for each telegraph instrument, and $1 per mile for each separate wire. It was decided to tax insurance companies 2 per cent on the gross amount of premiums shown in the annual returns.

On their 399th ballot the Illinois Soldiers' Home Commission Wednesday selected Quincy as the site for the Home; Messrs. Berry, Crawford, Wallace, and White giving the deciding ballot.

From the opening of navigation to Nov. 30, there were shipped by lake from Chicago to Buffalo, 2,783 558 barrels of flour and 18,969,371 bushels of grain. The shipments from Buffalo of coal, cement and salt are largely in excess of the shipments last season.

A Pittsburg paper publishes the statement that Eastern nail manufacturers are aiding the striking nailers in the West, and have agreed to continue the contributions until the strike ends.

FOREIGN.

The United States Consul to Samoa writes that a new Island, two miles in length, has appeared in the ocean forty miles off the Tonga Islands, bearing towards Fiji.

The French minister to China, appeared before the Tonquin Committee of the Chamber of Deputies and spoke in favor of the continued occupation of Tonquin. He said that the evacuation of that country would be a cowardly and dangerous proceeding. China, he declared, was well disposed towards France. General Campenon, Minister of War, has telegraphed to General DeCourcy, the French commander in Tonquin, that the French Government will energetically oppose the proposition to evacuate Tonquin.

The Congregationalist.
1886.

The CONGREGATIONALIST keeps constantly in mind the tastes and wants of all classes of readers.
Its steadfastness of character has gained for it public confidence; and its balance of progressive and conservative sympathies is most helpful to all true progress.
It abounds in sketches and stories of the highest character and literary merit and is filled with matter of interest to all the members of the family.
It gives more complete news as to churches and ministers of the denomination than any other journal and is constantly observant of the best things said and done by Christians of all denominations.
It secures the best writers East and West
It has unequaled facilities for being a national, religious, family paper
It keeps always at the front the most vital questions of the time as Temperance, Missions, Revivals, Education, the Sunday-school, the household, and whatever reforms pertain to the growing science of applied Christianity.
It has, besides its large editorial staff in Boston, New York and Chicago, its special correspondents and writers in almost every State and Territory in the Union.
Among all the means for fostering the unity of the churches in the largest and most helpful fellowship and for the most efficient and aggressive Christian work, the CONGREGATIONALIST holds an unquestioned pre-eminence.
Every good home should have some family religious newspaper; and the best is the best to have.
When all that one gets in such a journal, during the fifty-two weeks of the year, is compared to the cost, there is scarcely anything else in the world so cheap.
The CONGREGATIONALIST has among its contributors such eminent writers as

R. S. Storrs, D. D.,	Prof. Richard T. Ely,	T. L. Cuyler, D. D.,	Newman Hall, LL. B.,
Rose Terry Cooke,	F. A. Noble, D. D ,	C. L. Goodell, D. D.,	Mrs. S. K. Bolton.
F. N. Peloubet, D. D ,	Margaret Sangster,	Arthur Little, D D.,	W. M. Taylor, D. D.,
"Susan Coolidge,"	C. S. Robinson, D. D.,	Emily Huntington Miller,	Sec. A. E Dunning,
Bishop F. D. Huntington,		Joseph Parker, D. D.

Prof. Austin Phelps, D. D., will write exclusively for the CONGREGATIONALIST for 1886.
The CONGREGATIONALIST is carefully and thoroughly edited in every column. Price, $3.00 per year, in advance; $5.50 for two years, strictly in advance; $1.50 for six months; 75 cents for three months. Any subscriber may pay his own and one new subscription for $5 00 in advance. To clubs of five subscribers, at least one of whom must be new, $12.50.

W. L. GREENE & CO., No. 1 Somerset St., Boston.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers,

and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

* For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.*

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

UNEQUALLED FOR CEMENTING WOOD, GLASS, CHINA, PAPER, LEATHER, &c. Awarded GOLD MEDAL, LONDON, 1883. Used by Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Co., Pullman Palace Car Co. &c. Mf'd only by the RUSSIA CEMENT CO. GLOUCESTER, MASS. SOLD EVERYWHERE. Sample Tin Can by Mail, 25c.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.
BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

The best is the cheapest.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY
PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.
82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

Five Useful Books!

Talks with Homely Girls, on Health and Beauty: Their Preservation and Cultivation. By FRANCES SMITH. A manual of advice and instruction upon the general care of the health, exercise, bathing, the care of the head, teeth, hands, feet and the complexion; with chapters upon dress, manner, conversation, and all topics pertaining to a young lady's appearance and deportment.

A Classical and Mythological Dictionary. For Popular Use. With seventy illustrations. By H. C. FAULKNER. A brief and concise explanation of the ancient Mythological, Biographical, Historical and Geographical Allusions most frequently met with in English Literature.
"The work deserves great praise. Its information is carefully condensed."—Evening Telegram, New York.

The Usages of the Best Society: A Complete Manual of Social Etiquette. By FRANCES STEVENS. Nothing is given in this book that has not the sanction of observance by the best society—best not merely in the sense of the most fashionable, but the most cultivated, natural, and the most worthy of imitation.
"Useful to all who wish to obtain instruction on matters relating to social usage and society."—Demorest's Magazine.

A Handy Dictionary of Synonyms; With which are combined the words opposite in meaning. By H. C. FAULKNER. A collection of 40,000 words in general use, arranged with reference to their similarity and opposition. Designed for the use of those who would speak or write the English language with exactness and fluency.
"Will be found of great value to those who are not experienced in speech or with pen."—Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Famous People of All Ages: Who they were, when they lived, and why they are famous. By W. H. VAN ORDEN. A volume of condensed biographies of the most notable men and women who have lived, from the beginning of history to the present time; including soldiers, statesmen, authors, artists, scientists and people most prominent in history.
"An excellent book, giving in a compact form biographies of the persons in whom the student and writer would naturally take most interest."—New York Tribune.

These books are bound in cloth with gold and ink designs, uniform in size and binding. Price, postpaid, 50 cents each.
SPECIAL OFFER.—The five books in a neat box sent, postpaid, for $2.00. Address the publisher,

ARCAD PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

NEEDLE WORK

Needle-Work: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work.
This manual is an attempt to Edited by Jenny June systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. When the Angel of Mercy begged that woman might not be created because she would be abused by man, as the stronger, the Lord listened, but felt that he could not give up the whole scheme of creation, so he gave the loving Angel permission to bestow upon her any compensating gift she chose, and the Angel pityingly endowed her with tears and the love of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover, and contains

200 Illustrations

The list of stitches, with illustrations, are: Buttonhole—Hemstitch—Brier Stitch—Crow's Foot—Herring Bone—Fedder Stitch—Two Tie—Three Tie—Drawn Work—Stem Stitch—Twisted Chain or Rope Stitch—Split Stitch—French Knot—Solid Leaf—Satin Stitch—Padding—Darning Stitch—Skeleton Outline—Couching, Kensington, Filling, Coral, Italian, Leviathan and Holbein Stitches—Applique—Interlaced Ground—Weaving Stitch—Gold and Silver Thread—Arrasene Ribbon Work, etc.

Designs in Needle-Work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artist Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Mufflers—Fichus—Plazza Wraps—Sashes—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doilies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers, etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of needle-work.

Large 8vo. paper cover. Mailed free for 50 cents.

THE ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
145—149 LaSalle Street, Chicago, Ill.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 13. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1885. WHOLE No. 816.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Thos. E. Kennedy, Esq... 8
A Remarkable Career.... 8
Notes and Comments..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Ebenezer Smith..... 1
A Galaxy of Testimony... 1
The British Elections..... 2
Sheriff Joseph Garlinghouse..... 2
SELECTED:
Holidays and the Duties of Ministers in regard to them..... 2
Crotchety Masons..... 3
Washington Letter..... 4
THE SECRET EMPIRE:
The Supreme Councils.... 4
LITERATURE..... 5
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
Mississippi Convention; Mission Work in New Hampshire..... 5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Hops and Beer; Post-Mortem Testimony; Unity in the Romish Church; Pith and Point.....5,6
OBITUARY:..... 6
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE N. C. A..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.... 7
THE CHURCHES..... 12
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
IN BRIEF..... 14
FARM NOTES..... 15
BUSINESS..... 13

WHAT SHALL WE SAY FOR 1886?

Unlike its typical luminary, the pole-star of the north,

The Christian Cynosure

purposes not only to shine truly and steadily but with an increasing brilliancy and power from year to year. Many of our readers have marked this purpose. They write cheerfully of the success which the paper has attained, and testify that it is becoming

Better and Better.

What the Cynosure has been for sixteen years and more it will with God's help continue to be, a Pole-Star in the heavens of political and religious reform.

It will continue to be sustained by such able contributors as

Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D. Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary.
Prof. L. N. Stratton, Wheaton Theological Seminary.
Rev. John G. Fee, Berea College.
Pres. C. J. Kephart.
Rev. Geo. B. Cheever, D. D.
Rev. C. C. Foote, Detroit.
Pres. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton College.
George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer."
Rev. Henry T. Cheever, Worcester.
Elder Nathan Callender.
Rev. David McFall, Chambers St. Ref. Presbyterian Church, Boston.
Rev. B. F. Worrell, Olathe, Kans.
Rev. Wm. Moerdyk, Dutch Reform Church.
Prof. J. A. Edgren, Swedish Theological Seminary.
Rev. William Wishart, D. D.
Alexander Thompson.
E E Flagg, Author of "Holden with Cords."
Rev. John Boyes, A. M. Grimsby, England.
Prof. Claudio Jannet, University of Paris.
Rev. A. D. Zraphonithes, Andros, Greece.
Rev. Wm. Hazenberg, Cape Town, S. Africa.
Pastor Alex Djejizian, Ada Bazar, Asia Miner.
C. B Ward, Missionary at Secumderabad, India.
Robert Shemeld, Missionary at Natal.
Rev. Joel Swartz, D D, Gettysburg, Pa.
Rev. Joseph E. Roy, D. D, Chicago.
Rev. Albert Sims, Uxbridge, Ont.
Rev. J F. Avery, Halifax, N S.
Prof. S. M. Hill, Wahoo, Nebr.
Rev. J. D. Gehring, Park College, Mo.
And many others whom space forbids to mention.

During 1885 sketches and fine portraits have appeared of Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Adam Crooks, Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong, Dr. Benjamin Rush, Hon. Richard Rush, Hon. Samuel Plumb, Hon. Henry Wilson, Hon. Gerrit Smith, Dr. E. Smith, John Quincy Adams.

For 1886 sketches and protraits of John G. Fee, George B. Cheever, George W. Clark, Charles C. Foote, David Bernard, Samuel D. Greene, Charles Sumner, George F. Pentecost, Nathaniel Colver, John Brown, John Marshal, and others are in preparation, and with each portrait will be one or more biographical sketches by the editor and other competent writers. This feature will be well worth the price of the paper for one year.

Histories of all the secret societies so far as they can be obtained will be given in the Secret Empire department of the Cynosure during the year.

The proposed conference of churches and Christians on the secret lodge will be an important movement to which the Cynosure will give profound attention.

The condition of the colored churches and their struggle for existence amid the overpowering influences of the multitude of secret societies will also have large space. The visit of the Senior Editor to the South and his correspondence will form a most important and attractive feature of the paper.

The Cynosure in short will be a paper in 1886 which no man who is honest in his profession of Anti-masonry can well afford to be without.

Let every present subscriber RENEW IN TIME, AND GET

A New Reader for 1886.

EBENEZER SMITH.

BY ELDER S. C. KIMBALL.

Deacon Ebenezer Smith, whose portrait we are happy to present to our readers, was born in Barrington (now Strafford), near Bow Lake, Sept. 29, 1810. He obtained his education in the public school; in the evening blowing the bellows in the blacksmith shop where his father made nails and shoes for oxen and horses, as was the custom in those days. He learned the blacksmith's trade with his father, and divided the time between blacksmithing and farming, as occasion required. April 6, 1834, he married Mary, daughter of John and Sarah (Clark) Smith. They have six daughters and one son. By industry, integrity and economy they not only acquired a competence for themselves, but a surplus with which to meet constantly recurring calls of charity and benevolence.

Under the faithful labors of Elder John Caverly, of blessed memory, Mr. Smith and wife entered that life of faith which is now the ornament and solace of their declining years. April 9, 1838, they were baptized, and the next year, in obedience to the call of his brethren, Mr. Smith was ordained deacon at a public meeting held in Elder Caverly's barn, as there was no house of worship in the place.

In 1843, the Bow Lake meeting house was built, Deacon Smith taking a leading part in the work and serving on the building committee. Removing to Center Strafford in 1858, he has to this time served the church there as deacon and stood in the forefront of the battle for truth and righteousness. In the early days of the anti-slavery conflict, Deacon Smith stood beside Elder Caverly, his pastor, patiently enduring the fury of Satan's mob stirred up to crush free speech and hold in perpetual bondage and ignorance these millions of men for whom Christ died.

When President Charles G. Finney, of Oberlin, and President J. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, sounded the alarm of danger on account of secret societies, in the ears of a slumbering church, Deacon Smith was one of those faithful men all ready to embrace the truth and endure reproach and loss, if need be, for the sake of Christ and his imperiled church. To his prayers, testimony, wisdom, courage, and generous use of hard-earned money the success of the Anti-masonic reform in New Hampshire is largely due. He found, however, many true yokefellows in the work of the Lord, especially Deacon Simon Rowe, of Gilford, and Deacon Moses Pierce, of Barrington. It is scarcely necessary to add that Deacon Smith is in accord with his brethren in politics as well as religion, having been candidate for Governor of New Hampshire on the American Prohibition ticket. He also served as treasurer of the N. H. Christian Association for about five years. In more than local annals his name shall long stand high on the Christian roll of honor.

A GALAXY OF TESTIMONY.

BY PRES. C. A. BLANCHARD.

Daniel Webster said, "In my opinion the imposition of such obligations as Freemasonry imposes should be prohibited by law."

George Washington, who had been made a Mason, said in a letter written a year before his death, "I preside over no lodge, nor have I been in one more than once or twice during the last thirty years."

The Albany Evening Journal said: "For this publication [of Masonry] he [Wm. Morgan] was kidnapped and forcibly carried away from a wife and two children and was murdered by being drowned in Niagara river. This was done by Freemasons. Thus he has sealed the truth of his revelations by sacrificing his own life, and the Freemasons established their accuracy incontrovertibly by the punishment they inflicted on him. For according to their own bloody code, he could not have incurred the penalty of death if he had not revealed their secrets."

Fourteen hundred citizens of Rhode Island in 1833 petitioned the Legislature of that State for an investigation of Masonry. They say in their petition after quoting from the oaths of the order: "They [these oaths] purport to be the injunctions of supreme power and claim supremacy over every obligation, human or divine. In this light they were regarded and acted upon by Masons of high standing and character who were concerned in the late Masonic murder in the State of New York, or connected with the trials which sprang from it, and in this construction these Masons were justified and upheld by the Grand Chapter and Grand Lodge of that State."

The committee, after taking the evidence reported, and in that report to the Legislature of the State of Connecticut occur these words: "The committee believe the administration of such oaths to be highly improper and that the same should be prohibited by legal enactment. Our reasons for this opinion are:

1. They are unauthorized by law.

2. They bind the person to whom they are administered to disregard and violate law.

3. Because they are in their natural tendency subversive of public morals and blasphemous.

The penalties attached to the breach of them are such as are entirely unknown to our law, and are forbidden, both by the Constitution of the United States and this State."

Jarvis F. Hanks, in his renunciation of the order, says: "In thus taking leave of Freemasonry I am not sensible of the least hostility to Masons, but act under a solemn conviction that Masonry is a wicked imposture, a refuge of lies, a substitute for the Gospel of Christ: that it is contrary to the laws of God and our country, and superior to either in the estimation of its disciples, and that it is the most powerful and successful engine ever employed by the devil to destroy the souls of men."

Dr. Fisch, of Paris, said: "Masonry is very bad. It does only evil. It is managed by deists and atheists. In lodges they do not mention Christ and God, only as the 'great architect of the universe.' The church in America must stand as one man against Masonry or she will be destroyed."

Mr. Muller, of the Bristol Orphanage, England, being asked what ministers should do who have joined the lodges, replied: "Oh, they must immediately abandon them and come out."

President Chas. G. Finney said: "Masonic oaths are a conspiracy against God and man, and are not repented of while they are adhered to. Refusing to renounce is adhering. Adherence makes them partakers of other men's sins. Because to adhere is to justify their oaths and the keeping and fulfillment of them. But to justify their crimes, the murder of Morgan for example, is to partake of the guilt of his murderers." [To laugh about it is laughing about murder].

Chas. Francis Adams says, "A more perfect agent for the devising and execution of conspiracies against church and state could scarcely have been conceived." * * * He [the candidate] then too late discovers himself to have been fitting for the condition either of a dupe or a conspirator. He has plunged himself needlessly into an abyss of obligations, which, if they signify little, prove him to have been a fool, and if, on the contrary, they signify much, prove him ready, at a moment's warning, to make himself a villain."—Introduction to Letters, p. 11, 12.

John Quincy Adams says that the Masonic fraternity in the Morgan transaction committed the following offenses: 1. Abuse of forms of law. 2. Infamous slander. 3. Conspiracy to commit any crime necessary to suppress the book. 4. Arson with possible murder of 8 or 10 persons sleeping in the building they sought to burn. 5. Fraud, deception, and treachery in procuring part of Morgan's book from himself, which was sent by special messenger to the General Grand Chapter of the United States, in session at New York. 6. Kidnapping one man and attempting to abduct another. 7. False imprisonment. 8. A murder taking nine days in its perpetration, keeping the wretched and helpless victim throughout the whole of that time in a state of continual and cruel torture. * * * These crimes I allege were committed by the fraternity. They were instigated by no impulse of individual passions * * * they were crimes of the craft, of which the guilty agents who committed them were but the fanatical instruments," etc.

The Synod of Cincinnati passed a resolution affirming that "Membership in a Masonic lodge is inconsistent with a credible profession of the Christian religion."

The General Association of Congregational churches in the State of Illinois adopted a report affirming that "by it [the lodge] Christ is dethroned and Satan exalted.

One of the churches of the Augustana Synod states its position thus: "We will not tolerate our members uniting with the Masonic or other infidel societies."

The Reformed Presbyterian, United Presbyterian, United Brethren, Free Methodist, Wesleyan Methodist, Friend Quakers, Lutherans, mission churches of Scandinavia, and others have declared Freemasonry hostile to the Christian religion. Now, without vouching for these gentlemen or religious bodies, who need no recommendation among intelligent people, I affirm that no man ought to unite with or continue in an organization thus condemned without the gravest and most overwhelming reasons. No Christian, no good citizen, no honest man should uphold the system for a moment if these charges, made by men of the highest character, are true. It will be interesting to observe the answer which the order makes to these serious charges which have been now for forty years before the public.

THE ANSWER OF THE LODGE.

Perhaps the one most commonly made and most effective with men is: If these statements were true the good men whom you know to be Masons would not be members of the fraternity. Do you suppose, we are indignantly asked, that ministers sustain an order that dethrones Christ; that judges and lawyers take oaths of conspiracy against the law, and honest citizens swear to conceal the crimes of theives and murderers?

The answer to this question is easy and will satisfy all who love truth more than their friends. Those who love their friends more than the truth could not be satisfied by any argument. The reply is this:

1. Good men may be mistaken as to the character of a practice or an institution. Good men have practised polygamy, distilled whisky, sold tobacco, and held slaves. Men's light differs and God winks at times at ignorance.

2. Good men may be deceived. Bad men might enter a Masonic lodge because they wish its aid and protection in committing crime; but good men, who know what the order is beforehand, do not unite with it. Those who are ignorant of its real character are told that it is merely a benevolent or social organization; that none of its obligations conflict with social, civil or religious duties; that it is founded on the Bible; that it is a help in traveling, in sickness, in business; that it will increase one's influence and help him to do good, etc. Induced by such arguments and the example of friends the man joins, and in his very first oath is sworn to keep all secret forever, under penalty of having his throat cut across and his tongue torn out by the roots.

3. But, some one will say, if this is true why do these good men go on? Why do they not stop? The answer is that many of them do. There are probably few of you who have not heard of men's going to the lodge and never returing after receiving the first degree. But some go on? Yes, this is true. They are told that the ceremonies of denuding and blinding and swearing are very ancient, have come down from Solomon or before and that they can't change them. This is all false, but the good man does not known it to be so and often the one who tells him does not know what the truth is, but simply passes on a time-worn lie invented by others. They are also told that the system is progressive and that it is far better farther on; that things seeming objectionable will be explained. So curiosity, and desire for advantage in the world, and the cunningly devised solicitations of liars who "never invite any one to join the lodge," all these things together lead them on until some take three, some seven or more degrees.

4. But why do not they leave at last, all of them, so that none but real wicked, profane, licentious, drunken, cheating men will have anything to do with it? If it is as evil as Webster and the Adamses, and Fisch and Finney and others say, no decent man should have anything to do with it.

We answer again, most of the good men who are known as Masons do practically abandon the order. The pious, intelligent, honest, industrious members of the lodge are not the men who keep up its meetings, hold its offices or manage its affairs. They are the "non-affiliates," the men who "don't have time to go," or who have "something better to do, etc., etc." Thus two points are gained. These good men advertize the lodge and the bad men manage it. The good men are like the wooden Indian before the cigar store, or the Gambrinus before the beer saloon, they neither sell smoke nor drink. The bad men are like the bar-tenders who sell the cigars and beer.

5. But, says another, I think these good men would come out openly and denounce the whole thing as a fraud and swindle. Especially the ministers ought to do this. What right have they to stand by and see young men cheated and sworn and infidelized in this way?

The answer again is easy. Some are ashamed, some are afraid, and some do as the objector thinks they should. But these last are assailed in all ways by slander, proscription and murder. For months past a minister, in Memphis, Tenn., who has committed no crime but that of renouncing the lodge, has been guarded night and day, even when going to or returning from his church, to prevent his assassination. His house has been shot full of holes at night, and a load of buck-shot fired at him, sent two balls through him and wounded two members of his church who were attending him home after a preaching service.

I dismiss here the argument from authority, praying that the eyes of my fellow-men may be opened. How often have the blind leaders and the blind followers fallen together into the ditch. These orders are multiplying like the frogs of Egypt and already croak in and defile all sacred places and themes. They seize upon patriotism, temperance, the desire to provide for wife and child, they shut churches to the truth, and cause a minister to preach as they please or turn him out of his pulpit, and whenever we condemn them for their sins against God and crimes against man, they tell us that there are so many good men in them that the charges cannot be true. Thus does Satan use pious, but timid or blinded men to buttress this system, which, take it all in all, is perhaps the most powerful system of idolatry which the world has ever seen.

Wheaton College.

THE BRITISH ELECTION.

The prophets of our day are busy casting about in their mind's eye what shall be the result of the general election in the United Kingdom. The natural result would be the change of premier from Salisbury to the "grand old man," Gladstone. But the virulence of party feeling runs so high that we need not be at all surprised if some turn of the wheel of fortune should enable the Tories to hold on to their death-like grip of power. The fusion of the Tories and Parnellites is a moral impossibility, and may be likened to the component parts of dynamite or gunpowder, so that a spark may send their late friendly electioneering hobnobbing sky-high. It is even possible that the professed dread of infidelity and love for the church, alleged to be endangered by the Liberals, may prompt the Tory ministry even to embroil the country in the cry for or in the reality of war, if thereby their hold of the reins of government could be confirmed.

One thing is clear, that the real test questtion in the coming Parliament will be "Ould Ireland." Gladstone has spoken, and will do his utmost to obtain for her the control over all her local affairs. He has already extended her franchise as much or more than that in England and Scotland. The Tories cannot do more nor better than he. But this local self-government will not satisfy many of the Irish nationalists. They wish independence. It is as much a question of union there as our own was between the South and the North. The Irish nationalists, chiefly Roman Catholics, yearn for a separate legislature, and a separate government for Ireland. Let us have one government and one legislature for the United Kingdom, say the Liberal party and equal rights and local self-government in the three countries.

It is but too evident, we fear, that the National Irish party are largely under the influence of secretism. They, as a party, have largely run their machine by the rules and regulations of lodgery. The immediate result is very close to the calculations of its leaders. But far better it would be in the future if free and open discussion and action were the rule of all the Irish and other voters. Lodgery may do for them what it did for our South, plunge them into all the horrors of a civil war, before they know what they are about.

A SCOT.

SHERIFF JOSEPH GARLINGHOUSE.

BY A. C. MOFFATT.

Seeing the name of Mr. Garlinghouse in your paper a short time ago reminded me of a part he acted in the Morgan excitement. During the session of the special court appointed by the Legislature of New York State, held at Rochester, to try the kidnappers of Morgan, William L. Marcy was special judge and John C. Spencer was special counsel for the people. At that court Morgan was proved to be in the hands of Rufus King when he was put into Fort Niagara. Mr. King was an officer in the army, in a regiment stationed in the vicinity of Green Bay Michigan. Requisition papers were obtained from President John Quincy Adams (the highest authority of the government except Freemasonry) to bring Mr. King before that special court then in session in Rochester, N. Y. Mr. Garlinghouse was deputized to serve those papers. He went to where the regiment was stationed, showed the papers to the colonel, who said, "Mr. King is out in camp. I will send for him to come in," and asked Mr. Garlinghouse to be seated in the office. After about two hours the colonel said, "It is time Mr. King was here. I will send another messenger." Mr. Garlinghouse waited an hour longer, then said he would go and see Mr. King, when the colonel told him it was of no use, that Mr. King was more than twenty miles from there on the best horse in the regimeut; that his mission was not welcome there, and advised him to leave with as little ceremony as possible.

Garlinghouse came back and reported the reception he met at the colonel's office. The President then sent a message to the colonel to deliver Mr. King before that court within fifteen days or he would be summarily dealt with. President Adams was not a Freemason, therefore Masonry could not control him. An officer in the regiment started with Mr. King for Rochester, where the court was in session. They stayed the last night within four miles of the city. In the morning Mr. King was found dead in the bed.

Mr. Garlinghouse died in Albany in the winter of 1861, I think. A notice came out in Mr. Weed's paper, the Albany Journal, saying, "At the death of Mr. Garlinghouse, janitor of the Senate, there passed away a man of strong mind and large area of experience. He knew much about the great Morgan excitement—that Morgan was sunk in Niagara river in the night of the 19th of September, 1826.

HOLIDAYS AND THE DUTIES OF MINISTERS IN REGARD TO THEM.

Rev. J. B. Dales, D. D., pastor of the Second United Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, in the Evangelical Repository.

Few persons, probably, realize how many objects have the term "holy" applied to them in the appointments and observances of men for professedly religious purposes. Besides the "Saint" which is so distinctively applied to the Apostles and Evangelists—though there is not the shadow of authority for it in the Bible,—a list of twenty-five different objects is given in Eadie's Ecclesiastical Cyclopedia, to which this term "holy" is applied, such as Holy Ashes, Holy Candles, Holy Oil, Holy Orders, Holy Thursday, etc., etc. Only one in the long list is ever found as a distinctive epithet in the New Testament, viz., the Holy Ghost. Yet, for all these, and the like, there is claimed a kind of religious authority and sanctity, and they have been widely made to contain a mingling of some of the most sacred acts and observances, with customs and practices that are of the most worldly and trifling, and sometimes demoralizing and injurious character or tendency.

Holiday is evidently the present accommodation or practical equivalent of the past Holy Day. But as the very pronunciation implies, it is stripped of much of its original meaning and is now largely a pleasure day of man, rather than a holy day of God.

Happily in this country the masses of the people have never yet made any extensive recognition of many of these days. In none of the directories for worship of the Congregationalist, Baptist, Methodist, or Presbyterian churches is there provision made for an authoritative observance of any such days, and it is only in the Roman Catholic church and in the churches that are most nearly akin to it in doctrine or in worship, that they are ever recognized or enjoined. But as men are always inclined to whatever will gratify the natural desires and feelings rather than the spiritual, the tendencies are ever, as facts are constantly showing, towards the multiplication of these days—a course which, it may be feared, often weakens or abuses the sanctity of true religion, by making it the excuse or the pretence for having such days at all, and thus have that religion practically held responsible for all the practices that characterize and so often debase the countries and communities where they exist.

The one day of a professed religious character that in our country is most generally acknowledged, and perhaps least abused, is the well-known Thanksgiving day. In no sense is it claimed to be a fixed day, or one of express divine appointment, and hence its observance has been generally set forth from year to year as a recommendation or call rather than a positive command, and while it might be regarded as suggested to all under this dispensation by the great Feast of Ingatherings under the former, yet it is in large measure a peculiarity of our own country. In other countries there have been occasional general thanksgiving days, as when the people of Leyden in Holland, most devoutly observed October 30th, 1575, as a day of general thanksgiving, as it was the first anniversary of their great deliverance from the most terrible calamities. Just after the first harvest was gathered in by the Plymouth Pilgrims of New England, in 1621, Governor Bradford sent out a call for all the Colony to spend a day which he named in the month of October, in full-hearted thanksgiving to God. Thenceforward also—time after time the Puritan governors of the Colony of Massachusetts, and the Dutch and English governors of New Netherlands, or New York, pursued this course. Nearly every year during the Revolutionary War, and dark as things often were, Congress recommended some particular day for general thanksgiving. So did Washington, the first President, in 1789, for the general adoption of the National Constitution. And thus did several of our Presidents, occasionally at least, and many of the State governors quite regularly up to 1864, when the lamented President Lincoln instituted, near the close of the war, what has been observed throughout the country ever since—a National Thanksgiving Day.

That such a day, especially when recommended on the ground of the right of God to the grateful homage of his creatures and in public acknowledgement of the Lord Jesus Christ is eminently becoming and dutiful, no one can in any sense justly deny. And no one can doubt that the general cheerful public worship of God on that day, the social and genial good feeling which largely characterize it—all attest the propriety and the value of it.

Beyond this day, however, there has been a disposition from a small beginning in the second century, and a much larger development in the fourth, to have days set apart with all the authority of church enactments which at first were apparently for religious observance, but are at length most marked for holiday purposes. Originally these days were founded upon acts or scenes in the life of our Lord, or of so-called martyrs and saints. In the second century the first recognition of such days began, as Bingham and Mosheim expressly declare, and that by having special regard paid to the anniversary days of the death and ascension of Christ. Two centuries later these days greatly increased in number, and that increase continued until, as in the Roman Catholic church alone, we have now a list of more than two hundred such days.

Even in the Church of England, and of her daughter, the Protestant Episcopal church in this country, there are forty such days. And in all these churches all the authority of the church in its rubrics and canons, and all the force of having one's reputation for piety be judged according as he is faithful in such observances, are brought to recommend or enforce them.

But are such days right, and ought they to be observed?

We unhesitatingly deny them, and this for the following among other reasons.

First. God has expressly appointed one day in seven—and only one—to be a holy day, and said of it—and said it of no other day—"Remember to keep it holy." In the very nature of the case, any appointing of another day or of other days, and any regrading them and calling them holy days, is an adding to this appointment of God, and cannot but be followed, on his own solemn statement, with his adding to the doers of such things the plagues that are written in his book.

Second. There is not a hint to be found in the Bible of any other day than the Sabbath ever being intended to be a stated holy day. And hence, as no man was allowed to know where the body of Moses was buried, probably lest men in subsequent ages might make their religious pilgrimages to the spot, or show some idolatrous or superstitious regard for it; so we may suppose God has never allowed men to know, with absolute certainty, the precise days for which, in several cases, these claims are set forth.

Take for instance, Christmas—a day which, it is assumed, commemorates the birth of Christ, and which, even in professed Protestant communities, as well as in the highest and most degraded walks alike of Romanism, many are coming so largely to practically adopt, and yet no man can tell when it was. Some day in nearly every month of the year has been claimed for it. Clemens Alexandrinus, who died in the year 220, says it was on the 20th of May. Basilides fixed it on the 10th of January, and Bochart on the 22d of March. The learned Scaliger placed it in October, and the no less learned Dr. Lightfoot and Dr. Gill dated it in September. But in the clearest fact no one knows from the Bible, or can know, when it was. Now is it reasonable that a day which was to be exalted to such an honor as this has been could have been left of God so absolutely unsettled and unappointed? And how, then, can it be but that there is a fearful responsibility taken when men practically regard it as if he had appointed it, and give themselves up to countenance or maintain it, with all its usual frivolities, and all under the pretence that it is for a religious purpose?

Third. We deny the right or authority of these days, because the practical tendency of them in any community is to weaken the hold which the Sabbath, as the day of the Lord, should have upon the consciences and the regards of men. In Roman Catholic countries, where there are so many holy days, there is scarcely any Sabbath. In the city of Havana, in the winter of 1840, a shopkeeper would not take pay from us for an article that we called for on Christmas, which came that year on Saturday, but asked that we should call the next day and pay, and when we replied we could not do business on the Sabbath, he immediately said: "Christmas holy day—more better than Sabbath day."

In our own city, comparatively recently, a lady, who is a devout member of one of the churches that has a large number of these days, reproved, with great earnestness and solemnity, her little boy for whistling on Good Friday morning, and shortly after herself had a large, fashionable dinner party on the Sabbath.

Fourth. Because the multiplication of these days tends to demoralize and injure the masses of the people of any country. In any place where these days are largely observed the Sabbath largely ceases. Men are thrown on themselves. All doors of dissipation are opened. In the Island of Cuba, at the above mentioned time, it was stated that there were over ninety of these days in the year, during which, and because they were holy days, public works were generally stopped. Even the Custom House was closed during those days. And while in the early morning, and perhaps forenoon, the churches were opened and religious services were had, yet the afternoon and evening of each day, and especially of the Sabbath, saw its Pasee crowded with promenaders. The bull-baitings were more frequent then than on any other days. All the theatres, operas and places of public amusement, even to those of the lowest and vilest character, were in full blast; and thus there, as in every community or country where such days are accepted and multiplied (as the tendency is always to have them do), the effect is the promotion of idleness, dissipation, and almost all personal and social evils, is so direct and mighty that they are evil, and only evil. But,

Lastly. As such days are nowhere mentioned in the Christian Scriptures; as there is not the slightest provision made for their observance, or the slightest hint of a command for it; and as their tendencies are so largely to evil, we believe that they are not, in any sense, of God, and cannot, therefore, be for good to man.

If then, in conclusion, it be asked, What are the duties of ministers in regard to holy days? it must, we conceive, be answered, That in their popular sense, and so far as their religious character is concerned, they are not to be admitted at all. Let the day of thanksgiving, when properly recommended, be devoutly observed as an ordinance of God, set forth, for the time, in his providence and Word. But of the large round of holidays, derived as many of them were from the worst and most debasing observances of heathenism, and tending as they so largely do to demoralization and evil, let ministers stand aloof from them in word and deed, and urge their people to hold fast, not man's holiday, but God's holy day.

CROTCHETY MASONS.

From the Detroit Freemason.

Crotchety Masons are becoming a nuisance. They are to the Masonic institution what warts are to the human body—little excrecences, not painful but annoying—and unless something is done with them they will grow larger, and in time will become very troublesome. When that kind of men get an idea in their heads it is impossible to reason with them, neither argument nor logic will penetrate their craniums. They are like the juryman who said the jury would have agreed if it had not been for those eleven contrary men with him on the jury. It is said that it takes all kinds of men to make up the world. There are some very peculiar people in this world, and quite a variety of them get into the Masonic order. During the past 21 years we have had occasion to visit in the different Masonic bodies in most of the States and British Provinces, and have observed the differences there are in the modes of work, in one State from another, and the peculiar ideas advanced by some of the members about the order.

About the secrets of Freemasonry, some say it s a wonderfully secret institution—you must not speak of it in the presence of those not members; must not do anything in public installation of officers, or have a family reunion in the lodge room and invite ladies to participate; and some think the order of the Eastern Star is an innovation on Freemasonry—and other crotchety notions about display, music, etc. Then there are those who think the Knights Templar, Scottish rite, and other higher degrees do not belong to Masonry, and some crochety Masons in Ohio expelled a number from one of their grand bodies because they joined another body displeasing to them, so they called it illegitimate.

In Canada the same crotchety spirit has been expressed in regard to the different bodies, so-called legal and so-called illegal—one Simon pure and the other illegal body both claiming to be the original body and the only one entitled to confer the degrees.

Then we have the Royal rite, the Memphis rite, and we might mention a dozen more, all claiming to be the true and only legitimate body.

Now we would ask, Who is to be the judge? who is prepared to say which is or which is not the legitimate body?

Gentlemen, you pay your money and take your choice.

The Grand Chapter and the Grand Commandery of the Masons met at Marshalltown last week and aired their finery. They ransacked the alphabet as usual to find some initials to stock their grand officers. They had regalia and bands and marching, and everything to impress the minds of the uninitiated, but we venture to assert that none of them is as well posted in the ritual and work of the order as Pres. C. A. Blanchard, and not one of them dare meet him in public debate on any question in relation to secret societies. We have given some few explanations of how the Knights in the Commandery drink wine out of the top of a human skull, and soon we will show our readers how the members of the Chapter are made Royal Arch Masons.—Birmingham Free Press.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—There has been much comment on Mr. Cleveland's course in remaining at his post instead of going to the funeral of the Vice President, and in some quarters he has been accused of cowardice. But surely it took more moral courage to face the adverse criticism than to have gone to Indianapolis. He doubtless remained here in deference to the best convictions of all parties. There is no doubt that among the first things done by Congress will be to provide for the Presidential succession, and Mr. Hoar's bill, which passed the Senate at last session, will be promptly passed. The declination of Mr. Logan of the nomination for president of the Senate took everybody by surprise, and the nomination of Mr. Sherman will give general satisfaction. The appointment of Mr. Wilson, an old resident of the District, as District Marshal, gives general satisfaction to all parties.

Prof. A. A. Hopkins and Rev. Mr. Mead, of New York, who are the advance guard of prohibition lecturers going South, recently spoke in Baltimore and this city. In Baltimore both had large audiences. In this city, Mr. Mead, who addressed a colored audience, had a full house, but Prof. Hopkins, who gave a most able address in the 6th Presbyterian church, had but a very meager hearing. The fact that prohibition was the theme doubtless drove away politicians.

There are perhaps 50 to 60 Chinese in this city, mostly engaged in laundries. They are industrious, inoffensive and useful. There has been a school instituted for their benefit in the Metropolitan M. E. church, and the work has the sympathies of all good people. There is, however, a strong anti-Chinese feeling both in this city and in Baltimore, which has its origin with the so-called labor organizations, and is participated in by the colored people. The political party leaders, who always ask what will give us votes, rather than what is right, think this drift of public sentiment will waft them into office, and hence make large concessions to it. It is highly probable that this Congress will endeavor to strengthen the laws of exclusion. It is certainly very remarkable that a few score thousands of peaceful and industrious Asiatic foreigners should excite such intense hostility when a great multitude of boisterous and murderous Europeans are permitted to dominate the political parties. The following, written in reference to the Congress that passed the anti-Chinese act, will as well apply to the present one:

"The mighty Congress shook with fear
At this queer, silent little man,
And cried, as only Congress can:
'Stop washing, and git out of here.'
The small brown man, he ceased to rub,
And raised his little shaven head
Above the steaming, sudsy tub,
And unto this great Congress said,
Straight-forward, business-like and true:
'Two bittee dozen washee you,'
Then calmly went on washing.

"Oh, honest, faithful little John,
If you will lay aside your duds,
And take a sea of soap and suds
And wash out dirty Washington;
If you will be the Hercules
To cleanse our stables clean of these
That all such follies fatten on,
There's fifty million souls to-day
To bid you welcome, bid you stay,
And calmly keep on washing."

Am. Missionary.

The work of evanglization goes on in the Central Union mission with unabated interest. Among those recently converted is a Knight Templar, who tells me he is filled with horror and disgust at the institution. He testifies to the correctness of our expositions and sympathizes heartily with our work. May the Lord give him the courage of his convictions.

I have just returned from the Capitol Congress, in both houses, was called to order promptly at 12 M., but half an hour before that time the galleries were packed to their utmost capacity. After a fruitless endeavor to get into either hall, I went into the Supreme Court and listened to the decisions in several cases of no general interest.

John Sherman is doubtless president of the Senate, and Mr. Carlisle, speaker of the House. The President's message will not be presented until tomorrow. Our winter has fairly come. Ponds are frozen over, and there is a sharp northwest wind, but a bright clear sky. H. H. HINMAN.

THE SUPREME COUNCILS

The quarrel of the Supreme Masonic Councils has been exhibited by the contestants themselves in the last two numbers of the Cynosure. According to the Masonic World, March, 1885, several so-called Supreme Councils have been formed, six of which are still meeting in the United States. Dr. Dalcho, of Charleston, S. C., is said to have formed the first in 1801, under charter from Frederick the Great. But as this Council was defunct from 1802 to 1857, and the evidence that Frederick ever did or ever had the right to give such a charter being ably disputed, the facts are not very clear. Just before Albert Pike revived this Council, and it continues to be the Supreme Council for the Southern Jurisdiction, including all of the United States west of the Mississippi and south of the Ohio.

Another Council originated in 1813. Emanuel De la Motta came to New York in that year, as he says, in search of health and not for any lodge business. But he forthwith set up a Supreme Council on his own authority. This Council became extinct four years later, but was revived by J. J. J. Gourgas in 1848. From 1851 to 1860 E. A. Raymond was Sov. Grand Commander. But during the political feeling preceding the war this supreme band of "brothers" could not live together in spite of their multitude of barbarous and horrible oaths of fealty. In 1860 he disolved the Council and started a new one of his own with a small coterie of friends. At the same time the opposing party, headed by H. K. Van Rensselear, organized yet another Council. In 1863 Raymond, finding his little affair going down, united with the United States or Cerneau Council, which had existed since 1813. But there was no peace. In November, 1866, the intrigues of Albert Pike having succeeded, S. U. Robinson, the Grand Commander, called a meeting of his friends in this Union Council and declared its dissolution and all absolved from their oaths. The body then revived the Raymond Council and next year united with the Van Rensselear body, which has since been known as the Supreme Council of the A. and A. Scottish Rite for the Northern Jurisdiction, occupying the rest of the United States left them by Pike; Pike's body, from its supposed earlier date, being called the "Mother Council of the World."

These are the organizations which some Grand lodges have voted as the only genuine bodies of Supreme Council Masonry, and it is attempted to cast out all others. For printing a word in defense of the other Councils, Rev. Henry D. Moore, of Cincinnati, was the other day expelled from the order, though defended in the secret tribunal by no less a person than Judge Foraker, governor-elect of Ohio.

The history of the rival United States or Cerneau council is given thus in a Masonic circular:

"The Supreme Council 33d and last degree of the A. and A. Scottish Rite of Freemasonry for the United States of America, their Territories and dependencies, working under the constitution of 1762, was established by Joseph Cerneau, in New York City, October 28th, 1807. During the following year, its constitutional number being completed, it was announced in the daily papers and to all Masonic bodies, December 7th, 1808. A communication was also sent to the Grand Lodge of the State of New York. Said communication was received and recorded in its proceedings, page 431, as follows:

"'A communication from an association styling itself a Sovereign Grand Consistory of the Supreme Degrees, announcing to this Grand Lodge in very respectful terms its establishment in this city on October 28th, 1807, under patents regularly served from lawful authority, and disclaiming any power or authority inconsistent with the local supremacy of this Grand Lodge over Master Masons, was read and ordered to be filed.'

"At the time of it formation it publicly denounced and rejected the Secret Constitution and Institutes purporting to come from Frederic II., King of Prussia, and given to Dr. Dalcho, dating 1786, as a fraud upon the Masonic order. This is the doctrine also of the Grand Orient of France.

"In 1807–8 the Consistory was fully organized with Joseph Cerneau as Sovereign Grand Commander.

"In 1811, Hon. DeWitt Clinton was elected Deputy Grand Commander, and Sovereign Grand Commander in 1823, remaining as such until his death, in 1828, having been a member of this Council seventeen years. In 1812, the Supreme Council for the United States of America, their Territories and dependencies, was fully established, received recognition from the Supreme Council of France, and entered into correspondence with the same. In 1814, this Council organized and officered the first Grand Encampment of Knights Templar in the United States for the State of New York. In 1816, this Council was acknowledged by the Grand Orient of France. Its president, German Hacquet, having returned to France, was appointed representative near the Grand Orient of France.

"From 1807 to 1866 this Council established about thirty Grand Consistories and subordinate bodies in the following places: New York; Newport, R. I.; New Orleans, La.; Charleston, S. C.; Philadelphia, Penn.; Brussels, Belgium; Baltimore, M. D.; Havana, Cuba; Mayaguez, Porto Rico; Cumana, Varcelona, LaGuayra, Port of Spain; Bridgeport, Conn.; San Francisco, Cal.; Trenton, N. J.; Boston, Mass.; Syracuse, Rochester, Albany, and Brooklyn, N. Y.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Nashua, N. H.; also in Maine. It was recognized by all Supreme Councils of the world (except Albert Pike's), and its duly appointed representatives were acknowledged by each of the same. This Supreme Council has had an unbroken existence during all the years from 1807 to 1866 (except the years of the Morgan excitement), with its regular organization, regular annual meetings, active and legitimate labors, with continuous records of all its proceedings and reports of its transactions; all proven by the records themselves now in the possession of the Council, and documentary proof which cannot be controverted. Its Grand Commanders were Joseph Cerneau, in 1807–21; John W. Mulligan, 1821–23; Hon. DeWitt Clinton, 1823–28; Elias Hicks, 1828–46; H. C. Atwood, 1846–51; Jeremy L. Cross, 1851–51; H. C. Atwood, 1852–59; Edmund B. Hays, 1859 to December, 1865, Hopkins Thompson being his Lieutenant Grand Commander; Simon W. Robinson, 1865 to December, 1866, when he declared Union Council illegitimate, and dissolved the same, absolving all members from their Oaths of Fealty, and proceeded to revive the defunct Raymond-Gourgas Council."

BIBLE IN THE SCHOOLS.—An election was lately held in Concordia, Kansas, in which the chief issue was, whether the Bible should be read in the public schools or not. There was intense excitement, all the ministers and many of the Christian women being at the polls all day. Out of 964 votes 684 were for the Bible. It is strange that opposition is made to the reading of the Bible in the schools. Readers contain selections from writers of all religions and of no religion. Latin and Greek books containing all sorts of heathen mythology are read and no one even questions the propriety of their use, but the Bible, which contains the highest and purest system of morals in the world is to be the only forbidden book. What a liberal thing liberalism is. It begins to look as if Christians have no rights in this country which liberalists are bound to respect. —Midland.

—Canon Farrar's Thanksgiving sentiment was: "Thank God that the fathers and founders of your nation were God-fearing men—men who loved God more than gold; men who loved righteousness and hated iniquity."

—Among the apothegms quoted in the press from M. Renan's new book is this: "Religion cannot stand discussion. The moment one reasons on religion he is an atheist." The significance of these words can be better understood when it is remembered that with M. Renan religion and the Roman Catholic church are synonyms.—Mich. Christian Herald.

—When Osborne House was ready to go into, Queen Victoria and her family had a house-warming. It was a gay and happy time. There is a beautiful hymn of Martin Luther's which the Germans often sing at house-warming, and Prince Albert being a German, and keeping a tender liking for the pleasant home customs, repeated it at his house-warming. Here it is:

"God bless our going out, nor less
Our coming in, and make them sure;
God bless our daily bread, and bless
What'er we do, what'er endure;
In death unto his peace awake us,
And heirs of his salvation make us."

—In the little kingdom of Travancore, the "land of grace," on the southwest coast of India, "Christianity has so far displaced heathenism that one man out of every five ranges himself among the followers of Christ." So writes a missionary. But he says that part of this number of Christians belonged to a dead church, the Assyrian Christian Church, which has been in Travancore many centuries. Their churches wear the air of ruin; and their worship is without life. The Church Missionary Society is doing an important work of reformation among them.

LITERATURE.

SMITH'S DIAGRAM OF PARLIAMENTARY RULES, showing the relations of any motion to every other motion, and answering at a glance over 500 questions in Parliamentary practice; together with a key containing concise hints and directions for conducting the business of deliberative assemblies. Price 50 cents. Review and Herald Publishing Association, Battle Creek Mich.

The intricacies of parliamentary practice are to most men a labyrinth which they do not attempt to penetrate. But in this little work we have an Ariadne's clue, by which the way through it is cleared, the confusion is made plain. This is an invaluable work for all who need to inform themselves on parliamentary rules. The subject is presented in a new and wonderfully plain arrangement, by which a great amount of information is presented to the eye at once, in a marvelously condensed form. By an ingeniously-devised system of diverging and converging lines, all the rules applying to any given motion, and all the motions coming under any given rule, are presented at one view, facilitating immensely the acquisition of a general knowledge of this subject, and furnishing to a chairman instant information on any point upon which doubts may arise.

THE CIVIL SERVICE VS. THE SPOILS SYSTEM, by George S. Bernard, is one of the latest issues of the Elzevir Library, published by John B. Alden, New York, for 10 cents. It is a republication of fourteen articles on the merit plan for filling public offices, originally published in the Index-Appeal of Petersburg, Va. The articles being well endorsed by some of the leaders in this reform, as Dorman B. Eaton, late commissioner of the Civil Service, Senator Pendleton, Carl Schurz, George William Curtis, and others. Having such endorsement it must be supposed to be a fair treatment of the subject, and it certainly is published with a view to popularity so far as a low price and neat printing can secure it.

"Secret Religious Oath-bound Fraternities in the Light of God's Word," is the title of a neat pamphlet printed by the Lutheran Book Concern at Columbus, Ohio. It contains an address made by Rev. Edward Pfeiffer in St. Mark's Evangelical Lutheran church, Delaware, Ohio, last July. Pastor Pfeiffer found the lodge making alarming inroads upon his church, and was compelled as a measure of self-defence to take up the question in earnest. The result of his studies and inquiries he gives to his people in this strong, earnest address. He does not claim for it originality in argument or fact, but makes a wise and convincing use of the evidences already provided. The address is a useful addition to our reform literature, and since Pastor Pfeiffer took the advice of those who heard it to print it for all, we hope it will secure a w de circulation. No price is given, but probably 10 cents sent to Rev. E. Peiffer, Delaware, Ohio, will secure a copy.

The Library Magazine for the month gives its readers some valuable discussions of current topics in "The English Radicals and Socialism," "The Coup D'Etat in Eastern Roumelia," "Men and Manners in Constantinople," and "Baghdad in 1885." The contributions to philosophy and religion are also valuable; as "Natural Heirship, or All the World Akin;" "Education—Classical, Scientific and Spiritual," by Cannon Farrar; "The Uniformity of Nature," by the Bishop of Carlisle; "Robert Moffat, Missionary;" "The Development of Religious Error," by Cardinal Manning; "German and American Theological Scholarship by Dr. Philip Schaff. Other articles are: "Carlyle as a Political Teacher," "Anno Domini 1885," "The Lesson of Jupiter," and "The British South African Colonies." Such is a month's reading in this cheapest of the magazines.

A personal interest attaches to several of the pictures and articles in the December Century. The frontispiece is a striking portrait of the late Helen Jackson ("H. H."), with which is given an appreciative account of her life and writings, by a New England writer, followed by seven new poems, her last work in verse. "The poetry of Mrs. Jackson," says this writer, "unquestionably takes rank above that of any American woman, and in the opinion of many above that of any English woman but Mrs. Browning. Emerson, it is well known, rated it above that of almost all American men." The work which has given her the noblest repute is, however, her remarkable defense of the Indian race in "A Century of Dishonor." A number of beautiful illustrations accompany the story of Gardiner's Island off the east end of Long Island, which was once the property of the only "American lord." Captain Ericsson furnishes the serious war paper of the number, which is both important as a contribution to history and interesting to the general reader, since it describes the principles of construction of the original Monitor, and the performances of "The Monitors" as a class, all from the point of view of the inventor. The pictures illustrate fully the battle incidents, as well as the mechanical side of the paper. "The Loss of the Monitor" is briefly and most graphically described by a survivor, Francis B. Butts. The Shah and his palaces are described incidentally in an attractive illustrated paper on "The City of Teheran," by the Hon. S. G. W. Benjamin, late United States Minister to Persia. Popular essays are contributed by the Rev. A. F. Schauffler, on "Faith Cures;" by John Burroughs, on "Bird Enemies;" and by Prof. Waller, of the Columbia College School of Mines, on "Dangers in Food and Drink." The writer's position as chemist to the New York Health Department lends weight to his opinions regarding this important subject.

The frontispiece of December St. Nicholas is a copy of a little girl's portrait from a painting by Sir Joshua Reynolds. The best part of the magazine and most attractively illustrated are two articles on the celebrated Rugby school, England, made forever famous, not alone by its educational work, but by Hughes's "Tom Brown's School-days." "How Fishes Climb Hill," "New Bits of Talk for Young Folks," by H. H., "The Rajah's Paper-cutter," and chapter xxviii of "Among the Law-makers," are also useful and good. But the greater part of the magazine is so filled with Christmas stuff that the excellent features are hardly able to save it from condemnation.

REFORM NEWS.

MISSISSIPPI CONVENTION.

COLUMBUS, Miss., Dec. 7, 1885.

The Convention of the Associated Churches of Christ met at Cedar Grove church, in Lowndes county, Miss., on the 2nd of December. The delegates were from churches in Mississippi and Alabama. The day was intensely cold and we passed through long lanes between cotton fields, where groups of colored people, mostly women, were hastening to finish the cotton picking, or were standing around smoking fires. As the cutting winds came sweeping across the fields I felt that few circumstances could have called me there such a day; but I was glad to have an opportunity to attend a meeting so important.

When we met, and the united songs and prayers went up to Him to whom belongs all power in heaven and in earth, and we heard the strong words of faith and determination, and learned from the reports of the different members that a greater amount of reform work had been done than usual, we felt that it was indeed good to be there. Our hearts were rejoiced on account of the success and prospects of the work. Among the ideas brought out in the very interesting addresses were the necessity of pushing forward the anti-secret reform, and the guilt of those preachers who by precept or example lead others into secret orders. The following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the proposition to hold a National Church Conference to unite the energy and power of the church against secret orders meets our hearty approbation.

Resolved, That in view of the fact that great efforts are made to bring the colored people under the dominion of the lodge, and many are uninformed as to the bondage, dishonest and unchristian principles of secret orders, we will call on the Christian people to assist us in securing, through the N. C. A., tracts for extensive distribution among them.

Resolved, That we extend our hearty sympathy to brethren Brinkley, Imes and Countee, and their associates in reform, in Tennessee, who are persecuted on account of their noble testimony and action against secret orders, and bid them God-speed; and, inasmuch as their stand will doubtless have great effect among the colored people, we ask the Christian friends who can to please forward help to Bro. Countee.

In addition to the usual collections a small amount was raised for the publication of a series of illustrated tracts. I hope the readers of the Cynosure, will remember the urgent necessity of pushing forward the reform work in the South and will by their contributions enable the N. C. A. to send out these tracts speedily. Christian friends of the reform, when your requests are made known to God, please to especially remember the workers in Lowndes county, Miss., and ask that God will continually give to us a full supply of strength, opportunity, wisdom, means and grace for the work needed to be done here. Our prayers are with you.

M. A. F. TAPLEY.

MISSION WORK IN NEW HAMPSHIRE.

I started from home, Friday, Nov. 20, called on a number of familes in Durham, including the two ministers, secured a few subscribers for the CHRISTIAN WITNESS and reached Deacon Moses Pierce's about noon, where I was refreshed in both body and spirit. After noon, I called on Bro. Bennett E. Swaine, and was much encouraged in my work. I found shelter for the night beneath the hospitable roof of Deacon E. Smith, of Strafford. Sister Smith is sick. May the Lord raise her up to health. I spent the following day visiting the sick and in pleasant communion with the friends of former days. I spent five years in Christian work in this place. Night found me in the kind care of Bro. Solomon D. Berry and wife, where all my wants were supplied after the Christian way. Bro. Berry has recently come out of darkness into light and there is great joy in that place. I preached Sunday A. M. at South Barnstead, from 2 Chron., 32: 25, and the Lord was present to confirm his word and bless his people. In the afternoon I spoke to the friends at South Strafford on the importance of having the presence and help of the Holy Spirit. In the evening a gentleman who has been a member of the Masonic fraternity confessed the Lord for the first time in public. He will have no further need of Masonry. Monday night I shared the hospitality of Bro. J. H. Bartlett and his excellent wife at Barnstead Centre. I am also indebted to Garland Brown and A. W. Foss, of Strafford, Wm. Clough and Rufus S. Foss, of Barnstead, Edwin F. Towle and John H. Jenners, of Northwood, and Bro. Hatch, of Nottingham for entertainment or special kindness. May the Lord reward them. I conversed on my way with four ministers, two Free Baptists and two Congregationalists, no one of whom belongs to any secret society. I never spent a week in the Lord's service when his guiding hand seemed more manifest. Every day and every hour his kindly providence seemed to go before me and prepare the way. My own soul was especially refreshed and I trust my labor in the Lord was not in vain. I was led to visit and pray with an unusually large number of sick, and without a single exception they are looking for the Lord to heal them. It is surprising how the doctrine of the Lord, in refrence to the healing of the sick, is spreading, and how many cases there are where the Lord has been pleased to stretch forth his hand to heal. The weather was threatening and stormy, but where obstacles abounded, grace did much more abound. I look forward with thanksgiving and praise to God in view of the work before me, and I can not express the gratitude I feel to those generous friends whose liberality has in a measure enabled me to turn from the necessity of manual labor to preaching the Gospel to the poor. Let all who read these lines pray that I may have boldness to preach the whole Gospel, and have wisdom to lead many from darkness to light.

S.C. KIMBALL,
Home Missionary of the N. H. C. A.

CORRESPONDENCE.

HOPS AND BEER.

BARNESVILLE, N. Y., Nov. 29, 1885.

DEAR EDITOR:—I have been reading your excellent paper, the Cynosure, and am delighted with the truths it advocates, and its bold stand against the popular sins of the day. There is one thing I have not noticed, a blast on the hop-raising business. I live in a temperance town, the people would not license a house to sell rum quicker than they would a horse thief, but nearly every man will raise hops and sell them by the wholesale to brewers to make beer of, for poor men to pour down till they are so large they look more like stuffed scare-crows than anything else, with their red noses, and inflamed faces they don't look much like the temple of the Holy Ghost. While their families are suffering at home, they are turning down the beer by the gallon at five cents a glass. Cheap—don't you think? But twenty glasses make a dollar, and these money-loving Christians, supposing that gain is godliness, help on this work of degradation and ruin of both soul and body, by devoting the best of their land "for that which is not meat," raising hops, and then come to church and shout and pray, and say they do all to the glory God. God help them! I hope your paper will cry out against this outrage on Christ's cause.

F. I. LABRUM.

[John E. Potter, the well-known evangelist, whose work has been signally owned of God, began years ago to preach against the tobacco barns of Connecticut valley with great power. The farmers of the valley probably used little of the tobacco, but were partners in the vile tobacco business. So hop raisers need to have a regard for their obligations to God. They can sometimes be sure that hops and barley will be used for a lawful purpose, but to sell them in the open market is pretty sure to get them into the mash-tub of a brewery.—ED.]

POST-MORTEM TESTIMONY.

HOLLISTER, Cal., Nov. 26, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—It is written, "The children of this world are wiser than the children of light." I want to call the attention of our workers in reform to one particular in which we are largely out-done by the worshipers of Baal. They to give weight and character to their hypocritical professions of piety, have the hardihood to carry their religion to their graves with them, and inscribe their emblems on their monuments, and their names and emblems over the gateway that leads into their burying-grounds, as a standing proof of their willingness to risk their salvation on their lodge religion. In this way they gain great influence.

On our part the erection of the Morgan monument was a step taken in the right direction. Still there is large room for improvement. Let each anti-secretist record his position on his tombstone or his monument, with any important facts that he may possess. Seceders especially could record facts worth preserving.

In this community the Odd-fellows own the only well-cared-for cemetery. The front gate is arched and on the arch their name is written in great capitals. The Masons bury with them; inside are their emblems.

It is astonishing to me to see our strongest Anti-masons buy lots and bury in their enclosure, and pass under that arch. I can not do it. I have bought a family lot outside, and commenced burying in it: and in the center I have laid the foundation for a monument, on which I intend to inscribe my sentiments on the subject of the lodge in as forcible a manner as possible.

I wish every reformer would do so; the world would soon cease to look upon their burial services as so honorable. I never was a member of a secret order, and cannot bear so good a testimony as those who have been through the lodges. Still I will give my opinion. L. B. LATHROP.

UNITY IN THE ROMISH CHURCH.

DETROIT, Mich., Dec. 5, 1885.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—The Rt. Rev. Bishop Borgess, of the Romish church of Detroit, is having plenty of trouble these days with his flock, both priests and laity. It is only a few days since one of the French parishes of Detroit was the scene of a riot excited by a change of priests. In an open letter by the French people of Detroit to Bishop Borgess, and dated the 19th of October, 1885, it was said:

"Bishop, the dismissal of our two French Canadian priests, the Revds. Laporte, was an act of violence that you committed against us, and you know it to be such, Monseigneur. Our petition requesting that our priests be left in charge of us, was received by you, Monseigneur, with an unpardonable discourtesy. You said, in answer to our petition, signed by 500 of us, they did not know what they were doing. You think that we are all crazy. For a long time, Monseigneur, you have had no love for the Canadian people. Whence came it that there is no longer a single Canadian priest in your diocese to represent the 165,000 French Canadians, who were the first Christians upon the soil of this state? We have been slighted and overlooked and many of our number have lost faith in this diocese and in that of Grand Rapids, while you were the bishop there. The church property and the money of the church are not yours in the eyes of God, nor in the eyes of the church."

The whole French affair culminated in a horrible war among the French Catholics, their Bishop, and Father Dangelzer, the newly appointed pastor. The parochial residence at 555 East Fort street, has been furnished with arms, and should any further outrage be attempted, a vigorous resistance will be made. Father Dangelzer, the new French pastor, has been forced, few days previous by masked, armed Catholics, to pack his things and go away.

During the summer there have been three ecclesiastical trials of priests charged with gross immoralities. Now the brave Poles of St. Albert's church are making freedom shriek in their own quarters. The excitement among the members of that Polish church over Bishop Borgess' action in supplanting Rev. Father Kolasinski, as pastor of that church, with Rev. Father Dombroski, does not subside. The 2d of December Father Dombroski, assisted by another Polish priest, attempted to celebrate mass. They had the protection of the police, but in making their way from the convent across the street to the church, they were hissed and hooted and literally pelted with chunks of mud and bits of gravel. While they succeeded, after one or two repulses, in gaining the inside of the church, the outbreak did not stop. The sacred (?) walls of the church resounded with cat-calls and shouts of anger and the scene presented was that of a perfect bedlam. The policemen guarded the aisles, but the men and women clambered over the pews and made a rush, not only to the altar rail, but even inside the holy (?) space, until the priests fled into the vestry room in dismay. A thousand infuriated Polish women had organized a regular mob. They went so far as to throw stones and other missiles to the newly appointed priests. A woman slapped Father Dombroski in the face. Father Kolasinski, the deposed priest, is esteemed and worshiped by the whole congregation, 7,000 in number. The Bishop who is a fierce potentate, as all the bishops of Rome, refused to be interviewed in that matter. The congregation has rights, but the bishop has the power. I know it myself by experience. For that reason I gave up this human system of religion which has impoverished in every sense of the word, both spiritually and temporally, all the nations which have submitted themselves to that devilish Roman power.

The bishop of this diocese, as all his confreres, is absolute and exclusive. The present situation is a bond of dissension; dissatisfaction and anger encircling the entire city of Detroit, so far as the Catholic parishes are concerned. First, there is the old dispute over the St. Ann's church property, next comes the St. Joachim's church difficulty, now being presented at Rome; then there's the trouble in St. Albert's church; the church of St. Casimir is on the verge of having a rebellion, and finally, to cap the climax, every parish in the city is all broken up; and so it is "ad nauseum," all through the diocese and abroad among our united (?) holy (?) dignitaries of the church of Rome. "Ab uno disco omnes."

All I said in July last in a public lecture, in Woodward Avenue Congregational church, concerning the immoralities of priests and bishops has come to be true in this very city where the newspapers and few ministers found that I was too sweeping in my assertions against the Catholic clergy. P. A. SEGUIN.

Supt. French Missions.

PITH AND POINT.

THE MEMPHIS OUTLOOK.

I attended services yesterday and three more of the members came forward and publicly renounced the lodge. On Friday night the church held a regular business meeting and five of the members left the church, clinging to the lodge. I am glad to learn that the senior editor of the Cynosure will be in our midst next month. We intend to push this battle against the powers of secretism until we can by God's grace rejoice in its complete subjugation. Bro. Woodsmall is here with us holding quite an important meeting among the Baptist clergy, and the champions of the secretists are attending the meeting, which is held in the Central Baptist church (white). There are some forty ministers in attendance from a radius of nearly fifty miles. We expect to discuss on Thursday the evils of the secret lodge, and Friday the subject of prohibition will be ventilated. I will inform you of the result. We are doing no work on our house for want of means. May God in his grace help us in this work.—R. N. COUNTEE.

THE LUTHERAN CHURCH AGAINST THE LODGE.

I desire to express my heartfelt satisfaction at this good action of the Ohio State Christian Association and all those opposed to professing Christians being unequally yoked together with unbelievers and hope the convention may be productive of much good in opening the eyes of many and turning them from darkness to light with reference to secret societies. As for the true Evangelical Lutheran church, of which I am an humble pastor, it is well known that she has long ago taken a firm and decided stand against all unchristian, secret, oath bound societies, regarding them as what they really are, namely deistical associations under the transparent guise of men-made religion. True Lutheran synods and congregations have been engaged a long number of years in earnestly opposing and reproving the unfruitful works of darkness as practiced by the various secret orders in our land, and now the Lutherans rejoice to see that other Protestant churches are also viewing with alarm the evil influences of the secret orders and taking measures to counteract their unchristian objects and tendencies.—PHILIP A. PETER, West Baltimore, Ohio.

FROM THE "ENDS OF THE EARTH."

The following lines from a letter received by me from New South Wales, Australia, may be interesting, and encourage the good cause represented by your valuable paper:

"I thank you very much for the Cynosure. I think it is a very good paper. I have received two copies from you. I believe it to be directed chiefly against secret societies, which I conceive to be the curse of humanity. Combination is well so long as it is not secret, and also a good deal seems to be said in the cause of temperance; and when we have another direct mail service, I intend to subscribe. Hitherto I have not joined any society whatever and have held off (unliking secrecy), but your papers have shaken me off entirely."

AN OLD SUBSCRIBER.

—The use of tobacco is to be absolutely prohibited in all the government schools in France on the ground that it affects injuriously the ability to study.

—The St. Louis street-car strikers and their Knights of Labor lodge is signalizing its defeat by repeated attempts to dynamite the cars, jeopardizing the lives of hundreds of passengers.

BIBLE LESSONS.

REVIEW LESSON DEC. 27, 1885.

From "Scholars' Hand-book."

I. Lessons relating to Israel. Subject: Israel's downfall. 1. The instrument. 2. The cause. 3. The previous warnings II. Lessons relating to Judah. Subject: Judah's impending fate.

I. Israel's downfall. This was brought about

1. By Assyria, about 250 years after the division.

(a) The first invasion under Pul, king of Assyria, in the reign of Menahem, about 769 B. C. See 2 Kings 15: 19, 20. Assyrian monuments, however, speak of a previous incursion by Shalmaneser II. in the time of Jehu.

(b) The second occurred under Tiglath-pileser, in the reign of Pekah, 740 B. C., and at the instigation of Ahaz, king of Judah. See 2 Kings 15: 29 and 16: 5–10.

(c) The third, under Shalmaneser IV., in the reign of Hosea, ending in the destruction of Samaria, 721 B. C.

2. The cause of the nation's downfall. See 2 Kings 18: 11, 12, and 17: 6, 7, 18.

3. Warnings.

(a) By calamities.

(1) By a war with Ben hadad II. See 2 Kings 7: 1–17.

(2) By Hazael and his son, Ben hadad III. See 2 Kings 13: 3, 7.

(b) Internal dissensions and revolts.

(1) The overthrow of the house of Ahab by Jehu. See 2 Kings 10: 15–31.

(2) Of the house of Jehu by Shallum. 2 Kings 15: 8–31.

A. Not only by severity did God seek to turn Israel from its idolatry, but also by his goodness.

B. God also caused his people to be warned and admonished through his servants the prophets.

See 2 Kings 17: 13; Jer. 25: 3–7; 35: 15.

(a) By Elisha in the times of Jeroboam and Jehu, and Jehoahaz and Joash.

(b) By Amos and Hosea, in the reign of Jeroboam II.

(c) Indirectly also by Jonah to the city of Nineveh.

II. Judah's impending fate.

1. Similar to that of Israel.

(a) See 2 Kings 17: 19.

(b) God's judgments and warnings through the prophets failed to turn the people from their hypocrisy and disobedience. See Isa. 1: 5, 6; Jer. 25: 3, 4.

(c) The prediction by Isaiah respecting the treasures displayed by king Hezekiah. 2 Kings 20: 17, 18.

2. Though Judah, like Israel, will be led into captivity, yet her captivity, unlike Israel's, is to be followed by a restoration.

(a) Promises of a return from exile. Isa. 55: 6–13.

(b) Deliverance from the bondage of sin through the promised Messiah. Isa. 53.

OBITUARY.

The proverb "Death seeks a shining mark" is again exemplified in the departure of another son of our beloved brother, Eld. S. E. Miller. Only last March we were called to the grave of his son Charles, twenty or more years old, and on Sunday Nov. 22d, we were again called to the sad scene of committing to the tomb his dear boy, Hugh Miller, of some eighteen years of age. Though smitten by an incurable disease, his ambition had so inspired him and his friends with hope that he had kept up and worked and taught till his vitality was nearly exhausted, when he somewhat suddenly sank and expired. He was intelligent, amiable and greatly beloved. Few if any excelled him in good qualities.

Some months ago he embraced the one and living way of salvation through God's dear Son. This brought joy to the household that will never be forgotten. Oh, the joy and happiness to the soul of a parent to see a dear child safe in the arms of Jesus! From the glad hour that dear Hugh took on the "new life" in Christ Jesus he sought to win others to God, and we hope not in vain. May many of his companions heed his exhortations and "seek the Lord while he may be found." The esteem in which he was held was manifested by the large and solemn audience which congregated at the 1st Clifford Baptist church on the day of his funeral. Let the afflicted parents know that they have our sympathies and prayers.

N. C.

IDA OSBORN died in East Gaines, N. Y., Aug. 21, 1885, aged 18 years, 2 months and 5 days. Though her beloved parents, a dear sister and brothers are left to mourn, it is not without hope and comfort; for her beautiful life awakens only pleasant memories and delightful anticipations to those who love the Lord. Naturally she had a superior intellect and an amiable disposition.

In her sixteenth year she gave her heart to her Saviour, and religion graced her life with more and more excellence and beauty. A little more than two years before her death, with her sister Flora and our little Annie, it was my happy privilege to baptize her and receive her into the church. With faithfulness she cultivated purity in her own heart, and with loyalty to her Master discharged her obligations to the church. Unexpectedly disease came and quickly did its work; but in a marked degree the Saviour manifested his presence to her and enabled her to pass away in the full assurance of a blessed immortality. She told her mother she could hear the angels sing and repeated stanza after stanza of original poetry expressing her joy in the Lord and fond expectations of inexpressible felicity in her heavenly home.

Truly, "Godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is, and of that which is to come." ISAAC HYATT.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of esch degree, hy Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone, compriscs the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, hound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symhol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, hy Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a memher of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book repuhlished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, hy Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not he a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own Utterances: its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, hy Rev. J. H Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two hound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals hound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," hy Miss E. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret lahor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, hy a United Preshyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50.

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, hy E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry, hy Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, hy S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies, Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, hy Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c.

A Masonic Conspiracy, hy Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c.

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO.

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, G. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, care Cynosure.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W. B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Sceeders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men,	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heatheuism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men	2

OUR CLUB LIST

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)

Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.

Brethren (Dunkers or German Baptists.)

Christian Reformed Church.

Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)

Congregational—The State Associations of Illinois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.

Disciples (in part.)

Friends.

Lutherans—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferences.

Mennonites.

Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.

Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conference.)

Moravians.

Plymouth Brethren.

Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.

Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)

United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowship and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

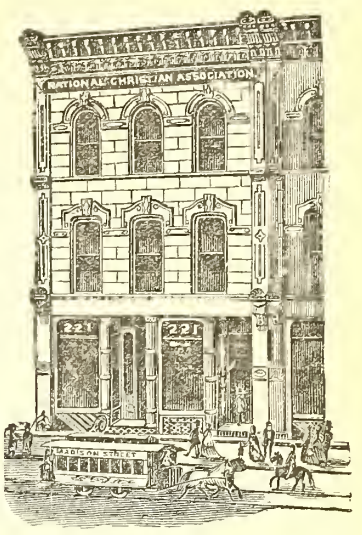
THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Sandford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.
Sugar Grove Church, Green county, Pa.
Military Chapel, M. E., Lowndes county, Miss.
Hopewell Missionary Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Cedar Grove Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Simon's Chapel, M. E., Lowndes Co., Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Brownlee Church, Caledonia, Miss.
Salem Church, Lowndes Co., Miss.
West Preston Baptist Church, Wayne Co., Pa.

OTHER LOCAL CHURCHES

adopting the same principle are—

Baptist churches: N. Abington, Pa.; Menomonie, Mondovi, Waubeck and Spring Prairie, Wis.; Wheaton, Ill.; Perry, N. Y.; Spring Creek, near Burlington, Iowa; Lima, Ind.; Constableville, N. Y. The "Good Will Association" of Mobile, Ala., comprising some twenty-five colored Baptist churches; Bridgewater Baptist Association, Pa.; Old Tebo Baptist, near Leesville, Henry Co., Mo.; Hooperston, Ill; Esmen, Ill.; Strykersville, N. Y.



Congregational churches: 1st of Oberlin, O.; Tonica, Crystal Lake, Union and Big Woods, Ill.; Solsbury, Ind.; Congregational Methodist Maplewood, Mass.

Independent churches in Lowell, Countryman school house near Lindenwood, Marengo and Streator, Ill.; Berea and Camp Nelson, Ky; Ustick, Ill.; Clarksburg, Kansas; State Association of Ministers and Churches of Christ in Kentucky.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper cover, 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N.Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen, L. N. Stratton, Thos. H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of —— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips, Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Uls Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Terrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville; Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B. Higgins, Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 17, 1885.

THOS. E. KENNEDY, ESQ.

One day, several years ago, two young men arrived at Wheaton College: one from the Pacific coast; the other born in Greenland. Both returned: the first to where the evening star sets; the other to where the morning star rises on the eastern ocean; Mr Arnott to be a Danish government officer; Mr. Kennedy is described by two paragraphs below from the Tulare county Times and the San Jose Mercury. All who knew Mr. Kennedy here respected him as a young man of much promise, and his lady as a fit helpmeet for such a man. Many will join the Mercury in wishing him "abundant success." Mr Kennedy's address is Visalia, Tulare Co., California. He has a good business partner, and his integrity is undoubted as a land and loan and general business agent.

"Mr. Thomas E. Kennedy, an attorney-at-law, for many years a resident of San Jose, has located in Visalia, with his family, and will practice law. He will occupy the office in the Times building recently vacated by Mr. Oregon Sanders. The following clipped from the San Jose Mercury, shows the popularity of Mr. Kennedy in his former home:

"'Thomas E. Kenuedy left yesterday with his family for Tulare county, where he proposes to make his future home. He will continue in the practice of his profession. We regret to have Mr. Kenuedy go from us, but we know that Tulare is gaining a thorough, a reliable and worthy citizen, and a lawyer whose taleuts cannot fail to be appreciated. He has a clear mind, is thoroughly versed in the law, and is a speaker of grace and power. The Mercury wishes Mr Kennedy abundant success.'"

A REMARKABLE CAREER.

DAVID C. COOK is a younger brother of Ezra A Cook, the first publisher of the Cynosure. Their father was a Methodist minister of respectable ability, unwearied labor, and undoubted piety; and their mother, a Christian woman of indomitable will, energy, and perseverance. Neither of the two boys ever set a line of type, or served an apprenticeship, but took to business as young ducks to water. Ezra went from Wheaton College to the war: and a few years after he came home, had a printing and engraving business with twenty hands under him. DAVID, scarcely out of childhood, was his brother's traveling agent. Thirteen years ago he started a mission Sunday school in Chicago; invented and published such helps as his school needed; married one of his young lady teachers; sold out a good sewing machine business, which he had started; and is now, perhaps, the leading publisher of Sunday-school literature in the world. His factory is on Fox river, Elgin, Ill. He employs between two hundred and fifty and three hundred persons; uses fifteen tons, five car-loads, of printing paper in a month; owns fourteen cylinder power presses, besides smaller ones, and his lesson-leaves, children's papers, and cheap publications in Sabbath-school and temperance literature, fall like the white ashes of a volcano wherever there are children,

"Thick as autumnal leaves in Valambrosa."

His establishment is now practically out of debt with money in the bank.

MR. COOK has never smoked, chewed, or drank liquor. He has given liberally to religious and benevolent objects, and has now just completed and furnished a dwelling-house, which for beauty of proportion, architectural effect, and exquisiteness of taste in the furniture and furnishing excels most dwellings met with in this country or in Europe.

MR and MRS COOK are consistent Christians and hereditary Methodists, and if they commit to memory Deut. 8th, 18. "Thou shalt remember the Lord thy God; for it is he that giveth thee power to get wealth," they may possibly escape the transformation which riches so invariably bring to the wealthy, and which originated the proverb repeated by Christ, that a camel goes through the eye of a needle as easily as a rich man into heaven. The exceptions to this proverb, like Hon. William E. Dodge, are many, and they are increasing.

Mr. Cook's establishment is an American institution

1. Because it is unsectarian All denominations use his publications. This is their glory. And it is the glory of our country that such a business could be built up in it. In Europe, state-churchism sectarianizes religion, and packs society in classes and "orders." Romanism is not American but European.

2. Because it is non-partizan. If Mr. Cook's publications had advocated a Prohibition or third party, at the last election, the Republicans and Democrats would have dropped them. Fifty years ago the writer delivered a temperance address in his boyhood, which was published as a tract. At that time Mr. Cook's temperance publications would have made his success impossible. A reform is a whirlwind which takes up a waterspout; diffuses it into skyey vapor, to come down in rain and renovate the arid earth. Temperance has done this. Prohibition will do it. So will opposition to lodge-orders. And when these reformers have forced their way into universal recognition, if Mr. Cook and his wife should live (and they are both young), the roar and clatter of his factory will follow and announce these prohibition and anti-lodge reforms, as thunder follows lightning and proclaims it. But it is a joy and wonder that so great a business could be built up in so short a time, paid for by the pennies of parents and children, and yet print nothing but temperance and Bible literature. J. B.

—Pres. J. Blanchard started on his Southern journey Friday evening last, going by way of Dayton, Columbus and Cincinnati, and spending a few days in each city. For some weeks, perhaps months, his contributions to the Cynosure will, therefore, be by letter. In all his journeyings and labors for the reform, let his soul and his body also, be sustained by the power of the Holy Ghost in answer to the prayers of the readers of the Cynosure.

—Among the other earnest and able men who are expected to attend the Columbus convention this week is Pastor Pfeiffer of Delaware, Ohio, whose address on secret societies is mentioned in our literary notes.

—Rev. D. Simon, pastor of the German Evangelical Lutheran church of Prospect, Ohio, who lately contributed the able article on the Grand Army of the Republic to these columns, is English secretary of the Joint Synod of his church.

—Rev. T. Nightingale of Memphis, Tenn., is master of Hiram's Lodge, No. 15, Memphis. The Baptist church of which he is pastor has just dedicated a building on Beale street in that city which was begun in 1869, and when completed will have cost some $90,000.

—Rev. C. R. Hunt, of West Union, Iowa, is enthusiastic about the proposed conference of churches. He writes to the Wesleyan Methodist urging that all the delegates appointed by the Wesleyan conferences confer as to time, place, etc., and send their views to this office. The Cynosure hopes next week to give a word of information on this important subject.

—Secretary Stoddard went to Columbus, Ohio, last week to participate in the convention in the City Hall, and also in another convention of more special interest to himself. He preached Sabbath evening in the High Street Congregational church pastor, C. W. Hiatt, and before his return to Chicago, Thursday, expects to be joined in marriage with Mrs. A. E. Tanner, widow of our late Bro. John Tanner, whose labors for reform in Boston and St. Paul will not soon be forgotten. Mrs. Tanner has, since the death of her husband, been living in Washington City and in Tennessee, and her return to a more active co-operation in the cause will be heartily welcomed by the numerous friends of both parties.

—Rev. John G. Fee of Berea College, Kentucky, has lately been out to organize a new church opposed to sects and secret societies two miles from Berea. There have been ten baptisms since the organization of the church. His daughter is yet failing, and he does not leave her for any time. For six months he has not been absent from her side longer than six hours at a time, and he has no hope of her recovery, nor, indeed, of her long enduring on the earth.

—Bro. H. H. Hinman, our Washington correspondent, has been lately chosen to take charge of the Central Union Mission rooms at 909 Pennsylvania Avenue. He will continue to write for the American and the Cynosure and will, therefore, be full of business. Bro. Bailey is at present engaged in raising funds for the treasury of the Mission.

—Rev. Woodruff Post will be remembered as the devoted brother whose labors to save the church in which his Christian life has been spent—the Methodist Episcopal—from the grip of the lodge, were so earnest and prominent a few years since. His aged and saintly face will be remembered by all who used to attend the New York State meetings. He has been pushed about from one Hard Scrabble circuit to another, yet patiently enduring hardness for his Master's sake, and is now located at Allegany, Cattaraugus county, New York. He writes that he has been offered an introduction into the Masonic order free of charge, with fair prospects of large pay. What shall he do about it?

—The meager appearance of our editorial pages this week is to be explained by the fact that a sketch of Elder David Bernard, a household name among Baptists and Anti-masons, upon which had been bestowed some labor and care, was laid aside for Elder Kimball's biography of Deacon E. Smith, a leader among our New Hampshire reformers. Our readers will be happy to make the acquaintance of this excellent man by his portrait and Elder Kimball's article; and they may be consoled at the postponement of the Bernard portrait and sketch by remembering that Dr. Smith is a living man, whom they may some day greet in the flesh, while the sainted Bernard has finished his glorious career on earth.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

The skating rink season is again open. It is good to note that some places are done with it, and purpose to abate it as a moral nuisance. Madison, Wisconsin, sets a good example to her sister cities. The other evening her Common Council unanimously voted to impose an annual license of $200 upon all skating rinks. This action will have the effect of exterminating the rinks now running and discourage the establishment of others. The public heartily indorses the action of the Council, as the rinks are almost universally denounced as possessing immoral influences. They are charged with being at the foundation of various scandals developed here of late, in which young girls invariably are involved.

"A prominent official in the government secret service," says an exchange, "was arrested in St. Louis, Mo., for assaulting a woman with a cane, and was fined twenty dollars; but when the judge learned who the culprit was he reduced the fine one-half, 'out of respect for his official position.' That is to say, the one circumstance that aggravated the offence, and should have doubled the fine, was made an excuse for lightening the penalty. This is the sort of justice (?) that destroys the respect of the people for the administration of the laws." It is, alas! the sort of justice that generally prevails wherever the lodge has any influence. If respect for official position has such a demoralizing effect, ten times is there more reason why lodge oaths, and the power of a secret influence unmeasured and unobserved by outsiders, should have the power to trample down justice in courts.

Another national prohibition movement is reported from Kansas. Several hundred residents of that and adjoining States have called a convention to meet in Toledo, Ohio, May 5th next, to be composed of "anti-saloon Republicans." Delegates will be chosen as if for a national political convention from towns, counties and States, and their action when together is expected to be in favor of immediate national prohibition. Let the old parties keep on organizing against liquor, under whatever name. There will be so many societies ere long that the saloon mills will be compelled to close by the pressure of the crowd; and all the divisions of the temperance host will come together on some such principle as is put forth in the American platform.

The prohibition victory in Atlanta, Georgia, has received wide comment from the press, but little is said about the injunction preventing the official declaration of the result, nor of the liquor victory in the city election. The effort of the saloons will probably have a temporary success, but the enterprising city of Atlanta will not long tarry behind the State of Georgia. The Savannah News says of the movement: "The prohibition movement is gradually extending over the entire State. The last county that has declared for prohibition is Hancock. Elections are soon to be held in several other counties, and the chances are that all of them, with perhaps one or two exceptions, will result favorably for prohibition. More than three-fourths of the counties of the State have voted out whisky, and there is not one of them that is not richer and more prosperous for its action. In every one of them the people are happier and more industrious, and there is less crime and pauperism than there ever was before. The prohibition movement in the State has grown rapidly, because wherever it has been adopted its benefits have at once become apparent."

The Baptist churches of Boston have been in much trial lately on account of the charges of adultery against Rev. W. W. Downs, pastor of the Bowdoin Square church. His fellow Baptist pastors of the city lately voted that he has "brought public disgrace upon the ministerial profession and has done great damage to the cause of Christ," and they have unanimously expelled him from their conference. His church likewise has discharged him, but he has begun to preach to his friends in Mechanics Hall, and Sabbath evening it was announced that a syndicate of Boston lawyers had been formed for the defense of Downs in the forthcoming trial for adultery and the active counsel for the defense will be Roscoe Conkling and Benjamin F. Butler. Downs may be innocent, but such an annouucement is almost confession of guilt. It is an interesting coincidence, surely, that brings these two public men together—and to defend adultery! Butler was always careful of himself, but Conkling less wary, was once in danger of being shot by the husband of Kate Chase Sprague for attentions thought to be criminal.

The President's Message has the discouraging merit of length, but in spite of this embargo it has probably been more generally read than any like document of late years. Every Democrat will wish to read the first message from his own party for twenty-five years, and the Republicans will be curious to know what a Democrat can say. For this reason there is less need of comment from the Cynosure. The President favors Captain Eads' Tehuantepec ship-railway instead of the Nicaraugua canal scheme for a communication between the Atlantic and Pacific. In giving his reasons Mr. Cleveland seems to give up the traditional position of the United States among the American republics. But the Monroe doctrine has somewhat declined since Mr. Blaine was Secretary of State, and we need not look for its revival under Bayard. The President, without saying very much for his case, yet approves of the laws against Chinese immigration, and is willing to have them made more stringent if necessary. More emphatic are his views on civil service reform, which he believes to be necessary to prevent demoralization in the government. He suggests noimprovement in the working of the system, but more pay for the commissioners. The message is on the whole well-received by all parties, so far as it goes. Another year we hope the President will find out that prohibition of the liquor traffic is a question that is worth his attention, and speak of it as its importance deserves.

The sudden death of William H. Vanderbilt furnished a text for hundreds of sermons last Sabbath. Some preachers made curious estimates about his immense wealth, and some proved to their own satisfaction that no man could accumulate so much money and not be a thief. We hope some of them did not forget to draw a lesson from the awful responsibility which Mr. Vanderbilt inherited in the millions his father, the bluff Commodore, left him. Had he been as anxious to use his wealth as to accumulate it, he might have carried on a greater missionary society than all the churches of Christendom have yet the self-denial to support. Or what immense influenees he could have employed in lifting up our great cities from the slime of the saloon. His estimated income was $10,343,000, which would be at the rate of $25,000 per day. It is said that he spent some $2,000,000 each year, much of it in charitable objects; but yet too little, we fear, to answer the account. God is his judge. It is well enough to remember that he made the New York Central in a sense a peoples' road. Years ago he reduced the fare to two cents a mile, and very unusual were the circumstances that gained any special favor. Rich and poor paid alike, while ordinarily the rich pay less than their proportion for railway fares. He is said also to have held views similar to those of Henry George upon land ownership; but he was satisfied to hold them and not use them. It is well that people of ordinary means tremble when they consider what would be their responsibility if they had Vanderbilt's two hundred millions, and wisely use the little a merciful God entrusts to them.

The Scientific American describes the process by which the obelisk in Central Park, New York, has been rendered proof against the rigors of our American climate. Frost, storm, and fog were fast disintegrating the stone and flaking it down about the base in scales, sometimes an inch in diameter. The process was a treatment of the stone heated with a mixture of parafine, creosote and turpentine. The work is somewhat experimental, for the process has not been long invented. But the matter is wonderfully suggestive. After the prophecy, "Out of Egypt have I called my son," was finally fulfilled in Jesus Chirst, there seems to have been little or nothing good to come from that "basest of the kingdoms." Ashmole, Desaguliers and their fellows worked up from Egyptian tradition the Masonic scheme about 1717, A. D., and the Masons pretended that they had a fine thing in the obelisk, a genuine pillar of Masonry, imperishable, unchanging, a monument to the glory of the lodge set up forever in the most attractive spot about the metropolitan city. They found Masonry under it and all over it, and gave the lodge the glory. But as the principles of free and true thought which underlie American society are becoming the plague snd destruction of the darkness, superstition, ignorance and heathenism of the lodge, so is our rigorous climate, the atmosphere of an heroic race, too severe for the monument claimed by Masonry as its own. The claim is fraudulent, and so, though the obelisk is a pagan affair, we are not unwilling that it should remain as a record of ancient errors which Americans should avoid, the lodge being first among them.

Just before the breaking out of the rebellion Northern eyes were familiar with the figures showing that for every Representative in Congress the North was compelled to have many more voters because of the allowance for the non-voting slaves. Those figures had an ill and ominous look, and we like not to see them again chalked upon the political blackboard. But so we see it thus: South Carolina, seven Congressmen; Mississippi, seven; and Georgia, ten: twenty-four in all, and the total vote of the three States is 255,095. But in Iowa the total vote was 375,840, but these votes only made eleven Congressmen. There may seem a present advantage to the South in this fact, but there is somewhere a great and manifest injustice which it is more for the advantage of the South than of the North to see righted. For every negro or other man unjustly deprived of his right to vote there is an arrear of trouble accumulating for the people who suffer the wrong to exist.

But the North American Review has unearthed a more glaring and desperate outrage upon American voters in the little State of Delaware, where there exists "a class of intelligent people disfranchised, deprived of political rights and condemned by acts of legislature to the perpetual yoke of one political party." Since 1831 voters in Delaware have been compelled, unless too poor, to pay a small poll tax as a precautionary measure. But when the blacks were enfranchised by the 13th and 14th amendments to the Federal Constitution, the negrophobists determined that Delaware should not be troubled with negro suffrage, and by political trickery and falsifying returns kept the blacks from the poll lists. Several officials were indicted in the United States courts, and though defended by Senator Bayard, were convicted. But this was making the general Government superior to a "sovereign State," and so it was determined to disfranchise all Republicans, white or black, and they so arrange the poll tax that collectors can do as they please about giving a man the privilege of voting, and the long and expensive litigations necessary for one of the minority party to secure his rights have discouraged the Republicans. The person responsible for this infamous arrangement is no less a man than Thomas F. Bayard, Secretary of State, who acknowledged, in a speech in 1882, the most objectionable features of the Delaware law to be his own work: and he justified it as a means of enabling his State to elude the penalties of Federal law. If Mr. Bayard is so unfaithful, both to the Constitution of his country and to the civil rights of his fellow citizens in the narrow limits of his little State, what mischief may he not attempt in his present responsible position?

The riots in Detroit, described in a letter elsewhere, are portrayed more vividly even in the press dispatches, and indicate a wide departure from their usual unquestioning obedience on the part of the Detroit Catholics. The result will be to separate many from that church to embrace the free and life-giving Gospel of Christ, as taught in the open Bible and by Protestant churches. Not long since one of the leading Catholic churches of St. Louis was in great turmoil because of the order of the priest that children attending the public school would be barred from the communion. The objection of the priests that the public schools are godless is a mere pretence. The real objection is that a child who beomes well informed in the schools is spoiled for the purposes of the priests.

There has been for years a revolution against the rule of priests in France, and some of the reasons are quoted from a provincial journal by the Christian Intelligencer: "Our Latin race is neither less vigorous nor less intelligent than the Anglo-Saxon; but it is in full decline, undermined, corrupted, weakened, perverted, led astray, morally impotent, by Catholicism. And let not our readers confound Catholicism with religion, for true religion makes a man better, raises him up, and enlightens him; whereas Catholicism lowers him, degrades him, stupefies him, in order to take his spoils. A tree is judged by its fruit, and a doctrine by its results. Christ's religion has given excellent fruits; it has broken up slavery, and given liberty. All nations where it reigns paramount are superior to us. Catholicism? You know its fruits. Just now it is a question of life and death for our country and our race, and we must not leave either the one or the other to perish." Another publication says: "The God of conscience and of the Gospel has no analogy to the human-made idols which have been passed off under his name. What has hitherto been the strength of clericalism is its cloak of Christianity. Of this cloak it must be stripped. What a contrast between the pure teaching of the Gospel—enabling men to know and love God as the heavenly Father of us all, and to love each other as brethren, and to worship in spirit and in truth—and the religion of the syllabus, of the confessional, of the waters of Lourdes, of beads and scapularies! The present hour is a solemn one; even that of energetic decisions and grand duties. Let us not hesitate to break away from the religion of hypocrasy, fanaticism and superstition, to return to the pure doctrine of Christ and the apostles, which will agree so well with our democracy and place our republic on an indestructible basis. Since neither society, nor family, nor individual can do without religion; since we want to get free from the detested yoke of clericalism, let us be true Christians and faithful disciples of the Gospel." These sentiments are from Roman Catholics.

HERMANNSBURG.

Who that has been interested in the progress of Christianity during the past twenty-five years does not remember Pastor Harms and his wonderful church and missionary society at Hermannsburg? The following account of that remarkable work and its continuance since the death of the founder, is from the Lutheran Standard:

The great Lutheran Foreign mission that takes its name from this little city in Northern Germany is the outgrowth of faith as probably no other charitable enterprise of Christian confidence in God's providence since the days of the Halle Orphans Home. The Hermannsburg society does not ask for the charities of the church and never publishes appeals for financial help. But rather in their last little monthly the director publishes a protest against those who pretended to collect monies on the plea that the society asked for it. The managers do of course not reject the charities of the church, but act on the principle that the Lord will provide, and have so far found this faith an excellent investment, in fact a much surer source of income than great endowment funds invested in railroad and mining stocks. These latter may fail, but God's bank never becomes insolvent. The last report of Hermannsburg shows how this society in its simple faith has prospered. From the last annual report, with the motto, "Be Careful for Nothing," the new director, Rev. Egmont Harms, showed that the offerings during the past year amounted to 254,852 marks, and the expenses in the same time to 244,197 marks, leaving a balance in the treasury of 9,654 marks! The actual value of the property of the society in Africa, India, Australia, New Zealand, and Germany—in the latter of the Missionary Seminary, Printing and Book Establishment, Orphan House, and permanent investments, the income of which alone can be used, is one million three hundred and fifty-two thousand nine hundred and forty-four marks—on which there is a debt of 310,181 marks. Efforts are uow being made by its friends to pay off this incumbrance, so that the society may labor without any further embarrassment. As an illustration of the successful labors of their missions in Africa, it is reported that, from the original station at Hermannsburg among the Kaffirs in Africa, no less than fifty out-stations have grown, with a church population of 10,000 baptized converts.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—Sister S. B. Allen and other friends have our hearty thanks for a box, principally filled with religious books and papers. The contents of the box are highly appreciated and of great advantage in our work. The colored children enjoy the reading matter very much.

M. A. F. TAPLEY.

Columbus, Miss.

THE HOME.

THINGS THAT NEVER DIE.

It never dies—a mother's holy love
  Strengthens with every ill that may betide;
In every phase of life its waters move
  With current strong, and fathomless, and wide.
From the heart's altar other flames may rise,
  And while they seem as warm, and grand, and high,
The incense of one lives to reach the skies—
  A mother's tender love can never die.

They never die—the songs of other days,
  The unstrung harps all covered o'er with dust,
Are in some rambling store-house laid away
  With many other wrecks of love and trust.
At eventide, when all around is still,
  Each harp throws off the dust with gentle sigh,
And voices long since hushed our chambers fill
  With songs of other days that never die.

It never dies—the memory of a wrong
  Done to an innocent and trusting heart;
Though outwardly it seemeth well and strong,
  A pain is there which never can depart;
Time o'er the spot may weave a fair new skin,
  And every trace be hidden from the eye,
But all the agony is closed within,
  And wounds thus healed are never known to die.

They never die—the kindly deed and word
  Given to the needy without pomp or pride;
Sooner or later they reap their reward
  Who pass not over to the other side;
And crumbs thus cast upon the sea of life
  May not return as man is sailing o'er,
But when he rests from agony and strife,
  He'll find the loaves upon the other shore.

It never dies—the bow of promise set
  In every landscape, be it bleak or fair.
There's hope for all upon life's billow yet,
  For God's own hand had placed the token there;
Though overwhelming storms of wind and rain
  Chase every sunbeam from the pilgrim's sky,
After much peril 'twill gleam forth again,
  For rainbows come and go, but never die.

They never die—the moon, and stars, and sun
  Have shone upon the wicked and the just
Since God's most glorious handiwork was done,
  And men arose so mighty from the dust;
For when we close our eyes upon this world,
  To open them in heaven by and by,
The same blue banner there will be unfurled,
  With sun, and moon, and stars, that never die.

—Mrs. E. O. Jewell, in Cambridge (Mass.) Tribune.

"HE DIED FOR THEE, FAYTHER."

A TRUE STORY.

Richard Vithick and his wife Katharin, or Kattern as she was called for short, and his son John, best known as Jack, lived in a fishing village on the the south coast of England. They were like their neighbors, rough and godless, until a good evangelist came that way, and all the family, with many others were saved. What a change that was! Not only in their souls, but even in the dooryard. The cottage was whitewashed, the garden fence righted up, the gate hung, and the litter of fish bones and offal swept up and carried away. Besides that, Richard began to save money, and Kattern laid it up—in a very old China teapot, in a corner of the chest. But, somehow, as Richard's wealth grew larger his piety grew smaller. Jesus had not only saved him, but had taught him to save, and now he ran away with the lesson and forgot the teacher. It was a great grief of mind to Jack and his mother; especially when the father got so far away from God that he would scold them for taking time for family prayer, and would sometimes work on the Lord's day.

Some of the fish ran in shoals coming up from the depths to the shallow waters, though the fishermen believed they came from distant parts of the sea. When the season for shoaling approached all the village would be on the lookout, and men would go out in boats to see if the fish were coming. One day a large sail boat was going out, and Richard had volunteered to be one of the party.

"Let me go, fayther," said Jack, in his provincial dialect. "Summut might happen ye knaw,"

"I'd die for thee, fayther, if it 'ud bring thee back to God," answered Jack, as if by a sudden impulse. As no more objection was made Jack drew on his oiled coat and cap, ran down the garden path, and was soon in the boat, and they were off. It was a glorious afternoon: The sun shone clear, and the breezes played together as good-naturdly as if they had never once provoked the quick tempered waves into fury. But Richard was filled with uneasiness. And sure enough, about an hour before sundown a low bank of clouds rose up out of the far away horizon, and a sudden wind sprung up from that direction. He hurried up the path to tell Kattern.

"A storm's coming'," he cried, excitedly, "It'll be on us afore dark; you see if it ben't. They ought'nt to 'a gone.

"But they'll see it, fayther, an' head for the shore," Kattern answered, as encouragingly as she could.

"Do'em no good to see it," persisted Richard. "This 'ere wind; if it freshens a bit, 'll carry 'em clear around the Point, an' then where be 'em?" And he hurried back to the beach again, pacing to and fro, and peering, out over the water.

The clouds grew, the wind all the while increasing by sudden gusts, until the sky was covered, and the storm came. It was not so fierce as had sometimes been, but it was enough to send the frail boat out of its course and perhaps send all in it to the the bottom. Through the night the watching fishermen kept lights in their windows, and took turns in listening on the beach. The storm passed after a few hours, but still the wind continued to blow, and the waves ran high. Long after midnight Richard "turned in" for a little sleep, but he found none. The wind seemed like voices calling, and he would start up, and wait to hear them again. With the first gleam of day he went down to the beach. As he returned, slowly walking up the path, Kattern, standing in in the door, called out:

"Any sight of 'em, fayther?"

"No, no," was the reply.

The sun rose on a beautiful day; wind gone down, and only a few fleecy clouds in the sky. All the forenoon Richard wandered back and forth between the cottage and the sea, and each time he came up the garden path Kattern would stand in the cottage door, shading her eyes with her hand, and call to him:

"Any sight of 'em, fayther?" And still the despairing, impatient reply came back:

"No, no; no sight of 'em."

Sometimes other boats were seen, or a passing ship, so far away that only a faint patch of sail was visible above the water, but the hopes thus raised quickly faded away again. At last, about the middle of the afternoon, the missing boat was sighted. Their sail was gone, and they were coming slowly in with oars. As quick, almost, as if a cannon had been fired the news spread through the village, and men, and women and children ran to the landing.

"There's sight of 'em, Kattern!" shouted Richard, from the lower garden gate, and he ran back to the water side, as if he would meet them part way. Kattern slipped on her wooden "clogs," to keep her shoes dry, but by that time the excitement had so eaten up her strength that she could only drop into a chair. The boat drew near, rising and falling on the waves.

"I can't quite make 'em all out," said a man with a glass, "but most of 'em are there, an' I reckon all of 'em are."

"Praise God!"

"What did ye say?,'

"Well, that be a miracle!" So it came from all parts of the crowd. Some laughed and some cried; some did both by turns; and two or three wildly hugged each other.

"There be Davy, anyway," shouted one, as the forms became more distinct.

"And there be Lewie!" cried another.

"And Little Andrew!" added a third.

With shouts and cheers the boat was welcomed to the shore.

"Throw yer line!" called a grizzled fisherman. "Stand aside, men! There, now. Pull away! He hoy! Give 'un another half hitch. There!"

"Where's Jack?" asked Richard, tremblingly, as the boat touched the landing.

"He's here," answered one of the men evasively.

"What's thee mean?" he demanded, as he sprang on board. "I don't see 'un."

"Bear up, Dick," said the man, gently. Jack's here, as I tell 'ee, but he got hurt. Last night we———"

"Let me see 'un!" interrupted Richard almost savagely. Leading him to the stern the man lifted a piece of sail, and there was Jack, quiet in death. He had been struck by the falling mast and instantly killed. In all their peril by wind and wave Jack only was taken, and he by the strangest accident.

"Is he dead?" gasped Richard, and he shook him by the shoulder, to see if he would wake.

"He went last night," said the man.

"O Lord, pity me and Kattern!" Richard exclaimed, and he rushed from the place to hide his grief.

"Is Jack come, fayther?" cried Kattern, from her post at the cottage door.

"Aye, Jack's come," replied the father. "But he is'nt ours any more, Kattern. Jack's dead. He died for me!"

That afternoon two souls were kneeling by their bedside, telling their anguish to Him who was sent to heal the broken hearted. It was Richard and his wife.

"He died for thee, fayther," she said.

But he said only this: "God have mercy on me!" The prodigal was found.—Rev. E. W. Hicks.

POUR OUT YOUR HEART BEFORE HIM.

Psalm 62: 8.

In approaching the Lord in prayer he desires not the flippancy of lip service, the stateliness of oratory, or the precision of prescribed forms and memorized sentences; but he asks that they who worship him shall worship him in in spirit and in truth; that they shall disclose the inmost secrets of their nature in his sight; that they shall reveal to him the real emotions of their hearts, their sorrows, their afflictions, their temptations, and all the deep emotions that possess their souls.

All these are not to be suppressed, disguised, concealed, hinted, or intimated, but they are to be poured out before the Lord, into the ear of him who is touched with the feeling of our infirmities, who was tempted in all points like as we are, who was afflicted in all our afflictions, and who shall say to those who have helped or harmed his weakest, feeblest child: "Ye did it unto me." Why need we shut up in our own bosoms our most sacred thoughts? Why need we seek to hide from our heavenly Father those feelings which his own Spirit hath begotten within us? Why should we be ashamed of the "broken or contrite heart," which he "will not despise," or the tear of penitence which is so precious in his sight? Let us take courage at his gracious invitation, let us come boldly to the throne of grace, let us pour out our heart before him, assured that "the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open to their cries."—The Christian.

THE SNOW BIRD.

In the rosy light trills the gay swallow,
  The thrush in the roses below;
The meadow lark sings in the meadow,
  But the snow bird sings in the snow
    Ah me!
    Chieadee!
  The snow bird sings in the snow!

The blue martin trills in the gable,
  The wren, in the gourd below;
In the elm, flutes the golden robin,
  But the snow bird sings in the snow.
    Ah me!
    Chieadee!
  The snow bird sings in the snow!

High wheels the gray wing of the osprey,
  The wing of the sparrow drops low;
In the mist dips the wing of the robin,
  And the snow bird's wing in the snow.
    Ah me!
    Chieadee!
  The snow bird sings in the snow!

I love the high heart of the osprey,
  The meek heart of the thrush, below,
The heart of the lark in the meadow,
  And the snow bird's heart in the snow.
    But dearest to me,
    Chieadee! Chieadee!
  Is that true little beart in the snow.

—Hezekiah Butterworth, in the Wide Awake.

HAVE YOU DECIDED.

Who can help admiring the noble character of Joshua? He had such a courageous spirit; he made up his mind as to what was true and right, and then he stuck to it, and no one could turn him. See him, the old gray-headed warrior, gathering together the elders of Israel at Shechem, and calling on them all, princes, judges and rulers to hesitate no longer, between the strange gods of Canaan and the one true God—"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." But, whatever their, choice it will make no difference to Joshua—"as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord." (Joshua 24: 15.)

Sometimes you see a lad in a school or workshop following this noble example and letting his companions know and see that he has decided for Christ. I wish there were more such. But I find so many who want to wait a little longer—they can't make up their mind just yet.

"There is plenty of time for me," says a young girl as she comes away from the Bible-class on Sunday afternoon. "Teacher wants us to decide at once, but surely there is no such hurry—I must think about it some day, I know, but not now—I can't decide.

"I can't decide," says the raindrop, as it comes down, "whether I will fall on the meadow or in that garden among the flowers or out on the wide ocean. I can't make up my mind." "I can't decide," says the streamlet, as it rushes out of the mountain, "whether I will flow towards the great river, yonder, or whether I will go straight down that valley, and into the sea at once." But the raindrop comes on, and so does the streamlet; while they are hesitating they are coming on—on—somewhere! Presently it is too late to choose. They would not decide in time, and now it is no use deciding; they have gone too far—they can't change their course now.

Take care, young people! Take care, boys and girls! Your life is just like that falling raindrop—just like that rushing stream. You can't decide which way your life shall go, but all the time it is going on. Is it going towards heaven, or towards hell? Do you not know? Haven't you decided yet which way it shall go? If you don't choose now, suppose the time should come when you can't choose!

He would be a foolish captain who should start on a voyage without making up his mind where to go to. Suppose another vessel meets him. "What, ho! captain, whither bound?" "Don't know." "Well, but do you know where you are steering for?" "Don't care." "Why, if you don't look out, you will be among the icebergs presently." "Oh, never mind perhaps I shall change my course." Absurd as this seems, isn't it a true picture?

"Out on an Ocean, all boundless, we ride, Borne on the waves of a rough, restless tide,"

but whether we are going east, or west, or north, or or south, or going to the bottom, we cannot tell. We have not decided.

I can't think what you young people are waiting for. Do you expect your hearts to get softer? I fear you will find the world a hard place, and the longer you are in it the harder your hearts will get. Do you expect it to be easier, by and by, to become a Christian than it is now? Is it easier to bend the sapling or the oak tree? Just ask any of your friends who were converted late in life, and see what they say. You won't find so very many, for comparatively few are brought to Christ in old age. Or, do you mean to wait a little longer? But what right have you to think that God will wait any longer at all?—T. B. Bishop.

METEORS.

"Shooting-stars" are familiar objects in the nocturnal sky. If any one thinks them to be rare, it is because he keeps his eyes on the earth instead of looking up to the heavens. If he is on the watch for them he will seldom have to wait many minutes without seeing one. The average number visible to the naked eye at one place is estimated at about a thousand an hour; and the average number large enough to be thus visible, that traverse the atmosphere daily, is reckoned at more than eight millions; and this is probably a very small fraction of the whole number.

Occasionally these bodies are brilliant enough to light up the whole heavens, and then we call them meteors; though this term is equally applicable to ordinary shooting-stars. Sometimes they are seen to break in pieces, with or without an audible noise; and now and then meteoric stones, aerolites, fall to the earth. These generally come with great velocity, and if examined soon after their descent are found to be warm, or even hot.

During the last sixty years there have been eighteen well-authenticated instances of this fall of aerolites, their aggregate weight about twelve hundred and fifty pounds. The whole number of such aerolites, the date of whose fall has been known, is two hundred and sixty-one; and there are seventy-four other cases, the date of which is more or less uncertain. There have also been found eighty-four masses which are known to be of meteoric origin, though no one saw them fall. The weight of these masses varies from a few pounds to several tons.

Aerolites are composed of the same elementary substances that occur in our terrestrial minerals. Of the sixty or more elements now recognized by chemists, about twenty have been found in these meteoric bodies, but not a single new element has been detected in analyzing them. At the same time, the appearance of aerolites is peculiar, and their composition differs so entirely from that of all terrestrial substances that we can have no doubt of their meteoric origin.

Iron, for example, is very abundant on the earth, but it is almost invariably found combined with other elements. Metallic iron is one of the rarest things in nature. Now, these aerolites invariably contain metallic iron, and sometimes from ninety to ninety-six per cent. of it. This iron is malleable, and may be readily wrought into cutting instruments. It almost always contains from eight to ten per cent. of nickel, together with small quantities of cobalt, copper, tin, and chromium. This composition has never been found among the countless form of terrestrial minerals. A peculiar compound of iron, nickel, and phosphorus is also found only in meteoric stones.

Certain other characteristics of these strange bodies are equally unmistakable. Meteoric iron has a peculiar crystalline structure which the ordinary metal never assumes. If the surface of a piece of meteoric iron is polished, and the mass is then heated to a certain temperature, the surface becomes covered with parallel lines crossed by others at angles of sixty degrees, the whole forming a comparatively regular network. The same figures can be developed on the polished surface by the action of nitric acid. Nothing resembling this can be produced on ordinary iron; though it is said that iron melted directly out of certain volcanic rocks has been made to exhibit these "Widmannstaten figures" as they are called from the Austrian ironmaster who first detected them.

What are all these mysterious bodies, these shooting-stars, meteors, and aerolites, that are seen flying through our atmosphere or descending from it to the earth? It is only within a few years that their nature has been well understood. It was once thought by scientific men that they might have been thrown from volcanoes on the earth; but the velocity with which they descend and their peculiar composition unite to refute this theory. It has been suggested that they may come from volcanoes on the moon; but this view also has been shown to be untenable. Our limits forbid us to go into particulars; suffice it that these old theories are now as thoroughly exploded as the Ptolemaic system of astronomy.

The opinion of all astronomers now is that these meteoric bodies, whether large or small, revolve, like the comets round the sun. They are moving in in every possible direction through the celestial spaces, and our earth, as she travels her yearly route, is continually running across their orbits. They are invisible until they plunge into our atmosphere, but the resistance of the air checks their speed and converts a part of their energy of motion into that of heat. This heat is sufficient in the case of small meteors to burn them up, or to dissipate them in vapor, giving rise to the phenomena of shooting-stars. If the meteor is large enough and refractory enough to resist the heat to which it is exposed, its motion is sufficiently arrested, on entering the lower strata of the atmosphere, to cause it to fall to the earth as an aerolite. A brilliant meteor differs from a shooting-star only in magnitude.

The meteors which are seen on ordinary nights are only the stragglers of the innumerable host. Their orbits lie in all directions, and are apparently scattered at random. But at certain times in the year shooting-stars are far more numerous, and are observed to move in a common direction. These meteoric showers, as they are called, vary greatly in brilliancy; but during any one shower the meteors all appear to radiate from some one point in the heavens. If we note their paths carefully, we shall see that they can all be traced back to this radiant point, as it is termed. It is evidently far beyond our atmosphere, for it always appears in the same position, wherever the observer may be, and does not partake of the diurnal motion of the globe. As the stars move westward, the radiant point moves westward with them. We soon see that the point is merely an effect of perspective, being the "vanishing point" of the parallel lines in which the meteors are actually moving. From the apparent motion, as in the case of other heavenly bodies, we are able to deduce the the real motion; and thus the shape of the orbits in which the meteors are travelling is determined.—Journal of Chemistry.

—The report of the Presbyterian Synod of Kentucky of its evangelistic work for the past year shows that ten or twelve churches were organized, nearly as many church edifices completed, a larger amount contributed by the churches than ever before, and about 1,600 communicants added to their rolls.

—A society has been formed in Japan, and now has 1,800 members, which is called "Japanese Friends of the Bible." Each member is pledged to "read a portion of the Scriptures daily."

—The Canstein Bible House at Halle has printed six and one-third millions of Bibles since 1712. There are 26 Bible societies in Germany, which distributed 515,000 copies last year.

TEMPERANCE.

BEER.

There are many foolish and false ideas in relation to the nature and effects of the use of the lighter drinks, including those generally called "domestic" wines and beers. There are those so thoughtless as to suppose that the "domestic wines," etc., contain no alcohol, simply because none is added in making them, not knowing, perhaps, that all alcohol is produced by the fermentive process, this being the only intoxicating element of all intoxicants. Again, it is supposed that no great harm can come from the use of so little alcohol as may be found in the weaker kinds of domestic drinks, while many suppose that there is nothing intoxicating in the common spruce beer, such as is made in the family, particularly popular in the spring. It must be evident, however, that fermentation must produce this poisonous alcohol, if allowed to proceed to a certain point. Even the fermentation of dough, in making bread, when raised as it usually is, produces alcohol, most, if not all, of which is dissipated in the baking, alcohol being very permeating and diffusive. This will be found true, therefore, in all ordinary fermentation in the family, the brewery, everywhere. It is a fact that the use of alcohol in all of its forms, in large or small quantities, necessarily produces abnormal appetites, a natural desire to increase the quantity, while there are comparatively few who are able to resist this necessary tendency. Most become drunkards who use it regularly for any considerable time.

A writer in the Scientific American states that the use of beer is found to produce a species of degeneration of all the organs; profound and deceptive fatty deposits, diminished circulation and perversion of functional activities, congestion or inflammation of both liver and kidneys being constantly present. A slight injury, a severe cold, or a shock to the body or mind, will commonly provoke acute disease, ending fatally in a beer drinker.—The Golden Rule.

A CAUSE OF HARD TIMES.

If the working people of this country want to know why they have hard times every few years, we can tell them. It is not over-production nor under-consumption, as these phrases are commonly employed. If they had kept the $900,000,000 they spend every year for strong drink in their pockets for the past five years of good times, the present temporary lull in manufacturing and business activity would find many of them able to bear it without being pinched for the necessaries of life. It is not the over-consumption of food and clothing in this land of liberty and liquor. The annual bill for bread, meat, cotton and woolen goods of this great American people, foots up to a total of about $1,250,000,000. But its annual bill for whisky, beer, and taxes thereon, is $1,400,000,000. In other words, it unnecessarily drinks $140,000,000 worth more than it necessarily eats and wears. And the people who commit this folly every year are amazed that once in a few years they are hard up, and some of them want to hoist the communistic red flag and destroy everybody else's property, because they have wasted their own share of the national substance in rye juice and other riotous fluids.—Boston Traveller.

TEMPERANCE IN POLITICS.

In omitting all reference to the liquor traffic, it seems to us a mistake was made by the New York Republicans. It is evident to all soberly thinking persons that the liquor question cannot be kept out of politics. It is regarded as a vital subject by a great many people, and among members of all political parties there is a growing opinion in opposition to the indiscriminate traffic in intoxicating liquors, it is folly to ignore these facts, and it is dangerous for any party to trifle with them. It is not necessary in all cases for Republicans to take up the temperance cause, advocate prohibition; the party membership may not be equal to so great an emergency, but there are things to be done not only properly but successfully, and those steps are in the way of recognition of this powerful public opinion continuously growing. Those Republicans who believe that such a policy will injury the party may live long enough to learn that it would have been wise in every sense. A cowardly party attains success no better than a cowardly individual. Rum is growing in insolence and power, and unless one or the other of the great parties take the necessary steps for popular action on the subject, the people will some day undertake to provide a remedy against the dangers of rum power.—Inter Ocean.

THE CHURCHES.

—Rev. Wm. Warner, an earnest Wesleyan pastor of Wisconsin, now in advanced years, is dangerously sick at Cazenovia, Wis. He has always acted heartily with Wisconsin reformers, as has his son, Rev. W. W. Warner.

—Rev. J. A. Richards, of Fort Scott, Kans., reports in the Wesleyan a gracious revival in Wasioja, Minn., which he has been attending. Twenty-five joined the church.

—Bro. John L. Eddins writes from Chambersburg, Pa., of a powerful revival resulting in many conversions. The meetings are held in the Baptist church, corner Queen and Water streets; a number have been baptized and there are fifty-eight applications for membership in the church. A "Daniel's band" has been formed with 129 members who engage in personal religious work. Bro. Eddins rejoices that a number have been helped of the Lord to give up tobacco and their lodges. Bro. Eddins is from the old Harrison Wesleyan church of Licking county, Ohio.

—Mr. Moody has sent word to Rev. C. F. Goss, pastor of the Chicago Avenue church, that he will be in this city in January, and will hold a series of meetings from Jan. 17 to 24, inclusive, in the church which he planted at the corner of Chicago avenue and La Salle street.

—Professor W. H. Yates, a minister of the Church of God, was stoned recently, and probably fatally injured, at Barkerville, Pa., by adherents of ex-Elder C. W. Kountz, who harbored an enmity toward Yates. Kountz has organized a religious sect of his own, and his followers believe that he is a prophet. Lynching is threatened in the event of Yates' death.

—Rev. E. W. Bruce, pastor of the Wesleyan church in Bexley, Indiana, is engaged in revival work with his people, and is rejoicing in the outpouring of the spirit and the conversion of sinners.

—Union meetings at Oneonta, N. Y., for several weeks past, have resulted in a great revival interest. About a hundred have professed conversion. The town has not been so moved in many years.

—A quiet but powerful revival work has been going on in the district known as Kingsbury Hill, N. Y. Meetings have been held over six weeks, and about sixty have publicly sought Christ. Union revival services are now being conducted in Hancock, the three churches, Baptist, Congregational and Methodist uniting.

—Rev. A. B. Earle, the evangelist, and wife, will be given a grand reception by the Tremont Temple church, Boston, on the occasion of the anniversary of their golden wedding, which occurs early in January. At the late meetings held by Mr. Earle in Schoharie Valley, N. Y., 300 conversions were reported at a single service.

—A deputation of the pastors and laymen from Montreal lately waited upon Mr. D. L. Moody and requested him to visit that city for the purpose of holding a series of meetings. Mr. Moody has consented, before going South for the Winter, to give four days for Montreal, commencing Saturday, Jan. 2.

—The Methodist Missionary Board, in appropriating $1,000,000 for the coming year, gave $439,796 to their foreign missions, $305,106 to domestic missions, $75,200 to missions in the United States, $90,885 to liquidation of the debt, and $88,019 to miscellaneous purposes.

—A lady stood up in New York city a few weeks ago to plead the cause of Baptist missions. Holding out her hands, she said: "My sisters, we have come to a crisis in this matter, and we must make unusual sacrifices to get out." It has since been ascertained that this very lady had on her fingers diamonds worth $30,000 at the time she made the gesture.

—The Morning Star, the missionary ship of the American Board's children contributors, is now on a voyage from the Sandwich Islands to the Caroline Islands, so fates to dispute between Germany and Spain.

—The Rev. Dr. Richards, of Brooklyn, estimates that if the amount spent for warefare by the civilized Christian nations during this century had been devoted to the spread of the Gospel, it would have made Asia as Christian as New England.

—At the last meeting of the Board of Managers of the American Bible Society, grants and consignments of books for colportage and for sale and distribution in the United States and in foreign lands were made, to the value of about $8,200. The total receipts for November were $46,744.69. The number of volumes issued from the Bible House during the month (including twenty-seven volumes for the blind) was 74,317.

—The sale of Bibles, religious books and magazines through the colporteurs of Mr. Spurgeon's church, amounted during the past year to nearly $45,000. Seventy-eight men were employed in the work, and 1,500 towns and villages were visited.

—Rev. A. C. Millspaugh, pastor of Union church, N. Y., the Albany Argus reports, while conducting a funeral service at Jerusalem, N. Y., in the midst of the address suddenly tottered and fell, stricken with paralysis, and has not moved or spoken since.

—That the proper solution of the Indian problem is not by the gun and bayonet, but by the church and school, is frequently being shown. A recent illustration may be found in the experience of the American Board. When their work began among the Dakota Indians, these tribes had diminished in numbers to about 25,000. Now they reckon more than 40,000, have a written language, and during last year a hundred and seventeen new members received admission to church fellowship.

—The New York churches are engaged in the agitation of a continuation of the half holiday that was generally adopted by the business men of that city during the summer months. Rev. Dr. R. S. McArthur said he favored it because it aims at the religious improvement of men. One object contemplated by the Saturday half holiday is to induce larger numbers to attend the house of God on the Lord's day. Those who have carefully looked into the matter affirm that since the movement began this result has been secured.

—In the City of Brotherly Love no less than forty-four Lutheran pastors reside. Of these fifteen are German, one Swedish, and the rest English. One belongs to the Missouri Synod, one to none, twelve are members of the General Synod and thirty of the General Council. Of this number probably ten have no charges, being engaged as editors or professors, or having retired. Philadelphia is also the seat of the seminary of the Pennsylvania Synod, as also of the publication house of the General Synod and the leading house within the Council. Here two Lutheran papers, the Lutheran and the Observer are also published. The first Lutherans in America were found in the neighborhood of Philadelphia and founded there the first congregations of our communion.—Lutheran Standard.

—The present Lord Mayor of London has won some reputation as a lay preacher. On a recent Sunday he preached in the City Temple, Dr. Parker's church, Holburn Viaduct. Taking his text from Job 19: 25, he said that Christianity was to be regarded as the parent of hospitals, asylums, and the thousand and one centers of beneficence and charity, which were never even dreamed of in the palmiest days of Grecian and Roman culture and splendor. It was noteworthy that while the Lord Mayor found an example in Lord Shaftesbury he omitted to mention the name of Sir Moses Montefiore. It was a mistake which Dr. Parker did not correct. The doctor, after complimenting the Lord Mayor, said that in the pulpit Bible of the church were inscribed the names of four illustrious men—Robert Moffat, the distinguished missionary; William Ewart Gladstone, Charles H. Spurgeon, and in bold, beautiful caligraphy, "Shaftesbury, April 21, 1872."

—Missionary work in Greece, says The Missionary, is most difficult. The language of modern Greece, the temper of the people, the strength of the State Church, supported by a decided national sentiment, combine to make missionary effort peculiarly hard and unfruitful. Yet our mission to Greece has one great cause for gratitude to God. It has been the means of bringing the Bible into extensive circulation among the Greeks. Last year, indeed, the sales of Bibles were doubled.

—Three and a half years ago a census was taken of Protestant Missions in India, in order to see exactly what progress was being made, and showed that in India alone at the end of 1881 the native Christian Protestant community numbered 417,372, of whom 113,315 were communicants, 461 native ordained ministers, and 2,488 lay preachers or catechists. The most remarkable and encouraging fact disclosed by that census was the decennial rate of progress during the last three decades. The rate of progress from 1851 to 1861 was about 53 per cent; from 1661 to 1871 it rose to 61 per cent, and from 1871 to 1881 to 86 per cent.

—Dr. Thoburn, writing to the Western Christian Advocate, says the South India Conferance has sixty-nine persons engaged in street preaching, and sixty-seven others who do so occasionally. In Calcutta they have two Europeans wholly given to native work, one native who preaches in Hindustanee, and four who preach in Bengali.

AFRICAN MISSIONARIES.

Bro. Harris, a young man from Texas, was in Chicago last week, on his way to West Africa as a missionary. He has had a remarkable religious experience, having been brought up from the horrible pit of drunkenness to a new life in Christ, and shows an unusual devotion to the cause of his Master. He will leave his wife and child pleasantly and comfortably located with friends in this country. His location in Africa will be in the upland region back from Liberia, where several brethren of the Free Methodist church have already gone.

The Earnest Christain prints a letter from Rev. W. W. Kelley at Inhambane on the east coast, South-Africa, which describes the purchase of land from the natives, a tract of some fifty acres, through the kindness of Sak-wa-ri, the son of a chief. He writes:

"I told Sak-wa-ri I wanted to buy a secma—i. e., a field, and asked him to have the chief come. He did so, and with him his Indunas, (or lieutenants they might be called,) as they represent the chief at their different places of abode. After some conversation they all left, and in an hour they sent for me. I found them in a dense wood a few hundred yards from our tent. They had hunted brother Agnew up and had him with them. They explained to me that I should have sole right to the land, and all on it with the exception of a nut tree, and a tree from the bark of which they make cloth. These were reserved for the chief, as a sort of tax, I suppose. We would have no use for the cloth tree, but the nuts of the other are very fine. We use oil made from them which is superior to lard for cooking purposes. After these explanations, two of the under chiefs took me with them to "gim-be-la"—walk the land. I had fever that day, but looked to the Lord to give me strength. They passed on before and showed me the line, and as I marked the trees I put the print of the cross on them. When we returned to the rest of the company, I unfolded a bolt of cotton and cut it into "maneas"—eight yard pieces. They asked ten pieces. I had a bolt that measured exactly eighty yards. So I cut it up and gave it to them. We all sat around in a circle. The chief clapped his hands together gently; the rest did the same, and I followed the example. We then shook hands, and such a feeling of solemnity, and of deep gratitude to God, came over me that I proposed prayer. They all knelt, and acted in a very reverent manner. I gave Sak-wa-ri a "bassli"—present of a shirt worth one dollar, for his assistance in the matter. Now I feel as secure in my title, as far as the natives are concerned, as though the deed was recorded.

"We expect to see souls saved before they know anything about books, and before they understand all the doctrines of the Bible. I know the Spirit of God will work, if we keep filled with the Spirit, and declare the truth as it is in Jesus. I feel satisfied that we are already having an influence on the people.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year.
clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

CYNOSURE FRIENDS.

Many of you will learn that your subscription expires during December. By promptly attending to the renewal you will greatly contribute to the success of your paper and to the cause for which it stands. Have you tried to get a club of five or ten in your town? Don't let this month pass without an attempt. The lodge loses its power where the principles of the Cynosure are embraced. For a club of five yearly subscriptions, one copy six months free. For a club of ten yearly subscriptions, one copy one year free. Don't forget our two-months-for 25-cents offer. If it is seed sowing, some will doubtless fall on good ground. Examine our clubbing list, if you want any other paper. We can save you money on any paper you want to take with the Cynosure. The mails are beginning to give evidence of what can be done for the cause and its paper by its faithful agents. We give below extracts from a few of those heard from the past week who are going to keep the light shining in their communities.

H. D. Jones writes: I have one person to say he will subscribe for the Cynosure after Christmas, and I will get another if I can. I wish every home in the State of Kentucky could read it. Then I know the lodge would go down.

H. Baldridge writes: My wife is sick and needs my care, but I will try to get some one to see the old subscribers and to get new ones.

A. C. Lemm writes: I will give the circulation of the paper all the attention I can. Would put it into every family in America if I could.

A. Hamilton writes: I will do my best to extend its circulation. I wish you to continue to send the Cynosure to E. Warren, who was much addicted to the use of spirituous liquors before I sent it to him. He is now reformed from that vice.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

Names of those sending in cash for Cynosure from Dec. 7 to 12 inclusive:

J. P. Taylor, E. Sutton, Rev. S. Knapp, M. D. Groton, Dan'l Wertz, G W Clark, Samuel A. Pratt, J. N. Nolan, Albert Roach, M. M. Morse, B. Tunicliff, Ira J. Bradley, Isaac Duncan, Rufina Fry, Jno. H. Sloan, A. W. Brim, Allen Brink, Wm. Young, J. Rutty, A. C. Palmer, J. R. McDowell, Jas. Catterlin, S. A. Reynolds, Davis H. Seamans, Christian Life, Thos. Reid, Perry Bell, Geo. R. Sanders, Isaac Hyatt, Jas. Joder F. C. Herring, Mary McDowell, C. C. Foote, Ira Green.

FOR NEW YEAR'S GIFTS is there any book better than Mrs. Haviland's "Life Work," or Miss Flagg's "Between Two Opinions," or those in our catalogue? If, however you wish any book published, write to us and it will be furnished you by the National Christian Association, 221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

JOHNSTON'S JOURNAL is a magazine that few would be without if they would examine a number or two and see how much good reading it furnishes for so little money. The Dec. 12 issue, for instance, has an article on the natural gas wells of Pennsylvania with three illustrations from sketches made on the spot by the author; one on the crisis in Eastern Europe with a portrait of Prince Alexander; one on European conquests in farther Asia; and in addition there are illustrated reviews of notable new books, an analysis of Grant's personal memoirs, just out, the serial story, which is exceedingly interesting without being sensational, new anecdotes, and a number of miscellaneous articles So many good things for 10 cts. a number, or (every other week) $2 a year, account for the deserved popularity of the magazine. Ask your newsdealer to order for you the Dec. 12, Christmas, and Jan. 9 numbers, or remit 30 cts. for the three, or $2 for 1886 subscription, to W. J. Johnston, Publisher, 9 Murray street, New York.

MARSHALL FIELD &Co.

State and Washington-sts.

Announce Themselves as

Fully Prepared in Every Department

FOR THE

HOLIDAY SHOPPING SEASON.

Sold by all Newsdealers. THREE VALUABLE PERIODICALS. Price 10 cents each.

Johnston's Journal, An illustrated Magazine for the people. Estab'd 1874. Issues every other week. 36 pages. $2 a year.

Industrial America, An Illustrated Popular Record of Progress in the Arts and Sciences 16 pp.; every other week, $2 a yr

The Electrical World. An Illustrated Review of current progress in Electricity and its practical applications. 20 pp. wkly $3 y.

The CHRISTMAS number of JOHNSTON'S JOURNAL, now ready, is UNUSUALLY handsome. Order it and the January 9 issue, in which begins a powerful new serial story, interesting but not sensational. The current numbers of both INDUSTRIAL AMERICA and THE ELECTRICAL WORLD are also very attractive. Postage in U. S. or Canada prepaid. Agen s wanted. Any dealer will take your order or subscription; or address, W. J. JOHNSTON, Publisher, 9 Murray st., New York, 48 Congress st., Boston; or 23 Borden Block, Chicago.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treaties on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING,
SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price. 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited, $50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

Invaluable to Every Lady!

The Ladies' Manual of Fancy Work. A new book, giving plain directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work and all kinds of fancy Needle Work, This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed on fine tinted paper, has a handsome cover, and contains over 500 Illustrations, Price only 50 cents!

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Knit Edgings, Cross Stitch Patterns, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool designs, Applique designs, Kate Greenaway designs for Doyleys, etc., Handkerchief Borders, Macrame Lace work, Holbein work, Java Canvas work, Worsted Fringes, Turkish Rugs, Toilet Cushions, Footstools, Hat Racks, Pin Cushions, Ottomans, Work Baskets, Pen Wipers, Bed-Quilts, Lambrequins, Work Bags, Book Covers, Wood Boxes, Door Panels, Scrap Baskets, Sofa Coverlets, Toilet Bottle Cases, Table Top Patterns, Folding Screens, Church-Font Decorations, Sofa Cushions, Music Portfolios, Slipper Patterns, Persian Rugs, Wall Pockets, Carriage Rugs, Chair back Covers, Towel Racks. Perfume Sachets, Tidy Designs, Flower Pot Covers, Lamp Shades, Needle Cases, Watch Cases, Fancy Work Bags, Catch-alls, Match Safes, Eye Glass Pockets, Collar Boxes, Chair Bolsters, Umbrella Cases, School Bags, Patch-work Designs, Coin Purses, Designs for Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Commodes, Bibs, Glove Cases, Air Castles, Gypsey Tables, Hair Receivers, Paper Weights, Table Mats, Night-dress Cases, Shoe Bags, Needle Books, Jewel Boxes, Door Mats, Knitted Jackets, Bottle Cases, Paper Racks Pillow Shams Hair Pin Holders, Floss Winders, Mosaic Window Shades, Book Marks, and every design in fancy work a lady can desire, to the number of over 500.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion and invaluable to all who love fancy work. Plain directions with each design.

Jenny June in her preface to this book, says: "The present volume does not pretend to furnish the theory or practice of the highest Needle work art, but it does aim to supply within its compass a greater variety of excellent designs—every one of which is useful for dress or household decoration—than have ever before been gathered within the leaves of one manual."

Large quarto, paper cover mailed free for 50 cents.
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,

Burt's Selected Gems of Song.

Allegro.

A choice collection of SIXTY-TWO FAVORITE SONGS, from the works of the BEST COMPOSERS, with accompaniments for PIANO and ORGAN. The titles of the songs in this book are:

All on Account of Eliza—Bailiff's Daughter—Banbury Cross—A Bird in Hand—Blue Alsatian Mountains—Bob up Serenely—Boogie Man—The Bridge—Chorus of Charity Girls—Come Back to Erin—Danube River—Douglas, Tender and True—Down by the Old Mill Stream—Dream Song—Every Inch a Sailor—The Fairy Jane—Five O'clock in the Morning—Flee as a Bird—Good-by, Sweetheart, Good-by—Home, Sweet Home—I'm Called Little Buttercup—In the Gloaming—It Was a Dream—Johnny Morgan—Katy's Letter—Kerry Dance—Killarney—Lardy Dah—Let Me Dream Again—Letter in the Candle (Quartette Chorus)—The Lost Chord—Lover and the Bird—Lullaby (Fritz)—Maggie's Secret—Man in the Moon—My Love Beyond the Sea—Nancy Lee—Naughty Clara—No Place Like Home—O Fair Dove, O Fond Dove—O Fred, Tell Them to Stop—Old Timbertoes—Over the Garden Wall—Robin Adair—Rocked in the Cradle of the Deep—Smiles May End in Tears—Some Day—Speak to Me—Speed Well—Still Love's Dream I Cherish—Take Back the Heart—Tar's Farewell—Thirteen, Fifteen, Fourteen—Torpedo and the Whale—True Blue—Turnham Toll—Twickenham Ferry—Two's Company, Three's None—A Warrior Bold—The Watermill—We'd Better Bide A'wee—Whoa, Emma—You Never Miss the Water.

REMEMBER! This Book Contains 68 POPULAR VOCAL SONGS, with music, full sheet-music size, and bound with a handsome engraved cover. This is the best collection of Songs and Ballads ever offered in one book.

Mailed free to any address on receipt of 60 cents.
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

A SHOPPING BAG FREE!

A CHRISTMAS GIFT TO ALL

To introduce FARM AND HOUSEHOLD, the large 32 page Illustrated Magazine for the home, devoting 10 pages exclusively to the ladies and matters of Household, 10 pages to the Farm, and 12 pages to stories and general miscellany, we will send it 3 months for 25 cts. and give this Imitation Alligator, Nickel Trimmed Shopping Bag (6 inches wide and 12 inches around) Free and postpaid to any person subscribing. Five Bags and five subscriptions for $1.00. Address, Publishers of FARM AND HOUSEHOLD, Hartford, Conn.

1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886. Send for particulars.
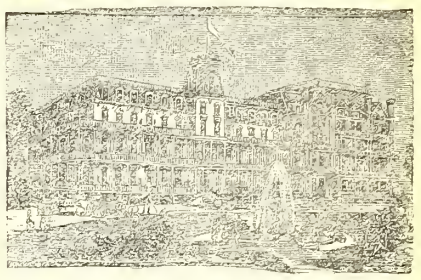
H. C. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street, Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing, Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days. No pain. Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa



MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

The Medical and Surgical
SANITARIUM,

LARGEST SANITARIUM IN THE WORLD.

This institution, one of the buildings of which is shown in the cut, stands without a rival in the perfection and completeness of its appointments.

The following are a few of the special methods employed: Turkish, Russian, Roman, Thermo-Electric, Electro-vapor, Electro-hydric, Electro-chemical, Hot-air, Vapor, and every form of water bath; electricity in every form; Swedish movements—manual and mechanical—Massage, Pneumatic treatment, Vacuum treatment, sun baths. All other remedial agents of known curative value employed.

An artificial climate, possessing the advantages of perfectly pure air and an equable temperature, is produced for the benefit of those invalids who annually visit the South and other warm climates. Porches enclosed in glass afford fine opportunity for promenading without exposure, and a fine gymnasium offers every facility for thorough and systematic physical training.

Pure water, good ventilation, steam heating, perfect sewerage Special departments for the Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs, etc. For circulars with particulars, address SANITARIUM, Battle Creek, Mich.

Useful to Every Lady!

Madame Worth's New Manual of Fancy Work. A NEW BOOK, giving designs and directions for Artistic Embroidery, Lace Work, Knitting, Tatting, Crochet Work, Net Work, and all kinds of Fancy Needle Work. This VALUABLE BOOK is beautifully printed, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 25 Cents.

Comprising designs for Monograms, Initials, Alphabets, Edgings, Cross Stitch, Point Russe, Berlin and Shetland Wool, Applique, Kate Greenaway designs for Doyles, etc. Handkerchief borders, Holbein Work, Java Canvas, Fringes, Toilet Cushions, Foot Stools, Work Baskets, Work Bags, Scrap Baskets, Table-top Patterns, Folding Screens, Sofa Cushions, Slipper Patterns, Wall Pockets, Towel Racks, Tidies, Catchalls, Chair Bolsters, School Bags, Patch Work, Tricot and Burlaps, Wood Baskets, Bibs, Shoe Bags, Jewel Boxes, Pillow Shams, and many others. Plain Directions with each Design.

This book gives practical directions for making Wax Flowers and Painting on Silk, etc.

Every lady will find this book a useful companion to all who love fancy work. Price, post-paid, only 25 Cents; Five Books for $1.00. Get four friends to send with you, and get your book free. Agents wanted. Address
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle St., Chicago.

The Best Commentary
IS
JAMIESON, FAUSSET & BROWN'S

In four large 12mo. volumes of about 1,000 pages each. Two volumes for the Old Testament and Two for the New. It is printed from new electrotype plates, on type of good size, distinct, clear and easy to read.

This Commentary has now become a standard work on both sides of the Atlantic, and is much sought after by students of the Bible.

The unqualified commendation of this Commentary, from the highest sources, has given it a position in the religious world superior to that of any other similar work. It will soon be universally adopted by Association workers, Sabbath-school teachers and Bible readers generally, to whom its use has now become indispensable.

From a host of testimonials we cull the following:

REV. C. H. SPURGEON.

I think it the best Commentary upon the whole Bible which has been issued within the last fifty years, and I should be very sorry to be deprived of the pleasure of consulting it.

REV. STUART ROBINSON, D. D., LOUISVILLE, KY.

Having for more than twenty years been myself engaged in the popular exposition of the Scriptures from the pulpit, every Sabbath evening—and, of course, availing myself of all the aids within my reach—I have met with none among them which so well accomplishes the great end of a popular exposition—viz.: to show the people in the fewest words, how to read the Bible for themselves, as the very comprehensive Commentary of Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. J. H. VINCENT, D. D., EDITOR S. S. JOURNAL.

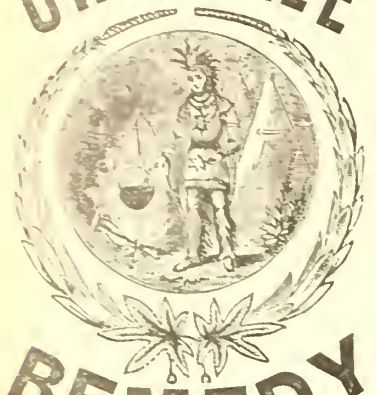
The best condensed Commentary on the whole Bible is the Commentary on the Old and New Testament by Jamieson, Fausset & Brown.

REV. JAS. M'COSH, D. D., PRESIDENT OF PRINCETON COLLEGE.

It is the work of highly competent scholars, who have succeeded in bringing out the mind of the Spirit as revealed in the Scriptures. It is clear, brief, judicious and eminently fitted to be useful alike to pastor and people.

Sent free to any address on receipt of price. 4 vols. handsomely bound in cloth, $8.00: half morocco, $10.00.
ARCADE PUB. CO., 147 LaSalle St., Chicago.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE



For Lemons or Lime Juice.

is a superior substitute, and its use is positively beneficial to health.

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE

TAYLOR'S

CHEROKEE

REMEDY

—OF—

SWEET GUM

—AND—

MULLEIN.

[illegible] prepared from a tree of the same name, [illegible] streams in the Southern States, [illegible] a positive, yet safe principle that loosens [illegible] early morning cough, and stimulates [illegible] of the false membrane in croup and [illegible] mingled with the healing mucilage [illegible] mullein plant of the old fields, prepared [illegible] CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN is the only remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough and Consumption and so palatable, any child will take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c., 50c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

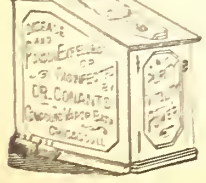
MOTHER BUCKINGHAM'S HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

A Thing of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.



Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. [illegible] of the [illegible] to a patient): "As you [illegible] them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Oriental Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." For sale by druggists throughout the U. S., Canada, and Europe. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

A BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FOR $1200

[illegible] more than [illegible] it affords [illegible] floor shown [illegible] in attic 2 more. [illegible] one chimney. [illegible] of the above [illegible] from $10 up [illegible] MODERN LOW-[illegible] showing also [illegible] sent post paid on receipt of $1, and we will re[illegible] PLAN ASSOCIATION, [illegible] La Salle St., Box 2702, N. Y.

DR. CONANT'S

CompoundVaporBaths

FOR HOME USE.

Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.

Ladies—Room 5.

Gents—Room 6.

Call or send for circular.

IN BRIEF.

The first Michigan saw-mill was built fifty years ago, and the cut since then has averaged 2,300,000,000 feet a year.

The old-fashioned spinniug wheel was introduced a short time ago into the Isle of Man Insane Asylum, with the idea of amusing the patients. The latter seemed delighted that they could in this way contribute to their support, and became so absorbed in their new occupatiou that their nervous system no longer predominated. As Dr. Richardson, the medical superintendent, expressed it, the direction of the nervous force was changed, and their condition improved. The experiment is to be tried in other asylums.

The lightning catching apparatus now beiug placed on the summit of the Washington monument, consists of 794 feet of triangular copper rods, plated with gold, to encircle the roof in the horizontal points; 200 feet of copper rods, also gold-plated, to extend along the four corners of the roof, and 172 lightning-rod points, of copper, gold-plated, with platinum tips. These, with those already existing, will fairly cover the top of the monument, making 200 points. If the lightning succeeds in dodging between any of these, it must have taken lessons in "dodging" on the floor of the House.

A decaying hen's egg will not sink in water, because of the gasses inside the shell, but no such rule can be applied to the eggs of the ostrich, They will sink in water whether good or bad, and when a bad one is opened the odor is sufficient to destroy the peace of the whole village. Many a camp has been removed a long distance because of the indiscretion of a cook, who has broken an egg instead of tapping it with the tip of his hunting-knife, and it is said that the stench of a very antique one can be felt for several miles. When an egg is tapped and found to be rotten, it is immediately burned.

Dakota has an area of 153,000 square miles—81,000 in South Dakota and 72,000 in North Dakota. Cass county in Dakota paid out last year $47 for fertilizers and raised a little over $5,000,000 worth of production. Seneca county, New York, expended some $50,000 for fertilizers and produced less than $2,000,000. Land in Seneca county, New York, is named at about $65 an acre, and land in Cass county, Dakota, at a little over $12 an acre. Is it any wonder that Dakota is settling up? Is it any wonder that five years should make such a difference in the population? Cass county in 1880 had about 9,000 inhabitants; in 1885, over 21,000. Fargo in 1878 had 800 inhabitants; in 1880; 2,700; in 1885, 8,201.—Fargo Argus.

While the wife of Jean Baptiste Romilly, residing ten miles from Toronto, Ont., accompanied by her 2 year-old child, was feeding her fowls, a large bald eagle swooped down and bore the little one off in its talons. The neighbors turned out with shotguns, but the only effect of their firing was to accelerate the eagle's flight. The bird alighted on the top of a barn, a mile away, and was seen to make several strokes at the child's head with its beak. The neighbors had got pretty close by this time, and succeeded in frightening it away. The child's body was recovered, but life was extinct, a hole having been made in its skull and a portion of the brain devoured by the bird.

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc. of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen. For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—

Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.

SING THEM!

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 75 cents.

Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

MISCELLANEOUS.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!

"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."

THE PILLOW-INHALER.

A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH. BRONCHITIS. CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."

E. L. HEDDEN, 38 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELE, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Sibley's Tested Seeds

Catalogue free on application. Send for it.
HIRAM SIBLEY & CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50. Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Gilt Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Songster, 1850 Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts. IVY CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts. TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

Jenny June's Books for Ladies.

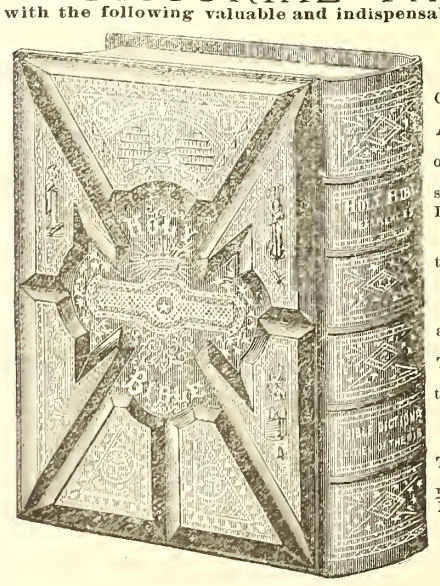
KNITTING AND CROCHET: A Guide to the Use of the Needle and the Hook Edited by JENNY JUNE. In arranging this new work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.

All known stitches in Knitting, Macramé, and Crochet Work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs and directions are given to Knit and Crochet Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee-Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published. Price, postpaid, 50 cents.

NEEDLE-WORK: A Manual of Stitches and Studies in Embroidery and Drawn Work. Edited by JENNY JUNE. In this new book an attempt is made to systematize and arrange in an order convenient for workers, the modern methods in Embroidery and Drawn Work. The author has felt the desire and the responsibility involved in aiding women to a true and practical guide to the beautiful art of needle-work. This book is printed on fine paper, has a handsome cover and contains

200 Illustrations. Price 50 Cents.



All known stitches in Needle-work are illustrated, described and made plain for beginners. Designs in Needle-work are given to decorate My Lady's Chamber, My Lady's Robe, the Dining-Room, Parlor and Library, and for Linen and Cotton Fabrics, including embroidery designs for Mantel Scarfs—Bed Spreads—Child's Quilt—Pillow Covers—Cushion Boxes—Bureau Scarfs—Table Covers—Chair Backs—Morning Sacques—Artists' Jackets—Walking Dress—Afternoon Dress—Evening Dress—Handkerchiefs—Muffers—Fichus—Piazza Wraps—Saches—Fans—Slippers—Bonnets—Parasols—Aprons—Work Bags—Opera Bags—Glove Case—Sachets—Lunch Cloths—Dinner Cloths—Napkins—Doylies—Table Mats—Corn Napkins—Fish Napkins—Tray Covers—Tea Cloths—Curtains—Panels—Banners—Screens—Sofa Cushions—Piano Scarfs—Chair Scarfs—Sofa Rugs—Photograph Cases—Book Covers, etc., etc. This will be found to be the only standard book on the subject of Needle-work. Price, postpaid, 50 cents. The two books for 90 cents. Five books for $2.00. Get four friends to send with you and get your book free. Stamps taken. Agents wanted.

Arcade Publishing Company. Chicago, Ill.

SPECIAL OFFER.

PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE,

with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.
A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.
Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.
Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.
Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.
Cities of the Bible with Magnificent Views and Descriptive Scenes and Events in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.
Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible.
A History of all the Existing Religious Denominations.
The History of the Translation of the English Bible.
A Chronological Index to the Holy Bible.
Alphabetical Table of the Proper Names in the Old and New Testament.
A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.
The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.
Scripture Illustrations.
Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.
Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.
Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similies of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.
Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.
A Complete Concordance.
And many other important and useful aids to the study of the Holy Scriptures.

THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING

The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.

Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.

The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.

On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

FARM NOTES.

THE IMPORTANCE OF CELLAR VENTILATION.

The ill-health which prevails more or less uniformally towards spring, may be accounted for to a great degree, by the lack of ventilation of cellars. Farm house cellars are often filled in December, with cider and vinegar in barrels, beef barrels, pork barrels, apple barrels, potatoes in bins, vegetables in heaps, wash tubs, butter tubs, and other articles too numerous to mention. Besides, flowering plants taken up for the winter, are here stored away to be safe from frost, and the leaves from them fall and decay. There are boxes, old timbers, boards, etc., which become moist and mouldy, and there are shelves and corners that anyone can see to have been only half cleansed, and liable to be, if not already, damp, mouldy, and unwholesome.

The thing to do is, to provide outside cellars as soon as possible, for fruits and vegetables, and all those things liable to decay; but before that is done, we must do everything possible to have our cellars under the dwellings sweet and clean. First the cellar should be swept (hoed out if necessary), once a week. Decaying things, whether fruit, vegetables, or boards, should be removed. Then quicklime, or half slaked lime, should be scattered freely in corners, under shelves, under bins, and around and among the barrels of all kinds. When the lime has slacked to a powder, it may be swept about over the floor. If the floor be of earth, it will harden it; if it be of wood or cement, it will help to keep it sweet. Finally, on every suitable day, windows and doors should be thrown open, and fresh air allowed to pass freely through. —American Agriculturist.

HOW FREEZING BENEFITS THE SOIL.

It is a well-known fact that water in the act of freezing, expands considerably, and with a force that is irresistible, it is the freezing of water in their crevices and pores that causes the rocks to be gradually worn down, and "weathered" as it is called, into soil. It is this also which is continually reducing the soil to finer fragments, and which breaks up the hard clogs and mellows the ground. Fall plowing or spading assists this effect by breaking up the compact soil into lumps, which are further broken into small particles. As water and air can only act upon the surface of these particles, it is clear that the smaller they are, the more surface is exposed to the weather, and the soil is made soluble. If a block of hard soil of 12 inches cube is exposed to the weather, there are 864 square inches only affected; if it is broken up into cubes of one inch; 10,368 square inches are exposed to these beneficial influences; if the soil is further broken up in fragments of one-twelfth of an inch, there are more than 124,000 square inches thus affected. This fact shows how greatly the effects of frost benefit the soil, and therefore how necessary it is that the land should be plowed, and opportunity given for this beneficial action of the weather. In the garden, even, all the soil possible should be spaded before it freezes.—American Agriculturist.

There is much difference of opinion as to whether or not manure should be sheltered from the weather. The Germantown Telegraph, talking on this subject, says sun, wind, and rain certainly damage the exposed manure heaps. The writer is sure that unlimited exposure to the weather will prove highly injurious to the quality of the manure. A leading farmer said some time ago, that he regarded the complete exposure of the manure heap through the winter, and until it can be used in the spring, to damage it fifty per cent. In other words, one load of well-protected manure is worth two of the exposed. This seems almost incredible, but it may not be far from the truth.

Cows need water as much as food, although it is not always so considered. Especially in cold weather, water is thought to be unnecessary. The following will throw some light on the subject. A writer says: "If a man weighing 150 pounds can drink three gallons of water in a day, how much can a cow, weighing eight times as much, and giving three gallons of milk, drink? It would be safe to say twenty seven gallons, or ten ordinary pailfuls." We think the if a rather large one, but the proportion may be about right. The point is to give cows a chance to get as much water as they need and they will regulate the quantity.

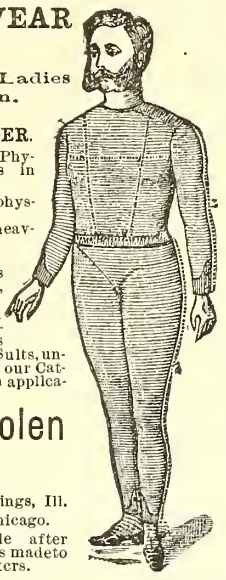
Best, easiest to use and cheapest. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. By druggists. 50c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.



System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health

Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.

Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure Special prices madeto clergymen and the workers.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the Unite States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

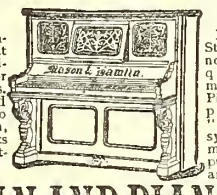
Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners..... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.



S. R. BRIGGS,

Toronto Willard Tract Depository,

TORONTO, CANADA.

Mason & Hamlin

ORGANS: Highest Honors at all Great World's Exhibitions for eighteen years. One hundred Styles, $22. to $900. For Cash, Easy Payments or Rented. Catalogues free.

PIANOS: New mode of Stringing. Do not require one-quarter as much tuning as Pianos on the prevailing "wrest-pin" system. Remarkable for purity of tone and durability.

ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

154 Tremont St., Boston. 46 E. 14th St. (Union Sq.), N. Y. 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

MAGIC LANTERNS

And STEREOPTICONS, all prices. Views illustrating every subject for PUBLIC EXHIBITIONS, etc. ☞ A profitable business for a man with small capital. Also Lanterns for Home Amusement. 136 page Catalogue free. McALLISTER, Optician, 49 Nassau St., N. Y.

HOW PRINTING PAYS

MODEL IMPROVED.

"The Proof of the Pudding," &c. How richly it pays to own a Model Press is shown in a handsome little book, containing several hundred "proofs," from the 15,000 people who have Model Presses, Business men, Clergymen, Teachers, Boys, Girls, persons out of work,—everybody interested. A Press and Outfit complete, from $5.00 to $10.00 and up. Book mailed free. Address,

The Model Press Co., Limited, 912 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.

BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.

DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

MISCELLANEOUS.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN AND FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

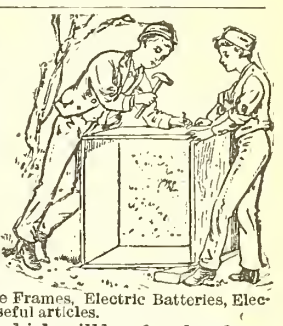
It has a record of 18,000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.



The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published. THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM. Finely illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!

We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient) in preference to stamps, and address

The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,

Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

Boys' Useful Pastimes.

Boy's Useful Pastimes; Pleasant and profitable amusement for spare hours. By PROF. ROBERT GRIFFITH, A. M. This volume comprises chapters on the use and care of tools, and detailed instruction by means of which boys can make, with their own hands, a large number of toys, household ornaments, scientific appliances, and many pretty, amusing and necessary articles for the play-ground, the home and out of doors. It is bound in showing how to make Boats, Steam Engines, Steamers, Bob-Sleds, Ice-Boats, Windmills, Aquariums, Hand Carts, Tops, Flags, Photograph Camera, Telephone, Telegraph, Microscope, Kaleidoscope, Steam Acrobats, Traps, Dog Houses, Bird Cages, Coops, Dove Cotes, Squirrel Cages, Summer Houses, Fences, Fountains, Furniture, Gymnasium, Step Ladders, Trunks, Nets, Wire Work, Clay Modeling, Brass Work, Picture Frames, Electric Batteries, Electroplating, Electrotyplug, Running Mice, Wig-Wags and many other useful articles.

Handsome Cloth Binding, with 300 Illustrations,

In looking for a book to put into the hands of your boy which will be of real and genuine use, and at the same time a source of healthful entertainment, this is the one you should choose.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,

147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

THE LIFE AND SERVICES OF GEN. U. S. GRANT.

His Early Life, his Military Achivements, his Administration as President, his Political and Business Career, together with his "Tour Around the World." By L. T. REMLAP, author of "Grant's Tour Around the World," "The Home Guide," "The Gospel Awakening," "Chautauqua, Historical and Descriptive," "The Great Redemption," etc., etc.

Contains a full and accurate description of Gen. Grant's early life, habits, cadetship at West Point; his military record in the Mexican War; his private life subsequently; his great military achievements during the Civil War; his political successes and administration as President; his unique and celebrated tour around the world—the receptions tendered him, with addresses of welcome, his replies, his conversations with public men—his political and financial reverses; his distressing sickness, death and funeral obsequies.

Elegantly illustrated; eighty full page and other engravings. Bound in cloth. Sent, post paid, on receipt of price, $1.75. One large octavo volume, 772 pages. Address

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street Chicago.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

Headquarters for the Northwest FOR

TEMPERANCE PUBLICATIONS.

A Complete Stock of all the NATIONAL TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S Publications.

Catalogue sent free on application.

C. H. WHITING,

Publisher and Bookseller,

137 Wabash ave. - - Chicago.

BOOKS.

Special list of books at very low prices. These books are second hand and in first-class shape for libraries, good as new:

	Pub. price	Our pr.
American Cyclopedia, 16 vol., cloth..	$80.00	$60.00
People's " 3 " 1-2 mor.	20.00	14.00
Shakespeare, 7 vol., Leipzig ed., 1-2 "	5.25	3.50
Zell's Cyclopedia (condensed), map..	6.50	4.00
Knight's History England 4 vol. cloth	4.00	2.50
Lippincott's Biographical Dictionary map	10.00	5.00
Shakespeare, Handy vol, cloth, 8 vol.	5.00	3.00
Carlyle's Wilhelm Meister, 3 vol. cloth	2.25	1.25
Success with Small Fruits, by E. P. Roe, cloth	5 00	2.50
"All Religions of World," cloth	3.50	1.75
How Women can Make Money, cloth	2.00	.75
Ladies of White House, cloth	3.50	1.25
Middlemarch, Geo Elliott, 2 vol. cloth	3.00	1.50
Art, its Laws and Reason, cloth	3.00	1.25
The Artist and his Mission, cloth	2.00	1.00
Taine's Ideal in Art, cloth	1.50	.75
Harvey's Meditations, cloth	1.50	.75
The Desert of Siam, by Bonar, cloth.	1.50	1.00
Talne's English Literature, cloth	3.00	2.00
Ladies Repository bound, half morocco, years 1869, '70, '71, '74, per vol.		1 25
Manual of English Literature, by Arnold, cloth	2.50	1.25
Shaw's American Literature	1.50	.75
The Teachings and Acts of Jesus of Nazareth, by W. C. Dil aid, cloth	1.00	.75

Any of the books in this list sent on receipt of price.

ARCADE PUB. CO

145--149 La Salle st., Chicago, Ill.

WOMAN OR MAN WANTED TO MAKE 125 Per Cent. PROFIT. taking orders for our celebrated oil portraits. Previous knowledge of the business unnecessary. $2.25 Outfit Free. The agent realizes $66 profit per week on only 4 orders per day. Reilly Bros. & Co., 444 Broome St., N. Y

FREE $2 SAMPLES

fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

PHYSIOLOGY of Woman, The.—Embracing girlhood, maternity, and mature age, with lectures on "Co-Education of the Sexes in Medicine," "The Physiological Basis of Education," "Temperance from a Physician's Point of View," "A Plea for Moderation," by SARAH HACKETT STEVENSON, M. D., Adjunct Professor of Obstetrics, and late Professor of Physiology in the Woman's Medical College of Chicago.

This is an ably written volume of 230 pages, and, as indicated by its title and name of its distinguished author, it eminently a Woman's Book for Woman. The author says in her introduction: "This is not in any sense a medical book. Medicine is not and never can become a popular science I oppose self-prescribing in every form. * * The target at which I have aimed is the false teaching which women have received. * * I believe that no true physician can object to any information these pages seek to impart."

At the solicitation of the publishers, Mrs. Stevenson has prepared "Physiology of Woman." It is published with the hope of saving the women of the future from the penalty of ignorance concerning themselves—a penalty which untold thousands are suffering. Price, in fine English cloth, postpaid, $1.50. ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 LaSalle st., Chicago.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excelleuce and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability.

Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

The best is the cheapest.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY

PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.

82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for your children. Children get it for your parents.
Every Sunday-school should have it. Appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

Secretary Lamar has requested the President to ask Congress to authorize the use of $15,000 appropriated by Congress last year "to supply food and other necessities of life in cases of distress among Indians not having treaty funds," for the temporary relief of the Northern Cheyennes on the Tongue and Rosebud Rivers in Montana. The department has information that these Indians are in great distress for want of food and sufficient clothing.

According to the figures of the National Agricultural Department the average farm price of corn is 33 cents, against 36 cents in December a year ago. Wheat averages 78 7 cents, against 65 cents last year, and cotton sells for 8 3—a reduction of nine mills from the figures prevailing in December, 1884. Rye, barley, oats, and potatoes show an advance of from 4 to 7 cents.

COUNTRY.

Intelligence of the death of Mrs. Julia Butler Newberry at Paris, France, has been received in Chicago. By the death of Mrs Newberry, as provided in the will of her late husband, the North Side falls heir to about $2,500,000, to be used in founding a public library.

The loss by fire in the United States and Canada during November is placed at $7,500,000, and for the eleven months to Dec. 1, the loss foots up $85,000,000.

While conversing on business matters with Mr. Garrett, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, in his residence in New York, Tuesday, Mr. William H. Vanderbilt was seized with paralysis, and, falling from his chair, died instantly. The remains were placed Friday in the vault at New Dorp, Staten Island. The Rev. Samuel Cook conducted short services in the residence, after which the casket was borne to St. Bartholomew's church, which was thronged by men prominent in the financial world, fewer than one hundred women being admitted to the edifice. At the cemetery the casket, soldered in an iron box, was placed within a few feet of the remains of the late Commodore Vanderbilt.

A co-operative nail company, with $[illegible] capital proposes to erect a factory at Homestead, Pa., where five acres of land have been presented to them. The company is composed of strikers and hardware dealers of Pittsburg.

The crossbar of shaft 3 in the new Croton aqueduct, near Merritt's Corners, N. Y., fell Monday morning on a descending bucket containing five men, four of whom were instantly killed, the fifth receiving mortal injuries.

Fire broke out in the Daisy flouring mill at Milwaukee Tuesday morning, and when the fire department turned on a stream an explosion followed that blew the roof from the structure and sent the flames high in the air. The Empire Mill, adjoining, then caught fire, both structures being entirely destroyed, with a loss in excess of $200,000. One fireman was fatally, and several others seriously, injured.

Twenty sophomore students in the Wisconsin State University at Madison have been suspended because they remained away from drill Tuesday evening. The young men explain their action by saying that by attending drill they ran the risk of freezing their ears and hands.

Seven men were buried by the caving in of a sewer at Akron, Ohio, Wednesday afternoon, four of them being killed and the others fatally injured.

An explosion of natural gas in a dwelling at Canonsburg, Pa., Wednesday morning, blew off the roof of the structure, and landed the owner, his wife, and two children, who were sleeping soundly at the time, in the yard. Fire breaking out, the building was entirely destroyed. The man, his wife, and little boy were severely injured and burned, but their little baby escaped without a scratch.

At Pine Run, Pa., early Thursday, a band of striking miners attacked non-unionists on their way to work, using clubs, sticks and stones. Some of the latter were badly injured, and one man is not expected to recover. After the flight of the "scabs," the strikers wedged a switch on a railway, and the next train on the line was wrecked, but no lives were lost.

At the Illinois Dairymen's convention, Thursday at Belvidere, Dr. Tefft of Elgin made the claim that the great increase of insanity was due to the adulteration of goods used for food.

A shower of fish fell in the vicinity of Cumberland, Md., Thursday morning. They were about an inch long and bore the appearance of young smelts.

Frederick Hausmeyer, his wife and six children residing at Tarentum, Pa., are affected with trichiniasis, having eaten of a salad of which raw pork formed the principal ingredient. One son aged 20 has died, another is on the verge of dissolution and the doctor has no hopes of saving any member of the family.

Secretary Manning has dismissed a clerk because he was impertinent to a stranger who called to inquire about the business of the office, and this prompt action will have a good effect upon all the departments.

FOREIGN.

The Servians on Thursday attacked the Bulgarian outposts, but were repulsed at every point. A Constantinople dispatch states that Russia has protested against Turkish intervention in Roumelia and that in consequence of Austria acting with Servia the Russian government is preparing to support Bulgaria.

The London Times of Saturday morning says: The powers have agreed to recognize the union of the Bulgarias. A demarcation commission has been appointed which insures an armistice of a month, and will hardly fail to secure peace."

Owing to the activity and increasing strength of the rebels in the Soudan, orders have been issued for the reoccupation of Dongola by British troops.

The British expeditionary force under General Pendergast arrived at Mandalay, Dec. 1st, without any resistance being offered by the Burmese. Lord Dufferin, the Vicroy of India, has telegraphed the home government that he has arranged to administer the Burmese government provisionally in Queen Victoria's name. The surrender of King Thebaw was unreserved. He wanted terms, but his request was refused, and his unconditional surrender demanded. He then acceded to the British demands.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Congregationalist.

1886.

The CONGREGATIONALIST keeps constantly in mind the tastes and wants of all classes of readers.
Its steadfastness of character has gained for it public confidence; and its balance of progressive and conservative sympathies is most helpful to all true progress.
It abounds in sketches and stories of the highest character and literary merit and is filled with matter of interest to all the members of the family.
It gives more complete news as to churches and ministers of the denomination than any other journal and is constantly observant of the best things said and done by Christians of all denominations.
It secures the best writers East and West.
It has unequaled facilities for being a national, religious, family paper.
It keeps always at the front the most vital questions of the time, as Temperance, Missions, Revivals, Education, the Sunday-school, the household, and whatever reforms pertain to the growing science of applied Christianity.
It has, besides its large editorial staff in Boston, New York and Chicago, its special correspondents and writers in almost every State and Territory in the Union.
Among all the means for fostering the unity of the churches in the largest and most helpful fellowship and for the most efficient and aggressive Christian work, the CONGREGATIONALIST holds an unquestioned pre-eminence.
Every good home should have some family religious newspaper; and the best is the best to have.
When all that one gets in such a journal, during the fifty-two weeks of the year, is compared to the cost, there is scarcely anything else in the world so cheap.
The CONGREGATIONALIST has among its contributors such eminent writers as

R. S. Storrs, D. D.,	Prof. Richard T. Ely,	T. L. Cuyler, D. D.,	Newman Hall, LL. B.,
Rose Terry Cooke,	F. A. Noble, D. D.,	C. L. Goodell, D. D.,	Mrs. S. K. Bolton,
F. N. Peloubet, D. D.,	Margaret Sangster,	Arthur Little, D. D.,	W. M. Taylor, D. D.,
"Susan Coolidge,"	C. S. Robinson, D. D.,	Emily Huntington Miller,	Sec. A. E. Dunning,
Bishop F. D. Huntington,		Joseph Parker, D. D.

Prof. Austin Phelps, D. D., will write exclusively for the CONGREGATIONALIST for 1886.
The CONGREGATIONALIST is carefully and thoroughly edited in every column. Price, $3.00 per year, in advance; $2.50 for two years, strictly in advance; $1.50 for six months; 75 cents for three months. Any subscriber may pay his own and one new subscription for $5.00 in advance. To clubs of five subscribers, at least one of whom must be new, $2.50.

W. L. GREENE & CO., No. 1 Somerset St., Boston.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

* For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Knitting & Crochet.

Knitting and Crochet.—A guide to the use of the Needle and the Hook. Edited by Jenny June. In arranging this work the editor has taken special pains to systematize and classify its different departments, give the greatest possible variety of designs and stitches, and explain the technical details so clearly, that any one can easily follow the directions. There are a large variety of stitches and a great number of patterns fully illustrated and described, which have all been tested by an expert before insertion in this collection. The aim of the editor has been to supply women with an accurate and satisfactory guide to knitting and crochet work. This book is printed on fine paper, bound with a handsome cover, and contains over 200 Illustrations.

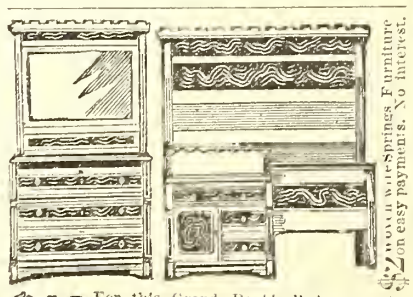
The knitting stitches illustrated and described are: To Cast On with One and Two Needles—To Narrow—To Widen—To Purl—To Cast Off—To Slip a Stitch—Round Knitting—To Join Together—Edge Stitch. PATTERNS.—Peacock's Tail—Vandyke—Looped Knitting—Cane Work—Leaf and Trellis—Triangular Kilted—Gothic—Coral—Knotted Stitch—Diamond—Wave—Cable Twist—S Pipes, etc.

MACRAME STITCHES.—Solomon's Knot—Simple Chain—Spiral Cord—Waved Bar—Spherical Knot—Slanting Rib—Open Knitting—Picot Heading—Cross Knot—Fringe—Tassels, etc.

CROCHET STITCHES.—Chain Stitch—Single Crochet—Double Crochet—Half Treble—Treble—Double Treble—Cross Treble—Slip Stitch—Tricot—Muscovite Tricot—Shell Pattern—Basket Pattern—Raised Spot Stitch—Ring Stitch—Hair Pin Crochet—Crochet Lace, etc.

DESIGNS AND DIRECTIONS are given to Knit and Crochet—Afghans—Undervests—Shirts—Petticoats—Jackets—Shawls—Insertion—Trimming—Edging—Comforters—Lace—Braces—Socks—Boots—Slippers—Gaiters—Drawers—Knee Caps—Stockings—Mittens—Clouds—Purses—Counterpanes—Quilts—Rugs—Infants' Bottines—Hoods—Caps—Shawls—Dresses—Bed Quilts, etc., etc. Every lady will find this the newest and most complete work on Knitting and Crochet published.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.
147 La Salle st., Chicago



LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

Is used by thousands of first class Manufacturers and Mechanics on their best work. Received GOLD MEDAL, London, '83. Pronounced strongest glue known. Send card of dealer who does not keep it, with five 2c stamps for SAMPLE CAN FREE.

Russia Cement Co., Gloucester, Mass.

TESTED TO OVER 1600 LBS. TO SQ. INCH

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Established 35 years.
Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free.
TROOP, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

Two Solid Oak Bureaus, Spring Cushion Rockers, Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

Five Useful Books!

Talks with Homely Girls, on Health and Beauty: Their Preservation and Cultivation. By FRANCES SMITH. A manual of advice and instruction upon the general care of the health, exercise, bathing, the care of the head, teeth, hands, feet and the complexion; with chapters upon dress, manner, conversation, and all topics pertaining to a young lady's appearance and deportment.

A Classical and Mythological Dictionary. For Popular Use. With seventy illustrations. By H. C. FAULKNER. A brief and concise explanation of the ancient Mythological, Biographical, Historical and Geographical Allusions most frequently met with in English Literature.
"The work deserves great praise. Its information is carefully condensed."—Evening Telegram, New York.

The Usages of the Best Society: A Complete Manual of Social Etiquette. By FRANCES STEVENS. Nothing is given in this book that has not the sanction of observance by the best society—best not merely in the sense of the most fashionable, but the most cultivated, natural, and the most worthy of imitation.
"Useful to all who wish to obtain instruction on matters relating to social usage and society."—Demorest's Magazine.

A Handy Dictionary of Synonyms; With which are combined the words opposite in meaning. By H. C. FAULKNER. A collection of 40,000 words in general use, arranged with reference to their similarity and opposition. Designed for the use of those who would speak or write the English language with exactness and fluency.
"Will be found of great value to those who are not experienced in speech or with pen."—Eagle, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Famous People of All Ages: Who they were, when they lived, and why they are famous. By W. H. VAN ORDEN. A volume of condensed biographies of the most notable men and women who have lived, from the beginning of history to the present time; including soldiers, statesmen, authors, artists, scientists and people most prominent in history.
"An excellent book, giving in a compact form biographies of the persons in whom the student and writer would naturally take most interest."—New York Tribune.

These books are bound in cloth with gold and ink designs, uniform in size and binding. Price, postpaid, 50 cents each.
SPECIAL OFFER.—The five books in a neat box sent, postpaid, for $2.00. Address the publisher,

ARCAD PUBLISHING CO.,
147 La Salle st., Chicago.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 14. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1885. WHOLE No. 817.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
Editorial Correspondence. 8
Prohibition in the Senate. 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Week-day Sermon..... 1
The World's Rush to Destruction..... 2
Deciding without Investigating..... 2
Muzzles..... 2
SELECTED:
Plain Talk..... 2
The 22nd of December (Poetry)..... 3
Puritan Strength of Character the Need of To-Day..... 3
The U. B. Church and Secret Societies..... 3
The Extravagance of Lodgery..... 3
REFORM NEWS:
The Columbus Convention; From the Louisa Co., Iowa, Convention; From the Illinois Lecturer; Reform Reviving in Iowa.....4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Letter from Mobile; Observations of a Veteran; The Lodges Confess.....5,6
Washington Letter..... 4
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE CHURCHES..... 12
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 13
HOME HINTS..... 14
BUSINESS..... 16

A daily press report says that Geueral Logan spends several hours of each day at his home in Washington in "carpenter work." There is probably a slight mistake in the name of the employment. Logan is doubtless constructing a bridge across the great gulf that separates men of his rank from the White House; but doing it by the tricks of Masonry, not by the carpenter's skill.

A convention of Iowa mayors and aldermen from twenty-one cities of the State was held in Des Moines last week to unite on some proposition to the Legislature by which the rigors of prohibition could be lightened. Some favored a repeal of the prohibition law, of course, just as thieves would like to repeal sunlight; some wanted local option, as if the whole State had not agreed on local option. They finally concluded to urge that cities of 4,000 inhabitants or more should control the sale of liquors as they thought best. A resolution declaring in favor of the speedy repeal of prohibition was voted down!—a good judgment on the case, for prohibition has come, we trust, to Iowa to stay, and become more and more year by year a factor in the peace, happiness and prosperity of the State. The fact that the law is broken and hated in the cities only proves its excelleuce, since it is the vicious, unscrupulous, lazy and unworthy there congregated that ask loudest for the poison cup that has so far been their ruin.

Thursday morning the city of Atlauta, Georgia, was made glad by the decision of Judge McCoy of the United States Court in refusing to continue the temporary injunction restraining the proper officers from publishiug the result of the recent election in which the county voted for prohibition. Judge McCoy decided against the liquor men on every point, refusing to entertain the decision of Roger B. Taney, of Dred Scott fame, as a precedent, and also deciding that the clause of the Georgia bill providing that wines of that State should be exempt from the prohibition enjoined upon other wines to be unconstitutional, and no wines could be sold. The liquor men, defeated in the United States Court, proceeded to Judge Clark of the County Court, who granted another temporary injunction and will hear the argument why it should or should not be permanent this week. The example of the proprietor of the Markham House, Atlanta, in this struggle for the deliverance of an enterprising city, is worthy of all praise. The enforcement of the law, he says, will cost him $2,000 loss a year, but he has too much regard for the welfare of society, for the young men of the city, to hesitate for an instant for any such consideration.

The death of Robert Toombs of Georgia has removed from earth to his final reckoning with his God one of the most determined of the "unreconstructed" rebels, and one of the most prominent characters on the slavery side during the long struggle for abolition. Toombs was the loudest and fiercest of the slavery defenders. He it was who promised to call the roll of his slaves at the foot of Bunker Hill monument. Amusing stories are told of his Philistine bullying in Congress, and the time when his swarthy cheek paled before resolute, bluff old Ben Wade who once purposely insulted him on the floor of the House in order to force him to fight. Wade was an expert rifleman and let it be known that he intended with that weapon to summarily cut short the unhappy career of the Georgian. Toombs, it is said, was a 33-degree Freemason of Albert Pike's Supreme Council. This is another link in the chain of evidence that binds the slavery war to the altars of the lodge. Toombs was an unrepentant rebel aud is said to have maintained his vindictiveness to the last, claiming to owe no allegiance to the government he had done his utmost to destroy. Such was the man the G. A. R. lodges were about to restore to all the privileges of loyal citizenship!

The Mormon rebellion seems to have subsided. There is no doubt of the cowardice of this people, but they make first-class assassins, as do all systems of secret religion with murder penalties. Well informed men do not believe there are many of them relatively armed, aud trust much to the terror inspired by a regiment of the U. S. army. The Mormon council have resolved "that the reports and rumors that a condition of affairs other than of the most peaceful character prevails here are false; that at no time have the lives or property of non-Mormons been more secure than at the present; that reports to the contrary are accredited to Federal officials of this Territory, circulated for reasons best known to themselves, and that such reports, whether circulated by them or by others, have defamed the city and injured its people." The Gentile organ, The Salt Lake Tribune, replies that the best answer to this Mormon proclamation is a statement of facts—the furious threats of the Mormon press, the assaults on the houses of Federal officers aud other acts of violence growing out of the enforcement of the Edmunds law. The grand jury just discharged from the United States district court has found 68 indictmeuts out of 79 investigated for violation of United States law. Many witnessess were reluctaut and some were evidently guilty of perjury.

San Francisco has been a nesting place where the socialistic theories of Europe have abundantly hatched. Denuis Kearney aud his sand-lot harangues, Henry George and his theories of land ownership are from California, aud the leading socialistic journal is printed in San Francisco. But there seems to be some practice combined with so much theory, good and bad. Some days ago the Chief of Police informed the Mayor of the existence of a secret gang of socialists and dynamiters who were plotting for a Chinese massacre and the assassiuation of himself and others. Little was thought of the matter until the arrest of a part of the assassin lodge, which is known as the Socialistic Revolutiouary Association. Four men were arrested—all bearing foreign names,—and the documents captured with them showed that their plans were equal in hardened villainy to the "Gunpowder Plot" of Guy Fawkes. They proposed to assassinate the Mayor, Governor Stoneman and some twenty prominent citzens and city officers. Crazed by their diabolical schemes they boldly avowed their plan to kill the persons named aud then "clean out" Chinatown with fire and dynamite. In spite of the horror which such secret conspiracies excite, people are as indifferent to the fact that other secret conspiracies against Christ and the Christian church are working in every hamlet throughout the land, aud their success means the destruction of every thing holy and true in religion and in the State.

There was no foreign news last week to compare with the reports from England of the resolution of Gladstone to favor an Irish parliament in Dublin, while maintaining the integrity of the empire, guaranteeing religious liberty and the rights of a minority. Upon its first publication Gladstone telegraphed a partial denial, and Saturday sent out a dispatch saying that if at any time he had "any plan or inteution to announce on the question of Irish government," it would be done publicly and on his own respousibility; "not by any anonymous or irresponsible declaration." He does uot hold himself responsible for any of the ideas lately given out over his name. The British press has taken the report seriously, and discuss the proposition in a most unfriendly manner with a few exceptious. The Tory press take delight in what they assume to be Gladstone's great mistake, and even the organs of the Liberal party either denounce the scheme or withhold their opinions. The Liberal party leaders are also cautious in expressing opinions favorable or otherwise. It seems to be understood that the broaching of the matter is ouly to get an expression of the public feeling and that back of it all Gladstone proposes a form of Home Rule which would be acceptable to the Parnellites, yet so hedged about with limitations tha the can carry it with his own party. A large secesssion of the conservative wing of that party is confidently expected by the Tories, but it is by no means certaiu to occur. Paruell himself would probably wish for only a limited succes, since, were his demauds to be fully met, he would certainly find his vocation gone. As an agitator aud politician he has been a success; as a statesman at the head of an Irish parliament he would find the situation demanding talents of a differeut order. The discussion is uniting the Tories, and for the time distracting the Liberal party. In Ireland also the most intense opposition is arising from the Orange lodges, which seem to be the recruting stations for the Loyalist party in the islaud. In them there was a "perfect furor," but the leaders, foreseeing the futility of their rage, have resolved to turn the popular feeling to good account in filling up the membership and treasuries of their lodges, so that when the battle joius they can make the strongest fight possible from their masked batteries of the lodge.

—Elder Isaac Hyatt of Gilford Village, N. H., writes that the interest in his congregatiou keeps good, aud although the work of the Lord seems to move slow, yet it is iu the hauds of Him who cau do all things for us.

WEEK-DAY SERMON.

BY E. E. FLAGG.

"I wish you would write again on perfectiou, and this time remember that as a rule commou people who have to work for their living don't care for argumeuts drawu from Raphael or Angelo."

This remark came from Sister Z, fresh from reading the last Week-day Sermon. Now, Sister Z., be it said, has more of what somebody calls "sanctified common-sense" than almost any one I know of.

"There is Brother Y," she went on, "He does not believe in perfection, or he says he doesn't; but when he wants a new house or a new barn built, don't he say in effect to the carpenter, 'I waut you to make a perfect job of this?' Would he be willing to put up with unsafe foundations, sagging beams or leaky roofs? When he hires the tailor to make him a coat, or the shoemaker to make him a pair of shoes, is he satisfied with anything less than a perfect fit? Aud yet he thinks it unreasonable that the Almighty should demand as much from him as he demands from his shoemaker or his tailor! The trouble is that we so seldom stop to think that God's commands are always emiuently reasonable, and if they look unreasonable on the surface, we are so apt to delegate them straightway into the limbo of things unknowable;—when, if we would only bring the same common-sense to bear upon these seeming mysteries that we use in the simplest matters of our everyday life, we should find them plain enough for the comprehension of the merest child. If I am making a loaf of cake don't I want it to come out of the oven just right? Don't I try to have every dish I put on the table as perfect as I can possibly make it, though it be only a dish of boiled potatoes? And shall I demand perfection of myself only in mere material trifles like these? Wouldn't it be the same as to say that good housekeeping and a well appointed table were in my eyes the things of most value?

"Now, that passage, 'Be ye holy even as I am holy,' is a dreadful stumbling block to some folks. But if I am teaching an ignorant servant girl, don't I show her first the proper way of doing a thing, whether it is sweeping a room or making a bed; and then say, 'Now I want this bed made or this room swept exactly as I would do it?' If I find her work does not equal mine at the first or second trial I am not disappointed. I did not expect it would. But don't I put my own standard of perfection before her and expect she will try to reach it? Am I unreasonable in doing so? Shouldn't I be a poor miserable thing unfit to be mistress of a household if I didn't? And is our Heavenly Father unreasonable when he does the same thing?"

Sister Z is one of those rare people who always know when they have reached the climax of their argument. She said no more, but left me thinking that indeed "the word is nigh us, even in our mouth and in our heart:"—that the most commonplace daily living is full of unspoken commentaries on the Word if only we have Faith for our teacher.

THE WORLD'S RUSH TO DESTRUCTION.

BY NINA HOWARTH.

We wonder more and more at the growing indifference of mankind in reference to the revelations of prophecy. Although the world is being warned of the approach of terrible events which are world-wide in their scope, there are very few who will take the trouble of searching for their symbolic utterances among the prophets, and thus obtain a knowledge of the age in which we live,—what to expect, and how to prepare for it. But there are those who bear crushing burdens of anxiety for these careless ones. They have investigated the various lines and subjects of prophecy, aided by the Holy Spirit's interpretation; and have thus arrived at a correct understanding of the real character and import of all the belligerent powers and warning phenomena of the world and nature.

If the great world of mankind could only be made aware of all the explosive forces, political, social and supernatural, by which it is encompassed, each individual would at least make every effort to snatch as a brand from the burning his own soul. But they will not look. They will not see. They will not feel. The contemplation of such profound soul-apathy is to the wide-awake, laboring soul, a species of spiritual torture. O God! help us, they cry, to be so faithful in the work thou hast assigned us, that not one drop of the blood of these souls shall be charged to our account.

Everywhere we see evidences of the speedy coming of Christ. It is only by the most determined rejection of all the means of enlightenment, a persistent refusal to yield to persuasion, a constant dodging of facts, that this formidable array of testimony can be set aside. The varied sects of the Protestant churches, as such, have no more sympathy, or faith in God and his prophetic word, and a swift approaching judgment, than the infidel world around them. They are very busy, however, in fulfilling the predictions which they so studiously ignore. Christ says in speaking of these things, and of this time: "But as the days of Noe were, so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be. For as in the days that were before the flood they were eating and drinking, marrying and given in marriage, until the day Noe entered into the ark, and knew not until the flood came, and took them all away; so shall also the coming of the Son of Man be." Matt. 24: 37–39. "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away." v. 35.

Was there ever a time when the world was so unceasingly engaged in a wild, reckless round of pleasure? Feasting, gaming, dancing, and flirting are found among church-members, even in the church itself, and when was there among worldlings, outside of church relations, such mad revelry, such revolting scenes of debauchery as now? How, and where can we have some fun? is the universal cry of humanity, young and old, to-day. Nothing else is worthy of a moment's consideration. The training of tender children is neglected; they are dragged out night after night, in heat and cold, to be drilled in such unwholesome society pastimes. The world is ripe for destruction,—in precisely the condition spoken of by the prophet Isaiah: "The earth shall reel to and fro like a drunkard, ... and the transgression shall be heavy upon it, and it shall fall and not rise again." Isa. 24: 20. And then how graphically is described in verses 17 and 18, the accursed effects of secretism. This epidemic is becoming more virulent and mighty every day; assuming new and novel names and forms, to allure the silly world to its deadly embrace. Christ must come and destroy the strength of the wicked powers of earth, or they will certainly take his kingdom.

East Saginaw, Mich.

DECIDING WITHOUT INVESTIGATING.

BY S. B. KOKANOUR.

I have just read an account of Abraham Lincoln, proving the innocence of a prisoner who was thought to be guilty by a whole community. The community considered the evidence clear and positive, not at all circumstantial. They decided without investigating. So with many of the ideas about secret societies.

There are many persons who believe that secret societies cannot be bad because their preacher or some other supposed "good" person belongs to them. They do not examine it in detail, and, without knowing the facts in the premises, pronounce them a good thing.

Take another instance. Saul of Tarsus was a man with good intentions and meant well when he persecuted the Christians and consented to the death of Stephen. But when the facts were laid before him he could see plainly enough that he was mistaken, that instead of doing God service he was persecuting him.

There are, no doubt, many Freemasons who believe that Freemasonry is a Christian institution. The many allusions to God, to Solomon, to John the Baptist and the Evangelist, and other such deceptive references to Christianity and Christian subjects, when none of its objections are taken into the account, may make superficial people think that it is indeed a Christian institution.

I will make a few quotations from its standard authors to show how the Christianity part of it is managed to deceive the mass of people. Mackey, in his Lexicon of Freemasonry, page 435, says: "It is no secret that Masonry is of divine origin; it is no secret that the system embraces and inculcates evangelical truth; * * * and above all, it is not, neither can it be, a secret, that a good Mason is of necessity, and truly and emphatically a Christian." On page 462 of the same work, he says: "Masonry is the excellency of Christianity, and every Mason is, if he is in reality a Mason, a true Christian."

If a man is simple enough to believe that these utterances are the fact, he may believe that it is Christian. The fruits of Masonry show that the following are the facts. In Chase's Digest of Masonic law, page 206, we read: "To require that a candidate professes a belief in the 'divine authority of the Bible,' or a 'state of future rewards and punishments,' is a serious innovation in the very body of Masonry. If fact, Blue Lodge Masonry has nothing whatever to do with the Bible. It is not founded on the Bible; if it were, it would not be Masonry; it would be something else. Masonry is a mere charitable institution—nothing else—and it is founded upon tradition."—Sayse, C. T. C. Ala., pp. 207–8.

The Masonic Jurisprudence, by Mackey, contains this: "That some Masons may teach the divine authenticity of the Holy Scriptures, is true, because some Masons are Christians; but Masonry does nothing of the sort." Mackey's Manual of the Lodge, p. 53, contains this: "To every Mason, whatever may be his peculiar religious creed, that revelation of the Deity which is recognized by his religion becomes his trestle-board. Thus the trestle-board of the Jewish Mason is the Old Testament; of the Christian, the Old and the New; of the Mohammedan, the Koran." Lexicon of Freemasonry, p. 402: "The religion, then, of Masonry, is pure theism." Well's Freemason's Monitor, revised edition, p. 15: "A few private lodges append a pledge to the effect that the applicant believes in a state of future rewards and punishments, that he conceives the Holy Scriptures to be of Divine import, etc. All this, however, is irregular and un-Masonic."

Do these quotations not in themselves alone clearly prove that it is an unchristian institution?

Manhattan, Kansas.

"MUZZLES."

BY W. A. SHAW.

There is a fine story told of an old man who had no particular relish for a certain dish which was set before him, that he delivered himself somewhat on this wise, "I kin eat crow, but I don't hanker arter it."

It is barely possible that there might be a dog who would so far forget himself as to be proud of a muzzle, but the average dog would no doubt consider it as an unmitigated nuisance.

Unlike the old gentleman of which we speak and the common canine to whose affection we are so often indebted for caresses, there is a class of men who feel proud of that which not only muzzles their mouth so far as speaking the truth is concerned, but actually compels them to prevaricate, if not to lie outright. There is also another difference between canine muzzles and those used on the bipeds, whereas the one can be taken off by the person who put it on; the other, which is so efficacious to stop the mouths of those who have submitted to its power, it is claimed both on the part of those who make fast the instrument and of the fools who receive it, that it can never be removed. The name of this last piece of furniture is a Masonic obligation.

Now while it may be a fact that this restraint upon one's actions may never be removed by the lodge, it does not necessarily follow that the recipient cannot take it off. There has been found a way to "cut the Gordian knot" and let the captive go free. The lodge will not untie it, the candidate who receives it cannot, and there is no method left to undo the mischief of the obligation but to break it; and as the confession of the apostle Peter must needs be as thorough as his denial of his Master was vehement, three times denying and thrice testifying his love of the Lord, so also must the breaking of this foul fetter be as public and bold as its reception was hidden and secretive. Nothing short of this will render freedom to the captive.

This may seem like a harsh saying, and some may be led to take exceptions to it, and exclaim as did the disciples of our Lord on one occasion, "Who can hear it?" But one case will suffice as an illustration. I was conversing with an old gentleman of above seventy years, who had been a Mason in his early years, but who had not been in a lodge (according to his own confession) for over forty years, and did not consider himself any longer a Mason. The talk turned upon the events of the Morgan abduction and murder, when this benevolent old man exclaimed with evident Masonic zeal that "Morgan got no more than he deserved, if they did kill him." The muzzle was there.

A man may never visit the lodge for seventeen or forty or any other number of years, but if he has not broken his Masonic obligation he is still bound by it, and the poison lurks there still. That man is no more to be trusted than the one who attends lodge regularly, for the sin has not been repented of. Let all who expect to stand with clear records in the great day of assize, bring forth fruits meet for repentance.

PLAIN TALK.

Hobby questions? What are they? Not prohition, is it? No.

Perhaps it's because we thought the white-aproned folks had no business laying the people's cornerstones. That it? Then we will once in awhile tell people that we don't think an oath-bound, secret conclave in a free land looks very well; nor that a worldly organization has any right to bury people with religious ceremonies and proclaim their souls as gone to the Grand Lodge above, even though the person may never have been regenerated by the blood of Jesus; that we think Christless lodges which teach that they can elevate men and prepare them for immortality, are claiming the powers of the church; that the name of Christ not being mentioned in their prayers, and as there is no access to the Father save through the Son, their prayers are worthless, their religion is anti-Christ, and their morality likely to deceive those who join with it. Yes that is it.

But don't say we "tirade honest societies." We do not abuse societies. We don't say they are bad men as a rule. In fact we are not fighting the men that are in the lodge. It is the principles taught in the lodge. There are good men in the lodge no doubt. We think we have quite a number among our own acquaintances. They are good men though, in spite of the lodge. Lodge teachings will make no man good. They teach selfishness, clannishness, and underhandedness But we do contend that while a man may belong to an oath-bound society and still be a good man, yet if he is a bad man, the oaths and teachings of these organizations are just what he needs to give him plenty of rope for dark deeds.

Sworn secrecy is wrong in principle. Good acts do not need the oath, but bad ones flourish under it. —Amity Index, College Springs, Iowa.

THE TWENTY-SECOND OF DECEMBER.

Wild was the day; the wintry sea
Moaned sadly on New England's strand,
When first the thoughtful and the free,
Our fathers, trod the desert land.

They little thought how pure a light,
With years, should gather round that day;
How love should keep their memories bright,
How wide a realm their sons should sway.

Green are their bays; but greener still
Shall round their spreading fame he wreathed,
And regions, now untrod, shall thrill
With reverence when their names are breathed.

Till where the sun, with softer fires,
Looks on the vast Pacific's sleep
The children of the Pilgrim sires
This hallowed day like us shall keep.

—William Cullen Byrant.

PURITAN STRENGTH OF CHARACTER THE NEED OF TO DAY.

To the young men of to-day a careful study of the Pilgrims of 1621 cannot but be profitable. They had their faults. They were not all alike meritorious. They were not all equals in moral nobleness. Every man was uot a Standish, a Bradford, a Brewster, or an Alden. But there was one quality which they all possessed in greater or less degree—they were all, both men and women, endowed with great strength of character. Without this none of them could have endured the tests through which they passed before taking passage on the "Mayflower." They had been persecuted for their faith in England. They had, at a great sacrifice and for conscience' sake, emigrated to Holland. They had borne many privations there. No golden promise of fortune—nothing, indeed, but the prospect of a home where they might have freedom to worship God—lured them on board the scarcely seaworthy little "Mayflower." Nothing less than a faith which gripped the principles out of which it grew with unconquerable tenacity could have sustained their souls during the weary weeks in which they were cribbed within the comfortless cabins of their vessel, nor have kept them so hopeful through the hardships of their first year at Plymouth, as to beget even the thought of Thanksgiving in the autumn. They had all been sifted and tested by trials but little less than actual martyrdom, and they thereby proved to the world their possession of a rare degree of strength of character.

That they gave this quality to their descendants the history of Massachusetts, of New England, of our whole country amply proves. But with the growth of our population, the rush of lower types of manhood into the land by emigration, and the corrupting influences of our rapidly increasing wealth, the germs of a moral malaria have found their way into the atmospheres which surround our social, financial, and political life. These germs consist of false theories of life, of immoral principles of business, and of unpatriotic maxims about ways and ends in politics. The deadening effect of these theories, principles, and maxims is visible in the lowered tone of public opinion respecting offences against the minor moralities of finance, trading, and official obligations; in the frequent falls of long-trusted men into breaches of trust, violations of the law of honor, absolute fraud, or marital infidelity, and kindred crimes. The apologetic spirit with which society receives the news of such falls is sad evidence that the wide diffusion of false principles has enervated the public conscience as malaria bacilli do the human body. Hence, that sublime strength of character which enobled the Pilgrims and made their first Thanksgiving possible, though still possessed by very many faithful men and women, is far less manifest in society generally than in the "years which are no more."

This fact is uufortunate. It is a source of dauger. It deprives young men of that strong support to virtue which is given by prevailing good example, and by a right esprit de corps in society generally. It tempts them to sin in those "fatal or fated moments whereupon turn, as on hiuges, the gates of the wall adamantine." It benumbs their consciences, throws dust in the eyes of their judgments when they are stirred on one side by the "passionate cries of desire," and held back from evil on the other by the "importunate pleadings of duty." In such perilous crises false principles rush in to support the desires for unlawful gain or guilty lust, and recollections of popular tolerance of wrong-doing quiet their apprehension of social degradation, and cause the path of evil to appear, not as a descent to infamy, but as one in which the profits of the sin will so gild the offence as to leave the offender with at least some of the garments of respectability.

Of course, all these hopes are delusions. Sin is degrading to the sinner, let public opinion be never so tolerant. And virtue is honorable, even in the eyes of corrupt men. Thanksgiving day is still the nation's tribute to the Plymouth Pilgrim's strength of character. It honors him because he dared to do right, suffered for the right, was ready to die for the right; because he proved by stern endurance that he had "better be dead and forgotten than living in shame and dishonor."

And this is the lesson he teaches in trumpet tones to the young men of to-day. As he rooted his life in the faith of the Gospel, solemnly vowed to maintain that faith "at any cost," and demonstrated his sincerity by clinging to his faith with an energy nothing could weaken or destroy, so must the young man of to-day who, though not in danger of persecution, is yet environed by temptations which, because of their subtility, are quite as perilous to his faith. Let him, therefore, give heed to their example.—Christian Advocate.

THE U. B. CHURCH AND SECRET SOCIETIES.

The Prophet Daniel says of certain revelations made to him, "That his thoughts much troubled him, and his countenance changed, but I kept the matter in my heart." At the birth of John the Baptist, and of the Saviour Jesus, there were wonderful manifestations, and those that heard those things "laid them up in their hearts." Mary "kept those things in her heart." So there are many things of almost daily occurrence that Christians do well to "hide in their hearts." Not that any order binds their conscience or seals their lips, but as a matter of common sense, or common prudence, or common charity. According to the proverb, "Speech is sometimes silver, but silence is golden."

The plea is often made in behalf of secret societies that families, churches, etc., have their secrets, and why may not the lodges have theirs? The difference is this, that which is incidental in all society is made fuudamental in the secret society. A person comes to me and says, "I can tell you a secret; will you promise to keep it?" I answer, "I do not know until you tell me." "Then I will not tell you." "Very well, you need not." No one has a right to bind me to stultify my conscience. Now while many of the noblest and best men of different couutries have proclaimed and protested against all secret societies, some of our ablest men are pleading for them, at least pleading to admit some of them into the church.

It is said by some "that it never has been shown, and cannot be, that secrecy is a sin, per se." That may be. So we may reason of many other matters. It is not a sin, per se, to take a man's property or life under certain circumstances, though it is a sin to steal or to kill. So of secrecy, if it is not a sin per se, yet I submit if an organized and perpetual secret society under a free government is not necessarily selfish and wrong.

Many persons who join may not analyze their motives and predetermine them to be selfish, but the society itself is built upon a selfish basis. Whatever the object may be, if it seeks or finds an advantage in a secret society as such that it does not find in an open one, of whom is the advantage taken? Of those outside, certainly. It is often urged that the secrecy is a protection against intruders. This, to say the least, is a reflection against good government, if not a reproach or insult; for good government will protect in all laudable and lawful engagements.

Is not selfishness the essence of sin? Is not the world full of it? Has not the church more than enough of it? Shall we countenance and build up the church in it? It is contrary to the good examples aud teachings of God's Word. The Saviour did not belong to any, and would not now if he were in the world. "Let this mind be in you which was also in Christ Jesus." "But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be manifest that they are wrought in God." "Blessed is the man in whose spirit there is no guile." "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Does the secret society member do this?

To try to discriminate between major and minor societies, and admit the one and reject the other is, in my mind, simple folly. As a church, we will eventually exclude them all or receive them all. And this is evidently the intention with some of our people; for are they not received and fellowshiped already?

But it is said, "Let us have peace." Yes, by all means. It is desirable. "The work of righteousness shall be peace; and the effect of righteousness, quietness and assurance forever." "The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace."

"But we must have a broader basis." Well, we do not have as broad a basis as some, and may the Lord deliver us. Take away our anti-secrecy principles, and what justifiable reasons have we before God or man for our separate existence as a church?

"But," said a delegate to me at the General Conference, "we do not propose to abrogate our principles, only to change our plans and try another plan." To my mind it is a doubtful experiment. Let us see to it that we remain United Brethren in Christ, and not United Brethren in the lodge.—D. B. Sherk in the Telescope.

THE EXTRAVAGANCE OF LODGERY.

Some of the organs of Knight Templarism are beginning to call attention to the uselessness and extravagance of the "triennial pilgrimages" of that order, and are pushing the inquiry as to their effect on the morale of the organization. This is a matter in which the lay press has a right to take an interest and to discuss precisely as it has the doings of Methodism, the Knights of Labor, or any other great body forming a part of our social order. The influence of the acts of Templarism reach far beyond the body itself; it furnishes an example which other organizations imitate, and produces a material effect upon its own members by which they are influenced either for the better or worse as private citizens. . . . .

One of the results of this ultra-Masonic influeuce is the creation of habits of extravagence and the expenditure by this body of vast sums of money which, if spent at all, should be for other purposes. The chief of these expenditures is made during the triennial pilgrimages, which, from a symbolical purpose, have been perverted into grand gala excursions, in which there remains no trace of the original intent. With the increase of wealth in this country, the various pilgramages have become rival exhibitions as to which can make the greatest show, which can spend the most money, which can be the most lavish in an expensive hospitality. The reception given by Chicago some five years ago was of a sufficiently gorgeous character to awaken the rivalry of San Francisco, and at the last gathering all the prodigal glories of that auriferous city were brought into requisition to make the display grander than that of its predecessors.

There is no probability that the coming triennial assemblage will be able to rival that held in California; but every effort will be made to make it as gorgeous and showy as possible. One of the commanderies of this city has raked the Union to find a brass band expensive enough to accompany it to and fro on its pilgrimage, and has finally to depend on Canada to furnish music suitable for the occasion. Other measures equally extravagant in conception are being devised; each commandery laboring to secure a display more bizarre and startling thau any of the others. To the expense incurred in this direction will be added those of special trains in many cases, travelling supplies unlimited in quantity and in cost, aud finally a great personal outlay at the place of reudezvous.

There should be a reform in all these points. Many of the Knights who take part in these extravagant triennial displays are not able to pay their share of the expenses, and yet are to proud to acknowledge it, and are obliged to distress themselves and their families to raise the necessary amount. Immense sums are spent by the commanderies, as bodies, in these excursions without any adequate returu for the outlay. Personal habits of extravagance are cultivated among the members, and mouey which should be devoted to charity, to the support of families, the education of children, the payment of debts is foolishly thrown away.—Chicago Times, Sept. 20, 1885.

In London, says a correspondent, the vice of drinking among women is carried to a far greater extent, and has fewer checks and restraints than in any other city of the world. At any time of the day or night women of all ages, often with babes on the breast, or children by their side, can be seeu drinking in the open bar-room; and generally there are more women than men sitting in these places.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—In connection with other duties I have taken charge of the rooms of the Central Union Mission, at 909 Pennsylvania Ave., N. W., and am greatly impressed with the importance of this work, not only as a means of evangelization, but for the promotion of Christian reforms. When men enter earnestly into the work of saving men from sin; when they witness, as we have here, the power of the Gospel to lift men up and transform them into the likeness of Christ, they lose faith in all human institutions and realize, as they have not done before, that it is not the Christ-excluding, but the Christ-honoring religion that blesses mankind. We have to deal with wickedness, poverty and crime. Drunkards and thieves (confessedly so) are our common visitors. Men who have given the best of their manhood to the service of Satan in the grossest forms of iniquity, come here in circumstances of extreme destitution, and ask our sympathy, our prayers and our alms. We do not as a rule directly give them anything, but rather help them to help themselves. We "do good and lend hoping for nothing," and are sometimes happily disappointed in getting returns in full measure. There is a good deal of poverty here, owing partly to the suspension of work on account of the cold; partly from the tyranny of the trades unions that drive out of employment non-union laborers; but mainly from the terrible drink curse, which absorbs not less than $15,000 per day, taking it mainly from the poor.

The Federation of Organized Trade and Labor Unions has been holding a congress here in the Grand Army Hall. The attendance seems to have been large and there are some indications that while they have not lost anything in arrogance they have learned that there is a limit to popular forbearance. The following is from a series of resolutions on the subject of the "boycott" as a means of redress:

"Whereas, it has come to the knowledge of this Federation that the popular and favorite weapon of organized labor (the boycott) has, in many cases, been grossly abused and prostituted by unscrupulous and designing persons connected with some of the organizations in the country;

"Therefore be it resolved, That this Federation of Labor do discountenance such practices in the future, and recommend to all organizations of workingmen the necessity of providing the proper safeguards in order to prevent its repetition."

Another resolution severely denounces Judge Snell, of the police court of this city, and demands his removal. It will be remembered that last summer Judge Snell enforced the law against some riotous strikers and took occasion to denounce the whole system of secret conspiracies against the rights of both employers and employed. It seems that the trades unions have not forgiven him.

Yesterday (Dec. 13th) Senator Colquit, of Georgia, gave an address in the Mt. Vernon Place M. E. church (south), on the struggle for prohibition in Atlanta, Georgia. Though the storm was severe the attendance was good and the address was able. Among the excellent things that brought out the earnest approval of his hearers, he said that when he was Governor of his State he had resolved to give up political and return to private life. But he had reconsidered his obligations, and in view of the magnitude of the question of prohibition, he had resolved that if he could in any way serve his country in its maintenance, he was willing at any sacrifice to take any position to which he might be called. Speaking of the false notions of liberty, he said that he and Mrs. Colquit met an old colored woman who wore the red badge of anti-prohibition, with "Liberty" stamped on it. Mrs. C. asked her what the "liberty" meant, and the old woman answered "Mo' whiskey." Such is the personal liberty for which saloon-keepers and wine-bibbers combine. The talented and the Christian Senator is advertised to speak at the same place next Friday night.

Among those who have found the true brotherhood in Christ, and who rejoice in its blessedness, is one who has been a Knight Templar, and has fully tried the spurious "faith, hope and charity" that Freemasonry inspires. He renounces it altogether and gives his hearty adhesion to the work of reform. Another came here as a member of the Labor Congress now in session. While walking in procession with his comrades, one of them was so intoxicated that he fell into the gutter. Seeing this he attempted to lift him up and take care of him, but was repulsed with curses. This so disgusted him, that he left the procession and came to our mission, where he gave his heart to the Lord, and is now rejoicing in his service. He is a Hollander of fine education, speaks several languages and promises to be most useful in the Lord's work. As I write he has just come in rejoicing that he has found employment at fair wages.

Nor should I forget the work of the Salvation Army, who are still holding on in their excellent work, both in this city and Alexandria. They have recently opened up a mission for colored people in the south part of the city. It is not a little encouraging, too, that old, conservative churches like Trinity, New York, are waking up to the great duty of preaching the Gospel to the poor, and that audiences numbering thousands meet each day at 12 M. and listen to the word of truth. Last night Robert Ingersoll lectured in one of our theaters on his usual theme; nevertheless the power of God is manifested in the salvation of men and neither Mr. Ingersoll nor any other agent of the Evil One can withstand it.

The Republican Senate will doubtless make no factious opposition to the President's appointments. Unless there can be shown to be personal unfitness all will be confirmed. One of the subjects that demands, and will receive, the attention of Congress is the revision of the laws of the District. It is scarcely to be expected that legislators who are wine-bibbers will give us prohibition; but there will be increased struggling in the regulations regarding license.

DEC. 17.—When that noble Christian man, Henry Wilson, presided in the United States Senate, a rule was adopted that no intoxicating liquors should be sold in either of the Capitol restaurants, and the employes of the two houses of Congress were required, on pain of dismissal, to see it executed. Nevertheless there has all along, and especially during the last few years, been continued violations of this rule. During the last Congress it became well known that "cold tea" could be had at any time by any of the initiated, and that many cases of intoxication, and at least one of attempted suicide, was the result. At various times some spasmodic efforts have been made by the presiding officers of the two houses to break up this disreputable and illegal traffic, but usually with but brief success. Congressmen in both houses had liquors in their committee-rooms. It was not at all uncommon for them to be intoxicated. It is said, on the best authority, that in several instances has the Senate been forced to adjourn on account of the intoxication of so many members as to make business impossible. Drunkenness has been one of the most common occurrences in the House of Representatives, and one of the most serious obstacles to the prosecution of business. But when Senator Frye was made chairman of the committee on rules, and especially when he brought with him a man from prohibition Maine to take charge of the Senate restaurant, there was reason to hope that the liquor curse would be banished. But behold, this same Mr. Page openly advertises to sell all the different kinds of wines, ales and liquors, without even the slightest pretence of concealment.

In the discussion on the revision of the rules on the 15th inst., not only were all these facts developed, the menu of wines and liquors was read, but the Senate voted to continue the rules, but except the employes from its operation. In other words to vote for prohibition, and at the same time make the law a dead letter! Could hypocrisy and faithlessness go farther? Will the Christian people of the United States continue to send as their representatives men who disgrace themselves and their constituents by drunkenness? And moreover, shall our grand and beautiful Capitol building be permitted to be turned into an unlicensed dram shop, and made the source of moral pollution to the nation? These are questions which the people must and will consider. Woe be to the Senators who put themselves across the progress of this reform.

H. H. HINMAN.

—A Montreal dispatch of Monday says: In many of the Catholic churches in outlying municipalities sermons were preached yesterday denouncing skating-rinks, snow-shoeing and tobogganing slides, particularly slides, as hurtful to the morals of young ladies. Parents were also reproached for permitting their children to visit such places of amusement. The Catholic clergy have forbidden ladies wearing tuques to appear at church services.

—The young man who succeeds Mtesa as King of Uganda, has shed the blood of three young converts of the Church Missionary Society. Like his predecessor, he is easily swayed. The captain of the royal bodyguard, Mugasi, was the leader in the prosecution which, fortunately did not last long. It was he who directed the execution of the three Christian lads. Their arms were first cut off, then they were bound to a scaffolding, under which a fire was made, and they were slowly burned to death. "Mugasi and his men mocked them, and bade them pray now if Isa Masiya [Jesus Christ] would rescue them from his hands. The dear lads clung to their faith, and in the fire they sang, 'Daily, daily sing his praises.'" At last accounts the mission was in favor with the King.

REFORM NEWS.

THE COLUMBUS CONVENTION.

The Ohio State Convention has come and gone, and, as many had fondly hoped and earnestly prayed, it proved one of the best of the several grand meetings for the reform held in the State. The opening meeting Tuesday evening was addressed by Rev. H. N. Smith and Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., of Xenia Theological Seminary. Dr. Carson fully vindicated the reputation he has made at former national conventions at Chicago, Monmouth and Dayton. For the general report of the business of the convention, the following is copied, with a few slight emendations, from the Ohio State Journal, Dec. 17th, the leading Republican daily of central Ohio:

The Ohio Christian Association began its second day's session in the City Hall yesterday morning. Rev. J. P. Stoddard opened with prayer, and considerable time was spent in relating experiences of the lodge. During the business meeting it was decided to publish the speeches of Rev. H. R. Smith and Professor J. G. Carson, delivered last night in the Christian Cynosure of Chicago. A committee presented long resolutions condemning secret societies.

These resolutions brought forth some discussion, and especially the one advocating that lodge members should be excluded from church fellowship. Dea. O. M. Brown, of Oberlin, said that when Freemasons were taken into the church they always caused a disturbance. He had tried the plan of making them promise not to attend more lodge meetings, but this had been of no avail.

Hon. Halleck Floyd, of Indiana, read a paper recommending a union of all the churches in one association in order to carry on this work to a better advantage. The new association, he said, should be built upon the Bible, taking it as the standard. He said that the question should be agitated in four ways—from the pulpit, by the press, by conventions and by individual discussions. At his suggestion a committee, consisting of Dr. J. G. Carson, Rev. H. R. Smith, Dr. J. F. Morton, Pres. C. A. Blanchard, K. A. Orvis, A. Overholt, and J. Weills, was appointed to draw up plans for this work.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard also gave a lecture, illustrating it by means of charts. He gave the mode of initiating in some societies, with their oaths and penalties, in a realistic manner. The convention then called repeatedly for Dr. H. A. Thompson, of Otterbein University, but he only responded by saying that he was still orthodox and they did not need his testimony. He should have made a speech the night before, but was unavoidably absent. W. B. Stoddard, the agent and lecturer, who has been here since October 15th, then made his statement, showing great progress in the work. He has delivered lectures in fifteen surrounding villages. Mr. Stoddard was re-elected lecturer for the State of Ohio at an advanced salary.

In the afternoon the meeting was again opened with devotional exercises and statements of experiences. President C. A. Blanchard urged each denomination to work alone also, and not rely wholly on united efforts, although that was to be their main stay. He also urged close-knit organization as that was the only way of meeting closely-knit orders. The principal speaker for the afternoon was Elder J. F. Browne, of Berea, Ky. He went on to review the whole lodge question in a clear, simple, and logical manner. The reverend gentleman is a very witty speaker, and held the undivided attention of the audience. He said that a Mason is not required to believe in God the Father; he may worship Baal, Buddha, Brahma, Vishnu, or Siva, or he may go to the animal creation and choose among things that walk, or jump, or hop, or fly, or swim, or wade, or crawl, or waddle, or wiggle, for his god. It is all the same in Masonry, for the lodge is a pantheon in which one is simply asked to pay his money and take his choice of the gods on exhibition.

The evening session was entirely taken up with the speech of President C. A. Blanchard, of Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill. His lecture was the finest of the whole convention. In simplicity of style and clearness of argument it seemed to make an excellent impression. The object of his speech was to oppose Freemasonry. He read arguments against this order from Daniel Webster, William H. Seward, Millard Fillmore, D. L. Moody, Pastor Fisch of Paris, Chas. G. Finney, J. Q. Adams, Chas. Francis Adams and Geo. Muller of Bristol, Eng. He thought that any one of them would be sufficient to convince a man of ordinary judgment. In the latter half of his discourse he argued that Freemasonry was a religion, and a Christless religion, and as such should be opposed by the church of Jesus Christ. A vote of thanks was then extended to the press of this city, and the convention adjourned to meet at the call of the executive committee.

The following are the resolutions adopted by the convention:

Resolved, 1. That secrecy is the known garb and chosen shield under which unprincipled men work to accomplish unlawful ends, as may be seen in the history of the order of the Jesuits, the Illuminati of Germany and France, the Carbonari of Italy, the Invincibles of Ireland, the Knights of the Golden Circle, Ku Klux Klan, Mollie Maguires, of our own country, as also the many secret labor unions, which at the present, and for some years past, have so greatly disturbed the industrial and commercial interests of our country.

2. That, as Freemasonry claims to be a system of religious philosophy obedience to the precepts of which renders men free from sin, subjects of the new birth, and thus prepares them for heaven, it is a falsehood, a delusion and a snare, dangerous to the souls of men, and destructive of their eternal interests.

3. That, as in its religious ceremonies and services it wholly sets aside the mediatorial person and work of the Lord Jesus Christ, it is an anti-Christ, and as such should be condemned and opposed by all who believe "there is one God and one Mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.

4. That, as it mutilates the Word of God by omitting the name of Christ to suit its ends, and also mimics and profanes the ordinances of divine worship, not excepting the sacraments, it is chargeable with the highest degree of impiety and blasphemy.

5. That, as its rites, ceremonies, and legends are confessedly derived from the ancient pagan worship of Osiris, Bacchus, Adonis, Apollo, etc., it is simply a modernized heathenism, is to be ranked among "the unfruitful works of darkness," with which we are to have "no fellowship."

6. That, as the government of the Masonic society is absolutely despotic, requiring implicit obedience to its laws, regulations and edicts, whether right or wrong; as it imposes extra judicial oaths, and assumes the power of life and death over its members, it is dangerous to the personal rights and liberties of men, and its existence is a menace to republican institutions, and as such should be prohibited by law.

7. That, while Freemasonry is the most completely organized and at the same time the most immoral and dangerous of the secret fraternities, that other secret orders, in so far as they partake of the same character, deserve like condemnation and opposition.

8. We believe that the Bible condemns secret orders both in letter and spirit, and that the Christian church should require her members to be separate and free from connection with all secret orders.

9. That the affiliation of men in secret associations, bound by oath to assist each other in need, is a powerful agency in the hands of bad men to corrupt legislative bodies, courts and juries, and to secure impunity to criminals; and we believe that the failure of justice is, in many cases, plainly traceable to this cause.

10. That we recognize the National Christian Association as a providential instrument raised up to call public attention to the danger which threatens society from organized secrecy, and we commend it to sympathy, prayers, and contributions of the Christian people and patriotic citizens of our country.

The principles embodied in the foregoing resolutions will not appear novel in the light of the subjoined declarations of leading statesmen of our country.

Hon. Wm. Wirt declared: "Freemasonry is a wicked conspiracy against the laws of God and man, and ought to be put down."

Hon. Wm. H. Seward said: "Swear, sir! I, a man, an American citizen, a Christian, swear to submit myself to the guidance and direction of other men, surrendering my own judgment and my conscience to their keeping * * * I know too well the danger of confiding power to irresponsible parties to make myself a willing slave."

Daniel Webster affirms: "All secret associations, the members of which take upon themselves extraordinary obligations to one another, and are bound by secret oaths * * * are dangerous to the general cause of civil liberty and just government. * * * It is my opinion that the future administration of all such oaths, and the formation of all such obligations, should be prohibited by law."

John Quincy Adams said: "Secrets written in blood should be revealed. A tree that bears such fruit should be hewn down."

Hon. Charles Summer wrote: "You must importune Jehovah to enlighten the minds of the people of the nation to remove another imported scourge and curse, Freemasonry, which is stealthily usurping the reins of government, and must be destroyed in our country, if it is to be the home of the free."

William H. Seward, Millard Fillmore, John C. Spencer, together with thirty-six other prominent citizens of New York, united in a public address on this subject, which closes in the following words: "In the meantime the friends of democracy and of equal rights and privileges, and the enemies of aristocratic associations and secret societies, are firm, united and vigorous. Confident in the justice of their cause and in the protection and power of Providence, * * * they will continue the work so nobly begun * * until this land of freedom shall no longer be polluted by a blood-stained fraternity that tramples upon our rights and defeats the administration of justice, and bids defiance to every government which it cannot control."

The great British Premier, Disraeli, said not long before his death: "Secret societies are hurrying the civil governments of the world * * to the brink of a precipice, over which law and order will ultimately fall and perish together."

I. P. LYTH.
I. F. MORTON.
W. DILLON.

FROM THE LOUISA CO., IOWA, CONVENTION.

MEDIAPOLIS, Iowa, Dec. 17, 1885.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Having been called from home for a time after the anti-secrecy convention held in Morning Sun, Nov. 30th and Dec. 1st., a report of the same has been delayed. I was not present at the opening session Monday evening, Nov. 30th, but learned that Rev. C. F. Hawley, State agent of Iowa, delivered a strong lecture on the anti-Christian character of Masonry, proving by clear and logical argument that the philosophy and teachings of the Masonic system are hostile to the Gospel of Christ and the only way of salvation through him.

Rev. J. P. Stoddard, the well known veteran in the war against the secret empire, closed with a stirring and forcible address, such as he is capable of giving. Rev. T. R. Robb was chosen chairman, and with his usual zeal led its sessions. The convention met again next morning and opened with devotional exercises; singing portions of the old Bible Psalms which have inspired with faith and trust in God many brave hearts. Such as Ps. 46,

"God is our refuge and our strength,
In straits a present aid," etc.,

which Martin Luther loved to sing when battling against the powers of darkness. The report of Agent Hawley of labors since he entered upon the work in Iowa was heard, and showed perseverance and zeal in the cause, special effort having been put forth to bring the cause to the attention of ministers of the Gospel. Secretary Stoddard filled up the time by an interesting sketch of the general state of the work.

In the afternoon a permanent organization was effected, including Louisa and Des Moines counties, of which Rev. T. P. Robb is president, the other officers being Rev. T. C. McKelvey, S. Y. Orr, and S. E. Wildson. Mr. Stoddard entertained the audience with a forcible lecture, showing the corrupt principles and debasing ceremonies of Masonry, rendering the various points clear and impressive by the use of illustrative charts.

At the evening session Secretary Stoddard continued his lecture with charts, showing the degrading ceremonies of Odd-fellowship, emphasizing the fact that in this as in Masonry the sacred precincts of the family are invaded, and the social rights of women degraded and insulted.

Rev. C. F. Hawley closed by a clear and conclusive argument, showing the invalidity of the Masonic oath, and that neither civil government, moral ethics, nor God himself can enforce such unrighteous oaths.

The attendance was fair at the day sessions, and good in the evenings. The M. E. pastor did not attend at any session. The United Presbyterian and Presbyterian ministers of the town were present most of the time, but took no active part. The terrorism of the lodge even strikes some ministers who are professedly opposed to secret orders, and compels them to take a back seat. This cannot apply to Rev. C. D. Trumbull, pastor of the Covenanter church, who fearlessly pushes the battle to the gate and quails not for friend or foe. It is to be hoped that a reaping time may soon come from this seed sowing. Yours for truth and light,

J. W. DILL, Secretary.

FROM THE ILLINOIS LECTURER.

KANKAKEE, Ill.

The Salvation Army is here and doing a grand work. Through their efforts God is saving many of the youth of this city from vice, lifting the drunkards from the gutter and turning the entire band into "highway" messengers of the Cross, to reach their old companions, the degraded, the fallen. The saloon-keepers in this city fear this little company of Salvationists more than they do an army of ten thousand "high license" adherents.

They have rented Rescue Club Hall, in this city, for three hundred and fifteen nights, and hold their meetings every evening unless the Club demands the use of the hall for other purposes as they reserved the use of it for fifty nights in the year.

As I could not secure a place in which to speak on this subject here, without great expense, I applied to the lady who is captain of the Salvation Army for the use of the hall for one evening. She replied that she feared its effect on the meeting, and gave evidence of having been labored with for my especial benefit. After assuring her that it would shed light on the minds of many who were held in bondage by lodgery, help them to see God's way of escape and in nowise interfere with the genuine work of grace, she offered me the use of the hall for Thursday afternoon. I believed I could see the hand of God in this and thankfully accepted the offer, posted my bills, and ere long received a notice that I "had better order my coffin at once." Thursday afternoon came and with it a much larger audience than I anticipated. Rev. J. Murch, pastor of the Baptist church in this city, opened the service by prayer, and for one hour that audience listened with marked attention. The large chart containing three scenes in blue lodgery did good service. After the meeting was dismissed quite a number came forward who expressed an interest in our work, and urged me to secure a hall for a night or two. I explained that I did not feel justified in investing fifteen dollars of the Association's money for the privilege of telling the truth in this city. At this juncture a big, red-faced man came bulging his way through the crowd, exclaiming that he regretted that he could not be present in time to hear the lecture. He upbraided me for not delivering it at night, when the mass of the people could be present. I told him that if the citizens would furnish the place I was ready to serve them to the best of my ability.

"O, I will furnish the hall myself!"

Some of the gentlemen said to him, "It will cost you fifteen dollars." "No it won't," he replied. Then turning to me he asked, "What do you know about Freemasonry?"

"I know all about Blue Lodge Masonry to my sorrow," I answered. "Are you a Mason?" I enquired.

"I am;" he responded, then added: "You do not know anything about it."

I replied, "See here, I'll give you a ten dollar bill to-morrow if you will go with me before a justice of the peace and swear that when you took your first oath as a Freemason, you did not bind yourself under no less penalty than that of having your 'throat cut across.'"

"No sir! I'll not do any such thing; I'll not swear to any thing of the kind!"

When the cheers and laughter subsided some exclaimed, "That settles it!" "Yes, and him too!"

I met a gentleman who said to me that he belonged to a lodge of Masons, said he; "The thing which bothered me most was that they stick their noses into all the law suits where a Mason is concerned. No man can get justice there if the other fellow is a Mason. I know a fellow now who ought to be in the penitentiary for theft, and it was a clearly proven case, but he is at liberty, just through his being a Mason: and his is not the only case; but I could cite you to many others."

"What became of him?" I inquired. "He's running around Kankakee yet. It's not right. It is no use talking, it's not right. I can't stand it. I know it does interfere with the administration of justice."

G. T. DISSETTE.

REFORM REVIVING IN IOWA.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—After the convention in the court house at West Union, and the organization of a Fayette County Christian Association opposed to the lodge and saloon and in favor of all needed governmental reform, I went to labor in Louisa, Henry, and Washington counties. Here I set myself to work up a convention for Louisa and Des Moines counties, which was held in Morning Sun, and resulted in the organization of a Christian Association for Louisa and Des Moines counties.

A county meeting was also held in Washington, the county-seat of Washington county. Here they had a county association in running order, and many strong men, loyal to Christ, to give vitality to its opposition to the saloon and to the lodge. Rev. J. P. Stoddard was with us at both these conventions, and wrought valiently for Christ against the Masonic anti-Christ.

While working up these county conventions, I preached at Wayne, Crawfordsville, Winona, and one other point. I also lectured at Wyman, in the Covenanter church, on the relations of Freemasonry to the Christian religion, and was invited to give other lectures there when it would be convenient to do so. I also gave a course of three lectures at Winona.

At this place the interest increased so that at the last lecture the house was filled. I afterward preached there to a crowded congregation. I gave two lectures in the Congregational church at Crawfordsville on the relations of Freemasonry to the Christian religion. I lectured two miles north of Marsh Station, and also two miles south. The night I lectured north of the Station, I was entertained for the night by a brother in Christ who had renounced Masonry. He had taken but one degree. Soon after he had been initiated he was in the village where he had been stripped and haltered and sworn, and he went into the business place of one of the lodge men, who was also a church member. This man asked him, "John, has any body posted you since you was initiated?"

The newly fledged Mason replied, "No."

"There is no one around," said his older lodge brother, "and now is a good time to post you."

And so he began a review of what John had gone over the night before. John listened in silence for a while, and then suddenly cried out, "Stop! there is

(Continued on 9th page.)

CORRESPONDENCE.

LETTER FROM MOBILE.

VIEWS OF A COLORED EPISCOPAL MINISTER OF 33 MASONIC DEGREES EXPERIENCE.

MOBILE, Ala.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—Last Sunday I visited Rev. F. G. Ragland, of the Congregational church of this city, who called my attention to the Christian Cynosure, and furnished me with the paper of the 5th of November, in which I find that Rev. C. S. Harris, of Jackson, Miss., spoke at a board meeting of the N. C. A., and also find some account of the persecution of Bro. R. N. Countee, of Memphis, Tenn: and being also a sufferer for my convictions, believing, as I do firmly, in what seems to be the central thought in the name N. C. A., I am led to think that some one is being led by the God of nations to raise up to him a people whose God is the Lord.

The condition of our people is truly a sad one the country over, causing sleepless nights to the few that reflect. The young are on the way; the middle aged and older ones are led by the societies, which in a great degree control every church we have among us. Secret societies and organizations outside of the church have, in a great measure, so compromised, or, more properly, so demoralized the church that it is powerless. I am a Mason: had my demit from the last lodge of which I was a member, and have taken the 33d degree, but have refused, up to the present, to affiliate, and have only visited the lodge three times since I demitted in 1868; and if I had the means with which to go, believe that I could do some good in the work. A few honest colored men can do a good work in the country—north and south, for at this time the Methodist and Baptist bodies are like tottering walls, and quarreling one with another. The Episcopalians are too lofty for the negro to reach, and the reformed side needs help to get on foot, but would be an important element if sustained. In some way an intelligent, Christian system is needed for the colored people, and success will largely depend on helping them to do their own work. It is said by some that we are passive, and must be helped. But such is not the case.

My whole heart is with your work, and if I can serve it in any way, I stand ready to do duty for Christ and his cause.

I am strongly impressed that a change in the colored work is demanded to make it a success, and I should like the opportunity in some way to be heard on the view I hold. Most of the people who are willing to do for, or spend money for us, make the mistake of first looking for some one to handle the money for the negro, which in a great measure destroys, or nearly destroys, the good intended. If we look at the relation between mind and body, both have their time to hunger; if it were not so Jesus would not have promised to fill all who hunger and thirst: and if the food must be eaten to do the body good, so of the mind: so with all creatures.

Food must be put in reach: don't force, or you will destroy the will, the only thing that can make men true. Help is what should be furnished to those needing to be saved. Organizations working for Christ are not always Christ-like. Sometimes men differ from others honestly, and can't help it. Jeremiah differed, and was hated; and he would have died in the filth if true charity had not pulled him up. Daniel would have staid in the den, so far as his own ability was concerned, but others had to pull him up.

I know, sir, that I am tresspassing on time and patience, but the matter to me is grave. Our work here would be a grand success if a few dollars were at command, but we have no help with a strong body against us: but God be thanked we have truth on our side, and God will in his own time and way provide for us and help us. I am yours for reform and truth as a national safeguard, I. M. WILLIAMS.

OBSERVATIONS OF A VETERAN.

BRADY, Pa.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—I have been trying to find whether this is a Christian nation or not, and have come to the conclusion that is is not; for this reason: The government is led by secret orders, and so are the popular churches. How often will you find a popular religious paper that will speak one word against secret societies? Yet the rinks are better attended and more money spent on them than upon the churches.

Mormonism is now attracting considerable attention. I have seen in a religious paper, published in in Pittsburg, an article called Mormonism and the Bible, by Rev. J. C. Hench, Demos, Ohio. He blames the Mormons with some of the things the sects are largely guilty of. What sect is there that is satisfied with the pure Gospel as it has been preached? They all have something they call "our standards," which implies to me they do not believe the Gospel as it has been delivered to us until they have fixed it up to suit themselves. Rev. Hench says when the Mormons are out on their preaching tours they take texts from the New Testament mostly, and preach "Faith, repentance and baptism by immersion for the remission of sins." He says the Mormons preached this with all "the zeal of an Alexander Campbell." Mr. Campbell might have taken for his text some of the following passages: John 3: 5; Acts 2: 38: Romans 6th chapter; Col. 2: 12, 13: Col., 3: 1 to 4. Now we refer all who depend on their standards to the first chapter of Galations, 6th to 13th verses. This shows what is the consequence of tampering with the pure Gospel. Also look at Mat. 28:20, to be certain that there is nothing commanded that is not essential.

Rev. Hench closes by saying, "Had Mr. Campbell never been born, Mormonism never would have cursed this world." This shows what he knows about history; and also what the paper that published it knows about history. Any paper publishing such stuff as that, and will not say one word about what they know to be great evils for fear of becoming unpopular, honest people should not take any such paper.

We have not had any lectures since Mr. Baird spoke here. We had several secret societies then, now we have but one—the G. A. R. I wish we could have lectures here again. The Grand Army are so poor the widows and orphans have to provide the uniforms and flag. A. SUTOR.

THE LODGES CONFESS.

BRIGHTON, Mich., Dec. 9, 1885.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—One of the many strange things with which we come in contact in our warfare against secretism is the persistency with which adhering Masons and Odd-fellows deny the truthfulness of the published expositions of their order. But it is gratifying to know that there are men who have been drawn into these orders, whose manhood will assert itself in spite of their fraudulently obtained oaths.

Such an instance recently occurred here in Brighton, where a Mason said to a friend, "Masonry is an open secret; the expositions are correct word for word." And another incident in the same line: we have here in Brighton an Odd-fellow's lodge recently organized, and an Odd-fellow who was present says, "The books used at the organization were obtained from Cook's publishing house in Chicago, as they get them there much cheaper than from their own publishers." And this man holds a high position here and is responsible for all he says. Scatter the light. The hidden things of darkness are being revealed, and truth, though long "crushed to earth, will rise again." May God speed the time.

D. A. RICHARDS.

BIBLE LESSONS.

STUDIES IN JEWISH HISTORY.

LESSON I, Jan. 3, 1886.—Josiah and the Book of the Law. 2 Kings 22: 1-13.

GOLDEN TEXT.—He did that which was right in the sight of the Lord. 2 Kings 22: 2.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The true standard of morals. vs. 1, 2. Everybody realizes the importance of an unchanging measure for weights and distances, and one of the most perplexing questions before political economists to-day is how to provide a money standard which will not be liable to fluctuation; yet strange as it may seem, the majority of the world are content to measure their lives—that upon which hang all the issues of eternity—by a standard that in its very nature is perpetually varying. They are content if they do what seems right to their fellow men. Josiah on the contrary "did that which was right in the Lord." He was satisfied with nothing short of a perfect measure of conduct. The absurdity of making social custom our standard in matters of right and wrong will be seen at once when we reflect that society allowed many things a century ago, the practice of which would not be tolerated to-day. Once respectable people saw no harm in the slave trade, in drinking, gambling, or duelling—just as they now see no evil in the heathenish rites of Masonry; yet these things are and always have been eternally wrong.

2. It is in the way of duty that we learn God's will. vs. 3-9. If Josiah had neglected to repair the temple the book of the law would not have been found. Puzzling questions of duty are oftenest disentangled by taking up patiently the work that lies nearest to us.

3. The true cause of national judgments. vs. 10-13. Would that all political economists could see the cause of the evils afflicting our nation as clearly as did Josiah—"Because our fathers have not hearkened unto the words of this book, to do according unto all that which is written concerning us." In the discontent of the working classes, in our frequent commercial panics, in the violence and crime so widespread, can be seen plain evidences of God's wrath. It is not so much violated economic law as it is violated divine law that is at the bottom of the evils which afflict us as a nation. Capitalists and legislators alike have forgotten "to deal justly, execute judgment, and walk humbly before God." Nor have the people been less guilty. The Bible is the true conservator of our national liberties, and neglect of its precepts is like neglect of compass and chart on an unknown sea.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

How can we know that we are doing what is right in the sight of the Lord? Ps. 119: 24, 33. What were the judgments for Israel's apostasy? Lev. 26; Deut. 28: 15. Can we expect to escape if we commit the same sin of disobedience? Rom. 11: 20.

From Peloubet's Notes.

"King Josiah." PARENTAGE. He was the son of Amon, and grandson of Manasseh, king of Judah. His mother's name was Jediah, "the beloved of Jehovah;" and his grandmother was Adaiah, "the honored of Jehovah." They belonged in Boscath, a town near Lachish, in southwestern Judah, in the plains toward the Mediteranean Sea.

BECOMES KING. Josiah began to reign B. C. 640, when he was eight years old. It seems to have been by the choice or election of the people (2 Chron. 33: 25). He reigned 31 years, and died B. C. 609, before he was forty years old. In his early years it was, of course, impossible for him to take any leading part in the government. The kingdom was carried on either by the queen mother (Ellicott), or by those wise counsellers who became the stay of the king in his reforms in later years (2 Kings 22: 3, 4).

THE CHARACTER OF HIS REIGN. "And he did that which was right." This gives the general character of his reign. He left the brightest name for piety and religious zeal among all the successors of David. He shares with Hezekiah the praise of walking perfectly in the way of his father David. His reign marked the last dying glory of the earthly Kingdom of David.—Smith. His kingdom virtually extended over the territory of the ten tribes (2 Chron. 34: 6).

"In the sight of God." Not only outwardly, but in his heart; he not only meant right, but his actions and character were right.

"And walked in all the way of David his father." The character of David was the standard by which the sacred historians were in the habit of trying his successors (1 Kings 11: 4; 2 Kings 14: 3; 18: 3; 2 Chron. 28: 1; 29: 2). David was regarded as the model king (1 Kings 14: 8; 15: 5). "The ways of David" which are here particularly referred to were those into which he was led by his religious character and zeal.—Rev. John R. Todd, D. D.

"His father," i. e., his ancestor.

"And turned not aside" from the path of righteousness and religion. He kept in the ways of the Lord, and did not turn aside to the right hand into excess of zeal, or formal religion, or pride; nor to the left hand, into negligence, idolatry, and breaking of the moral law (see Deut. 5: 29; 17: 11, 20; 28: 14).

"The beginning of the Great Reformation under Josiah." "THE NEED OF REFORM IN HIS KINGDOM. The state of things in "Judah and Jerusalum" at the time of Josiah's conversion was in truth most deplorable. For almost 70 years idolatry had prevailed except under the few years of Manasseh's later life. Amon, Josiah's father, in his brief, idolatrous reign had neutralized all the good influences of Manasseh's later years. The land was full of idols, "upon every high hill and under every green tree." Immorality was rampant everywhere. Jerusalem was filthy and polluted. Crimes of violence, deeds of oppression, and shameful vices abounded everywhere. The three great prophets of the period, Jeremiah, Zephaniah, and Habakkuk, vie with each other in the indignation and mournfulness of their delineations,—the root of all being in apostasy from God. We can well imagine the sadness, almost despair, with which the youthful king, in the ardor of his first devotion to God, would contemplate the melancholy scence.—S. G. Green.

"Repairing the temple." JOSIAH'S COUNSELLORS. There was a circle of remarkable persons in or around the palace and temple, who, possibly driven together by the recent persecutions, had formed a compact band, which remained unbroken till the fall of the monarchy itself.—Stanley.

"Finding the Book of the Law." HOW MODERN MEN LOSE THE BIBLE. (1 By neglecting it; by not reading and studying it. (2) By want of sympathy with its purpose; reading it for literature, or poetry, or history, or to find fault and difficulties, and not to learn the way of life. (3) By prejudice; seeking to read things into the Bible to confirm what we believe, and not going to it as a learner, seeking the truth. (4) By disobeying its precepts. Only those who obey can know. (5) By unbelief; by not receiving its truths into the heart.

"The effects of finding the Book of the Law."

1. CONVICTION OF SIN. "The king . . . rent his clothes," From the most ancient times this has been an expression of grief, alarm, and penitence (see Gen. 37: 29, 34; Job 1: 20: Judg. 11: 35; Mat. 26: 65).

2. SEEKING FOR LIGHT. "Inquire of the Lord for me." Seek some prophet to whom the Lord communicates his will, and find out what is God's will; whether there is any way of averting these calamities to which the kingdom is exposed by its disobedience. They were in great trouble. They deserved punishment. What can be done?

3. PUTTING AWAY EVIL. A great assembly of the people was held. The words of the book were read, "by a public national act, idol-worship was solemnly renounced, and the people pledged by royal decree to serve Jehovah, the God of Israel." A new impulse was given to the great reforms begun six years before. The idols, and necromancers, and idol-priests, and every vestige of heathenism and its moral abominations were destroyed, as related in vs. 4-8 of this lesson, and 2 Kings 23: 24,

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree, by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone, comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H. Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," by Miss E. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret labor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50.

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry, by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies. Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c.

A Masonic Conspiracy, by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c.

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, G. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, care Cynosure.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men	2

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Master's Carpet

BY

F. Ronayne.

Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 63; Chicago.

Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, thus showing the principles on which the order is founded. By a careful perusal of this work, a more thorough knowledge of the principles of the order can be obtained than by attending the Lodge for years. Every Mason, every person contemplating becoming a member, and even those who are indifferent on the subject, should procure and carefully read this work. An appendix is added of 32 pages, embodying which gives every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge together with a brief explanation of each. The work contains 422 pages and is substantially and elegantly bound in cloth. Price, 75 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance,

Address

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884.

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile hands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following, as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

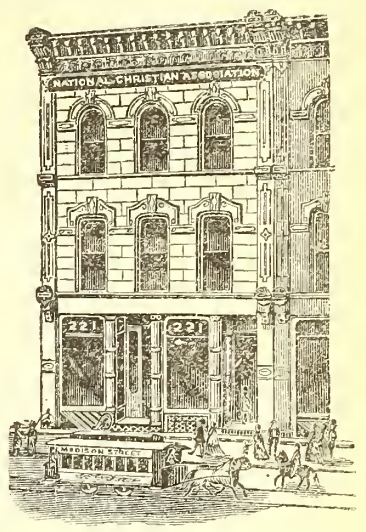
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and honest currency.

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N. Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st, Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos. H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George, H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Uls Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Barahoo, Sec., W. W. Anes, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B Biggins Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 24, 1885.

A WORD FOR 1886!

Unlike its typical luminary, the pole-star of the north,

The Christian Cynosure

purposes not only to shine truly and steadily but with an increasing brilliancy and power from year to year. Many of our readers have marked this purpose. They write cheerfully of the success which the paper has attained, and testify that it is becoming

Better and Better.

What the Cynosure has been for sixteen years and more it will with God's help continue to be, a Pole-Star in the heavens of political and religious reform.

It will continue to be sustained by such able contributors as

E. E. Flagg, Author of "Holden with Cords."
Rev. John Boyes, A. M., Grimsby, England.
Prof. Claudio Jannet, University of Paris.
Rev. A. D. Zarsphonithes, Andros, Greece.
Rev. Wm. Hazenberg, Cape Town, S. Africa.
Pastor Alex. Djelizian, Ada Bazar, Asia Miner.
C. B. Ward, Missionary at Secumderabad, India.
Robert Shemeld, Missionary at Natal.
Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D. Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary.
Prof. L. N. Stratton, Wheaton Theological Seminary.
Rev. John G. Fee, Berea College.
Pres. C. J. Kephart.
Rev. Geo. B. Cheever, D. D.
Rev. C. C. Foote, Detroit.
Pres. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton College.
George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer."
Rev. Henry T. Cheever, Worcester.
Elder Nathan Callender.
Rev. David McFall, Chambers St. Ref. Presbyterian Church, Boston.
Rev. B. F. Worrell, Olathe, Kans.
Rev. Wm. Moerdyk, Dutch Reform Church.
Prof. J. A. Edgren, Swedish Theological Seminary.
Rev. William Wisbart, D. D.
Alexander Thompson.
Rev. Joel Swartz, D. D., Gettysburg, Pa.
Rev. Joseph E. Roy, D. D., Chicago.
Rev. Albert Sims, Uxbridge, Ont.
Rev. J. F. Avery, Halifax, N. S.
Prof. S. M. Hill, Wahoo, Nebr.
Rev. J. D. Gehring, Park College, Mo.
Albert M. Paul, Providence, R. I.
Elder J. L. Barlow, Wheaton.
Rev. W. J. White, Worcester.
Elder S. C. Kimball, Editor of the Christian Witness.
Rev. J. C. McFeeters.
Rev. B. F. Roberts, Editor of the Earnest Christian.
Rev. H. H. Hinman, Washington, D. C.
Dr. J. C. Clark, Carthage, Ind.
Rev. M. A. Gault, Western Secretary of the National Reform Association.
Rev. D. Simon, Prospect, O.
Prof. A. Fernholm, Kristiueham, Sweden.
Rev. B. W. Williams, Itaska, Texas.
And many others whom space forbids to mention.

During 1885 sketches and fine portraits have appeared of Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Adam Crooks, Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong, Dr. Benjamin Rush, Hon. Richard Rush, Hon. Samuel Plumb, Hon. Henry Wilson, Hon. Gerrit Smith, Dr. E. Smith, John Quincy Adams.

For 1886 sketches and protraits of John G. Fee, George B. Cheever, George W. Clark, Charles C. Foote, David Bernard, Samuel D. Greene, Charles Sumner, George F. Pentecost, Nathaniel Colver, John Brown, John Marshall and others are in preparation, and with each portrait will be one or more biographical sketches by the editor and other competent writers. This feature will be well worth the price of the paper for one year.

Histories of all the secret societies so far as they can be obtained will be given in the Secret Empire department of the Cynosure during the year.

The proposed conference of churches and Christians on the secret lodge will be an important movement to which the Cynosure will give profound attention.

The condition of the colored churches and their struggle for existence amid the overpowering influences of the multitude of secret societies will also have large space. The visit of the Senior Editor to the South and his correspondence will form a most important and attractive feature of the paper.

The Cynosure in short will be a paper in 1886 which no man who is honest in his profession of Anti-masonry can well afford to be without.

Let every present subscriber RENEW IN TIME, AND GET

A New Reader for 1886.

CYNOSURES WANTED.—Copies of the following dates are wanted to supply subscribers who failed to receive them: December 10th and 17th. See notice on the sixteenth page of this paper.

THE CYNOSURE HAS IN STORE some good things for its readers on New Year's day. Among these is (1) a temperance sermon preached by Rev. Ebenezer Porter, pastor of the First church in Washington, Connecticut, in 1805, and therefore one of the earliest on record on this subject. This we have through the kindness of Elder J. L. Barlow. (2) The first of a whole series of articles on the "Great Apostacy," by Cynthia Derbyshire, a Quaker lady whose intelligence and ability as a writer are hardly equaled only by her philanthropic spirit and generons gifts to the Christian reforms. (3) A fine portrait of Elder David Bernard with sketches of his varied and useful life. Let none of our readers fail of getting this number next week.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE

DAYTON, December 16, 1865.

Hon. Halleck Floyd and myself have just had an interview with W. J. Shuey, publisher, and Dr. J. W. Hott, editor, at the Telescope office. I had seen Mr. Shuey on Saturday previous. Both these brethren declared themselves decidedly in favor of a general Christian convention against the secret lodge system; and the editor handed us a copy of the Telescope fresh from the press, containing the following explicit endorsement of such a convention. Our interview was friendly and agreeable:

Dr. Blanchard, of Chicago, editor of the Christian Cynosure, made a friendly call at this office last Saturday. He is on his way to the convention at Columbus. We believe it is his purpose to spend some time this winter in visiting in the cities of the Southern States, endeavoring to awaken an interest among the colored people in opposition to secret societies. He is now also engaged in working up a convention opposed to secret societies upon a broad, Christian, churchly, and national basis, not to be under the auspices of the National Association, but to be comprised of men of the churches, and the nation who are opposed to oath-bound secret organizations. We should be glad to see such a convention called, headed with some of the great leaders of public thought of our country, who believe in Christianity and manhood, and not in secret combinations.

It is a great pity that the controversy over the lodge is becoming one of theory and technicalities. Dieneces, at Thermopylae, when told the Persian arrows would darken the heavens, replied, "So much the better, then we shall fight in the shade." The lodge, like freebooters, operates in the shade; and not discussion, but discipline will drive it ont of the church. But the Conservator, if vigorously sustained, will enforce discipline in the end. Every subscriber to that paper should become an agent for it. If Dr. Warner is a Mason he should be brought to repentance or driven from the church.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 17, 1885.—The old State Journal of this city gives a graphic and faithful sketch of the Ohio State Christian Association here. I send it at once, hoping it will appear in the Cynosure next week. The meeting was harmonions; not a jar of discord. Our friend Hiatt and his leading deacon, Mr. Hershiser, were present part of the time. Dea. Hershiser is a man of great financial ability, a Mason of 33 degrees, and a sincere Christian. He will doubtless soon be where Mr. S. M. Good of Iowa is, if he ventnres to read. For the rest see the State Journal, where Repnblicans will see the opinions of the fathers and founders of that great historic party.

DAYTON MATTERS.

After earnest interviews with Mr. Shney and Dr. J. W. Hott, as well as with Rev. Wm. Dillon, editor of the Conservator, and the well-beloved Dr. Davis, with whom I stopped, and Hon. Halleck Floyd of Indiana, my hopes preponderate over my fears for the restored nnity of the United Brethren church. The worst element of the case is the spawn of worldly young preachers who have gone into the ministry for bread, "thinking that gain is godliness." These young ministers see Mr. Shuey on the side against Dr. Davis and the reformers, and

> "Whether for better or whether for worse,
> They follow the leader who earries the purse."

But Mr. Shney's sons are Christians and not members of secret societies, and the father whose children respect his religion, is either a sincere Christian or has a good wife, or both.

The worst of Mr. Shuey's case is, unless falsly reported, he as a church officer receives Masons to his church in contempt of the law of that body, and employs Masons to print the Telescope, an original anti-secret paper. This does not prove that Mr. Shuey may not lead in the ronte of the lodge from the United Brethren church. He has a mind like Sir Robert Peel, who was the son of a weaver and bnsiness man, of whom Edward Miall said, "No door of his nnderstanding is wide enough to let in a full grown principle." Yet Sir Robert was the premier who abolished the Corn Laws when Cobden and Bright had prepared the people, and that while he was the head of the Tory ministry. Dr. L. Davis is a sort of Wilberforce, who moved the abolition of the slave trade in his place in Parliament thirteen times before it carried. Pitt was worshiped; Fox was admired; Burke was stndied; but Wilberforce was loved.

THE G. A. R.

This secret political clan has started on the track of buying the South for Logan in 1888, by building homes for rebels at the expense of the government which they robbed and failed to destroy. They are also petitioning to restore Davis, Toombs, and Early, who scorned to ask it. These are two steps. But when the devil sets men to steal corn he always puts too much in the bag. The next move will be to pension the traitor troops; the next to assume the Confederate war debts; and the next to pay the Cotton bonds given to the British for money to stab liberty and popnlar government. Bnt Douglas, Cass and Van Buren broke down under this load, and Fred. Douglass, Brucc, Lynch and others will tell the negro voters that this scheme is to make the ex-slaves pay taxes to restore the old slave-holding dynasty, and Logan will follow Stephen A. Douglas to a like fate. Read this shameless G. A. R. impndence in the following, from the Dayton Journal, Dec. 15th inst.:

"REBEL TOADYING TO JEFF. DAVIS.—A debate on the question of removing the political disabilities imposed by the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution is one of the things in prospect. The case of General Lawton, of Georgia, is before the Senate in a bill introdueed by Senator Brown. General Lawton was nominated Minister to Russia by the President last spring, and the nomination was withdrawn because his disabilities had not been removed. He did not care enough about it, apparently, to ask to have his disabilities removed. Jeff. Davis, Robt. Toombs, Jubal Early, and a few others have been conspicuous in declaring that they asked no favors of a Republican administration. Senator Beek, however, proposes to go more than half way, now that there is a Demoeratie President, and restore to citizenship Davis and sueh others as have not asked for the favor. He has introduced a bill to remove all disabilities imposed by the fourteenth amendment. It is not probable, however, that it will pass the Senate, though a debate on the subjeet is likely to result from Mr. Beek's annouueed purpose to force a vote. Petitions are being signed in various parts of the country asking Congress to establish soldiers' homes for wounded Confederates. It is elaimed by Southern men that this movement is in charge of the Grand Army of the Republic. Making Jefferson Davis a eitizen and pensioning rebel soldiers would naturally go together.

I am told here that Pres. Cnrrier, Oberlin Theological Seminary, said when joining the First Chnreh, "I am not a Mason. I have left the lodge and renonnced it." If he has done so, the Cynosure has done Prof. Currier injustice, and shonld repair it. Will Rev. Willard Bnrr see Prof. Currier, and give the Cynosure the facts by his authority? J. B.

PROHIBITION IN THE SENATE.

Gough, Murphy, St. John or Miss Willard never delivered so remarkable and powerful an argnment against the drink traffic as was given in the Senate of the United States last week Tuesday. Onr Washington letter refers to the debate and its pitiable result in fitting and scathing rebnke, bnt the proceedings, the speeches of the occasion, the confessions of the Senators, were of sufficient importance to be more fnlly reported.

Tuesday afternoon the Senate was considering the report of the committee on rnles, of which Mr. Frye of Maine was chairman, when the clerk read an amendment striking ont rule 13, which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Capitol. Mr. Conger of Michigan first pnt in an objection and called for the ayes and noes. The Inter Ocean report thns describes the debate which followed:

"Mr. McMillan, of Minnesota, who is an elder in the Presbyterian church, woke up and asked why the Committee on Rules had recommended the elimination of this rnle.

"Mr. Frye replied in effect that a majority of the committee considered it proper to leave eaeh braneh of Congress to regnlate their own rules in this respect.

"Mr. Conger said that he did not agree with the committee. He thonght that the Senate should not only insist upon such a law, but should insist upon its enforcement.

"Mr. Ingalls [of Kansas] hanled the Revised Statutes from nnder the desk of Senator Edmunds, and read the law empowering the Sergeant-at-arms to prevent the 'debasement' of the Capitol buildings and gronnds, and expressed the opinion that this was sufficient.

"Mr. Gorman observed that nnder these rules Congress was assuming the entire control of the Capitol, a portion of which was occupied by the Supreme Court, and he did not believe the Senate had any right to dictate what shonld or should not be done in the rooms of that branch of the government. The judges might find it necessary, or might think it proper in the discharge of their duties, to nse stimnlants, and the Senate had no authority to forbid it. 'This building belongs to the people of the United States,' exclaimed Mr. Ingalls, 'and the Senate occupies a portion of it by their consent, but has no right to assume control over any part that it does not occupy. It is neither necessary nor proper to introduce legislation here under the form of a rule. We can require prohibition in the Capitol by legislation, in which both houses of Congress and the President shall share the responsibilty, but we have no right to do it under the form of a rule.'

"Senator Edmunds arose, stretched himself, and in the manner of an oracle declared that there was a provision of law which imposed upon the presiding officers of the two houses the responsibility of keeping order within the Capitol and grounds. While he was President pro tem he had been called upon several times to enforce this law, and he thought it was adequate. He said that there was also a rule of the Senate prohibiting the sale of liquor in the restaurant, and asked Mr. Frye if such was not the case. Mr. Frye replied affirmatively, and cited the rule which requires the keeper of the restaurant to keep the place clean, to furnish it in first-class style, and forbade him to sell intoxicating beverages.

"Mr. Conger remarked that public opinion justified the Senate in making and enforcing stringent rules on this subject, and insisted upon having the ayes and nays called."

Another report says: "The clerk, at Mr. Ingalls' request, read aloud the wine-list, with the prices of the different brands.

"Mr. Saulsbury thought it a disgrace that the United States Senate should tolerate such an invitation to dissipation as was exhibited by the bill of fare, and a disgrace that the Capitol should be turned into a grog-shop.

"Mr. Cockrell, [of Missouri], said he disliked drunkenness everywhere, but had seen more of it among the Senators than the employes of the Senate. Senators kept whisky in their rooms and invited their friends to go there. If the Senate was not fit to stop that, it was not fit for self-government. He had known of an appropriation bill to be occasionally delayed because of the intoxication among subordinates, but he had known the Senate to be adjourned because of the condition of some of its members. He would not say that the Senate had to adjourn in consequence of it, but certain Senators had been in such condition that the public business could not have been carried on, as discussion would have been indefinitely prolonged. 'Senators knew,' Mr. Cockrell added, 'that his point was well taken.'

"Mr. Frye said he had been told by ex-Senator Simon Cameron and ex-Senator Hamlin that twenty or thirty years ago the Senate had been found time and again without a quorum because more than a quorum were drunk; that they had seen a distinguished Senator attempt to rise in his place, but fall because of drunkenness. Mr. Frye himself remembered when the night sessions of the House of Representatives were broken up by drunken members. Things had very much improved since then. Mr. Frye regretted the remark of the Missouri Senator (Mr. Cockrell) as conveying to the country the impression that so many Senators were drunk during the ordinary business of the Senate that the Senate had to be adjourned on account of drunkenness.

"Mr. Cockrell said that he had not so stated. He had never seen so many Senators under the influence of liquor that the public business could not be transacted; had never seen anything even approaching that, but had seen two or three or more Senators —a mere minority—so completely under the influence of whisky in the discussions that the Senate for the sake of decency had adjourned. He did not think that he had ever seen more than half a dozen at one time in that condition, and he could give the names if Senators desired them.

"The only Republicans voting to strike out the rule were Ingalls and Manderson, while the Democrats voting to retain it were Berry, Blackburn, Colquit, Jones, Payne and Saulsbury.

—Pres. J. Blanchard was in Cincinnati over the Sabbath. His letter from that city will be an entertaining one. He goes from there to Berea, Kentucky.

—Secretary Stoddard returned to the N. C. A. office for work Monday morning. He has several calls for a series of lectures with his charts before colleges and seminaries in Ohio, and will probably return to that State ere long. He was made happy on Monday by word from the attorney of the N. C. A., Judge W. W. Farwell, that the long and vexatious settlement and litigation over the estate of Judge Wright at Byron, Ill., was finally settled, and a considerable part of the bequest of Judge Wright was secured to the Association.

—We lately printed the programme for the week of prayer issued by the committee of the Evangelical Alliance. But Prof. Kimball has so excellent a revision of the committee's suggestion in the January number of the Christian Witness that we republish with the recommendation that our readers follow it during the week of prayer.

—The Cerneau Supreme Council of 33-degree Masons have purchased a building in Columbus, Ohio, formerly used as a Universalist church, and are fitting it up for a Masonic hall. A. B. Coit, G. A. Frambes and W. A. Hershiser are the committee of the Masonic Cathedral Company which have this matter in charge.

—The Birmingham, Iowa, Christian Association, opposed to secret societies, met Dec. 14th. A num- of ladies and gentlemen took part in the exercises of the evening, a part of which was a debate on woman suffrage.

—Rev. J. A. Richards of Fort Scott, Kansas, was a most welcome visitor at this office last week. He has been visiting Minnesota and Wisconsin, and at Wasioja spent three weeks in a gracious revival work in connection with the Seminary. He has yielded to the importunity of friends to undertake the agency for Wasioja Seminary and the pastorate of the Wesleyan church in Ironton, Wisconsin. He regrets to leave Fort Scott and the Kansas brethren with whom he has triumphed in many a well-fought battle for Christ, the truth.

—Bro. W. B. Stoddard was most ably seconded in his efforts in Columbus, Ohio, by Rev. Joseph Beck of the Grace English Lutheran church. Pastor Beck is considered one of the best missionary workers in the service of the Lutheran church in this country. He has lately organized two missions which are expected soon to develop into self-supporting churches.

—Rev. A. W. Parry, who has been pastor of the Free Methodist church in Sycamore, Ill., has removed to Wheaton, where he expects to take a closing year in the Theological Seminary, supplying the churches at Prospect Park and Melrose, and holding a service every other Sabbath in Wheaton. Bro. Parry has had some experience as a lecturer and will respond to calls for addresses on temperance and the lodge.

—Rev. Halleck Floyd of Dublin, Ind., has issued an eight-page pamphlet on the commission appointed by the United Brethren General Conference, "its object, methods and unconstitutionality," replying to Bishop Weaver who has developed into the leader of the party in favor of the lodge. Bishop Weaver's tract on the same case is a plea, says Bro. Floyd, "for the admission of secret societies into the church." This tract is written with all the earnestness of conviction upon a great moral principle, and all the eloquence of love for the United Brethren denomination. Copies can be had at the office of the Christian Conservator, Dayton, Ohio.

—A Mobile paper speaks of a charitable and religious enterprise begun by Rev. I. M. Williams, whose interesting letter appears on another page, thus: "The Rev. I. M. Williams, rector of St. Luke's Reformed Episcopal church (colored) has undertaken the establishment of a home for decrepit and helpless old colored people, and children who are left alone on the world at an age when they are not able to care for themselves. With this object in view, he has leased the building on Cedar, second north of St. Francis street. The building is capacious and roomy, but in a dilapidated condition, needing new floors, seats and other repairs. Mr. Williams is now attempting to raise funds to prosecute the work, and earnestly requests all persons who are interested in the undertaking to come forward and assist in getting the building in a condition to receive the suffering poor."

—In our correspondence from Columbus the mayor of the capital city of the great State of Ohio was referred to as a drinking man and Freemason, for either of which crimes he is incapacitated for such an office. Mr. Hodge, ex-Speaker of the Ohio House of Representatives, writes of this worthy in the Cleveland Voice after this manner: "The mayor of Columbus, O., should be arraigned and tried for misconduct in office. Never in Ohio has a man so outraged public justice. A few days since Hon. Emil Kiesewetter, Auditor of State, deliberately fired two shots at W. J. Elliott, editor of the Columbus Capital. One shot took effect, but no serious damage was done. When the case came before the mayor, that official actually proposed that the attempted murderer and the man he had tried to kill should endeavor to compromise the matter. When no notice was taken of the strange proposition, the mayor heard the testimony, which was enough to send the defendant to the penitentiary, and then discharged him. The mayor of Columbus is indeed a very convenient kind of an official to have around when a man has committed a great crime."

—It may not be generally known by our readers that the American, United States and Wells, Fargo & Co.'s express companies can give better rates for the remittance of small sums than the Post Office department. Their rates are but five cents for from $1 to $5; eight cents for $5 to $10; ten cents for $10 to $20, etc. Their system is thus not only cheaper for the sender of money, but is quite as safe and attended with less inconvenience in case of the loss of the original order. The receiver also is much accommodated, since the express orders can be deposited in any bank, whereas banks do not receive the postal notes. The subscribers of the Cynosure can frequently save themselves a penny by this method of remitting. If their patriotism, however, is excessive, they will continue to patronize "Uncle Sam."

REFORM NEWS (Continued from 5th page.)

no use in your spending your time going over that rigmarole. I have a book at home that has got it all in word for word, and I can just as well take the book and learn it at home, as for you to spend your time bothering with me."

But his elder brother in the lodge stoutly denied his having any such book; and declared that Masonry never had been, and never could be published.

John affirmed that it was a fact; that he had such a book, and stubbornly held to the fact in opposition to the theory. And John was shocked and turned away in disgust, horrified at the wicked disregrad of truth manifested by his Masonic brother. As he went out, he said in his heart, "Does that oath to 'ever conceal,' mean that I shall lie to cover up the fact that Masonry has been revealed?" It was clear to John's mind that this Mason upon whom he had just called so understood it.

So he determined to call upon two or three more Christian Masons, and see if they also held themselves bound to lie "to conceal" what was already revealed. They each accosted him as did the first, with the query, "Has any one posted you since you was initiated?" To each of these inquiries John replied, "No," And as they severally began to post him, John stopped them as he did the first, with the declaration that he had a book at home that had Masonry in it word for word, as he received it in the lodge, and as they were rehearsing it to him, and he excused them from proceeding further on the ground that he could learn it out of his book at home just as well as for them to take their time in giving him oral instruction. And they each affirmed, as had the first Mason he met, that he had no such book; that there was no such book; that Masonry never had been, and never could be revealed.

At last John said that if Masonry made liars of them all, he had had enough of it, and declared his purpose never to return to the lodge again. "For," said he, "these men were all of them professedly Christians! And, yet, as Masons, they held themselves bound to lie, to conceal the secrets of Masonry."

"I felt," he continued, "that I must renounce my allegiance to an institution that changed God-fearing, truthful men into liars." And John boldly severed the cable tow that bound him to Masonry, declaring that he could not be a Christian and a Mason.

Then these Masons, who also professed to be Christians, treated John with scorn and contempt, because he had renounced his Entered Apprentice obligation, which, as they understood and practiced it, bound him perpetually to lie to conceal what has so many times been revealed. Is it not strange that men will profess to fear and serve God, who has said that "All liars shall have their part in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone," and yet hold themselves bound, by an agreement with hell, to perpetually lie? And yet how often the threadbare lie is repeated even by men who stand in the pulpits of our land, "If you were never made a Mason, you don't know anything about Masonry." Such men ought to be labored with for lying, and disfellowshiped by the Christian brotherhood, except they repent.

I also lectured in the Covenanter church in Washington, and at a country place a few miles distant, while working up the conventions at Morning Sun and Washington. I visited and gave some tracts to two Swedish Lutheran ministers, both of whom and their churches also, are opposed to the lodge.

Let us all walk in the light as God is in the light, that we may be constantly cleansed by the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son: and let us be filled with the Spirit. Let us continue in supplication until we can each pray the prayer of faith for a great outpouring of the Spirit of God, that salvation may come in such floods that every refuge of lies may be swept away, and the people gathered to Jesus and saved.

C. F. HAWLEY.

THE HOME.

WOMEN OF NEW ENGLAND.

The following poem, read at the 250th anniversary celebration of the Center church, of Hartford, Conn., was written on the hillside, by John Hooker, while he was detained from attending the celebration by illness. Mr. Hooker is a descendant of the Rev. Thomas Hooker, founder of this church—"the most eloquent preacher, the wisest counselor, the most discerning and far-sighted statesman, the most beloved saint of all our New England fathers." The poem is a noble tribute to those "true hearts" of the long ago.

Ye grand men of our earlier day,
Who here for freedom made a way,
With faith and prayer and quoten Word,
Yet coat of mail and girded sword;
Who laid in strength the founded State,
And o'er it sat to legislate;
And oft in magistracy stood
Before th' admiring multitude;
Who felt th' inspiring sense of power
And thrill of the victorious hour;
And saw afar that graceful fame
Would cherish every hero's name;
—The schoolboy at his lesson reads
Th' inspiring records of your deeds;
The public eye on canvas sees
Your conflicts fierce and victories;
The monumental shaft is reared
To keep your names for aye revered.

But there were hearts of purest gold
Whose tale of courage ne'er was told;
True heroes who no armor wore,
Yet shared the perils that ye bore;
Braving, with courage none the less,
The savage and the wilderness;
Clothed with no power in church or state,
No word in worship or debate;
With faith-lit brow and helping hand,
Asking but by your side to stand;
Who had no hope a later day
Its tribute of renown would pay;
Who made their sad self-sacrifice
Before no world's admiring eyes;
Of men's remembrance, thinking not,
Content to toil and be forgot.

Ah, when the heroes of that time
Are numbered on God's book sublime,
High on the roll of that true fame
Many a gentle woman's name,
Which earth had cared not to record,
Shall stand writ Valiant for the Lord.

SPECIAL WORK.

There is a work for all of us. And there is especial work for each, work which I cannot do in a crowd, or as one of a mass, but as one man, acting singly, according to my own gifts, and under a sense of my personal responsibility. There is, no doubt, associated work for me to do. I must do my work as part of the world's great whole, or as a member of some body. But I have a special work to do, as one individual, who, by God's plan and appointment, has a separate position, separate responsibilities, and a separate work; if I do not do it, it must be left undone. No one of my fellows can do that special work for me which I have come into the world to do; he may do a higher work, but he cannot do my work. I cannot hand my work over to him, any more than I can hand over my responsibilities or my gifts. Nor can I delegate my work to any association of men, however well-ordered and powerful. They have their own work to do, and it may be a very noble one. But they cannot do my work for me. I must do it with these hands or with these lips which God has given me. I may do little or I may do much. That matters not. It must be my own work. And by doing my own work, poor as it may seem to some, I shall better fulfill God's end in making me what I am, and more truly glorify his name than if I were either going out of my own sphere to do the work of another, or calling in another into my sphere to do my proper work for me.—Ruskin.

THE CONDITIONS OF POWER.

With reference to power from on high, in which we are to do our work for God, it may be well to call attention to some of the conditions upon which this heavenly help is granted—conditions, not on account of which the power is given, but conditions which are essential to its reception, as consent is essential to the possession of a gift, or faith is essential to justification. The very first condition, then, is that we believe this power is for us. If we have fallen into the habit of assuming that pentecostal power was only for the first disciples, or for a highly favored disciple here and there among all the servants of God, we have made a mistake which will be fatal to our own enlowment. The promise of power, like other promises made to the first disciples, is a promise made for all time, and made through them to the disciples of all ages. Of course, if we do not believe it is for us, we will go on our way doing our work with spent strength or without power at all; but if, after carefully studying the Word of God, we see that this promise is to us even as to them, then will we, with this promise in our hearts, seek the Lord and wait on him for it. It is hardly necessary to say that if we believe that this power is not for us, or that we already have, in the possession of the Comforter, all the spiritual power we will ever have, we will not seek for more or larger measures of help from on high. It is not our purpose to point out the promises or the teaching of the Scriptures on this point, but only to suggest the thought to our readers, and leave them to determine for themselves whether or not there is such a promise for them. If they so decide, then we emphasize the point that the reception of power will depend upon whether or not they plead this promise in faith, and set themselves to the business of waiting on God for it.

A second condition is the emptying of ourselves of all self-sufficiency. Paul declared that he had no sufficiency of himself; no, not even so much as to enable him to think as he ought to think. We doubt very much whether it is the common habit of God's servants to carry themselves in such an utter self-emptied state before the Lord. It is not an uncommon thing to hear this man or that man spoken of as a great thinker, or an original thinker; but the real question is whether his thoughts are of God. This may mean whether, in the first place, his thoughts have been inspired by communion with God's word, or, in the second place, whether the thoughts, which, by reason of natural gifts, he has been enabled to think, are such as have been clothed with power from on high. There is a very real point here to be considered. Paul said of his preaching at Thessalonica that "our Gospel came not in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Gost, and in much assurance." This indicates that his preaching was something more than the mere setting forth of the truth, however ably that master preacher may have done it. It means that it was accompanied with the Holy Ghost sent down from heaven, not only giving energy to the words spoken, but also opening the minds and hearts of his hearers, so that it was received with much assurance on their part. No doubt when power rests on the preacher and energizes the word preached, it also works mightily in the hearts of the hearers of his word. The absence of this heavenly supplement on the other hand leaves the word, however ably spoken or admirably ordered, "in word only," and the hearer without "assurance" of its truth. Luther was wont to say that, if he had only ten minutes in which to prepare an address, he would spend seven of the ten in waiting on God for power in which to speak it. How much more powerful and effectual the preaching and work of the Lord would be if all the servants were possessed of the conviction that, without the Holy Ghost, they could do nothing, and would humbly and self-emptied wait for him, we leave it for our readers to say. To what extent we fall into the habit of depending on Biblical knowledge and the natural power which comes from habit and training for our work, ever one must decide for himself. Certain it is, that, of all the men of God who have been the most honored of God in his service, we know that it is those who have had very humble thoughts of themselves and have been found habitually closeted with God, both for personal communion and fresh endowment of power.

There is yet another point worthy of consideration. The Holy Spirit not only gives energy to the Word of God when it is spoken, but he has high office work in purifying the hearts of those with whom he abides and upon whom he rests. When power accompanies the preached word, it not only begets faith in those who hear, but it turns them from idols and purifies their hearts. We must suppose that this power works as efficiently in those who receive it for service as it does in those who receive the word energized by his presence in the world. If, therefore, we who seek this endowment do not use the power so received against our own idols and sins, it is hardly to be expected that He will use us to administer it for the work of conversion and holiness in others. We, therefore, conclude that a third condition of power is that we use it for our own sanctification as well as for the conversion and sanctification of those to whom we preach or for whom we labor. We are not mere pipes or wires, through whom the heavenly power is transmitted to others, but sinners who are to be saved and sanctified even as others. This may be a thought in the direction of the exhortations to holiness everywhere urged upon the people of God, and especially upon those servants who are called to preach and teach. It was on this principles that Paul declared, while exhorting the Corinthians to the mortification of the flesh: "I keep my body under and keep it in subjection; least that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." We are by no means sure that this last point is not the most vital of all. At least we believe that he who uses the power he seeks, against his own sins, will be entrusted with power to make his ministry efficient to others.—Independent.

A DIFFERENCE.

There is a great difference between the peace and power of the Holy Spirit in the soul. The disciples were Christians before the day of Pentecost, and as such, had a measure of the Holy Spirit. They must have had the peace of sins forgiven, and of a justified state, but yet they had not the enduement of power necessary to the accomplishment of the work assigned them. They had the peace which Christ had given them, but not the power which he had promised. This may be true of all Christians, and right here is, I think, the great mistake of the church, and of the ministry. They rest in conversion, and do not seek until they obtain this enduement of power from on high. Hence, so many professors have no power with God or man. They prevail with neither. They cling to a hope in Christ, and even enter the ministry, overlooking the admonition to wait until they are endued with power from on high. But, let any one bring all the tithes and offerings into God's treasury, let him lay all upon the altar, and prove God herewith, and he shall find that God "will open the windows of heaven, and pour out a blessing that there shall not be room to receive it."—C. G. Finney.

MOODY ON SCOTLAND.

Mr. Moody lately paid a high tribute to Scotland "I don't believe," he said, "there is any place in the world where error has such a slim chance of getting a hold as in Scotland. The Scotch are a most wonderful people. You have to be careful in preaching to them, or the first thing you know some old woman will come up with her Bible under her shawl and say, 'Here, you said so and so; the Bible says so and so.' If you make a misquotation a Scotchman will straighten you right out; but you might make forty misquotations in an Ameriean church and nobody would know the difference. We would have better preaehing if people would open their Bibles and see whether a man is preaching the Word of God. In Scotland a minister does not think of preaching till everybody has found the text. Go to Dr. Bonar's church in Glasgow. One of the most impressive scenes is to see twelve or thirteen hundred people, and not a soul but has got a Bible. The old doctor will wait until everyone has found the plaee; then he will tell them what the passage in that place means, and then he goes on to another verse."

SEVEN SHORT RULES FOR YOUNG CHRISTIANS.

AND OLD ONES TOO.

1. Never neglect daily private prayer; and when you pray, remember that God is present, and that he hears your prayers. Heb. 11: 6.

2. Never neglect daily private Bible-reading; and when you read, remember that God is speaking to you, and that you are to believe and aet upon what he says. I believe all backsliding begins with the negleet of these two rules. John 5: 39.

3. Never profess to ask God for anything you do not want. Tell him the truth about yourself, however bad it makes you; and then ask him, for Christ's sake, to forgive you what you are, and to make you what you ought to be. John 4: 24.

4. Never let a day pass without trying to do something for Jesus. Every night reflect on what Jesus has done for you, and then ask yourself, What have I done to-day for him? Matt. 5: 13, 16.

5. If ever you are ever in doubt as to a thing being right or wrong, go to your room, and kneel down and ask God's blessing upon it. Col. 2: 17. If you cannot do this it is wrong. Rom. 14: 23.

6. Never take your Christianity from Christians; or argue that, beeause such and such people do so and so, therefore you may. 2. Cor. 10: 12. You are to ask yourself, How would Christ aet in my place? and strive to follow him. John 10: 27.

7. Never believe what you feel if it contradicts God's Word. Ask yourself, Can what I feel be true if God's Word is true? and if both cannot be true, believe God, and make your own heart the liar. Rom 3: 4; 1 John 5: 10, 11.—Brownlow North.

WHAT WILL YOU DO WITH JESUS?

What will you do with Jesus?
The words came low and sweet,
As tenderly He bids you
Lay your burdens at His feet.
We are poor, and week, and sinful,
But His mercy's full and free;
What will you do with Jesus?
What shall the answer be?

What will you do with Jesus?
The words came loud and clear,
'Tis the voice of God that speaketh,
In tones that all must hear.
Life immortal's in the question,
Joy through eternity—
What will you do with Jesus?
What will the answer be?

Think of the King of glory,
Lord of heaven, to earth come down,
Of his life, so pure and holy,
Of his death, his cross and crown.
Of his divine compassion,
Of his sacrifice for thee—
What will you do with with Jesus?
What shall the answer be?
—Nathaniel Norton, in Words and Weapons.

"WHILE WE HAVE TIME."

Once there was a man who had been made a minister, and he wanted to go as a missionary to some far-off country, that he might teach poor heathen people about the Lord Jesus Christ.

But this good young man was not very strong, and his friends were afraid he might soon die in the hetahen land, which was hot and unhealthy, so they tried to persuade him to stay at home.

The young minister asked his physician how long he thought he might live in India.

"Perhaps," said the doctor, "you may live seven years."

"Then I will go," said he; "for in seven years, by God's help, I may do much work for him."

So he went; and as he knew that his time must be short, he tried to spend every moment of it in serving God.

Even before he sailed away for India his friends used to call him "the man who never lost an hour," because he was so careful not to waste any of his precious time; but now he felt it to be still more precious.

In those seven years he did a great work for God indeed.

He preached to the poor heathen people, and taught them about the Lord Jesus; and he wrote the prayer book and the New Testament in their language, so that they could read and understand it.

People wondered that he could do so much. It was because his heart was full of love to God and love to the poor heathen and he remembered that "the time is short."

Let us pray God to-day "to stir up the wills of his people," that we may all "plenteously bring forth the fruit of good works," now, while we have time.
—Young Christian Soldier.

LIVES OF CELEBRATED MEN.

POLYCARP, BISHOP OF SMYRNA.

During the general persecution of the Christians under Marcus Aurelius, the Bishop of Smyrna was also doomed to a martyr's death. Many Christians had already been cast to wild beasts, agreeable to the savage desire of the people. Others had been burned at the stake. However, under the greatest tortures, they remained steadfast in their faith, quiet and resigned; for the Lord Jesus, whom they would not deny before men, was with them and proved himself more powerful than the pains of death. The congregation at Smyrna wrote to absent brethren: "They all showed that, under the tortures, they were absent from the body, or rather, that the Lord upheld them and was with them. Holding fast to the mercy of the Lord, they despised the tortures of the world."

The mad fury of the people was not yet satisfied when ordinary Christians died a martyr's death. Polycarp, the bishop, must also die. In loud words the people demanded his death. Polycarp heard it all. He commended his body and soul into the hands of God, and desired to await whatever might be in store for him. But his congregation insisted that he should flee to a retired country-seat. There, surrounded by a few friends, he spent his days and nights in earnest prayer. While thus engaged he had a visiou; he saw that his pillow was devoured by flames. He knew what this meant, and said: "I must be burned alive."

In a short time Polycarp's retreat was betrayed. He had scarcely fled to another place before the soldiers took the place whence Polycarp had fled. Not finding him, they apprehended two servants and compelled them, on the rack, to tell where their master tarried. About supper time the soldiers appeared at this latter place. Polycarp was on the flat roof of the house, and could have escaped on to the next roof and thence to the street. Instead of this he quietly said: "The will of the Lord be done." He surrendered himself to the soldiers, descended with them from the roof and had them served with supper. He asked for an hour of prayer. But for two hours his heart overflowed in prayer to his Redeemer, so that even the heathen soldiers were affected. Having finished his prayer, Polycarp was set upon an ass and taken to the city. On the way he was met by the judge and the judge's father. These took him into their vehicle and sought to persuade him to deny Christ. They said: "How can it be wrong to say, 'The emperor is our Lord,' and to offer to the idols? Polycarp heard them in silence. But, when they coutinued to urge him, he said: "I will not do that which you advise." Hereupon they were angry, and amid wild curses and abusive language, they threw the ninety-year old man out of their wagon in such a manner that he injured his leg severely. Polycarp quietly bore it all, and quickly accompanied the watch to the judgment place. Amid the wild cries of the people the governor of the city tried Polycarp. The governor said: "Think of your age; swear by the name of the emperor; curse Christ and I will release you." Polycarp auswered: "For eighty-six years have I served Christ. He has never done me ought but good. How can I curse him, my Lord and my Redeemer?"

The governor continued to urge him. Thereupon Polycarp said: "If you desire to know who I am, I shall tell you plainly. I am a Christian. Do you desire to know the doctrines of Christ, then appoint an hour and listen to me." To this the governor replied: "Persuade the people."

"I am bound to answer to you," said Polycarp, 'our religion teaches us to be subject to the powers that be, but it does not teach us to be subject to this rabble."

"I have wild beasts," replied the governor. "We have fire," said another, "if you will not yield." Polycarp answered: "You threaten with fire which lasts only for a moment, but you know nothing of the future judgment, and of the fire of eternal punishment which awaits the godless. But why do you delay? Do what seems good to you."

Confidence and joy shone forth from the countenance of Polycarp as he spoke thus. The governor was embarassed. Nevertheless he had a crier announce thrice that Polycarp had confessed himself a Christian. Thereupon the people, Jews and heathen, cried out in fury: "This is the teacher in Asia, the father of the Christians, the destroyer of our gods; it is he who has taught many that they should no more sacrifice or bring adoration." They all cried: "Burn him alive!" In great haste the people brought fuel. Soon the funeral-pile was constructed. Polycarp laid off his clothes. It was an unaccustomed task to loose his own shoes, for before the willing hands of the believers were ever ready to do this. When he was to be fastened to the stake he said: "Let me be as I am; for He who gives me strength to endure this fire, will also give me strength to stand in the fire without being nailed to a stake. With his hands ou his back he was tied to the stake. This being done, he prayed thus:

"Lord Almighty God, Father of thy dear Son, Jesus Christ, through whom we have come to a knowledge of thee, God of all creatures, I praise thee that thou hast deemed me worthy to see this day and hour, to be added to the number of thy witnesses, to share the cup of Christ. For this I praise thee, I laud thee, I extol thee through our eternal High Priest, Jesus Christ thy dear Son, through whom and the Holy Ghost, be glory unto thee now aud evermore. Amen.

This prayer being ended, the fire was kindled. But it seemed as though the flames were ashamed to touch so steadfast a confessor of his Lord. Like a sail swelled by the wind, the flame surrounded the martyr. His body shone like gold and silver that is tried in the furnace.

When the heathen perceived that his body was not burned, they pierced it with a sword in order to end his life. The corpse was then cast into the midst of the fire and was consumed.

The faithful members of Polycarp's congregation gathered what remains were to be found and buried them. They also annually celebrated the day on which their bishop was burned. They looked upon this day as upon Polycarp's heavenly birthday; since on it he had entered into the joys prepared by God for all who confess him unto the end.—Luth. Standard.

TEMPERANCE.

A WRITER in the New York Sun says that the owners of saloous always take it for granted that their bar-tenders will steal more or less out of the till. The liquor business generates an abnormal volume of profits, and the bar-tender acts on the theory that the golden stream flows for every one upon its charmed shores. No saloon-keeper is foolish enough to expect that his bar-tender will be honest; the most that he looks for is moderate thievery. The bar-tender's salary ranges from $30 to $150 per month, and as long as he does not steal more than $30 to $75 more, there is no complaiut. The writer estimates the profits of a "well-conducted" saloon at 100 to 120 per cent, not taking into consideration the pilferings of the bar-tenders.

WHEN Sir Peter Lumsden, the recalled British commander in Afghanistan, left England for that country, he took with him the following "supplies:" 300 dozens of champagne, 150 dozens of claret, 100 dozens of other wines, 100 dozens of brandy, 75 dozens of Irish whiskey, 75 dozens of Scotch whiskey, 200 dozens of English beer, and 200 dozens of German beer. When some curious inquirers asked what relation these fifteen thousand bottles of liquors had to preserving a favorable status of affairs, there was much heming and hawing, until at last it was explained that such luxuries could not be procured in Afghanistan, aud, besides, that it was intended that the natives should share in them. In other words, it was part of Sir Lumsden's mission to court the favor of the Afghans by presents of liquor. Such are the "resources of civilization!"

THE late Joseph John Gurney, a distinguished member of the society of Friends, and well known as a philanthropist and an author, gave the followiug excellent testimony: "I was one of those who, in a delicate state of health, believed it was scarcely possible to get along without the use of some strong drink in moderation. I took wine moderately; but being conscientiously persuaded that it was my duty to abstain from the use of liquor, I did so—not because I took a very high ground on the subject, but simply because I thought my example might possibly be beneficial to my friends and fellow-citizens, my fellow-countrymen and fellow-men. On this ground I felt I must not place a stumbling-block in the way of any weaker brother or sister; and after a trial of a year, or nearly so, I am enabled to say, and to say with thankfuluess, that I enjoy much better health and spirits than I did."

THE opponents of prohibition have been telling us how great a failure it is in Iowa. They say the saloons are running as usual, not having even the restraint of a license law; that public sentiment has changed, and that even the ministers are indifferent. Dr. Herrick Johnson shows that the reports are no more trustworthy than those we are in the habit of seeing of extensive liquor-selling in Maine. He has collected information from sources in which he has confidence, and gives as the result the following: Seven of the ninety-nine counties are admitted to have saloons in open operation; twenty-four are partly free and partly under saloon dominence; but in most of these counties the law is steadily gaining and the saloons are being driven out; in sixty-eight counties the law is enforced, and the report is "Saloon gone." "Law works. "Clear of the traffic," etc. This is a very satisfactory showing. Saloons only disappear as they are driven out existence; they have no regard for law; and if they have been driven out of seven-tenths of the counties of Iowa, and are being driven out of two-thirds of the remaining thirty counties, prohibition is doing all that could be expected of it. In some of the cities the saloons have been voluntarily paying money to the authorities as a sort of license fee, and have gone on without interference from the police—Independent..

THE receut assertion of Senator Hawley that he not only never saw General Logan drunk, but that he never saw him touch liquor of any kind, even on public occasions, and does not know whether he drinks at all, does not seem to stand very squarely on its feet, if the observations of the Chicago Herald can be accepted as trustworthy. A banquet was tendered to the General, in Chicago, a short time ago, and that paper in its report, said: "Through the two hours of eating and drinking General Logan carried on an animated conversation with all in his neighborhood. He drank freely of the good wine, his eyes twinkled, and the immaculate and expansive shirt front which his good wife had provided was soon wrinkled aud creased like a morning pillow. He ate heartily, talked rapidly, and appeared very happy."

THE CHURCHES.

—Dr. S. Collins and wife are now residing at 294 Park Avenue, N. J., he having agreed to labor for a time in the Hoboken congregation. He recently dispensed the Lord's supper to the few that are left of the once large and flourishing East 116th Street congregation, New York, reduced now by their recent troubles to a small number.

—Rev. J. W. McNary, formerly of Sparta, Ill., who was appointed missionary by the U. P. Assembly of the congregation of Oskosh, Wisconsin, has together with the congregation united with the Presbyterian church and severed their connection with the United Presbyterians. The Midland, with which Mr. McNary was connected as associate editor, announces the fact and the severance of his connection with that paper. The mission had been sustained for twenty-five years at a cost of $5,000 and seemed not to be successful.

—Rev. David Gregg, who has been fifteen years pastor of the 23rd street Reformed Presbyterian congregation, N. Y., recently accepted a call to the congregation of Pittsburg Pa., made vacant by the death of the lamented Dr. A. M. Milligan, and was released from his charge in New York. When the final time for parting came, minister and people found the process so painful that it was not to be endured. Dr. Gregg resigned from the church at Pittsburg, and on the evening of December 6th was reinstalled over his old church.

—The annual business meeting of the Chicago Avenue (Independent) church was held last week. The report of the clerk was read, showing the registry of the church to number 516 members, and giving an encouraging retrospect of the work for the past year. The treasurer reported the congregation out of debt, with $6.74 cash in the treasury, and $1,700 in uncollected pledges outstanding. The receipts for the year from collections, contributions, etc., amounted to $8,454.87. The superintendent gave an encouraging review of the Sunday-school work, and reported an average attendance for the year of 1,229 persons.

—A movement is on foot for the evangelization of the southwestern part of Philadelphia. It is under the auspices of a comittee of pastors, of which Dr. A. T. Pierson is chairman, and a committee of laymen, of which Mr. Wanamaker is chairman.

—Special meetings for young men, addressed by Mr. D. L. Moody, were held in the large hall of the new Y. M. C. A. building in Brooklyn, every evening from the 8th to the 15th inst. Mr. Sankey sang at every meeting with his old-time effect. Mr. Moody's sermons were especially adapted to young men. His discourses were wonderfully direct and practical, and at times sublimely earnest. Mr. E. W. Bliss, the well-known evangelist, conducted overflow meetings in the Fleet Street M. E. church. On Sunday Mr. Moody lectured on Daniel at 9 A. M., answered questions relating to Christian work up to 12 o'clock, held a meeting in the afternoon, gave a tea at 6 P. M., attended by about 200 Christian workers and young converts, and then addressed a crowded audience in the evening. The results of the work are difficult to estimate. As many as one hundred signified a desire to become Christians at one meeting, and fifty was not an uncommon number. The names and addresses have been secured of all persons conversed with at the inquiry meetings, who will be carefully followed up.

—William Carey, the shoemaker, the pioneer of modern missions, himself transalated the Bible into 40 tongues or dialects.

—At Princeton, Ky., 170 persons have publicly professed faith in Christ, and the Cumberland Presbyterian church has received large accessions.

—The greatest religious revival which has ever been known in the region of the Schoharie Valley has been in progress in several churches at Cobleskill, N. Y., for several weeks, under the direction of the well-known evangelist, Rev. A. B. Earle, of Boston. From the very first night people from every walk in life began to go forward to the altar for prayers, with the result that as many as three hundred have made professions of faith on a single night. The greater portion of the young men of the community have been converted, and the fire department of the place has given up its annual ball. A recent entertainment was patronized by only twelve persons, while the church could not half accomodate the crowds. Mr. Earle has left for other fields of labor, but the interest still prevails as deeply as ever. When Mr. Earle left on Thursday night a procession of young converts paraded the streets, and surrounding the evangelist, sang "Praise God from whom all blessings flow." It is said that seven hundred persons are on probation.

—Rev. Cyrus Prindle, D. D., one of the founders of the Wesleyan Church, and for years the editor of the American Wesleyan, died in Cleveland, Ohio, Dec. 1, broken down with age and infirmity.

—The British and Foreign Bible Society is about to publish its penny Testament in Welch. Nearly a million copies of the English edition have been sold this year.

—The signs of a powerful revival of religion in this city, says the New York Witness, are multiplying. One of the most interesting meetings was held on Sunday in the Young Men's Christian Association Hall, afternoon and evening. Missionaries from India, China and Siam, gave reports of their work, and several speakers took part in discussing medical missions, which appear to be gaining fast in the favor of missionary societies. Mr. Studd told the story of the English University athletes who had renounced the cricket-field for the missionary-field, a story which comes near to the patterns of Christian zeal given in the Acts of the Apostles.

—At Hoosick Falls, New York, all the church prayer-meetings are held on Thursday evenings. About two years ago the merchants of that place agreed to close their stores on that evening and it has become an established custom, highly satisfactory to all concerned. They assert that no money has been lost and that the attendance on the prayer-meetings has been largely increased.

—Says the Central Baptist: George Muller received last year for his orphan house at Ashley Downs, Bristol, England, $207,790 "in answer to prayer." No one was asked to give. Was not the fact that he was known to be praying for this object the strongest appeal that could be made?

—It is stated that the secession of the King of Tonga from the Australasian Conference, and his attempt to force his people into an independent Methodist church has proved a terrible experience. The old heathen spirit has been evoked and the island appears to be drifting back into irreligion, anarchy and bloodshed. The King's prime minister was formerly a Wesleyan missionary.

—A few years ago the Rev. Edward Judson, D. D., son of the great missionary to Burmah, left a very desirable charge at Orange, N. J., to undertake missionary work in New York. His efforts have been greatly blessed, and resulted in the founding of the Berean church, of which he is the pastor. During the past year 85 have been baptised, and 112 have become members. The membership is now 658. A meeting in connection with the church's work is held every evening.

—A missionary among the Hawaiian Islanders, in replying recently to a charge of heathen practices urged against a number of native converts, uttered a very disagreeable truth in the sentences; "Going back to ancient heathenism is not the danger to which the Hawaiians of to-day are exposed: the danger to which they are exposed rather being that they will drop down into modern heathenism, and become what the slums of our cities are—permanently sensual, vicious and criminal."

—The government of Siam, as is well-known, is evincing a remarkable interest in the work of Christian missionaries in that kingdom, and has shown marked favor toward them. Recently the Prime Minister and his sons and some young women visited the Presbyterian chapel at Petchaburi. He sat grave and silent throughout the service, including a sermon on the divinity of Christ, smoking cigarettes and chewing betel. The women were intensely interested. Before the Prime Minister sat some two hundred children which the mission is educating, clothing and feeding.

—A whole town of five hundred inhabitants on the coast of China, near Foochow, has adopted Christianity. In the suburbs was a mission chapel in charge of a native helper, and the town was occasionally visited by missionaries of the Church of England. Last summer the people became so angry with all foreigners on account of the troubles between France and China, that the missionaries were obliged to discontiue their visits; but the native preacher kept on his work earnestly and faithfully. In midsummer cholera came to the village in a very virulent form, and death followed death in quick succession. The terror-stricken people fled to their gods; but the one Christian besought them to come to the true God, who could hear their prayers and save them. Because of their despair they listened, and joined with him in asking God to stay the plague; and God honored their faith, imperfect though it was, and the plague was stayed that day. The people then held a conference, and as a town they resolved to accept the new religion, and worship the God who helped them. Although some have fallen away since, the majority remain steadfast, and have contributed more than a hundred dollars to build a chapel.—From the Chinese Recorder.

WEEK OF PRAYER.

Jan. 3-10, 1886.

Sermons:—Sunday, Jan. 3. "Occupy till I come." Luke 19: 13.

Monday, Jan. 4. Praise and Thanksgiving For the spirit of prayer; for the gift of the Holy Spirit to fill every humble heart; for the revival of the knowledge that God is willing to heal physical diseases as well as to forgive sins; for the increased opportunity to preach the Gospel to the heathen; and for the spread of Scriptural holiness among professed Christians.

Tuesday, Jan. 5. Humiliation and Confession. For the slaughter of the Chinese immigrants; for the continued insult and oppression of American laborers who will not join the despotic trades unions; for the mobbing, threatening and shooting of Christian men who dare to renounce the wicked oaths of the secret lodges and persuade others to follow their holy example; for mobbing and imprisoning members of the Salvation Army and other open air preachers of a free and pure Gospel.

Wednesday, Jan. 6. Home and Foreign Missions. That God would specially bless all missionaries with faith to trust him to give them sound bodies and the power of the Holy Ghost, to preach his Gospel, and that all missionaries warn the converted heathen not to be again ensnared by Satan in secret societies.

Thursday, Jan. 7. The Church and the Family. That the church of Christ may be freed from the mildew of sectarianism, worldly conformity, pride, ambition, formality and hypocrisy; that merrymaking, buffoonery, feasting, gambling may no more profane our houses of worship; that secret-lodge influence may cease to muzzle pastors and steal away the hearts of young men from loyalty to Christ; that the family may be delivered from the baneful gangrene of freelove, the club and the lodge.

Friday, Jan. 8. Nations and Governments. That all rulers may rule in the fear of the Lord and without partiality; that the laws may be executed for the punishment of rum-sellers and all other criminals, and for the protection of the innocent; that the way may be prepared for the coming of Christ in his kingdom.

Saturday, Jan. 9. The Christian Life. For an increase of faith and courage, especially of those who are called to preach the Gospel and edit religious papers; for more regard for the glory of our Saviour and the plain teaching of the Bible; and that all professed Christians may be led to renounce and denounce all secret societies.

Sunday, Jan. 10. Sermons:—"Let your loins be girded about and your lights burning and ye yourselves like unto men that wait for their Lord." Luke 12: 35-36.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.
THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year. clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

The Supreme Court of the United States has affirmed the judgment of the Supreme Court of Utah in the case of Angus M. Cannon, indicted under the Edmund's act for "unlawful cohabitation," and sentenced to pay a fine of $300 and be imprisoned for six months, and to be further imprisoned until the payment of the fine.

The Senate committee on claims report favorably a bill to refund to the States the interest on their war loans. The proposition is to pay 6 per cent on all such loans, provided the claim for it is put in within a year from the passage of the act.

President Cleveland on Wednesday appointed Hon. John Bigelow of New York United States Assistant Treasurer at that city, and Gen. Franz Sigel U. S. pension agent at New York.

Senator Edmunds has introduccd a bill to give Mrs. Grant the franking privilege and a pension of $5,000 a year, the same as was given to Mrs. Lincoln, and is now received by Mrs. Garfield and the widow of President Tyler.

The first bill to pass the Senate this session was upon motion of Senator Edmunds to remove the political disabilities of Gen. A. R. Lawton, of Georgia, who was nominated to Russia last Spring and declined because objection was made to him on this ground.

A joint resolution introduced in the Senate by Senator Jackson proposes an amendment to the Constitution of the United States providing that the President and Vice President shall hereafter be elected for a term of six years, and that they shall be ineligible to a re-election, and that the Vice President shall be ineligible to the office of President after he shall have filled the same in case of a vacancy.

COUNTRY.

B. Gratz Brown, candidate for Vice President on the Greeley ticket, ex-Governor of Missouri, and ex-U. S. Senator, died on Sunday in St. Louis, aged 59 years.

A terrible fight between a lion and an elephant in which the former was conquered and killed, took place last week in the winter quarters of a circus in Philadelphia.

Prof. Sh. Wethers, the colored principal of the Dallas colored schools, has undertaken the project of looking to the colonization of some 2,000 colored families in Brazoria county, Texas. He is to purchase one hundred thousand acres of land and divide it into fifty-acre farms. The Professor has many applications from Southern points.

Two lieutenants of police were dismissed at Cincinnati, Friday, for drunkenness. They had been paid the previous day and riotously celebrated the event.

The Singer sewing machine factory at Elizabethport, N. J., shut down on Friday afternoon, throwing 2,500 operatives out of employment. The company owe the city $20,000 taxes and refuses to pay.

A constable who attempted to levy on the property of the Rev. Father Berupe at East Dubuque, Ill., Friday morning, was locked up and kept prisoner by the priest for several hours, and when released was not permitted to take any property. A warrant was sworn out against the reverend gentleman for resisting an officer.

Joel Anderson and Laurel Baugh were recently tried for murder at Carrollton, Mo., convicted, and sentenced to life imprisonment. Securing a new trial, they were again convicted, Thursday, and sentenced to death.

At McKenzie, Tenn., Thursday night Edward McGhee, a student, aged 17, while illustrating to Miss Jessie Clark, 16 years old, how a Mississippian once killed his sweetheart, discharged what he supposed to be an unloaded revolver, killing Miss Clark instantly. The girl's father says the shooting was premeditated, and the coroner's jury failed to agree upon a verdict.

Eight Chinamen at El Paso, Texas, took out naturalization papers Friday, and it is alleged to be the purpose of the 200 Chinese in that town to become American citizens.

An organization called the Wanderer's Home has been incorporated in Chicago, the object of which is to aid worthy but unemployed and homeless men in obtaining work and furnish them with food and shelter until such employment has been found. Money is being raised to crect a house with ample accommodations.

Water flowing from a pool on the surface Friday flooded No. 1 slope of the Susquehanna Coal Company's mine at Naticoke, Pa., in which there were at the time nearly 1,000 men and boys. All made hurried escape save a band of thirty men, who were cut off by the water and an accumualtion of rubbish.

An explosion of gas in the Mill Creek mine, near Wilksbarre, Pa., Monday morning, injured twenty persons. One of the victims died after being taken out, and three others can not survive.

A Georgia Pacific Railway train, freight and passenger, stopped at midnight, Monday, on a trestle fifteen miles from Atlanta, to obtain water. An East Tennessee train, going at the rate of thirty miles per hour, dashed into the standing train, telescoping the sleeper. The escaping steam and boiling water soon flooded the car, scalding to death ten persons. Six others, one of whom has since died, were fatally scalded, portions of their bodies been lerterally boiled. About a dozen others were maimed or burned in a painful manner.

Of the twenty-five persons who attended the Weitzel family party Thanksgiving night, at New York, seventeen are now suffering from trichiniasis. The six members of the Weitzel family are very ill and three of them may not recover.

Delegate Micco, second chief of the Creek Nation, said at St. Louis Thursday that a fair offer from the National Government for the purchase of the Oklahoma lands would probably be accepted by the Indians.

A negro living near Cartersville, Ga., was caught by a train Monday evening on the high bridge spanning the Etowah river. To save his life he jumped ninety feet to the ice-covered water below, and escaped unhurt,

In a suit against a railway at Lafayette, Ind., for $10,000 damages as compensation for injuries received in an accident the defendants proved that plaintiff, at the time of the disaster, was standing in the car illustrating to a companion the doings of a commedian. The judge ruled that seats are not only for the convenience but for the safety of travelers, and that the plaintiff by leaving his seat for amusement endangered his person. The jury found for the railway company.

Mrs. Miner, living at Long Prairie, near Olympia, W. T., saturated her dwelling Tuesday night with coal oil and applied a match early Wednesday morning, the woman and four children perishing in the flames. Mr. Miner and another child barely escaped. The woman had shown symptoms of insanity for a long time.

FOREIGN.

Bulgaria has accepted the proposal of the powers for an international commission to demarcate the Bulgaro-Servian frontier under certain reservations. She wishes the commission to consider fairly the recent victories of the Bulgarian army.

A dispatbh from Belgrace says the weather is intensely cold throughout the region, and the soldiers at the front are suffering intensely from it, A number of Servian soldiers have been frozen to death while asleep.

The Baltic canal, which the German government is about to construct, will accommodate the largest vessels. It is estimated that 18,000 vessels will pass through it yearly. There will be a saving of twenty-four hours in going from London to Baltic ports. The dues will be about 9 pence per ton. The work will be finished in seven years.

Louis Kossuth, tke Hungarian patriot, in an interview, says that Austria ought to promote the growth of independent States in the Balkans and ought to cede Bosnia and Herzegovina to Servia.

At a conference at Liverpool of the Atlantic steamship companies it was decided that the present freight rates were profitless. An advance of 50 per cent is probable.

A Berlin nawspaper states that England and Italy will take joint action on Soudan, and that an Italian army corps will be dispatched to Suakim shortly.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the Unite States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size..... $1 00
No. II. Medium size..... 1 50
No. III. Large size..... 2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners..... $1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant..... 2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,

Toronto Willard Tract Depository,
TORONTO, CANADA.

Business University, Established 35 Years. INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Every possible facility for acquiring a thorough practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free. TOOOR, HEEB & KEDKAN, Proprietors.

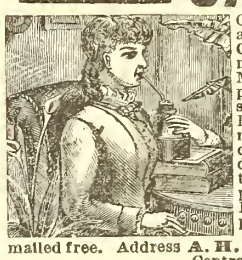
1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886. Send for particulars.
H. G. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street, Chicago.

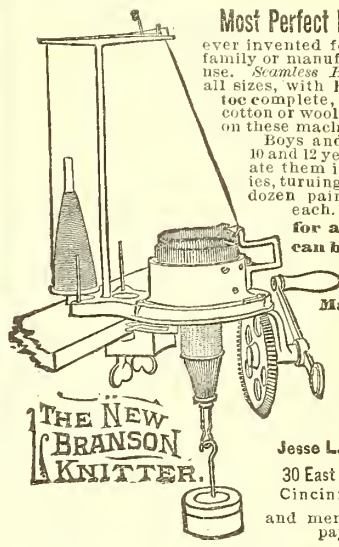
Readings and Recitations!

100 CHOICE SELECTIONS No. 24 NOW READY.



This number is uniform with the Series, and contains another HUNDRED splendid Declamations and Readings, combining Sentiment, Oratory, Pathos, Humor, Fun. 216 pages. Price 30cts., postpaid. Sold by Booksellers. Every boy who speaks pieces, every member of a Lyceum who wants Something New should get the whole set, 24 Nos. only $4.80. Every number different. Nothing repeated. Club rates and full list of contents free. P. GARRETT & CO., 708 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Also, MODEL DIALOGUES, 332 pages, $1.

KNIGHT TEMPLARISM ILLUSTRATED.



A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the Council and Commandery, comprising the degrees of Royal Master, Select Master, Super-Excellent Master, Knight of the Red Cross, Knight Templar and Knight of Malta. A book of 341 pages. In cloth, $1.00; $8.50 per dozen. Paper covers, 50c; $4.00 per dozen. Furnished in any quantities at

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Most Perfect Knitter

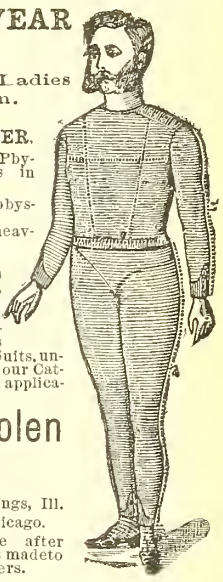
ever invented for either family or manufacturers' use. Seamless Hoisery of all sizes, with heel and toe complete, of either cotton or wool, are knit on these machines.

Boys and girls of 10 and 12 years operate them in factories, turning out four dozen pairs a day each. A living for a family can be made with one of these Machines.

For descriptive circulars giving full particulars. Address Jesse L. Branson, 30 East Fourth St., Cincinnati, O., and mention this paper.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)



For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.

System:

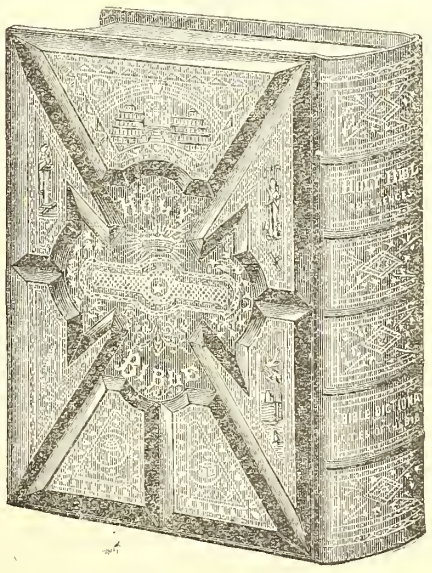
PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health
Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors, Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.



Factory: Western Springs, Ill.
Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure Special prices made to clergymen and the workers.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

SPECIAL OFFER.
PICTORIAL FAMILY BIBLE,

with the following valuable and indispensable illustrative and descriptive features:

(This cut is a fac-simile of the cover).

A Complete Household Dictionary of the Bible.
A Complete History of the Books of the Bible.
Scenes and events in the Life of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, and the Apostles.
Religious Denominations of the World, a Full and Authentic Account of their Creeds and Formation.
Illustrations of the Prominent Events in the Life of St. Paul.
Cities of the Bible with Magnificent Views and Descriptive Scenes and Eveuts in Palestine and other Bible Lands, with nearly Fifty Engravings.
Comprehensive Helps to the Study of the Bible.
A History of all the Existing Religious Denominations.
The History of the Translation of the English Bible
A Chronological Index to the Holy Bible.
Alphabetical Table of the Proper Names in the Old and New Testament.
A Comprehensive and Critical Description of the Tabernacle and its Sacred Furniture.
The Holy Land, with Maps and Panoramic Views of the Country.
Scripture Illustrattons.
Bird's Eye View of the Holy Land.
Beautiful Illuminations of the Lord's Prayer and Ten Commandments.
Illustrations of the Trees, Plants and Flowers of the Bible, Fac-similies of Ancient Coins, including the Hebrew, Greek and Roman Coins.
Tables of Scripture Measures, Weights and Coins.
A Complete Concordance.
And many other important and useful aids to the tudy of the Holy Scriptures.

THE ONLY FAMILY BIBLE PUBLISHED CONTAINING
The Revised New Testament and the King James Version arranged in parallel columns for comparison and reference.

Illustrated with Two Thousand Fine Engravings.

The Engravings alone are worth the Price of the Book.
On receipt of $7.30 we will send this book by mail or express to any one. Why pay a subscription publisher $15.00 when you can save $7.70 by sending to us?

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO., 147 La Salle Street, Chicago.

HOME HINTS.

IN CASE OF FIRE.

A writer in the Lutheran Home and another in the Lutheran Times make many valuable suggestions, some of which we copy. If these suggestions were observed in case of fire, lives might often be saved which would, without the presence of mind so necessary under circumstances of peril, almost certainly be lost. The one thing, above all others, which is most necessary for saving life and property in case of fire is that which, alas, is generally wanting—namely, presence of mind. And surely it is never more needful than in dealing with cases of fire arising from the carelessness of others.

Presence of mind is greatly dependent on knowing what is best to be done under conditions of alarm or danger. If this knowledge is acquired, a very moderate amount of courage and some common sense will enable persons to act with discretion and consequent safety in very trying circumstances.

In reading the details of an inquest held on the unfortunate victim of a fire at a celebrated mansion the other day, one was forcibly struck with the entire absence of this presence of mind in every one concerned. If the fire was caused by the upset lamp, and the victim had had the knowledge, the self possession, and quickness to draw the blankets from her bed in the same room, to throw them on the fire and afterward to saturate them with water, the fire would never have spread and she would not have lost her life.

In a large private house, containing a great many persons, two ladies occupied the bed-room behind the drawing-room, into which it opened by folding doors. One cold winter morning as they were dressing they could hear the noise made by the household in the adjoining room, in rubbing and polishing the floor with turpentine and beeswax. It ceased for some time and one of the ladies opened a leaf of the folding doors to see why. No one was in the room. The maid had been called off in a hurry and had left her earthen jar full of mixed turpentine and beeswax on the hob. It had just caught fire and presented an awful blaze to the horrified lady. Her exclamation brought her friend and both looked aghast at the now roaring conflagration.

"Draw the bath as near the door as you can," said the younger lady, and as her friend turned to execute her behest, she with the aid of a thick towel took up the jar and carried it, all flaring as it was, slowly and steadily into the next room, where she quietly stood it, upright still, in the center of the tin bath, which her friend had filled with water. The great danger was now over, but there still remained the dread that the boiling fluid might overflow on the surface of the water, but a heavy wet towel soon smothered the flames and disposed of this fear.

Now, this was exactly one of the accidents which lead to great fires in the lack of presence of mind in the discoverers.

Some years ago a young woman friend of mine, lately married, was standing, one hot summer's day in front of the mantle, sealing a letter at a lighted candle. She was dressed in a thin muslin gown, widely distended by crinoline, and when she let fall a flaming drop of wax on the front of her dress, "the flames," as she afterward described it "blazed up in her face in a moment." She retreated a step or two, fell on her knees and gathered the thick hearth rug closely about her, thus smothering the fire completely. A short time after, she was found by her horrified husband lying on the floor with the rug still wrapped around her, unhurt but quite insensible.

In many of the newspapers not very long ago there appeared the story of a similar accident to a young girl with a different ending. The inflammable agent in this case was a lighted match. Frightened beyond measure, the unfortunate girl rushed from the room and down a long passage—the flames becoming greater and fiercer every moment—and out into the open air through a garden door, in the hope of reaching a pond which was in the orchard below. It was of no avail, for she was so severely burnt that no life was perceptible when a short time after she was taken out of the shallow water.

In the case of either a chimney or a room catching fire, the first thing to be thought of is to exclude all draughts, for it is certain that the slightest current of air will increase the force of the fire. All the doors and windows should be shut at once, and if the chimney be on fire, a wet blanket or table cover should be immediately fastened to the top of the mantlepiece so as exclude all draughts from the opening of the chimney and entirely enclose the grate, shutting the trap first, if possible. This will in most cases make the fire go out of itself. You may throw into the grate a few handfuls of salt. Water should never be thrown down from above as it spoils the carpets and furniture unnecessarily.

If the window or bed curtains catch fire, beat them with the thickest woolen garment you can lay your hands upon. Window curtains can in most cases be torn down with a violent jerk, and this will prevent the flames from extending to the wood-work.

In escaping from a burning house or room, remember that the air nearest the floor is clearest, and go on your hands and knees at once. A wet cloth or handkerchief tied over the mouth and nose keeps out smoke, will help the breathing and prevent suffocation.

If in a bed-room, saturate a blanket with the water available, and crawl on your hands and knees, thus escaping from the thickest of the smoke which ascends, approach the seat of the fire and endeavor to stifle or beat out the flame. A wet blanket, or even a dry one speedily used, will extinguish many a small conflagration, such, for instance, as an upset lamp, by excluding the air, and will be far more efficacious than water thrown on for that purpose. Its use also prevents damage to furniture.

When the alarm of fire is given, if in bed wrap yourself in a blanket, which will form the best protection from the chance of ignition. A blanket wetted and wrapped round the body will enable a person to pass through a sheet of flame in comparative safety. Should a lady's dress catch fire, let the wearer at once lie down; rolling may extinguish the fire, but if not anything (woolen preferred) wrapped tightly around, will effect the desired purpose.

Keep calm, and endeavor to remember the different exits from the house, where they are and how to reach them. If you cannot attain any of them, try to get to a front room as near the ground as possible. Collect the household there and close the drafts. In making your escape it is well to study the direction of the wind. In case of fire burning with the wind, that is taking that direction, it is well to select a spot where the wind will help your escape by blowing the fire and smoke away from rather than upon you.

Every householder should define a line of action to be followed in case of fire. Those without any mechanical means of saving life should provide a piece of rope of sufficient length to reach from roof to basement. A strong belt made fast to one end, should, when used, be buckled around the body under the arms of the person to be lowered. One end can be secured by fastening it once or twice around and then will pay itself out when slackened. By this means one person can lower all others to the ground and escape himself by making the rope permanently fast and sliding down it.

An old gentleman I once heard of used to drill his children into how to act in case of fire. Each of them had a special office allotted him—one to wake and count the household, and to give the alarm; a second to find the cause of the fire, and if possible to put it out, to bring water, and otherwise help in extinguishing it; a third to take charge of plate and other valuables, and to convey everything possible to a place of safety. Their father used to declare that, so well were they drilled, he had tested them by false alarms in the middle of the night and found them quite equal to the occasion.

In mansions and large houses, buckets of water should be placed on every floor, and kept for use in case of fire only.

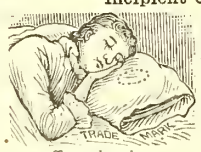
Be very careful with the available water, especially so where the quantity is limited. An ordinary jug of water may be sufficient to extinguish a body of flames if judiciously used.

The servants in all establishments fitted with hydrants, and hose or other fire brigade appliances, should be occasionally practiced in a fire drill, sudden alarm always being resorted to for the practice.

It is well to whiten the roofs of houses in summer weather, in order to lessen the great heat in the lofts, which renders rafters and woodwork generally, exceedingly dry.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE,
Unequaled.

DR. R. M. ALEXANDER, Fannettsburg, Pa., says: "I think Horsford's Acid Phosphate is not equaled in any other preparation of phosphorus.



FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE
TAYLOR'S
CHEROKEE

REMEDY
—OF—
SWEET GUM
—AND—
MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!
"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."
THE PILLOW-INHALER.
A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH.
BRONCHITIS.
CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."
E. L. HEDDEN, 38 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELE, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

DR. CONANT'S
CompoundVaporBaths
FOR HOME USE.
Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.
Ladies—Room 5.
Gents—Room 6.
Call or send for circular.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper cover, 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.
All orders promptly filled by the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

A WOMAN'S VICTORY;
OR
THE QUERY OF THE LODGEVILLE CHURCH

BY JENNIE L. HARDIE.

This simple and touching story which was lately published in the Cynosure is now ready for orders in a beautiful pamphlet. It is worth reading by every Anti-mason—and especially BY HIS WIFE. Get it and take it home to cheer the heart of your companion who may desire to do something for Christ against great evils, but is discouraged from making any public effort. PRICE, FIFTEEN CENTS. Ten for a dollar

Wonderful Woman,
A Wonderful Life,
AND A Wonderful Book.

Laura S. Haviland is a quiet, gentle, unassuming Quaker woman, 76 years of age, yet vigorous, who has had a remarkable career of usefulness, and has now given to the world a remarkable history of her "Life Work" as a teacher, at an early day, of the colored refugees in Canada and in Michigan, and in other States, as a traveler down South in the guise of a "berry picker," helping out into freedom many slaves; as a nurse and preacher to the sufferers in hospitals during the war; and with Gov. St. John and Flizabeth Comstock, relieving the destitute and suffering refugees in Kansas, etc.

Her book is neither fiction nor founded on fiction, but is an interesting narration of facts of a most thrilling character, as every one will find and testify who will get and read her book, now on sale at the Cynosure office, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill. Price, cloth, $1,75; half Russia, $2.25.

Sunday-School Papers.
MONTHLY.

THE PEARL,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts

THE LILY,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts

PURE WORDS,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter, ... 2 1-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.

SUNSHINE,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 2 1-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.

Single subscriptions for either one of the above papers, one year, 25 cts.

We have excellent facilities for furnishing Sunday-School Supplies of every description including trade papers at publishers' prices. If you wish any publication send to us for it.
T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.
106 Franklin street, Chicago, Ill.

STANDARD
ILLUSTRATED RITUALS!
Complete WORK and "SECRETS"!
Revised Odd-fellowship; Freemasonry, 7 degrees; Knight Templarism 8th to 14th Masonic degrees. Three volumes, $1 each. Knights of Pythias, 25 cents. Also other illustrated rituals, sent post paid. Catalogues free. National Christian Association, 221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

OUR CLUB LIST

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

IN THE COILS;
— OR —
The Coming Conflict

A NEW AND STRANGE STORY BASED ON STARTLING FACTS, VIVIDLY PORTRAYING A MYSTERIOUS AND DANGEROUS POWER AT WORK IN THE GOVERNMENT, THE CHURCH, AND THE HOME.

"All will agree that this is a powerfully written story."—Evangelist, (Chicago, Ills.)

"A book which we trust may have a wide circulation."—National Baptist, (Philadelphia.)

"So intensely interesting did I find it that it was hard to pause until the last sentence was read. This work places the author high among the writers of fiction."—W. W. Barr, D. D. in Christian Instructor, (Philadelphia.)

"Unless we are greatly mistaken, the work will do more to awaken the American church and people to the evils of Freemasonry than any other book recently published."—Evangelical Repository.

"The book will create a sensation in Masonic circles, and evoke criticism of a most relentless character. The courage of the author in attacking such a rock-rooted bulwark as Freemasonry is something to admire, Fanatic though he be."—Nebraska Watchman.

"Light is needed on this subject and needed badly, and we welcome this contribution to the literature of anti-secretism, and cordially commend it to the favorable attention of our readers."—United Presbyterian, (Pittsburgh.)

"A charming work, fit to be classed with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin;' it is indeed less a work of fiction. The volume is as valuable as a work of reference as it is agreeable, truthful and useful. Our young folks will not leave the book, if they begin it, till they 'see how it turns out.'"—Cynosure, (Chicago, Ills.)

Thick paper, beautifully bound, 352 pages, sent to any address for $1.50. AGENTS WANTED

FINNEY ON MASONRY.

The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cl'th, 75c; per dozen $7.50. Paper cover 35c; per dozen, $3.50.

No Christian's library is complete without it. Send for a copy in cloth and get a catalogue of books and tracts sold by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO.

MASONIC OATHS,

BY

E. Ronayne,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

A masterly discussion of the Oaths of the Masonic Lodge, to which is appended "Freemasonry at a Glance," illustrating every sign, grip and ceremony of the Masonic Lodge. This work is highly commended by leading lecturers as furnishing the best arguments on the nature and actual character of Masonic obligations of any book in print. Paper cover, 207 pages. Price, 40 cents.

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

LUCILLE VERNON.

Cloth.....75 cents.

THIS is a pleasant surprise in many ways. The author is Rev. W. T. Meloy, of the United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and the book is published by the Board of Publication of his denomination. It is a love story, not "fascinating," but with so much of genial interest that the reader is in no danger of laying it down unfinished. * * * The moral purpose of the book is to describe and vindicate Christian character, in its more heroic aspects, and it is a success. We congratulate the author and the United Presbyterian Board of Publication on this literary lily of the valley.—The Interior.

"LUCILLE VERNON" is evidently not an ideal sketch, but the fictitious names used represent to a great extent real men and women of flesh and blood. The characters of many of them are by no means attractive, but are perfect counterparts of querulous, obstinate and parsimonious professors who are thorns in the flesh of many a pastor in all the churches. But as in all the churches, there were also good and true men and women at Lansington, who upheld and encouraged the pastor. * * * In its author will be recognized the worthy pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and a welcome contributor to these columns.—United Presbyterian.

The heroine, who becomes the bride of the pastor of the church at Lansington, is a wonderful exemplification of how a woman who is a true wife and help-meet may throw her life and energies into the great work of saving souls; aiding, by gentle words and sympathy, wise counsel and brave endurance, the husband having charge of a congregation where the Demon of Misrule held full sway. We follow with interest the history of the wife and husband through their hours of despondency and discouragement to the happy ending, where religion, harmony and peace have gained the ascendency and the good man and wife find their reward.—Pittsburgh Daily Telegraph.

MAH-HAH-BONE,

COMPRISING IN ONE VOLUME,

HAND BOOK

OF

Freemasonry,

Which gives the correct or "standard" work and ritual of Masonry; the proper position of each officer in the Lodge room, order of opening and closing the Lodge, dress of candidate, ceremony of initiation, the oaths, the proper manner of giving the signs, grips, etc., are fully illustrated and explained:

The Master's Carpet

Which explains the true source and meaning every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, by showing the principles on which the order is founded: and

FREEMASONRY
AT A GLANCE,

Which illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge, and gives a brief explanation of each, making a most valuable compilation of information concerning Masonry. Bound in fine cloth covers. 589 pages. Price $1 00. Address,

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

FREEMASONRY
AT A GLANCE,

BY

E. RONAYNE,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

Illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge and gives a brief explanation of each. This work should be scattered like leaves all over the country. It is so cheap that it can be used as tracts, and money thus expended will bring a bountiful harvest. 32 pages. Price, postpaid, 6 cents. Per 100. $3.50. Address,

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Facts Stated.

HON. THURLOW WEED ON THE MORGAN ABDUCTION.

This is a sixteen page pamphlet comprising a letter written by Mr. Weed, and read at the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of Capt. William Morgan. The frontispiece is an engraving of the monument. It is a history of the unlawful seizure and confinement of Morgan in the Canandaigua jail, his subsequent conveyance by Freemasons to Fort Niagara, and drowning in Lake Ontario. He not only subscribes his NAME to the letter, but ATTACHES HIS AFFIDAVIT to it.

In closing his letter he writes: I now look back through an interval of fifty-six years with a conscious sense of having been governed through the "Anti-Masonic excitement" by a sincere desire, first, to vindicate the violated laws of my country, and next, to arrest the great power and dangerous influences of "secret societies."

The pamphlet is well worth perusing, and is doubtless the last historical article which this great journalist and politician wrote. [Chicago, National Christian Association.] Single copy, 5 cents.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. Send for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

A NEW

Anti-masonic Scrap-book.

A neat pamphlet, comprising forty-three tracts against secret orders, published by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. It contains some of the MOST POWERFUL ARGUMENTS put in brief form, written by men of distinguished ability, showing the evil nature and dangerous tendency of secret societies. Those who circulate tracts need the book to make their selections wisely.

Send for a copy to Anti-masonic headquarters, the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO. Price, 25 cents.

Five Dollar
LIBRARY.

"The Broken Seal."
"The Master's Carpet."
"In the Coils, or The Coming Conflict."
"The Character, Claims and Practical Workings of Freemasonry," by Pres. C. G. Finney.
"Revised Odd-fellowship," the secrets, together with a discussion of the character of the order.
"Freemasonry Illustrated," the secrets of first seven degrees, together with a discussion of their character.
"Sermons and Addresses on Secret Societies;" a valuable collection of the best arguments against secret orders from Revs. Cross, Williams, McNary, Dow, Sarver, Drury, Prof. J. G. Carson, and Prests. George and Blanchard.

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

BATAVIA CONVENTION PAMPHLET.

A Staggering Blow!

Such was to Freemasonry the great NATIONAL CONVENTION held in BATAVIA, N. Y., September 1882. It gave the world

Thurlow Weed's Great Letter

On the abduction and murder of WILLIAM MORGAN in 1826, which has been the most widely published of any Anti-masonic document. The dedication of a noble granite monument to the memory of Morgan, and the able and eloquent addresses of the Convention make this a most valuable pamphlet

SEE WHY.

It contains—
1. Portrait of Morgan.
2. Portrait of Thurlow Weed.
3. Fine picture of the Monument
4. The great letter of Thurlow Weed and his affidavit—almost the last public act of his life.
5. Address by J. E. Roy, D.D.
6. The monument oration by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.
7. Addresses on "Christian Politics" by Pres. J. Blanchard, on the Character of Freemasonry by Prof. E. D. Bailey, on the "Freedmen and Secret Societies" by Rev. H. H. Hinman; and very interesting personal and historical reminiscences.

READ ABOUT THIS GREAT HISTORICAL MEETING.

A handsome pamphlet. Price, 25 cents, postpaid. Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

BIRNEY.

The sketch of JAMES G. BIRNEY, candidate of the Liberty Party for President, in pamphlet for 25 cents. A limited number of copies of this handsome pamphlet for sale at the N. C. A. office.

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc. of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 90 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.

For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature. 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—
Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.

SING THEM!

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.

Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE BROKEN SEAL;

Or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene.

One of the most interesting books ever published. In cloth, 75 cents; per dozen, $7.50. Paper covers, 40 cents; per dozen, $3.50.

This deeply interesting narative shows what Masonry has done and is capable of doing in the Courts, and how bad men control the good men in the lodge and protect their own members when guilty of great crimes. For sale at 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Sibley's Tested Seeds
Catalogue free on application. Send for it.
HIRAM SIBLEY & CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

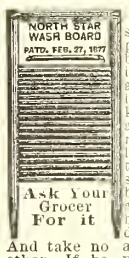
IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.
Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.
BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY
sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing. Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.



CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Gilt Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Songster, 1850 Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts.
IVY CARD Co., Clintonville, Conn.

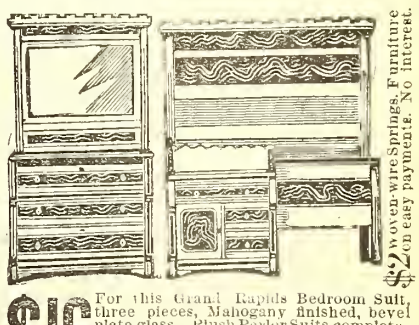
150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts.
TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days. No pain. Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.
DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a washboard which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long. We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.



And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability.

The best is the cheapest.

Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY
PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.
82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

Woven-wire Springs. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.

An elegant and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NOTICE.

The Cynosure of December 10th and 17th failed to reach quite a number of subscribers, and the fault was due, doubtless, in a large degree to the party who did the printing and mailing. There are no extra copies, hence the only way to send the Cynosure to those who have not received it will be through the generosity of those who, having read their copies, will return them to this office and then they will be forwarded to those from whom a notice has been received that their copies have failed to come to hand.

To those so kind as to return their copies, an allowance of five cents per copy will be made if they will note in their subsequent orders for Cynosure or books that they returned their Dec. 10th and 17th Cynosure to this office.

The Christian Cynosure is sent to some who have never subscribed for it, by some friend in order that you may become acquainted with its principles, and if possible that you may be led to hearty co-operation in its work. You will be notified when the time paid for has expired, and you will not be called upon to pay for any copies you may receive.

FOR NEW YEAR'S GIFTS is there any book better than Mrs. Haviland's "Life Work," or Miss Flagg's "Between Two Opinions," or those in our catalogue? If, however you wish any book published, write to us and it will be furnished you by the National Christian Association, 221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

We trust that the complaints of the past two weeks from subscribers who have failed to receive the Cynosure will not occur again, as we have given the contract for printing and mailing the paper to another firm which we hope will remedy the evil. Read the notice in another column.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

Names of those sending in cash for Cynosure from Dec. 14 to 19 inclusive:

Edward Walker, Albert Holt, P H Parker, National Home Reading Room, D S Dean, A Merrill, Jane B Liggett, S C Buck, Levi Anderson, Marshall Root, O C Blanchard, Frank W Smith, J Talbot, James A Learn, Jarvis Gage, A N Peters, J G Mattoon, Myron H Clark, Martin Myers, A B Markle, N Miner, D Simon, Isaac Crawford, John W Plummer, J P Richards, Mrs W J Stone, Wm Barnlund, Chs R Hunt, B F Searles, Sub'n News Co, Stephen Grover, Philo Carpenter, J C Young, J N Norris, C A Blanchard, W S Titus, J H Hunting, Dr Wm Traer, Thos Fraser, Thos Freeman, Wm Heldman, Jno P Blake, J Cochran, T W Palmer, Mrs R R De Long, Wm Hargrave, J A Richards, Jno Morrison, Mrs L H Nutting, Eld Wm Plant, J W Allen, J E Matthews, S J Hayes, Jno Pikaart, Jos Powers, Wm Slosson, Jno Pierce, Wesley Richie, P Ohlson, H Hawkins.

No opium in Piso's Cure for Consumption. Cures where other remedies fail. 25c

500,000
READERS.

THE WEEKLY INTER OCEAN closed its first year with 10,0,0 subscribers. It closes its fourteenth year with 110,000.

The paper has grown steadily and rapidly in popular favor until it has a reading constituency of 500,000,

Because it has been for fourteen years

THE BEST NEWSPAPER,
THE BEST REPUBLICAN PAPER,
THE BEST FAMILY PAPER,
THE BEST SOLDIER'S PAPER,
THE BEST FARMER'S PAPER

In the United States, and has been growing better every year.

AMONG ITS SPECIALTIES ARE

Stories by the best American Authors

INCLUDING

Elizabeth Stuart Phelps, Frank R. Stockton,
Charles Egbert Craddock, Sarah Orne Jewett,
Julian Hawthorn, G. P. Lathrop,
J. T. Trowbridge, H. H. Boyesen,
And Others.

Illustrated Letters by Jenny June; Letters to a Mugwomp, by the author of the Siva Letters; Letters from Abroad by Theodore Stanton, Wm. E. Curtis and others; Woman's Kingdom; Our Curiosity Shop; Curb-stone Crayons, (soldier and other anecdotes); Illustrated Biographies; Farm and Home; General Literature.

THE INTER OCEAN

Is the only Political and Literary Weekly that aims to cover each week the whole field of Home and Foreign News. It tells every week the story of that week, clearly and fully.

The price of the WEEKLY INTER OCEAN is only $1 per year, postage prepaid.

The SEMI-WEEKLY INTER OCEAN is published every Monday and Thursday.

In addition to the features mentioned above, this edition every Monday contains the sermons of Prof. Swing and other leading divines. The price of the SEMI WEEKLY INTER OCEAN is $2.50 a year, postage prepaid.

THE INTER OCEAN offers a number of premium combinations, which we believe to be the best ever offered by a newspaper. Below we give a sample of them:

THE WEEKLY INTER OCEAN one year and	Book alone.
Law and Lawyers	$1 80	$1 20
Needle Work, by Jenny June	1 35	50
Knitting and Crochet by Jenny June	1 35	50
Boys' Useful Pastimes	1 65	1 00
Famous People of All Ages	1 35	50
Talks with Homely Girls	1 35	50
Burt's Selected Gems of Song	1 35	50
Boggs' Calculator and Account Book	1 35	75
National Standard Encyclopedia	1 60	1 00
National Standard Dictionary	1 50	90
Lives of our Presidents	1 75	1 00
Popular History of Civil War	1 75	1 00
Ladies' Manual	1 35	50
Mythological Dictionary	1 35	50
Dictionary of Synonyms	1 35	50
Usages of Best Society	1 35	50
What Everyone Should Know	1 56	85
Dr. Danelson's Medical Adviser	1 80	1 10
Inter Ocean Watch	3 50	3 50
Little Detective Scale	3 00	2 80
Family or Union Scale	4 25	4 00
Our Curiosity Shop	1 25	30

To find the price of the SEMI-WEEKLY with any of the combinations, add $1.50 to the combination price for the WEEKLY.

THE INTER OCEAN has subscribers in every State and Territory in the Union. It paid postage on circulation in 1884 to the amount of $25,-$21 62.

The price of THE DAILY INTER OCEAN, exclusive of the Sunday Edition, is $10 per year, postage prepaid.

Sample copies of any edition sent on application. Remittances may be made at our risk, either by draft, express, post-office order, or registered letter. Money sent in any other way is at the risk of the person sending it. Address

THE INTER OCEAN,
85 Madison Street, Chicago

MISCELLANEOUS.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

MARSHALL FIELD &Co.

State and Washington-sts.

Announce Themselves as

Fully Prepared in Every Department

FOR THE

HOLIDAY SHOPPING SEASON.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN & FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

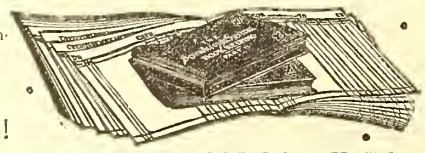
It has a record of 18,000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.

The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published. THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM. Finely illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!

We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient) in preference to stamps, and address



The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,
Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.
ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the

SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking,

$1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treatise on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING,
SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price, 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited,

$50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

☞ We offer the Christian Cynosure for one year and Webster's Practical Dictionary, postpaid, both for only $2.00. W. I. PHILLIPS.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

UNEQUALLED FOR CEMENTING WOOD, GLASS, CHINA, PAPER, LEATHER, &c. Awarded GOLD MEDAL, LONDON, 1883. Used by Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Co., Pullman Palace Car Co., &c. Mf'd only by the RUSSIA CEMENT CO., GLOUCESTER, MASS. SOLD EVERYWHERE. ☞ Sample Tin Can by Mail, 25c.

FREE $2 SAMPLES

fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 15 — CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1885. — WHOLE No. 818.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
Elder David Bernard..... 8
Editorial Correspondence. 8
The Church Conference... 4
CONTRIBUTIONS:
Christmas..... 1
The Great Apostacy of the Latter Days—I..... 2
Good-bye and Welcome (Poetry)..... 5
SELECTED:
Reminiscences of David Bernard..... 9
TEMPERANCE:
A Sermon of Eighty Years Ago..... 3
Washington Letter..... 5
LECTURE LIST..... 7
CORRESPONDENCE:
Columbus after the Convention; Open Letter to H. H. Hinman; Is it a Masonic Whitewashing; The Situation in Memphis; Loyalty to the United Brethren Church; Fate of Faithful Witnesses..... 5,6
THE HOME..... 10
BIBLE LESSONS..... 11
THE CHURCHES..... 12
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
HOME HINTS..... 14
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
BUSINESS..... 13
MARKETS..... 13

A HAPPY NEW YEAR to the Cynosure readers one and all! Your agents in providing the paper weekly at your homes are thankful that the record of 1885 shows an undiminished zeal in the rank and file, the great body of our reformer friends, and that our efforts in the paper are not in vain. Let us with zeal renewed, hope brighter, faith stronger, undertake for Christ in 1886; and working together, each in his place, some to write, some to edit, some to print and mail, and some to read and get subscribers—so carry forward our great work that the last day of the coming year shall be a day of thanksgiving for the victories God has given to his truth.

TO THE LITTLE READERS of the Cynosure there is an apology due for delaying their New Year's picture. A fine one was nearly ready, but the engravers could not quite finish their work in time for this paper: so it shall appear in the first number for the New Year. To the thousand young readers of the Cynosure we can speak hopefully, for they are not to be forgotten in our plans for the year. Week by week they will find stories, biographies, history and poetry that will be instructive and entertaining, which if carefully read will help them to be gentle, thoughtful, loving and brave.

For a long time influential papers under the name of temperance have urged the use of beer and wine to drive out the whiskey curse. The attempt did not alarm the distillers and liquor-dealers, for they knew the business was one. But in the New York Legislature a bill is pending to make the whiskey license $1,000 and for beer $250, and since the brewers do not join in fighting, the liquor men have declared war, which promises to be of vast proportions and fierce. God grant it—the news is almost too good to be true.

The fight for prohibition in Atlanta, Georgia, was from the first of national importance. The liquor dealers, beaten in their effort for an injunction in the United States court, procured another in the county superior court. But after an elaborate argument for both sides, Judge Clarke states that no rights of the liquor dealers had been yet interfered with. "The court," he continued, "has no power to interrupt an election, which is one of the most sacred rights of the people." Upon this decision the officer of elections called in Georgia the "ordinary," signed the order declaring the result in which it was shown that the majority for prohibition was 228, and the law will go into effect in due time. The dealers are moving heaven and earth to put off their doom, but men of equal spirit, intelligence and ability are pitted against them and have besides, God and justice with them.

This battle of Atlanta, is but one of the victories that have been quietly but surely breaking up the old "Bourbon," "Solid South" party in the states of Georgia, South Carolina, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, and even Kentucky. Just as white Masons are willing we should fight and destroy lodgery

DAVID BERNARD.

[See pages 8 and 9.]

among the blacks, so the same race concede that to prohibit liquor among the colored people would be a good thing for all classes. The negro vote for prohibition has therefore been encouraged, so that in this respect his suffrage is free—but woe to the Republican voter! The prohibition question has therefore, been a wedge splitting both the old parties in two, and the old party leaders are beginning to feel some anxiety for 1888. In Kentucky, with all its whisky-soaked reputation, the prohibition vote was 39,405 out of a total of 277,000. The first victory was gained in Bullitt county twelve years ago, and that district once the most lawless, has become one of the most orderly. Judge Fountain T. Fox, the head of the Prohibition party in Kentucky, is quoted as saying: "If the Legislature does not adopt our law it will strengthen our vote in 1887 and cripple the chances of the Democratic nominees in the contest against the Republicans. When the prohibition law is once carried its friends have the right to fill the offices to be certain of its execution, because we have no reason to expect our enemies to execute it when this would prove their ruin. I am preparing a sixteenth constitutional amendment on this subject to be submitted this winter to the Kentucky Legislature."

—Bishop William Taylor will soon return to Africa, intending to sail for Liberia after visiting Portugal, Belgium, London and Liverpool.

—Dr. Munhall has recently closed a series of meetings, lasting a month, at Savannah, Ga., which resulted in a large number of conversions.

—The Christian Advocate has a letter from Bishop William Taylor, dated at Lisbon, Portugal, where he was to see the king that day, probably for permission for his thirty-one missionaries in Central Africa to preach the Gospel without interference from persecuting priests and Government officials.

CHRISTMAS.

BY REV. J. D. GEHRING.

We have no historical evidence to show that the apostolic church authorized the setting apart and keeping sacred certain days to commemorate the leading events in the establishment of the Christian church. The Saviour himself did not designate any such days, much less did he command their observance as ordinances of his church. Nor do we find any evidence that the venerable "fathers" of the first centuries ordained their special observance.

These "church festivals," as they are generally called, were introduced in those days when the church began to quarrel about days and dogmas and innovations. Some men who thirsted for fame and popularity more than for the souls of men, began what they vainly imagined to be improvements on the apostolic style of worship. The apostles and early fathers had no ritual. The wise men of later years saw the defect and hastened to remedy it. The "great" (?) men of those days quarreled and grew wrathy over the question about the proper observance of "Easter." Streams of blood flowed and thousands of hearts were embittered before "Easter-day" was fixed in the "holy church calendar" as an ordinance. It was soon evident, and the student of ecclesiastical history can easily trace the fact, that the more of human ordinances and beautiful customs were introduced, the farther away from apostolic simplicity and piety and purity they drifted; until, finally, the ritual of the church contained little else than the commandments of men. Church festivals had become, in course of time, so numerous that their strict observance demanded, not only a valuable portion of the people's time and income, but about all of their attention and thought.

Go into any country where the church of Rome is in power, or into any community in our own country where Romanism predominates, and you will find that "holy days" are not only very numerous, but that they are very regularly and strictly observed. To such an extent, indeed, have these things been carried by the church of Rome that the merits of the atonement are overshadowed by human inventions, and the Lord's day, doubly sanctified by the resurrection of the Saviour, is trodden under foot by those who profess to serve the Lord of the Sabbath. This is the state of affairs as the natural result of substituting for the "Thus saith the Lord!" the command of the "church."

This dangerous state and tendency was clearly recognized by the founders of the Presbyterian or "Westminster" confession in their time; and, hence, they saw that the honor of Christ and the true life of the church demanded that all these insidious grafts must be pruned off. Thus we were left without a church ritual; without a calendar of "holy days;" without crucifixes and candles and vestments and pictures; and without imposing processions and chanted prayers.

It has been said against us that our form of worship is as dry and bare as a bleached bone. Why? Because we have no decorations upon our walls and outlandish garments upon our ministers; no candles and flowers and gilded vases upon our altars. Indeed we have no altars, for we have no priests and no sacrifices. In so far the charge is true. But we are not ashamed of it; we glory in our simplicity. All we want and all we need between us and the throne of grace is the one crucified and glorified Christ.

Let us, then, remind ourselves, and carefully teach our children that when Jesus was born in Bethlehem it was not in the midst of splendor, mirth, illuminations, and feastings, but in poverty and obscurity; and that, if we ought at all to celebrate the advent of our Saviour, it should be by making glad the hearts of the poor and destitute, and not—as the custom is—by giving unto those who are neither fed nor clothed nor helped by our gifts, because they need them not. If the money given away for Christmas festivities and toys and candies and trees, was given, as it should be, to the poor, or used to send the Gospel to those who have never heard of a Saviour, it would be doing honor to Christ, and such a celebration of his advent would be profitable to the church.

Originally this day (Christmas) belonged exclusively to the church. It was intended for a holy purpose; but, as it had no divine sanction it was to be expected that, in course of time, it would become perverted from its true purpose. That this was, and is, the result has already been shown. The perversion, however, could not, and did not, stop here; for, when the church had succeeded in making the day and its ceremonies "popular," the world at once took it and secularized it entirely by casting aside all its holy associations.

Here, then, is the point of controversy—the reason why the church ought either to reform the present customs belonging to the day, or else cut herself free from the demoralizing, unhallowed partnership in the matter: for what concord hath Christ with Belial, and what relationship hath the church with the profane, God-hating, God-defying world?

Now, let us suppose that, somehow, the religious ceremonies thought to be appropriate on Good Friday, Easter, and Pentecost had been so far degraded as to have been brought down to a level with the tastes and customs of the world, and that the world had taken these days and their religious ceremonies and set them apart for general jolly-making and sensual amusement. Let us suppose that, ignoring the spirit, the sacred and solemn associations, and taking in only the general idea, we should see the people all over the land, of every grade and class and belief, make it a custom on a certain Friday of every year to caricature the crucifixion and death of Christ! Suppose you should go to a public school house or a public hall on such a day and see there, between the hours of 9 A. M. and 3 P. M., a cross set up with all the historic accompaniments—what would you say to that? Would you not call that the most profane sacrilege? Would you not turn away with horror and disgust, uttering your most indignant protest? Even those of you who have never heartily accepted the merits of Christ's sufferings as your only refuge for salvation, would burn with indignation.

But why should you thus oppose and protest? From our standpoint as to these things we cannot see a reason for it. For, if "Good Friday" is too holy and solemn for profane hands and lips, why should "Christmas" furnish the world an occasion for sport and sinful extravagance? "But," says one, "we cannot help it if the unbelieving world takes holy things, which belong to the church, and prostitutes them to profane uses and selfish purposes, thus defiling that which is holy. A thief may steal a clergyman's broadcloth coat and stovepipe hat and wear them, but that would not make the owner a thief.

This style of argument is used by those "Christians" whose names are on the church register, but whose hearts and sympathies are in and with the world. All sincere seekers after purity of life know how to analyze such logic. The argument above quoted is correct enough so far as it goes, but it is only half the story. Should that minister know the thief and see him on the street with the stolen garments upon his person, and should, instead of pointing him out to the officers of the law as a thief, go and lock arms with him and become his companion and friend, that minister would be regarded, by all who were cognizant of the facts in the case, as being decidedly "unministerial" in his public deportment.

Some persons when they travel will never drink from a cup used promiscuously, and refuse to sleep in a bed which has not been furnished with clean linen, and no one who has usual good taste would ridicule them for it. These same persons, however, will very promptly call a Christian a "fanatic" who refuses to use the popular greeting of "Christmas day." It is true a great many good, pious people use the phrase "Merry Christmas!" but we hear, also, the saloon-keeper use the same to his customer. We hear the young man who comes reeling from the rum shop, cursing God and blaspheming Christ, shout the words to his friend as he meets him. We see a group of men on the corner discussing politics and inconsistent church members, laughing at miracles and sneering at the story of Bethlehem and the Cross and the Judgment. They are a class of men such as we find in every town and in every community. They not only ignore, they hate and persecute the religion of the Gospel. But, as we pass where they stand we hear these men also repeat the greeting of the day as they give the Masonic grip to Mr. Scoffmore who has just joined them.

No, we cannot help it that the "children of this world" have taken and made common and unclean our "Merry Christmas," but we can let them have it altogether. We can, and should, withdraw ourselves from such associations and refuse to give them our sanction or countenance in any way or in any place. If we do this we shall thereby honor Christ and save our children from the dangerous tendency of the day of ignoring the difference between that which is holy and that which is unholy, worldly and evil in its tendency.

Park College, Mo.

THE GREAT APOSTACY OF THE LATTER DAYS.—I.

BY CYNTHIA DERBYSHIRE.

The present period in the history of the world is a time when many Christians are led more carefully to examine the prophecies which are contained in the Holy Bible, with the hope that a more perfect understanding of them may be gained. From this careful study of the sacred Word has resulted the conclusion, that the last days spoken of by prophets and apostles, are approaching very near; and some have believed the very last day to be even at the doors. While we may not see that these are sufficient grounds for apprehending the immediate approach of the end of the world, there does seem to be good reason for us to look for some great moral crisis not very far beyond us.

"Little children, it is the last time: and as ye have heard that antichrist shall come, even now are there many antichrists; whereby we know that it is the last time." John 2: 13. If then, we are now living in the latter days, the question arises what kind of times these late periods in the world's history are likely to be. There is one characteristic which the prophecies attribute to some of the latter times which it behooves us to inquire into more carefully than is generally done, and which may have a very important personal relation to each one of us; lest we fail to be "accounted worthy to escape all things which shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man." Luke 21: 36. This characteristic phrase of the latter days is a great and terrible apostaey from God, foretold by many of the prophets, and apostles of our Lord. We purpose to offer a few observations which may serve a useful purpose by drawing attention to, and promoting investigation on, a subject which may involve the eternal destiny of many immortal souls.

The Israelitish nation, throughout their history, are a type of Christendom. Their prosperity and adversity, their disobedience and apostaey, and the misfortunes that befell them, do typically foreshow what must be the unfailing result of a general defection from God, and from his true worship, in the world of mankind. And as they were the priesthood of the world, the exceeding great and precious promises of spiritual blessings which were given to them, belong equally to all the followers of our Lord throughout all ages. The propheey of Moses, in the 32nd of Deuteronomy, forewarned the ancient people of God of the great danger they were in of falling away from their allegiance to him, and what would be the inevitable consequence of such a falling away: and thus from the type we may learn what are the prospects of the whole human family. It is probable that this forewarning did much to prolong their tranquility by keeping them back a longer time from that fatal degeneracy.

"They provoked Him to jealousy with strange gods, with abominations provoked they Him to anger. They sacrificed unto devils, not to God; to gods whom they knew not; to new gods, that come newly up, whom your fathers feared not. Of the Rock that begat thee thou art unmindful, and hast forgotten God that found thee. And when the Lord saw it he abhorred them, because of the provoking of his sons and of his daughters. And he said, 'I will hide my face from them, I will see what their end shall be: for they are a very froward generation, children in whom there is no faith.'" Deut. 32: 16–20, etc.

The first part of this program of evils commences with the neglecting the worship of God. This ought to be noticed by those to whom divine worship is a matter of so much indifferencnce that they rarely attend it. They failed to carry out that faithful service, and acknowledgment of his goodness, which every principle of gratitude, duty, and respect for their Divine Saviour was calculated to inspire. Carelessly they turned their backs to him and departed from him with an evil heart of unbelief. Then the next thing was vile abominations, and the wickedness of idolatry, till they finally became unworthy of the country which God had given them. Then came the abhorrence of their Creator, and the hiding of his face, by which we understand is meant the withdrawing of his Spirit from them, thus leaving them to be led captive, in chains of darkness, by the evil spirits that have begniled them. Then comes the whirlwind of wrath which shall burn into the lowest hell, consume the earth with her increase and set on fire the foundations of the mountains.

The regularity with which that nation took these steps downward into gross idolatry, and finally into that hardened state which "the Lord would not pardon," is known to every reader of Bible history. It is said in Isaiah:

"Therefore here the word of the Lord, ye scornful men that rule the people which is in Jerusalem. Because ye have said, We have made a covenant with death, and with hell are we at agreement; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through it shall not come to us, for we have made lies our refuge, and under falsehood have we hid ourselves. . . . The hail shall sweep away the refuge of lies, and the waters shall overflow the hiding place. And your covenant with death shall be disannuled, and your agreement with hell shall not stand; when the overflowing scourge shall pass through, then ye shall be trodden down by it." Isaiah 28: 14–18.

This refers to their having been initiated into the secret mysteries of the idol worships which they had introduced into their country. These mysteries, like the idols which they worshiped, were of foreign origin, and were imported by those who delighted in new things; they were new gods, newly brought up. Very likely the foreign nations from which they were imported, might boast of their antiqnity, but they were newly brought to the misguided children of Israel. There seems to be good reason to believe that at the last destruction of Jerusalem secret societies had gained a great deal of power and influence among them.

The tenth Psalm is a further description of this soul-destroying apostacy which was to come first on the Jewish nation, and afterwards on the world; for though they were distinct, yet the first was so very similar to the last in character as to foreshadow it; and it is to the last the descriptions more particularly apply. We will copy a few of the descriptions given in the Psalms:

"The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor; let them be taken in the devices that they have imagined. The wicked boasteth of his hearts desire, and blesseth the covetous whom the Lord abhorreth." Ps 10: 2, 3.

Now it is the sworn, or obligated, agreement of all the secret societies among us, that they will bless the covetous and make their covetousness a success. This is the fundamental principle which underlies every secret combination of which we have any knowledge, and this underlying principle is as old as the existence of such combinations. The wicked through the pride of his heart will not seek after God; God is not in "all his thoughts," or, as the margin has it, "all his thoughts are, There is no God;" that is, he is an infidel in his real principles. Our times are full of this disregard of God and of practical infidelity.

"His ways are always grievous: thy judgments are far above out of his sight: as for all his enemies, he puffeth at them. He hath said in his heart, 'I shall never be moved, for I shall never be in adversity.' His mouth is full of cursing deceits and fraud: under his tongue is mischief and vanity." (Marginal reading, "iniquity)."

Again is this portrait filled by the secretisms of our day. In the overbearing despising of opponents; in the expectations of bringing the whole world under their sway; in the vituperation, and slanders that are heaped on those who secede from them; the deceit and fraud which are used to get the advantage in moneyed dealings; also the cunning and underhandedness with which they get political power into their hands, and with which they use it after they have obtained it.

"He lieth in wait secretly as a lion in his den: he lieth in wait to catch the poor: he doth catch the poor, when he draweth him into his net. He croucheth and humbleth himself that the poor may fall by his strong ones. He hath said, God hath forgotten: he hideth his face; he will never see it." Vs. 9–11.

The whole plan of secretism ignores the omnieience of God. What use of secret pledges and obligation "in the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ?" Rom. 2: 16. What use to one who believes that "there is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known?" Matt. 10: 26. The reader may see in the rest of this psalm the final judgment and end of this apostacy from God, and he may note that it is identified with heathenism in the sixteenth verse, and is called the man of the earth in the last. The psalmist seems to have got his mind so full of the subject that he again takes it up in the eleventh and twelfth psalms; and again we have the peculiar characteristic, "that he may privily shoot at the upright in heart."

In the sixth verse the prophet says, "Upon the wicked he shall rain snares." How many have been caught in the snares of secretism? Then he speaks of fire and brimstone as the portion of their cup. This fire represents a murderous and warlike disposition both here and in some other places in the Bible: and brimstone is a type of hellish principles and doctrines of devils, which are to end in a burning tempest, which may mean a consuming revolution. There is reason to believe that the judgment that was executed in Sodom and Gomorrah will again be visited on some of the latter day apostates. The judgment which is annexed to this apostacy, is further set forth in several succeeding psalms.

In the seventeenth psalm is another description of its character: "Like as a lion that is greedy of his prey, and as it were a young lion lurking in secret places." A young lion must represent its great power as well as ferocity. Again this great wickedness is very prosperous and apparently happy, as is said in the fourteenth verse.

We can not now bring forward everything that would apply to our subject, and so we go on to the New Testament, and will now only call attention to Tim. 4: 1, 2: "Now the Spirit speaketh expressly, that in the latter times some shall depart from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits, and doctrines of devils; speaking lies in hypocrisy, having their conscience seared with a hot iron." Now is not this the secretisms of our day? We will examine further and see. 2 Tim. 1–8. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come." "For men shall be lovers of their own selves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, truce-breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good, traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasures more than lovers of God; having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof." Now it is my belief that this is all that any secretist's profession of religion amounts to; for how can any man gain anything by confessing Christ in the church and then denying him in the lodge every time he goes there, as he most certainly does, and it only needs anointed eyes to see this whole list of evils lifting high their heads among us. I have yet to see the first person who is an adhering secretist, who gave convincing evidence of a real change of heart. The soul that is really born from above is like Charles G. Finney, born out of secretism; and he could stay there no longer. As well may you talk of a Christian Mormon, or a Christian Mohammedan, as of a Christian Mason, or Odd-fellow, or a Christian Knight Templar. It is time that the mask was torn completely off of such iniquitous professions, and such professors remanded to their true place in the great apostacy.

—There is a constant hammering at the defective marriage and divorce laws of the various States, and one of the remedies proposed is a national law—to arrive at which an amendment of the federal Constitution would be necessary. But in the opinion of not a few the defect does not lie in "easy divorces," but in the failure of the law to punish violations of the marriage contract. Here is a woman who takes upon herself the vows and obligations of marriage with a true and loyal husband. A child or two comes into the household. She then tires of him and breaks up his home, inflicting disgrace and agony upon husband and children. The law gives him a divorce—and she gets what she most desires as a reward for her depravity. Is that justice? Is it the way to restrain marital perjury? That woman ought to be set to work for the State, at compulsory labor. The offense being on the part of the husband is still worse. A young man goes to a home where there is a loved and cherished daughter, woos and marries her, abuses and abandons her. Consider the ruin he has wrought. He has pierced the hearts of the father and mother with a sword sharper than death's. He has blasted a life which, but for him, would have been valuable to friends and to society. The crime is as much worse than arson as the value of a house is lower than the value of a life. Yet the law only gives the remedy which to him is a reward. It cuts him loose from his obligations. That fellow ought to be cropped and taught a useful industry by the State. We believe, in all moral questions, in going directly to the root of the evil. If a man swear away the value of a coat the law sends him to the penitentiary. If a man or woman swear away the whole value of a life—we give him license to go and repeat his crime. If a man shoot a burglar, society applauds him. If a father should shoot a scoundrel like that, society would prosecute him for murder.—Interior.

NONE of the artifices resorted to by liquor-dealers in prohibition localities to cover illegal liquor-selling are more transparently fraudulent than is the pretence of confining sales to what they call "temperance" drinks. The demand for non-alcoholic beverages is so limited that if "places of public resort" are once allowed, the advertisement of "temperance drinks only" will invariably be nothing but a cloak for the sale of intoxicants. This was shown in the town of Creston, Ia., where the council proposed to grant licenses on the condition that nothing strong should be dispensed. The temperance men opposed the attempt by proving that similar movements, in other localities, had always ended in free beer and whisky

TEMPERANCE.

A SERMON OF EIGHTY YEARS AGO.

ON "THE FATAL EFFECTS OF ARDENT SPIRITS, BY EBENEZER PORTER, PASTOR OF THE FIRST CHURCH IN WASHINGTON, CONN."

In the winter of 1805, a transient man perished in the snow, with a bottle of spirits at his side, about a mile from the meeting-house in this place. In consequence of the reflections excited by that event, the following discourse was delivered to my own people. About three years afterward it was read as an occasional exercise at a ministers' meeting. In deference to the judgment of my brethren, after considerable delay, it is now given to the public. E. PORTER.

Washington, (Conn.,) August 7, 1811.

"Woe unto them that rise up early in the morning, that they may follow strong drink; that continue until night, till wine inflame them."—Isaiah 5: 11.

This passage of the sacred volume calls our attention to a subject which is but rarely made the theme of the pulpit. The sin which the prophet here condemns was not peculiar to his own countrymen, nor to his own time. Probably it has never been peculiar to any period, or to any people. However this may be, no one can doubt that the reprehension and warning of the text are, eminently, applicable to our own times. It is no new event in this depraved world that impiety should grow with the growth of prosperity. The richest soil bears the rankest weeds. The vices of men flourish most in the midst of fertility and plenty. I need not point you back to Egypt or Sodom, in search of facts, to verify this sentiment. Open your eyes, and the proof is before you; proof, that is furnished from every district and village of our country; proof, that can hardly fail to produce, in your minds, both conviction and alarm.

Shall I call your attention to that decline of public morals which, in too many instances, is manifested in direct contempt of God, his name, his Sabbath, and his sacred Word? Shall I tell you that in this land of light, and liberty, and blessings unexampled, there are such sins as ingratitude, pride, prodigality and blasphemy?—such men as openly spurn the restraints of the Gospel, and revile its divine Author? Shall I mention the latitude of licentious presses, and lawless tongues, which sport with the peace of the living and the reputation of the dead?—or that vile thirst for gain which, in many hearts, has extinguished every worthy sentiment; which has multiplied idols of gold, silver and paper; has reduced fraud to system and made iniquity a trade?

Such things are deeply lamented by every man that fears God, or loves his country; and such things are boldly condemned, at last, by every minister who is worthy of his office. But my present design lies within narrower limits. I wish to withdraw your attention from every other subject, and fix it upon the single sin of intemperate drinking.

Like every other practice which has many friends, this is often excused, under fair and smooth names. But its proper "name is legion." It deserves not apology, but reprobation. It may be safely affirmed that in this country, if in no other, it has proved a greater foe to human life and happiness than war, pestilence and famine. How many that were born with reason, has it transformed into idiots! How many men, of property and usefulness, has it turned into contemptible drones! How many families has it driven from their dwellings to the streets—from affluence, to indigence and woe! Still, like an inundation, it rises, it swells around us. It breaks through all restraints of authority and decency. It sweeps away our young men to infamy and the grave. It defies our laws. It threatens wide and dire destruction to our morals, and to our precious and venerable institutions. Now and then you see it condemned in some corner of a newspaper, or hear some solitary voice raised against it; while the mass of our citizens, our civil tribunals, our churches, and many of our pulpits, slumber over the horrible iniquity. Probably this sin does not prevail more, amongst us, than in other places; certainly, less than in many others; but it prevails everywhere to a degree that is alarming. If I should fail to impress on this assembly the importance of the subject, still, you will do me the justice to believe that I sincerely feel its importance myself.....

Let us now consider some of the miserable effects which result from intemperate drinking.

1. It destroys industry. Our natures and circumstances in this world render some lawful occupation essential to our happiness. God had no sooner made man than he assigned him a regular employment. It was among the precepts which he uttered, in solemn majesty, from Sinai, "Six days shalt thou labor." The universal and perpetual duty of industry is taught in the Scriptures by many express precepts and by many honorable examples; but it is enough to say—its indispensable obligation is taught by the example of the Saviour. The mischiefs which arise to individuals and to community, from habits of sloth, must be obvious to every one who has had his eyes open on the world around him. We need not the wisdom of Solomon to know that, "idleness will clothe a man in rags;" nor the inspiration of St. Paul to perceive why men ought, "with quietness, to work," if they would "eat their own bread."

Now the fact is unquestionable that drunkenness and idleness are kindred vices. Where you find either, you commonly find both. The man who becomes a follower of strong drink becomes, for the same reason, a neglecter of all regular business. The hours that should be spent in the field or the shop he loiters away in vain company. His credit sinks; he is stamped for a ruined man by all his sober acquaintance. Hence the sage advice of Dr. Franklin to a young tradesman: "The sound of your hammer at five in the morning or at nine at night, heard by your creditor, makes him easy six months longer. But if he sees you at a billiard table, or hears your voice at a tavern, when you should be at work, he sends for his money the next day."

2. Following strong drink destroys health. It is the more important to be explicit on this point, because many contract a love of spirits by supposing their effects to be salutary to the constitution. Plutarch has long been reputed a wise man. Let us hear his opinion of intemperance. "Of all the Apollyons or destroyers of nerves, health and life, this is the greatest; and I have no sort of doubt but it has broken down more constitutions, brought on more distempers, and sent more people to an early grave, than all the vices of this bedlam world put together."

An eminent physician of our country enumerates a list of stubborn diseases as the common effects of spirits, and adds: "It would take up a volume to describe how much other disorders, natural to the human body, are increased and complicated by them." He cites the authority of two medical writers to confirm the sentiment that, even under the extreme heat of tropical climates, ardent spirits always diminish the strength of the body, render it more susceptible of disease and unfit for any service in which vigor or activity is required. How often do we hear the remark that, fifty or sixty years ago, men were far more athletic than they are at present. There can be no room to doubt that the extravagant modern use of ardent spirits has contributed much to this degeneracy. A slow and secret poison undermines the constitution. Many young men who might have been an honor to their country and a blessing to the world are lost to both. The spring of life is loaded with the decrepitude of old age.*

3. Following strong drink produces poverty. Time has not impaired the truth of these ancient maxims: "Through idleness of the hands, the house droppeth through." "He that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough." Habits of sloth and intemperance are heavier taxes on a man's property than all others. If the expense of strong drink was all, a tolerable estate would outlast almost any drunkard's life; whereas, affluence often vanishes before intemperance, and rags and beggary follow after it. "Money, lost or wasted, may be recovered; not so with wasted time; the loss is absolute, and no other prodigality is so impoverishing." The drunkard's account is commonly a short one. Business neglected, foolish bargains contracted, credit ruined, land, house and furniture mortgaged, and then the sheriff and the prison stand ready to close up the reckoning. What has been said of another vice is emphatically true of this: "It breakfasts with plenty, dines with poverty, and sups with infamy."

4. Following strong drink impairs reason. An intoxicated man is, for the time, in a complete delirium. He is as really bereft of reason as any lunatic on earth. If he falls under the power of intemperance as a habit, the understanding gradually becomes torpid, the memory, and all other faculties of the mind, sink into a mopish inactivity, till, at last, he becomes exactly that useless and contemptible creature described in one comprehensive syllable—a sot. Would it be sin and folly for one to destroy his own limbs? How much more to destroy his reason? He that was born an idiot, or deprived of his senses by sickness or disaster, is to be pitied. But he that makes himself a madman or an idiot can never be sufficiently censured.

5. The habit of following strong drink unfits its subjects for the duties and comforts of social life. What object in nature is more loathsome and contemptible than a drunken man? Does he attempt to walk? See how he staggers. His tottering limbs scarcely sustain their shameful load. Does he attempt to speak? If his organs of utterance are not suspended, how foolish, obscene and impious is his language! He has "neither the speech nor carriage, the sense nor civility that belongs to a human being." He is utterly unfit for any sort of company; unfit to associate with men, for they have reason; unfit to associate with brutes, for as one remarks, the brutes are what God made them, but the drunkard is what his own lusts and the devil have made him. From the dignity of a man he is reduced below the rank of a swine.

The poor maniac, whose reason is taken away by the sovereign hand that gave it, finds a friend in every one he meets; and every hospitable door opens to receive the hapless wanderer, and give him shelter from the cold or inclement sky. But what decent family does not dread the intrusion of a senseless, noisy, filthy drunkard? Scarcely is his company to be endured, even by his nearest friends. Intemperance made Nabal "such a man of Belial that one could not speak to him." How rude was his reply to the civil request of David for a little food to support the companions of his affliction. Under the strong excitement of circumstances, David suffered the saint to sink into the soldier, and marched, sword in hand, to chastise the insolence of Nabal. There was an excellent woman with a drunken husband, and four hundred armed men coming to destroy the family. What could be done? A brute or a block was as fit to give advice as Nabal. The resentment of David was soon appeased by the prudence and generosity of Abigail. When she returned home, not a word could she speak to her husband; he was "very drunken." Next morning, "when the wiue was gone out of him," she told him how narrowly the family had escaped. Then his heart died within him, and he became as a stone. Whether by this shock of terror, or by the general habit of intoxication, we know not, but the man lived only ten days afterward, and it does not appear that any one lamented his death.

*"Drunkenness destroys by retail, at all times and everywhere. The poor wretches who abandon themselves to it are subject to frequent inflammations of the breast, and to pleurisies, which often carry them off in the flower of their age. If they sometimes escape through these violent maladies, they sink, a long time before the ordinary approach of old age, into all its infirmities. Their bodies, worn out by excess, do not concur with the operation of remedies; and diseases of weakness, resulting from this cause, are almost always incurable. It seems happy enough that society loses nothing in parting with these subjects, who are a dishonor to it; and whose brutal souls are, in some measure, dead long before their carcases."—Tissot's causes of popular maladies.

WHEATON COLLEGE LIBRARY
Wheaton, Illinois

6. Following strong drink leads to many other vices. Some of these have already been noticed, especially idleness. But it is to be added that few rest in mere idleness. Both body and mind must have some employment. Hence the maxim, "When the Devil finds a man idle, he takes him into his own service."

Drinking leads to gaming. Idle and intemperate men seldom know how to kill time without recourse to games of chance. The influence of these to deprave the heart, destroy the morals, and waste substance of their votaries is needless to describe. Multitudes have been such proficients in this school of vice as soon to become knaves, blockheads or beggars

It leads to lying. When estate and character are ruined, and conscience strangled to death in strong drink, no regard to truth is to be expected. In such a case, promises are made and broken without ceremony; the tongue becomes the organ of imposition in business: every principle of integrity or honor is laid out of the question, when there is opportunity to take advantage of the ignorance, the credulity or the necessity of a fellow creature. This is not all. From simple falsehood the transition is easy to perjury. Go into our courts of justice and see at how cheap a rate men of this character are hired or flattered to bear false witness! How easily they sport with the most tremendous obligations! How gravely they can tell a lie, under oath, and that without a "wry face!" I am serious on this point. It has come to that pass that any man who is willing to make ardent spirits the instrument of iniquity, may find witnesses in any cause, ready to testify any thing that he shall dictate. Hence in a multitude of cases the name of the ever-living God is invoked but in careless and impious mockery: and an alarming sin of trifling with appeals to heaven becomes so familiar as scarcely to be accounted a crime.*

It leads to profane swearing. The folly and impiety of this practice admit of no apology. No motive of appetite or interest, no constitutional propensity can be pleaded as an excitement to this vice. It is indeed such an outrage on the first principles of religion, reason and decency as ought not to be expected from any one in the sober exercise of his mental faculties.

It leads to tale bearing and slander. To the vile and vulgar tongues of drunkards, these are favorite employments. When the little stock of understanding which nature gave is drowned in intoxication, they have still one precious attribute of human nature left to distinguish them from irrational animals Dogs can bark and mules can bray, but men only can laugh. In these noisy circles, however, there is often more of malignity than levity. Here the characters of the absent are held up to reproach. Here religion is denounced as priest craft; and its professors and ministers stigmatized as weak bigots, or designing knaves. One who has lost the use of his limbs or senses may have wisdom enough left to say all this, and yet say nothing new. The same things were probably said by some of Lot's neighbors: and twenty-eight centuries ago the great and good king David was the "drunkard's song."

It leads to contention. The slothful servant described by our Saviour began to "smite his fellow servants" at the same time that he began to "eat and drink with the drunken." Three fourths of all the vulgar quarrels that happen proceed from ardent spirits. "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging. Who hath wo? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes?—They that tarry long at the wine." How often do men meet in good humor, then drink to excess, talk nonsense, fancy themselves insulted, take fire within, blaze at the mouth, rave, threaten, come to blows; and then the majesty of the law must be prostituted to settle a quarrel of fools Long ago Seneca spake of those who "let in a thief at the mouth to steal away the brains." In such a case the stupidity of a brute is often united with the fury of the demoniac. Nay, the man possessed among the tombs was comparatively harmless: he hurt only himself. But how often does the drunken revel end in the cry of murder' How often does the hand of the inebriate,

"In one rash hour,
Perform a deed that haunts him to the grave."†

7. Following strong drink extinguishes the best sensibilities of the human heart. Did the proper limits of the subject allow a minute illustration of this point, I would offer myself an advocate for the poor brutes. I would plead the cause of the faithful horse and ox, so often worn out with starving and stripes; and subjected to intolerable hardships from drunken masters.

But in other respects, the followers of strong drink are guilty of more aggravated cruelty. Will these men say, if we suffer for our own indiscretion, it is nothing to others? Is it nothing to cast yourselves as useless drones and burdens on the community? Nothing to reduce them to the painful alternative of seeing you starve, or feeding you with the hand of charity? Nothing to blast the hopes of your dearest friends? Ye whose hearts are not past feeling, let me point you to the flowing tears of an aged father and mother, whose gray hairs are brought down with sorrow to the grave. Once they hailed the birth of a promising son. They nursed him in the cradle of infancy. They watched over the pillow of sickness. Their affections grew with his growing years, and anticipated the time when he should become the solace of their declining days, and a blessing to the world. Now he is a follower of strong drink. At midnight, corroding care preys on their hearts, their slumbers are invaded by the distressing inquiry, where is our son? He that was the hope of our helpless years sports with our admonitions, our prayers, our tears, our entreatics, and is a companion of riotous men.

Or will you attend me to the solitary cottage which intemperance has made the abode of wretchedness? Scarcely does its tattered covering afford a shelter from the cold wind and the drenching rain. See a once able woman, bred, perhaps in ease and prosperity, now destitute of every earthly comfort. The bloom of her face is succeeded by premature wrinkles; and the countenance that once beamed with joy, has become meager and pale with suffering. Helpless, friendless, there she sits, the victim of grief. Her poor children around her, naked, shivering, starving, cry for bread. He that solemnly covenanted to provide for her in sickness and in health, leaves his family in want and wo; breaks from all the duties and endearments of home, to gratify a vile appetite. Behold the husband, the father, returning from the tavern or grog-shop, a stammering, reeling drunkard! His stomach heaves: his tongue curses and threatens: what deed of violence is he not liable to commit! Oh, the pangs of his heart-broken wife and affrighted children! Is this a fiction? Would to God it were! But how many wretched mothers, with their helpless offspring, even in this land of plenty, are left to drag out a life of suffering, while the men designated by God and nature to be their friends and guardians are wasting their substance in rioting and drunkenness!

8, Following strong drink produces a miserable death. In the first place it renders men totally unprepared for that hour. It implies the neglect of religious duties. If any one requires proof of this, let him only attempt to conceive of a man, staggering home at midnight, and undertaking to pray with his family, or to retire for secret devotion. The thing would be manifestly absurd. It would be grossly impious. How certainly must the company and habits of such a man stupify the conscience and exclude serious reflection from the mind! This is not all, During actual intoxication he is as really incapable of repentance or any other religious exercise, as a brute or a stone; and therefore is utterly unfit to die. Let this be remembered while it is added—he is peculiarly exposed to die, and to die suddenly You have seen that he is more liable to fatal diseases than sober men He is also more liable to fatal disasters Recollect what befel Benhadad, when he was drinking himself drunk in his tent. Recollect what happened to Belshazzar and his nobles, when they were intoxicated. And within your own acquaintance, what number have been instantly killed by falls; how many burnt to death, frozen, shot, or drowned in a fit of drunkenness!

There is solemn meaning in the caution: "Take heed, lest at any time, your hearts be over-charged with surfeiting and drunkenness, and so that day come upon you unawares."

It may be thought that I have entered upon the discussion of this subject with zeal disproportioned to its importance. But convinced as I am that the extravagant use of ardent spirits is a prevailing sin of our day, I have deemed it my duty as a religious teacher to employ my feeble voice against a custom so fatal to the morals, the lives, and the souls of my fellow men, and so threatening to the welfare of my native country. The more this subject is considered, the more alarming does it appear.*

The cry of our intemperance has gone up to heaven. Probably this infant country has already reached a maturity in this shameful vice which is without a parallel in the history of the world. Probably no other nation, ancient or modern, in proportion to its whole population, ever had so many male and female drunkards as this. Certainly, in no other, have the means of intoxication been procured with so much facility, and used with so little restraint, by all sorts of people.

What then shall be done? Shall men of reflection sit still, and see a mortal disease preying on the vitals of community, without using any efforts to provide a remedy? The existence of the evil cannot be denied. Shall it be thought already too inveterate to admit the hope of reformation? Then our ruin is inevitable. It requires no supernatural penetration to see that without a thorough reformation, the day of our calamity is at hand.

My brethren, from one who is, by office, a public reprover, no apology can be expected for plain dealing, when he is called to bear testimony against prevailing wickedness. If, in such a case, it is painful to speak, it is, for the same reason, criminal to be silent. "Son of man, I have made the a watchman unto the house of Israel, therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me." Let me hope then, that this subject will be deemed worthy of serious consideration. . . . .

May I not especially hope that the subject of this discourse will be solemnly regarded by all professors of religion. If its importance must be admitted by those who acknowledge the obligations of conscience, and common decency, how much more by those who profess to feel the sacred obligations of piety. Brethren, can you see, without concern, the awful degeneracy of morals around you? Can you look forward to the consequences of these things without deep solicitude? Dare you, by your own example, contribute to increase the flood of licentiousness which threatens to overwhelm the land? "The time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God." Vain are statutes and sermons against tippling, while it receives countenance from the practice of sober and respectable men, and while even members of Christian churches betray, in many instances, a shameful fondness for ardent spirits

Lastly: The subject eminently claims the attention of the rising generation. Many young men adopt the absurd opinion, that excessive drinking denotes a liberal mind, and is a trait of a gentleman. This opinion has ruined thousands, who entered upon life with fair prospects of usefulness and respectability. By all the friendship which I bear to you, young men, I warn you to beware of the sin which has now been condemned. As you regard your character, your comfort, or your salvation, shun the company, shun the places, where this sin will beset you. The moment you become familiar with it, you are undone. Chained down in iron bondage, your life will become miserable, and your name contemptible. Avoid the men that love strong drink. Their feet go down to death: their steps take hold on hell. If you find yourselves inclined to go in this path of evil men, set the grave on your right hand, and eternity before you. Pause—and escape the ruin.

Brethren, I have done. Should the sin of following strong drink increase amongst us, I stand acquitted before God and you, in having made an honest effort to arrest its progress. If any thing wrong has been spoken, I entreat you to forgive it: if anything true and important, I charge you to remember it, and profit by it. The discourse is committed to the faithful application of your consciences, and to the blessing of God.

*Sir William Temple says that in Spain no man could, formerly, be admitted to testify in a court who had once been convicted of drunkenness.

† Judge Rush, in a charge to a grand jury of Pennsylvania, says: "I declare in this public manner, and with the most solemn regard to truth, that I do not recollect an instance, since my being concerned in the administration of justice, of a single person being put on his trial for manslaughter, which did not originate in drunkenness; and but few instances of trials for murder, where the crime did not spring from the same unhappy cause."

* A report from the national treasury in 1805 states that duties actually accrued to government on 7,641,207 gallons of foreign spirits; and 2,504,611 gallons of wine. The duties arising from this single source amounted to $3,026,696 60 If this sum had been exacted in the form of a direct tax it would doubtless have excited many murmurs. I have selected the year 1805 because I have not the means of speaking precisely concerning any other. It will be perceived that this statement does not include the immense quantities of domestic spirits, which are made from grain and other materials. The number of distilleries when they were registered by public authority, if I mistake not, was about thirty thousand; and their increase since that time, especially within the last two years, has surpassed all conjecture. At a moderate computation the spirits consumed in the United States every year would load 100,000 wagons, which in compact order would extend more than a thousand miles; and the annual expense of this strong drink to the people, if it were paid in silver, would exceed 400 tons of dollars! Where will these things end? If the inhabitants of this land must pay for a flood of ardent spirits from year to year, and what is worse, if they must drink it, what are our prospects?

THE CHURCH CONFERENCE.

The action of the National Christian Association at its annual meeting last June in appointing a committee to visit the various church conferences and arranging for a national evangelical convention against the lodge has made a beginning at what proves to be a great work, but as important as difficult. Private effort has enlisted several important church papers and prominent individuals, and several denominational bodies have appointed delegates. The entire list so far as reported to the Cynosure is as follows:

Representing the N. C. A.—J. Blanchard, J. L. Barlow, J. P. Stoddard.

Hartsville U. B. Conference.—Lewis Davis, Halleck Floyd, Z. McNew.

Illinois Association.—H. L Kellogg, William Moerdyke, E. A. Cook.

Illinois Wesleyan Conference.—L. N. Stratton, Wm. Pinkney, O. S. Davis, H. Breckenridge, J. N. Bedford, G. T. Dissett, L. W. Mills, W. W. Watson, Wm. Vasey, H. C. Fox, J. Bradley.

Iowa Wesleyan Conference.—C. R. Hunt, T. F. Blan, Geo Fry, A. W. Hall, L. J. Harrington, J. A. Laird, A. F. Worden, J. A. Iliff.

Indiana Wesleyan Conference.—Aaron Worth, E W. Bruce.

Columbus Convention.—J. G. Carson, H. R. Smith, J. F. Morton, C. A. Blanchard, K. A Orvis, A. Overholt, J. Wells.

The Kansas Wesleyan Conference and White River U. B. Conference have also appointed delegates but their names have not yet been reported.

GRANT ON SECRET SOCIETIES.

In the memoirs of Gen. U. S. Grant occurs the following patriotic paragraph on secret societies. He says, while living at St. Louis, many of his neighbors had become "Know-nothings or members of the American party. There was a lodge near my new home, and I was invited to join it. I accepted the invitation, was initiated, attended a meeting just one week later, and never went to another afterward. I have no apology to make for having been one week a member of the American party, for I still think native-born citizens of the United States should have as much protection, as many privileges in their native country as those who voluntarily select it for their home. But all secret, oath-bound political parties are dangerous to any nation, no matter how pure or how patriotic the motives and principles which first bring them together. No political party can or ought to exist when one of its cornerstones is opposition to freedom of thought, and to the right to worship God 'according to the dictates of one's own conscience,' or according to the creed of any religious denomination whatever." This is a clear and reasonable statement respecting secret, oath-bound, political parties or societies. We believe the same principles which General Grant here lays down are of equal application in other fields than those merely political.—Telescope.

My own experience is that the Bible is dull when I am dull. When I am really alive, and set upon the text with a tidal pressure of living affinities, it opens, it multiplies discoveries, and reveal depths even faster than I can note them. The worldly spirit shuts the Bible; the spirit of God makes it a fire, flaming out all meanings and glorious truths.—Horace Bushnell.

QUERIES:

Do you think that the Masonic managers purposely plan to introduce their members into churches so as to check opposition?

How many churches in Chicago make membership in Masonry a disciplinary offense?

What are their names?

Name the religious journals opposed to Masonry.

DO TELL.

GOOD-BY AND WELCOME.

BY ALEXANDER THOMSON.

The short December days glide swiftly by,
Low circling suns but gleam and disappear,
And nature from her hard breast heaves a sigh
Of tender pity for the dying year.
On her cold breast there floats no flag of green,
Save where the solemn pines their banners wave
With mournful music o'er the dreary scene
Where beauty lies within her snowy grave.

Yet there is joy—not when the spring attires
Herself in roses; when down every vale
The brooks run laughing from their mountain spires,
And favoring breezes swell out every sail:
Not in the autumn, when the golden slopes
Gleam out, resplendent in the dewy morn;
When fruitful orchards bend above their props,
And gentle winds make music in the corn.

Not even then such gladness fills the earth,
Such joyous ecstacy in young and old;
The children of the summer in their mirth
Are dumb before the children of the cold.
Full shod in steel the eager skaters glide
Over the smooth floor of the glassy pond;
With merry peals the sleighing parties ride
Through shining vales and up the slopes beyond.

Thus be it ever—let the year go out—
In glad rejoicings let the children go;
There is no sin, though innocence may shout
A laughing chorus o'er the winter's snow.
Our Father gives the years. Another stands
With both hands closed on what we cannot see.
God grant that as his shining palm expands
There may be blessings seen for you and me.

Bartlett, Ill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—It is a gratifying fact that the great problem, how to evangelize our cities, is pressing itself on the Christian public for solution. Back of this lies the deeper and more important conviction that the same remedy that is essential to the salvation of the individual is equally important for the purification and elevation of society. Since society is made up of individuals we can only effect the mass as we influence the atoms of which it is composed. Many who were well persuaded that the Gospel of Christ was the only power that could save the individual, have imagined that trades unions, Good Templarism, or Freemasonry might be very good things for society. The result has been that these miserable substitutes for Christianity have been so far accepted, and their failure to benefit and bless the world has become so obvious, that the thoughtful have become thoroughly alarmed at the result and are coming back to first truths and laying foundations where they were planned by the Great Master.

It is become quite obvious, too, that if we would reach the masses we must go after them. This is what Christ did, and all his earnest followers have succeeded only as they did so. The poor will not come to the churches. The majority of the ministry are waiting in vain for the people to call them, and the vast crowd drift on with far less concern than those who have been educated and desire to be their instructors. It is obvious, too, that the Gospel that will be such to the poor, must have respect to the bodies as well as the souls of men. While the primary concern of Christianity is not feeding the body, it must do that to some extent or it will fail in its results. Our Saviour fed the multitude by the miracle of bread and fishes, but it takes no miracle to-day to satisfy the pressing needs of the poor. At least, no other miracle than that of Divine grace in our hearts. Society is waking up to this, too, and in various ways the growing number of the poor have their wants supplied.

Among the means of relief in this city is the Free Lodging House, 325 12th street, N. W. It was incorporated in 1876, and is supported by voluntary contributions. It gives free lodgings, supper of soup and bread, and breakfast, together with a bath to all destitute, worthy persons. Such persons may stay three nights, but not longer without special request in their behalf. Some time since this institution was robbed of most of its furniture, but it is being replaced. Since it was re-opened on the 8th inst., 204 persons have been provided for. Though no distinction is made on account of race or sex, only one colored man and one woman have applied for aid.

During the week the Congregational club of this city have celebrated Forefather's Day in a spirit and manner quite in contrast with that of the Pilgrim Fathers. Grand speeches were made by Senator Hawley, ex-Governor Long, and others, and an ample feast was provided for 150 guests. It goes without saying, that such a celebration of the stern and self-denying heroism of those saintly men and women is as little calculated to promote the spirit by which they were actuated as the keeping of the supposed birthday of our Lord with dancing and debauchery is calculated to honor the Divine Master.

Congress has adjourned to meet January 5th. The city, including the churches, is to be given up to gayety, and, among a large number, to drunkenness, eventuating in crime. After the holidays will commence the Protestant Lent, the week of prayer, which will be an occasion for a spasmodic effort to promote practical piety. In the infinite compassion of God some real good may result.

H. H. HINMAN.

CORRESPONDENCE.

FROM COLUMBUS AFTER THE CONVENTION.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 25, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE: The first mile-post of this year's work in Ohio is passed, and passed successfully. While the attendance at the convention was not as large as some had hoped, it was by no means small. There were representatives from nearly all parts of the State, a large majority being pastors of churches. These, though laboring in the different branches of the Christian church, were met together like the disciples of old "with one mind in one place." I am sure that the prayers which have ascended from some unable to attend have not been in vain. The impression made on the thoughtful public mind was very good. In this city where so many conventions are constantly being held, the masses do not notice them as in smaller places.

I am told it was quite commonly reported by certain classes that we were a lot of cranks that would meet together and speculate about the lodges; tell goat stories, and swear that men are compelled to climb greased poles, etc. People not wishing to be classed among the cranks have been watching to see what we would do. Mr. J. A. Brown and others of this city said to me since the convention that "many seeing our reports in the daily papers regret that they did not attend;" "if we should have the convention over, more than twice the number would attend." I think I can safely say without fear of disputation that it was in every sense of the word a success.

Last Saturday I accompanied Rev. J. H. Leiper to New California, where I had the pleasure of hearing him present his theme, "National Reform," which does, I am told, as it should, include all the reforms of the day. Bro. L. argued that we are virtually a Christian nation. He claimed that out of the fifty-five million which populate this country, there are forty-two million not willing to be called infidel. What the National Reform Association asks is that "We the people of the United States" shall acknowledge the God of the Bible to be our national God by the insertion of his name in our national Constitution. He gave many reasons why this should be done. It is not the object of this Association to unite church and state.

I arranged with friends at this place to present our cause at some time in the near future. There are many reformers of the old stamp in this section. Mr. J. R. McDowell has been a reader of the Cynosure for years. Rev. Mr. Cleland is a great lover of light and encourages the reforms of the day.

Much of my time since the convention has been spent in work here in the city. I expect, D. V., to start westward Monday, stopping at Urbana, Bellefontaine, etc., reaching Harrisburg in time to debate with my Oddfellow friend on the evening of the 6th of January.

To the workers in Ohio, I would say, Let us look up this winter, and as we strike blows for God and humanity, rely on the Almighty arm, that the great tower of Babel may speedily totter and fall.

W. B. STODDARD.

OPEN LETTER TO H. H. HINMAN.

DEAR BROTHER:—As no one, to my knowledge, is likely to respond to my suggestion, in preparing in tract form a brief and pointed account of the Masonic outrages of the last 20 years, more or less, known to the public, I am constrained to ask the favor at your hands. If you can designate some one better suited to the work please do so; or if you know that such a tract will be prepared by any one let me be informed. We need such a tract, to be sown broadcast over this lodge-cursed land. Such a tract will stir the people. Let every religious paper and minister (most ministers are religious) get a copy. Even Masonic preachers and editors may be "plucked as a brand from the burning," as well as other great sinners. True the outlook for them is dreary and dark. So it was for the Scribes and the Pharisees. Could they be brought to see themselves linked in with a murderous institution, dripping with the blood of its victims, some of them may be saved. Of all men who are contaminated by vicious contact a Masonic preacher must be most thoroughly debauched in conscience and in character. Like the leaders in the idolatrous conspiracy in the camp of Israel, some of them may become examples of divine retribution, while others may be saved by "pulling them out of the fire." If brother H. or some other able brother will write up these late outrages on D. P. Rathbun, C. A. Blanchard, Brown, Starry and a score of others, I will help sow them. Yours in the one living way,

NATHAN CALLENDER.

IS IT A MASONIC WHITEWASHING?

In the report of the McClellan memorial services in Chicago, we notice a few indications of Masonic inspiration which prompts the question why were they conducted on Sunday? Christians are taught that services and sermons on that day have the special and primary object of giving instruction concerning the great Captain of our salvation, the Lord Jesus Christ, and how sinners may be saved by him. But when we see that the object of this meeting was to tell of some war incidents and to glorify one of the generals as a hero, no matter how meritorious, we ask, how is this? and if we have not found the how of it, will some one else bear his testimony? Surely any other day of the week would have done as well without outraging Christian time and sentiment and service! The Times has four columns of small type, and the speeches were made by the Rev. Arthur Edwards, a stranger to us, Hon. J. R. Doolittle and the Rev. Thomas Green of the Eighth Presbyterian church of this city. The blessing had been invoked by Bishop Fallows of the Reformed Episcopal church. There were quite a number of generals and colonels and other titled gentry, but how many were Masons we do not know. It may interest some of our readers however to know that it is believed that Bishop Fallows and the Rev. Thomas Green are loyal members of that Masonic religion which is not the Christian religion, and IT is probably by Masonic authority that they thus used the Lord's Day to glorify McClellan instead of Christ on his own resurrection day.

T. H.

THE SITUATION IN MEMPHIS.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 18th, 1885.

EDITOR CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE:—I promised to give you an occasional note from our city, and thus keep you informed as to the state of affairs here touching the secret society matter. Two months ago this day I was shot, and since then I have not attended my church at night. The congregation has considerably diminished in consequence, but I thank God that he has seen fit to use me in opening a door in the South among my people that will be hard to close. I only regret that there were not a number ready to rush in and spread the light where darkness and ignorance hold high carnival. I am truly satisfied that great good can and will be done among our people in expelling from their untutored minds the delusions of secretism.

It has been a little over five months since they made their first attack on me by the mob on the night of August 3rd, and as they have failed to accomplish their fiendish purposes to murder me outright, they are now attempting to assail my reputation as a Christian minister, but I can cheerfully refer to such a man as Rev. H. Woodsmall, who has known of me for nearly twelve years, and to him and the white clergy of Memphis and others I willingly leave that question. I have never been tried nor even called to trial by any Masonic tribunal, but on the contrary they have used every effort to drag me again to the lodge-room; but I have learned more of the heathenism of secretism since last August than I knew during the seventeen years of my allegiance with them. My first attack on the lodge was because of the debasing and demoralizing influence they held over my people, and I openly, from my pulpit on the night of June 6th, denounced an Odd-fellows picnic as immoral, and urged the members of my church, young and old, not to attend it; and they stayed away. Hence, the fight began, and the end apparently is not yet.

Bro. H. Woodsmall has just finished a very interesting meeting at the white Baptist church. Quite a number of colored Baptist ministers attended, and a very interesting programme was arranged with different topics for each day's discussion. I attended a few days only (I am never out at night), and it was amusing to see the squirming when light on secretism was brought out in any form. One of the champions of the lodge, a preacher, said: "Here, Bro. Woodsmall, you better let that thing alone; you'll stir up more noise here than you ever heard." (Surely he was right, it is a "thing.") But it was not let alone, and to the discomforture of this man and others the cover was taken off of that thing most effectually, and the minister was shown his place as worshiper at the throne of Baal. Temperance, too, came in for a share of discussion, and we feel in spite of mobs and attempted assassinations that the light will shine in. Brethren Imes, Brinkley and Countee are not only anti-secret, but anti-tobacco and anti-liquor men, and hence, have the cold shoulder of nearly all our brethren in the ministry. "If God be for us, he is more than all against us." The meeting of Bro. Woodsmall was a decided success, and the work done, especially that on secretism, will be long remembered. Many of the country brethren expressed their determination to me privately to wash their hands and come from among the sinners whose god is the sun, east, south and west, and whose temple is a hired garret. May God have mercy on us and help us to turn on the light. I look forward to the visit of your senior editor with much joy. He will have, I hope, an opportunity to see how our churches, ministers and people are given up to the lodge power, and with propriety they might sing.—

All hail the power of secret fame,
Let churches prostrate fall,
Bring Noble Grand and Worshipful,
Let's crown them lords of all..

This may appear a little off, but it is the true character of our situation. I live a day at the time. I have never in all my life been so completely aroused to the wants of my people. The rum curse and the society curse are doing more to blast the future grandeur of America by demoralizing her Christian influence and debauching her civil institutions than all things else: and down with them we all go. I am having a hard time, but I hope for better. My fight has crippled us all along the line. For the first time in my life I feel the power of the lodge, but God lives, and as he lives I shall live also. My house is yet in an unfinished condition. We can do no more as yet: plastering, doors and windows are yet wanting. I suppose you know how the secretists work and intimidate, and withdraw their financial aid and stop all they can from flowing where they know you will get the benefit. It is being most successfully used against us in every particular, but I wait on the Lord, believing in due time he will bring all things to work together for good, and I pray, to pulling down of the power of anti-Christ.

I have been confined to my room for three days, having submitted to a surgical operation in order to save my left arm. I told you some time since of my head: it is clear now that a ball lies between the scalp and the skull, and will have to be knifed out. All for the glory of God. He was wounded for my transgression. Praise his name!

R. N. COUNTEE.

LOYALTY TO THE UNITED BRETHREN CHURCH.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—The U. B. General Conference "Commission" has been created and had their first meeting in Dayton, O., during last month (Nov.) and it is clearly shown with a determination, to burst open the doors of our beloved Zion, to let in the monster, secrecy. Notwithstanding, all these men were received into this church with her stringent rule against secret orders, yet it seems they came in for a purpose, and from the "outlook" of their proceedings, we are led to judge they came in to destroy, instead of to build up. Any person or persons uniting with our anti-secrecy church, and knowing her to be such, and then trying to force her doors open to one of the vilest systems that ever cursed and blighted our nation, I look upon as wicked and unworthy of a recoguition with any Christian denomination.

Oh, says one, there are bishops and college men in this band. So much the worse, for when a poor, ignorant man turns traitor it is often said, "he didn't know any better;" but from men professing piety and ability to instruct others, it seems more lamentable, for they are looked up to as guides; but I fear some of them are blind ones leading the blind, and together they will fall into the ditch.

Some may say this is too strong language to use; but, my friends, any man that will consent to be a member of my family, and be governed by the rules of my household, (for all that join our church have to promise to do this if the pastor does his duty) and then will endeavor to force or bring in anything that will cause division, strife, enmity, making a "general broil," is a villain of the deepest dye. This commission act has been a premeditated assault on our church, and if I mistake not, it has been working for years to overthrow one of the noblest, grandest principles that ever was in the discipline of any church organization.

The pretext, "We want a new constitution and confession of faith," is a farce; it is the secrecy clause they are after; remove this and not one of them would ever refer to another item. There is no use to try to hide the object of their search, and by wire-working and scheming they have been in hopes to accomplish their end.

It would look much more honorable, their profession of religion aside, for them to withdraw from our church and join one where they could join hands and go in peace together. They ought to be as consistent as one of my school teachers was. She was wild and wicked, and when my mother reproved her for accepting the company of a wild, reckless young man, she replied, "I want to marry a man that I can lock arms with and go to hell together, for I don't intend to marry a Christian, and drag him down to hell with me." Consistency is a precious jewel, but in my experience I have never known of any proceedings so perfectly inconsistent, unlawful and out of place in every respect as the act of the General Conference of the U. B. church held at Fostoria, Ohio, last May, as regards the "Commission" and its work.

And then to think, the fund for worn out ministers, their widows and orphans, must be taken to defray the expenses of this disloyal crew! It looks like robbery of the darkest hue. If they are so poor they can't pay their own expenses, let the hoodwinked, cable-towed, blindfolded, that are going east in search of light (but never find it), lend a hand to help them on, for they are working for that order, and all her children (minor orders). If the fraternity will not help them now, they need not look for assistance in the future. A Mason told me here in Massachusetts two years ago that we had traitors in our church, and predicted just what their course would be, and so far it has come to pass. But thank God there are loyal leaders and members in our church that cannot be moved from the old landmarks. The constitution and confession of faith as handed to us by our fathers is perfectly satisfactory to them and those that are dissatisfied will form a new constitution and confession of faith, consequently they will be a "new church."

The Christian Conservator at Dayton, Ohio, has the right ring in it, and I would advise all persons opposed to secrecy to subscribe for it at once. It speaks for our church and holds up the loyal banner of freedom from secrecy, and maintains the confession of faith and constitution as given to us by our fathers. If you are not members of the United Brethren church it will do you good to read it, it is an able and well edited paper, worthy a place at every fireside.

I hate secret societies with all my heart, for I have seen so much of their combined workings to get into our church in order to perfect her ruin and downfall, that it brings a feeling of perfect hatred to them in every form that they may appear. Here in New England secret societies are one of her greatest curses in church and state. Ministers are bound and fettered, and a general dearth, spiritually, is the result. Temperance societies, the Grand Army, and all, as far as I have been able to learn, are in a continual broil, no union among them. I have watched them here for nearly seven years, and this has been their course; not one among them seems to be alive in the interests of religion, but would make any sacrifice to carry out the interests of their order. The prayer and class meetings are of little consequence, compared with a lodge meeting.

Having been a minister's wife for nearly twenty-three years, traveling in several different States, I have had an opportunity of seeing and knowing for myself the workings of these orders, and their pernicious influences upon society generally. I would rather follow our four sons and two daughters to the grave than to see them connected with secret societies. It is a snare to be dreaded. God's Word, from Genesis to Revelation, speaks against these things if I understand it correctly. Jesus said, "In secret have I said nothing." He spake openly, and all Christians will do this that follow his example. May God help us to stand firm for truth and righteousness, ever holding up the loyal banner for freedom from wroug, tyranny and oppression. God save us from the lodge power, is my prayer, and help us that we may enjoy full and free salvation, then we shall have no desire to be unequally yoked together with unbelievers, or to have fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness.

MRS. L. M. HOYT.

THE FATE OF THE FAITHFUL WITNESSES.

Since the reformer, Milton Wright, was bishop of the northwestern district, Des Moines conference of the U. B. church he has suffered loss in many ways. Under the labors of such men as Bishop Weaver many of the brethren have been deceived and the conference become corrupt. They refused a mild resolution in favor of our principles, but passed a resolution favoring the unconstitutional commission. Men who are out-spoken are being quieted. Leaders have told us "the best way to kill the lodge is to let it alone." "We have our hand in the lion's mouth and must hold still." The psalmist David said of one of the effects of godliness, "They shall tread upon the lion."

Rev. Henry Siemiller, of Mormontown, is an inveterate enemy of the lodge, and for twenty-five years has not shunned to declare the whole counsel of God. To get him out of the annual confereuce they have resorted to measures unbecoming men of the least degree of fairness. We read in the minutes of 1885, page 17 and 18:

"The special committee in the case of H. Siemiller presented the following report which was adopted: [The brother was absent, not knowing that he had a case.]

"We, the committee appointed to investigate the case of Rev. H. Siemiller, submit the following: First. It appears to us from testimony that he has persistently refused to harmonize with the usages of the church even after being admonished by his presiding elder. It further appears from the conference records that the said Rev. H. Siemiller has been absent from this conference for three consecutive years without sending report or excuse. We, therefore, recommend that his name be erased from the conference record."

There were no charges of insubordination that Bro. Siemiller knew of. His elder did not admonish him, but to the contrary, in his report to the conference says, "Peace and harmony has prevailed." Bro. Siemiller has always harmonized with the discipline, but not "with usages" contrary to law. This brother has worn himself out in the ministry; his health has been too poor to attend a distant conference for a number of years, but he has always sent written reports till this year, notwithstanding the report of the committee to the contrary. He has been tried by a committee appointed by a conference controlled by the unconstitutional commission, without being notified or having any chance whatever to defend his character, tried and condemned before he knew of having a case. Is not this the way the lodge does?

Leaders in the U. B. church who are working in the interests of the lodge, stoop very low when they try to ruin a brother's character in such a stealthy way for no other reason than that he is a reformer and opposes all sin, and yet on pages of the minutes they say, "In the great battle of right against wrong God has ordained that the pulpit shall stand in front." "All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do, but do not ye after their works: for they say and do not." Matt. 23: 3.

It is a lamentable fact that a large portion of the church here, to avoid persecution, have made indefinite trnce with the devil for filthy lucre, but Satan is a poor pay-master. It has and is thought that opposition to secretism is detrimental to the financial interests of the church; but where opposition to the lodge ceases, the loyal brethren rather pay their money where it will counteract sin than to a "pulpit" that is not "in the front where God designed it should be." Whenever we lower our standard, the elders' report, such as we find recorded on page 13 of the minutes, is one of the results, and is as follows: "All the charges on the district, except a part of one, has suffered loss in all their interests." Much might be said showing the church to be suffering from a compromise with sin. The lodge is friendly to the church only to kill it. The U. B. ship must stem the flood or sink to rise no more.

CYRUS SMITH.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree, by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone, comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void: or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd-fellowship Judged by Its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," by Miss E. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret labor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry, by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies, Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c.

A Masonic Conspiracy, by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c.

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, G. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, care Cynosure.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry.	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men,	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heatheulsm	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Master's Carpet

BY

F. Ronayne.

Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 63: Chicago.

Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, thus showing the principles on which the order is founded. By a careful perusal of this work, a more thorough knowledge of the principles of the order can be obtained than by attending the Lodge for years. Every Mason, every person contemplating becoming a member, and even those who are indifferent on the subject, should procure and carefully read this work. An appendix is added of 32 pages, embodying

Freemasonry at a Glance,

which gives every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge together with a brief explanation of each. The work contains 42 pages and is substantially and elegantly bound in cloth. Price, 75 cents. Address

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following, as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

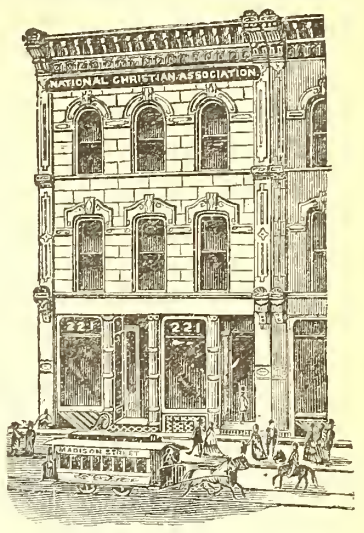
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency.

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,
221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N.Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos. H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Uls Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec. John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B Higgins Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, DECEMBER 31, 1885.

ELDER DAVID BERNARD.

"So spake the seraph, Abdiel, faithful found
Among the faithless, faithful only he
Among innumerable false, unmoved,
Unshaken, unseduced, unterrified,
His loyalty he kept, his love, his zeal:
Nor number nor example with him wrought
To swerve from truth, or change his constant mind
Though single." —Milton.

Whoever would see poetry turned to prose, and fiction to fact, let him read and ponder the meeting of Bernard with his lodge, narrated by himself in his "Reminiscences." Hon. Samuel D. Greene, in his book, "The Broken Seal," gives a picture of his own meeting with the Grand Jury of twenty-four men, all but two Masons, in their room at Batavia, N. Y., after he had taken a stand against the seizing and abducting of Morgan. As he related the story to the writer, his strong frame quivered with emotion at the recollection of the vindictive and savage ferocity of the Masons, as with horrid oaths and imprecations they shook their clenched fists in his face and told him he ought to be killed.

Aaron White, Esq., a prominent civilian and Anti-mason of Rhode Island, now nearing his ninetieth year, referring to the terror inspired by the lodge, and the rage of Masons against those who forsook and opposed it, said: "Boys, you know nothing about Masonry, or the danger incurred by opposing it, before the death of Morgan and the movement of the people against it. It was like resisting popery before Luther burnt the Pope's bull and wasn't burnt himself. Its power was universal and unquestioned; and its bloody oaths had so hardened the hearts of thousands, and its mock pretensions to sanctity had so inflamed their superstition that they verily believed that murdering a seceder was doing God service."

We give elsewhere extended extracts from Mr. Bernard's "Reminiscences," read to the convention in Shakespeare Hall, Syracuse, June 2–4, 1874. On the platform at a previous convention in the same hall were Gerrit Smith, Samuel D. Greene and David Bernard, brave and venerable men, who had together withstood the murderous fury of the secret janizaries of the lodge; who were there when Morgan was lying in Canandaigua jail, on his night journey to his death. They were familiar with the road his captors travelled; and the wholesale perjury by which they were screened from justice, and law and government defeated. They had supposed the foul conspiracy had sunk to rise no more; and that Americans had been disenchanted from its sorcery. The crowd in the hall, most of them, had grown up to manhood since the Masonic beast had received its "deadly wound," and fifteen hundred lodges had given up their charters. We gazed on them as on angels dropped down from the clouds to warn us younger men of the new danger which had come back from the pit to destroy the hopes of mankind by undermining, corrupting and defeating the American movement. Those who were at that convention will never forget the speeches of those wonderful men now retired from our sight.

We give our readers in this number of the Cynosure the picture of this wonderful man, though somewhat younger than when he stood before us at the Syracuse convention. It seems to have been divinely directed that he should have himself furnished, as we here give it, the brief sketch of his life. He came, he told us, to "testify," and sure never was witness more absorbed into the truth which he uttered. He forgot himself, and was wholly intent on his message. The whole United States and its thronging millions seemed heaving in his breast: and he related just so much of his history as confirmed its truth against his calumniators, and went home to die.

If the Cynosure, by giving his picture and this sketch, shall secure the general reading of his pamphlet of thirty pages, it will secure an end worth all the toil and prayers and labors of its devoted friends since its first number appeared. God has sent a few men on earth to complete their work. It was said by Albert Barnes that nothing could be added to Butler's Analogy, no amendment or revision can make its truth clearer or more exact. It was so with Bernard. J. Q. Adams, Seward, and their compeers grasped and exposed its malign and deadly antagonism to human equity and the civil welfare of mankind; Bernard penetrated back of, beyond and above civilization and government. He saw that the infinite God was not available to finite men, but by a Mediator, could not be reached but by the help of a "day's-man" betwixt God and men; and he saw that the Masonic ladder and the whole scale of its "degrees" was a devil's travesty of and substitute for Christ and the Christian religion. His clear, forcible words are:

"It is anti-Christ, body, soul and spirit; anti-Christ from center to circumference; from the foundation to the top stone."

Like Morgan, he opposed Masonry because he "owed to his country an exposure of its dangers," but "CHIEFLY," he says, "because Masonry opposes the Gospel." This is what makes a "National Christian Association" proper and necessary. If the lodge was a minor evil, a mere subordinate mischief, to call on the whole church of God to consider and antagonize it were unwarrantable and out of proportion. But the secret lodge system is but an expansion of pagan idolatry into Christian lands. It girdles the globe already in its own name. By ejecting a Mediator, by mangling Christ's own word, it takes from human hope the only "WAY" by which it can ascend to the infinite God, and is thus practical atheism. Like popery, which is its model and exemplar, it multiplies mediators, false mediators, and thus denies, conceals, "takes away" the infinite God from finite men. Even if it did not reject the forms of Christian worship, without Christ its worship would be "vain." But it not only ejects Christ, but it sets aside the Decalogue, substituting lodge law for God's law; as, forbidding to wrong Masons or to violate their female relatives. Its decalogue is a workman's square; its means of sanctification a setting maul; and its "cup" a human skull.

But we keep you too long from the memoir of Bernard, written by himself, and the history of his labors. We only add the notice and estimate of them given by John Quincy Adams, whose judgment, as a man and a statesman, has no superior with the American people. Mr. Adams says in his volume of letters, pp. 228–9:

"To that book [Light on Masonry] and its author, permit me, my fellow citizens, while commending it to your perusal and meditation, to offer the tribute of my unfeigned respect. . . . To David Bernard, perhaps, more than to any other man, the world is indebted for the revelation of the most execrable mysteries of Masonry; nor could he, as a minister of the Word of God, have performed a service to his country and his fellow Christians more suitable to his sacred functions. From the time when I first perused Elder Bernard's book I became convinced that it was impossible for me to discharge my duty to my country by knowing nothing about it."

The above are brief paragraphs taken from several pages of like commendations.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

MT. AUBURN, CINCINNATI, O., Dec. 21, 1885.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I am here where I spent nine years of my life. Here my first children were born and here two of them were buried. Though thirty-nine years have passed since I left; though the children here then are now the gray-haired men and women to whom I preached yesterday in the Mt. Auburn Presbyterian church, there are a remnant of my former friends left, and, thank God, no enemies outside of the lodges, and but few of them. I went to the Gibson House, which for hotel splendors exceeds "The Palace" at San Francisco, though less vast in its extent; and when I called for my bill, was told by the gentlemanly proprietor that a friend had settled it. The churches here are in the craze of Christmas, or Christ's Mass, though not one pastor of them all knows, or pretends to know when Christ was born, or even the meaning of the word "Mass," or the sorcery of what is called "The Mass" by the servants of the Roman pontiff.

I saw my old friend in charge of the Gazette, and was assured if I would spend the Sabbath with him at Cliffton I should preach in the Presbyterian church there, and he would give me "a cigar and a glass of wine." Mr. Richard Smith has been a faithful Republican and an able editor, but he has unfortunately learned that John P. St. John left his first wife, and "children" (she bore him but one child) to starve; that he was anxious to sell out to the Democrats by his agent, Jim Legate; and is, in short, generally a bad man. All this was interesting to me who knew the whole to be a campaign fable, and that St. John's nearest neighbor's, Covenanters who belong to no party and do not vote, assure me that they have lived aside of St. John for twenty years; and that they, having summered and wintered him, KNOW him to be an upright, downright, honest man, and that the story of his selling out (which would prove the Democrats fools not to buy him) was simply campaign lying by those creatures whose destitution of talent and goodness compels them to live by inventing falsehoods to carry elections. I was disappointed that Mr. Richard Smith, who was born for an honest man, should have been humbugged by such party froth.

I was pastor of the Sixth Presbyterian church here and received, in spite of negro-hatred in this commercial head-quarters of slavery (for all the trade goes down the river), 500 members to my church. The lodge hates the spot where God's truth has been told; and the Masons rested not till they got a poor clerical creature into my old pulpit who had taken twenty-one degrees in Masonry and had sworn himself blind to all truth and goodness. I saw him on the sidewalk on Saturday, and a gentleman by my side pointed him out, and assured me that he was now an inmate of the most groveling vice-houses of the city. So Knox College, where I wore out my best life, is now run by a doctor of divinity who lately attended a Knight Templar glorification of the wickedest man in Galesburg. So Oberlin, the home and habitation once of the sincerest Christians on earth, has now a theological professor who was stripped and haltered in the lodge; whose example has drawn a multitude of young men into the mouth of the lodge dragon, and who yet refuses, though entreated, to let the Massachusetts public, those young men included, know that he has forsaken and condemns the lodge, as he hints to Anti-masons that he has:

"But humanity sweeps onward; where to-day the martyr stands,
To-morrow crouches Judas with the silver in his hands."

But that Crucified One will yet reign on this sin-darkened earth; and his coming hasteth greatly. "But who may abide the day of his coming, and who shall stand when he appeareth. For he shall sit as a refiner and purifier of silver; and he shall purify the sons of Levi"—the hardest and most hopeless class of human beings, baptized worldlings and corrupt religious teachers.

I now start for my old seminary on Walnut Hills, where old Dr. Beecher graduated me; where T. D. Weld and his companions raised a rebellion against slavery and the perfume of reform still lingers around the vase. There is more hope for the country in the Presbyterian churches in this vicinity than among any other class of religionists. The United Brethren church here, one says, should be called "The United Sisters." Their husbands, fathers and sons are gone to the lodge.

W. C. Gray, of the Interior, is a Cincinnati man, or rather an Ohio Presbyterian, and the lake breezes only quicken his religious life. Here, in 1831, Crothers, and the Dickeys, Rankin, Gilleland, Gilmore, Fullerton, and others appointed a day of fasting and prayer for the downfall of slavery. This was one year before Garrison formed his New England anti-slavery society. Those prayers have been answered. Five years later the same synod at Dayton resolved, virtually, that Masonry is anti-Christ. I start South to-day or to-morrow. J. B.

—The Cynosure is criticized by some friends for dealing severely with Senator Logan. Had these good friends read similar sentiments in the New York Witness or Independent they would have rejoiced that the ambitious politician, now representing Illinois in the Senate, was understood by some one, who was willing to give the American voters fair warning. The Witness editorial on Logan with subsequent discussion of Freemasonry we are constrained to lay by till another paper.

—In addition to the interesting sketches of Elder David Bernard in this number, we hoped also for one from Elder J. L. Barlow of Wheaton, who knew Elder Bernard personally for many years, and was for a time pastor of a church in which the author of "Light on Masonry" once officiated. It was impossible at present to prepare this sketch, which will be published at some future time, when Elder Barlow is able to write it. The Bernard Reminiscences quoted at considerable length in this number, are but a part of the intensely interesting paper prepared for the Syracuse convention. The whole should be read in the Syracuse convention minutes.

—Inquiry is made for an expose of the "Oriental Order of Humility," which many are joining in some places. This order is a branch of Masonry, used by Masons who cannot indulge their vile appetite for buffoonery enough in the lodge. We have known of the most disgusting and scandalous performances with men stript naked in this so-called Order of Humility.

—The Religious Telescope commends the State Journal for its good report of the late Columbus meeting. But where is the Telescope's report? It seems to have too much Christmas to find room even to copy from the Journal.

—The Conservator of Dayton, Ohio, has issued nine numbers and it has already 300 subscribers at $1 a year, and is gaining new ones, sometimes as many as sixty a week. Rev. William Dillon proves an excellent editor and he is supported by the best men and women in the United Brethren church.

REMINISCENCES OF DAVID BERNARD.

WRITTEN BY HIMSELF.

[From a paper read before the National Convention, Syracuse, N. Y., 1874.]

Of my nativity, I will only say I was born in Utica, Oneida county N. Y., on the 24th day of December, 1798. Most of my early life was spent in Utica. Some part of my time was spent in clerkships and in teaching school. A portion of my minority was occupied in reading law with the Hon. Felix Grundy, of Nashville, Tenn., and a part of my time was occupied as a student in Columbian College at Washington, D. C. I was baptized in Utica, licensed to preach the Gospel in Utica, and in Utica I was made a Freemason. The motives urged by my Masonic friends for my union with the order were very plausible. They said that Masonry was a moral institution, benevolent and religious. They said that the order embraced in its membership men of the greatest intelligence and highest respectability in all parts of the world. They said that if I should become a minister of the Gospel, which I then had in view, it would be of great benefit and doubtless insure my success. That infidel Masons would attend on my ministry and aid in my support. They said that if I should become a Mason it would render my pathway through life more desirable and greatly augment my usefulness. And they said also that a knowledge of Masonry would aid me in expounding the word of God, and gave me for an example Rev. 2: 17: "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna and will give him a white stone, and in the stone a new name written which no man knoweth saving he that receiveth it." They pretended that this secret name was known and could be explained only by Freemasons. That the initials on the key-stone, H. T. W. S. S. T. K. S., indicated the name and was given to the candidate in this degree. But this is all "gammou," as the sequel proves. We often see these letters on the jewels of Mark Master Masons worn upon their guards, or watch chains, or bosom pins. And I sometimes read them to these wise Master builders, and they always acknowledge, directly or indirectly, that I know that much of Masonry at least, "Hiram, Tyrian Widow's Son, Sent to King Solomon." Wonderful light this, isn't it? Shining from Masonry upon the Word of God, like an unlighted tallow-candle shining on the sun! And you have to swear thirty-four times before you get high enough to understand the import of these wonderful, mystical letters—and they prove not to be mystical after all—the solving of which would not give you one ray of light from God's Word, leaving you after all the light that Masonry affords in the condition of a "numskull with his finger in his mouth." But they had another inducement. In view of my becoming a clergyman I should have it all free of cost.

But I had an objection still. They imposed oaths with penalties on all their members, and I had conscientious scruples against swearing in any form. But they disposed of this by their short method, "lying." They said that no oath would be required of me! And I yielded, and thus I was caught in an evil net. Thus I was snared in an evil time. And thus I, a young man, an aspirant for clerical robes and an immortal crown, was seeking companionship and fellowship with infidels. And now behold me, semi-denuded, hoodwinked and cable-towed, and on my knees invoking the name of the Lord Almighty and swearing extra-judicially, with no sanction or authority of national or divine law, and consequently profanely. Swearing all along at every step of the way. In the first degree, three times; in the second degree, six times; in the third degree, seventeen times; and in the four chaptoral degrees, forty times, making in all sixty-seven times I swore profanely in taking the first seven degrees of Masonry. And no one is excused. All who ascend the Masonic ladder seven degrees, descend as far as seventy-six profane oaths will take them in sin. And with a "so help me God" to back up and sustain the oaths of each degree. And this claims to be a moral institution, the handmaid of religion!

When I came to the Royal Arch degree and to the point in the oath which obligates to aid and assist a companion Royal Arch Mason when engaged in any difficulty, and espouse his cause so far as to extricate him from the same if in my power, whether he be right or wrong; and to the point to keep his secrets given to me in charge as such, I knowing them to be such, murder and treason not excepted, I stopped and objected to the oath. Whereupon a number of my friends gathered around me and gave me the assurance that it was all right, and that all would be explained to my satisfaction at the end. But no explanation was ever given me. And the reason was there was none to give. And I know of none in Masonry. And if there were any I ought to know it, for I have taken forty-eight degrees of Masonry from the highest Masonic authority; all unwritten degrees of the Blue Lodge and Royal Arch chapter, in due form, under the sanction of an oath with death penalties; and the Ineffable degrees from the Grand Commander of the Lodge of Perfection in Schenectady, where they were conferred under the sanction of an oath; making eighteen degrees Masonically and thirty degrees of a higher grade in manuscript from the same Grand Commander, and one of the Sublime Princes, without an oath. And every Royal Arch Mason knows I testify truly when I affirm that the oath of that degree obligates to aid and assist a companion Royal Arch Mason when engaged in any difficulty, and espouse his cause so far as to extricate him from the same if in my power, whether he be right or wrong, and to keep his secrets when committed in charge as such, I knowing them to be such,, murder and treason not excepted; or, as in some chapters given, "without exception," which is the same thing.

And I became more and more dissatisfied with Masonry, and saying this to a high Mason he assured me that what I had received was but the shadow of the thing, and founded on the old Testament, and that in the Ineffable degrees which were founded on the New Testament I should find the substance; and that if I should go on I would be satisfied. And I did go on, and I was satisfied with a vengeance, for I found that every step I took I got deeper and deeper into the mire. In other words, that as we ascend the Masonic ladder we descend in degradation, moral corruption and death.

Yes, I was satisfied that Freemasonry was all a hoax; a big sell; the devil's trap; the biggest humbug the world ever saw. I made up my mind that I had been sold, and that every man who had taken the first oath in Masonry was sold, and that there was no escape from the snare but by renouncing and denouncing it forever. And I did that very thing. And a clean sweep I made of it you may well believe, death penalties to prevent, notwithstanding.

In the month of August (I think it was 1826), about five weeks before the abduction of Captain Morgan, I met the Rev. E. M. Spencer, of Middlebury, Geneva county, New York, and he informed me (of what I had before heard) that one William Morgan, of Batavia, was writing, with a view of publishing, the secrets of Masonry. He said that it was the greatest piece of depravity that he ever heard of, and must be stopped; Morgan must be disposed of, put out of the way. He should be willing to be one of the number to do it; "to lay him up to dry." "Why, God looks upon the institution of Masonry with so much complaceny he never would bring the perpetrators to light!" Mr. Spencer was a highly respectable clergyman, pastor of the First Baptist church in Middlebury, and principal of the academy in that village. We had some discussions in the public journals and he, finding himself in the wrong, backed off the course. Years afterwards he came to my house humble and penitent, and I freely forgave him all he had ever said or done against me. And I asked him to preach in my pulpit, which he did a number of times and with much acceptance. I saw him again in Jamestown, cold in death. It was at his funeral, in his coffin, going to his grave, to his long home.

The introduction of Elder John G. Stearns' book, and Captain Morgan's "Illustrations of Masonry" were of great service. They did much good in enlightening and waking up the people. And the churches in western New York took hold of the subject with a strong hand, especially in Genesee county. The church in Pavilion, Elder Bernard pastor, led on the battle. Masonry was put in check and the combat commenced. The pastor sustained by the majority, arraigned the Masonic members and a large council was called. The result of the council being in favor of truth and righteousness, discomfited the Masons. Charges against Masonry were made and sustained. The battle was long and the fight a hard one. But the truth was prevalent and victorious.

But I went to Batavia to obtain Captain Morgan's book, and calling at Col. D. C. Miller's office, where it was printed, I found the doors locked and the office guarded by pistols and muskets and cannon all loaded and the inmates ready for defence.

The office had been attacked and fired and they were on the look out for another Masonic raid.

Mr. Scranton, the deputy sheriff, introduced me to the printers and the door flew open at my approach. My position on the subject of Masonry had reached Batavia, and they were glad to see me. They asked me into the office and requested me to examine a copy of the "Illustrations of Masonry" by Morgan. Not a copy had been issued from the office. I gave the work sufficient attention as to be confident that Morgan was a bright Mason and had made a correct expose of Masonry. I purchased the copy I had examined and Mr. Scranton paid for it. The dollar for the book was sent to Mrs. Morgan with the message that it was for the first copy sold, and that it had been examined by Elder Bernard, a Royal Arch Mason, and found to be all right. And I said to the printers, "It is all right, go ahead."

This was the first copy of the work which cost Wm. Morgan his life. And you have a transcript of that book of Morgan with the typographical errors all corrected in my Light on Masonry. It is Morgan's revelation as he wrote the degrees in Batavia, and they are as I received them in the lodge in Utica, and as Colonel William Williams for me in Utica published them.

The most interesting, the most important, the best thought of my life—save the one great thought of Christ and him crucified for sinners, revealed to me and in me the hope of glory, and for all the world who will receive the gift, without money and without price—was the conception of "Light on Masonry." The one is the Balm of Gilead, and the Great Physician there. This is "the treasure hid in the field." This is the "pearl of great price;" and this is "the hope of the world both now and forever." And for this I have labored and toiled in nineteen States and for more than fifty years; and if the good Lord would give me life and strength I would delight to kiss his feet, bear his cross and glory in his name a thousand years longer. Yes, yes, yes, and forever more. Amen.

And against the sin of Freemasonry, the devil's masterpiece, the deceiver and the anti-Christ, as revealed in "Light on Masonry," I have unwaveringly borne testimony for forty-eight years, enduring the persecutions of the wicked and enjoying the smiles of the Lord all the way through.

I have been a regularly ordained minister of the Gospel in the Baptist church for more than fifty years, and employed nearly thirty years of that time as pastor of fifteen different churches, three of them city churches, one of them in New York, and twelve of them village and country churches; and fifteen years in agencies for the Bible and Bible societies. And it has so happened by the grace of God that I never have had the least charge of immorality brought against me before any tribunal, civil or ecclesiastical, in all my life.

I am a life member of the New York Baptist State Convention, of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, of the American Bible Society, of the American Baptist Union, and a life director of the American and Foreign Bible Society, and also of the American Bible Union.

I have labored in many revivals in Massachusetts, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, and Ohio, and with much success. And for all this, life, health, strength and prosperity, to God, Father, Son and Spirit, be all the glory, now and forever.

In making my arrangements for the publication of "Light on Masonry," at Utica, I called on the Rev. N. N. Whiting, pastor of the Baptist church in Vernon, Oneida county, New York. Prof. Whiting, as he afterward became, was a graduate of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in both departments. He graduated in the college proper with honor. He then read law and was admitted at the bar and commenced practice, professed religion and returned to college and went through a theological course. He entered the ministry and was ordained by a large council as pastor of the Baptist church in Schenectady. My acquaintance with Mr. Whiting commenced in 1823, and he was my bosom friend until, in 1872, forty-nine years after our acquaintance and friendship commenced, he passed to the house of many mansions. Prof. Whiting was elected and acted as president of the Collegiate Institute, of Plainfield, N. J. He was a great Bible student; was a profound Greek and Hebrew scholar; and could teach thirteen languages. He was one of the revisers of the American Bible Union. A perfect gentleman in his deportment, modest, retiring and unassuming; strictly truthful, conscientious and of unwavering moral honesty. Of his sincere piety, deep and abiding, I have no doubt. And had he had half the tinsel he possessed of pure gold he would have been, as a gentleman and scholar, a star of the first magnitude.

Prof. Whiting was a very high Mason; one of sixteen, the highest save three in the world. These three are Sovereign Inspector Generals of Masonry. Masonry has divided the world into sixteen parts, and appoints a Deputy Sovereign of Sovereigns of Sublime Princes over each of these parts, and three Sovereign Inspector Generals over the whole earth. These are Sovereign Inspector Generals of the 33d degree.

(Continued on 12th page.)

THE HOME.

THE OLD YEAR.

I see it go, and know not well
If I should be more glad:
Or if, in parting with it now,
My heart should be more sad!

If I could take away with it
All of the bitter grief
That claimed its hospitality,—
Its flight were sweet relief.

But this is mine forever now
In chastened memory;—
Although the host has broken tent,
The guest remains with me.

And what I cannot well detain,
Since now the year has gone,
Are opportunities I fixed
Too light a hold upon.

And still, my gracious Lord, who dost
More sin than others find,
Thou hast in all thy dealings been
More than all others kind.

For this and all thy mercies, Lord,
I thank thee here and now,
Whatever goes, whatever comes,
To thy sweet will I bow!

—W. W. Halloway, Jr.

THE NEW YEAR.

The frosty night-wind hurries on
The strangers' lagging feet,
And, for a moment, in the hush
The Old and New Year meet;
And one goes back to God again,
And one stays on for joy or pain.

And he who stays looks for thy face
And finds thee in the night,
And with swift arms encircles thee,
And claims thee his by right;
And no one else can come as near
To thee as he, the Stranger Year.

He will abide his time with thee—
His own till death do part;
Therefore receive him tenderly
And take him to thy heart,
Not grudgingly, as one who must,
But generously with love and trust.

Be not afraid to give thyself
Into his guiding hands
For he will lead through day or dark
To rough or pleasant lands,
And he will give the fight or rest,
The shine or shade, as shall be best.

Respond to every word of his
With faith that does not fear;
Another speaks to thee through him,
For God is in the year;
Oh, love him, for he comes to bless
Thy life with good and happiness.

—Marianne Farningham, in Christian World, London.

SEPARATION FROM THE WORLD.

Many Christian people say: "Christ said we were not to be taken out of the world; therefore, we must go into the world." There is a great deal of difference between my being in the world and the world being in me. There is as much difference as between a vessel being in the water and water being in the vessel. When the world gets into me, so that I love it, and my heart is set upon worldly things, my communion with God is interrupted, and I begin to lose power. The surest and best way to get the disciples of Jesus Christ out of the world is to give them something better. I do not know of anything sweeter than real fellowship with the Lord Jesus Christ—than to have the Father and the Son coming to abide with us. That is better than all the world can give. Would you not rather have the God of glory coming to dwell with you—not merely to visit you now and then, but to abide with you—than all the friendship of the world? That is what he will do for us if we love him and keep his commandments.

Contact with the world will chill the true believer. If we really belong to God we will turn away from the world. The question may come up: "What is the world?" Anything that interrupts our communion with God, that hinders the progress of the spiritual life, and that chills our affection for Christ. Anything that does that, we ought to give up. If we are willing to do so, Christ will more than make it up to us. Many Christians seem to have the desire to live as near the world as they possibly can, to have as much of the world as they can, and have Christ at the same time. My experience has been that such Christians are the most wretched people on the face of the earth. They neither enjoy the world nor Christ. They are what are called border Christians, running a little over the line, mingling with the world a little to-day, and coming back among Christ's people to-morrow. The best way is to keep as far from the world as you can, to have as little to do with it as you can. Some one asked Billy Dawson how the world was getting on. He said he didn't know; he hadn't been there for a number of years.

I remember there used to be an apple-tree near the town where I lived when I was a boy. I suppose the apple-tree was a very good one, but it was so near the road that we boys used to get hold of the apples before they were ripe. The fruit never was allowed to get to perfection, because of its being so near the public road. If it had been away back in some retired spot, no doubt the apples would have been delicious when the proper time came. So it seems to me there are many professing Christ who never bring forth any fruit; they are so much hand-and-glove with the world that there is no separation and no bearing of testimony.

I know that some people use the argument: "If you get so far from the world, and are so dead to it, you will not have any influence over it." Well, I have not gone through the world with my eyes shut, and I have yet to find the man or woman living a worldly life who has got much influence with it. Have you ever found a wife, living a worldly life, who had much influence for good over her husband; or such a husband that had influence with his wife? I believe that Lot had less influence in Sodom than Abraham had. When he wanted to save his son-in-law, they mocked at him. Every time the children of Israel turned away from God to other nations, in order to increase their power and influence, they were always lost instead of gaining influence. You cannot win favor from the world without compromising your loyalty to Christ, and losing your influence as Christian men. Wives have come to me and said they had tried to get their husbands to come to religious meetings. "He has promised, if I go to the theatre with him now and then, he will go to church with me." I have said to them, "How did you get on? Does your husband have as much respect for your religion as before?" I have invariably been told that the wives lost influence with their husbands by such compromises.

We are told that if we lift the standard too high, many people will leave the churches and chapels. There is no doubt about that, but you will get a good many more. The power of God will be with you, and then many souls will be added to the church. What do we see to-day? A low standard of Christian life, and, therefore, little power in the churches and chapels, and few sinners converted. People go on with their grand choirs, and their organs, and their preaching; but there are no conversions. What is the trouble? The world has come into the church. It is a popular thing now to belong to some church or chapel. We want to see where we are and to be separated from the world, if we would be faithful to our Lord.

Let me refer to a passage in 2 Chron. 18. In the preceding chapter we are told that Jehoshaphat was prospering wonderfully. Then in this eighteenth chapter we read: "Now Jehoshaphat had riches and honor in abundance, and joined affinity with Ahab." Right then and there his dynasty began to fall. He had formed an alliance with one of the worst men living,—Ahab, the bitter enemy of the prophet Elijah. These two had nothing in common. Jehoshaphat thought, perhaps, that he was going to strengthen his kingdom when he formed this alliance. The next thing we hear is that he has gone down to Samaria to visit Ahab, who enticed him to go to war with him. There he was, hand-and-glove with Ahab. His son married Ahab's daughter, and it was the ruin of the kingdom of Jehoshaphat.

May God bring us out from the world! If we have formed any unholy alliances, or if we have "joined affinity with Ahab," let us confess it this morning, and ask God to forgive us. Let us draw near to him. A verse came into my mind this morning that I want to leave with you: "Draw nigh to God, and God will draw nigh to you."—Moody.

ADVANTAGES OF TRIAL.—Rich men's sons are usually failures because not forced to struggle. Those who begin life with wealth generally end it in poverty. State patronage of churches destroys their piety, for it relieves them from paying. The incessant begging of the Methodist churches has given relish for incessant praying and insured growth. The steward is the mainspring of the Methodist churches—the man of power, the fireman who keeps the furnace hot, the steam up, the machinery in motion. Beggars are a means of grace; more churches die from lack of them than by having too many. Men and churches are made strong by burdens, weak by indulgence and ease. It is their misfortune that they shirk the yoke. Everybody wants help; few are ready to afford it. Withholding tends to poverty of soul, if not of pocket. Churches which expend but little to support the Gospel, get very little good from the Gospel, and never become strong. Paying denominations are the growing ones. Ministers often injure their churches by indulging their indolence. The only way to make them strong is to induce them to do liberally to extend the kingdom of Christ.—Christian Union.

RESOLUTIONS FOR 1886.

I hereby solemnly covenant, as God shall help me—

Never to neglect my morning and evening devotions.

Always to speak kindly to every person with whom I am associated.

Always to speak well, and never ill, of any absent person.

To endeavor to lead at least one person to the Saviour during the present year.

To strive to attend one devotional meeting during the week.

My dear young friends: The New Year is one of the times when we should gird on our armour afresh and renew our vows.

Will you cut out these resolutions; or, better still, copy them and sign your names to them, and place them in your Bibles and endeavor to keep them all the year through?

If at any time you should fail, remember you have an Advocate with the Father. Ask Jesus to forgive you, and begin again. Then shall the New Year prove to you—

Another year of progress, another year of praise,
Another year of proving His presence all the days;
Another year of service, of witness for His love;
Another year of training for holier work above.

—Sel.

NEW YEAR'S WISHES.

What shall I wish thee?
Treasures of earth?
Songs in the springtime,
Pleasures or mirth?
Flowers on thy pathway,
Skies ever clear?--
Would this insure thee
A Happy New Year?

What shall I wish thee?
What can be found
Bringing the sunshine
All the year round?
Where is the treasure,
Lasting and dear,
That shall insure thee
A Happy New Year?

Faith that increaseth,
Walking in light;
Hope that aboundeth,
Happy and bright;
Love that is perfect,
Casting out fear—
These shall insure thee
A Happy New Year.

Peace in the Saviour,
Rest at his feet;
Smile of his countenance
Radiant and sweet;
Joy in his presence,
Christ ever near—
These will insure thee
A Happy New Year.

—Selected.

THE MOST PRECIOUS GIFT.

A NEW YEAR'S STORY.

The approaching New Year was the one subject of interest to the True family, because the husband and father was expected home from Europe on that day. His letters had given them hints of gifts chosen abroad, for every member of his family, and there were loving preparations to show him that he, as well, had been remembered. Indeed, there was not a room in the house, which did not tell you as you entered, "Father is coming." Nor was the welcome confined to his home; he was a man of note, honored and esteemed, and there was to be a reception at a public hall, with music, a supper, speeches and a great present, for which money had been raised.

"After all," said the gentle mother to the children, "it is not the costly things which will so much bless your father, as whatever most truly shows our love."

"Wouldn't it be nice," said the oldest daughter, Lina, "for each of us to choose some gift for father which each is to plan, and provide for, and make alone?"

All spoke in favor of this, except Grace, the youngest, who sat in her little rocking-chair, silently nursing her doll, which her father had sent her from Paris. She was supposed to be too young to take part in the matter; still Lina, who was very fond of her little sister, said: "Gracie, do you remember dear father, who kissed you when he went away, a whole, long year ago?"

"Yes, Gracie 'members," replied the little one.

"Then, if I make you a pretty bookmark for father, will you give it to him for your very own little present?"

"No! no!" cried Grace; and Lina wondered at her answer. Grace laid her doll in its cradle, and rocked it softly while she thought and thought, till she rocked and thought herself to sleep, and was tenderly laid in her crib for her nap.

"Please tell Gracie her letters some," asked our little one of Lina, the same day.

"Let us see how many you know," said Lina.

"Gracie tell," replied the child, eagerly, "A, B, C, and round O, and c'ooked S, and G, that is a O with a hole in one side and is for Gracie; but, oh, I wisht I knew what is for father!"

"Here is F, which is the first letter in the word father; see, I will print the word for you all in capitals. FATHER. That is what really stands for father."

"It never looked so when you put 'Dear Father,' in the letters," said Grace, dubiously.

"What a little one to notice!" cried Lina, and she explained that there were different ways of making the same letters.

"Gracie make FATHER then, said the child, taking Lina's pencil and trying to print an F under her sister's.

"That is a nice way to learn," said Lina; "now you can teach yourself while I crochet. I am making this purse for"—

"Lina! don't! don't!" cried Grace, in grieved tones, putting her fingers over her sister's lips.

"Can it be she realized that I came near telling my secret," thought Lina.

Grace worked patiently, day after day, till she could print the word father quite legibly; then she said, "Now, Gracie, make letter I and letter U."

"What made you choose those letters?" asked Lina.

"No, no! Gracie not tell," she answered.

"Which letter next?" asked Lina.

"Not a letter, a nicie, nicest word, coaxed Grace.

Lina mentioned, for the little one's choice, several "nicest" words, including grace, faith, hope, and love.

"Love very nicest word," said Grace, and printed it, as she had the rest, from a copy. After this she liked to amuse herself alone, with pencil and paper, and little attention was given to her because all were so busy.

The father arrived on New Year's Eve, only just in time to be escorted from the depot, in a grand procession with a band, to a hall of public reception. Grace was fast asleep at home, and her last waking thought had been of a beautiful hanging basket, wreathed with green and with the words, in brilliant immortelles, "For Our Father," which hung over his study table; for in this were placed his children's gifts.

Grace was with her brothers and sisters when, on the morning of the New Year, their father and mother entered the study together, and she, lifting her eyes to the basket, said, "Here is a personal offering from the children."

The father had met gratefully the public expressions of honor and esteem, and received with emotion costly gifts of affection, but this moved him as nothing else had done. One by one he took from its nestling place in the garlanded basket, the gift of each child, praising the work and tenderly thanking the giver. At last, for it had been first and silently placed there, came Grace's very own present. On a strip of delicate tinted card-board she had printed:

FATHER I LOVE YOU.

This she had managed, quite alone, to fasten neatly upon a pretty blue satin ribbon, given her for a doll's sash. Everything but Grace's gift was for a time forgotten by that happy family. Lina told about the study of printing, and of Grace's refusal to give a bookmark which was not her own work; then, as questions were asked, came out all her pretty ways of managing to hide her purpose, lest her offering fail to be entirely her own. Meantime, the father held his youngest one close to his heart, and all the rest were glad when he told her that, of all his grand gifts and of all his gifts of love, this was the most precious.

We have a Heavenly Father, who loves each more fondly than Grace's father could love her, and this New Year the offering of the youngest heart which can truly say, "Father I love you," will be to him the most precious gift.—Selected.

HOW TO BECOME HAPPY.

Many young persons are ever thinking over some new way of adding to their pleasures. They always look for chances for more "fun," more joy.

Once there was a wealthy and powerful king, full of care, and very unhappy. He heard of a man famed for his wisdom and piety, and found him in a cave on the borders of a wilderness.

"Holy man," said the king, "I come to learn how I may become happy."

Without making a reply, the wise man led the king over a rough path until he brought him to a high rock, on the top of which an eagle had built her nest.

"Why has the eagle built her nest yonder?"

"Doubtless," answered the king, "that it may be out of danger."

"Then imitate the bird," said the wise man. "Build thy home in heaven, and thou shalt have peace and happiness."—Sel.

A NEW YEAR'S ACROSTIC.

H appy is every one that retains wisdom.....Prov. 3: 18.
A bstain from all appearance of evil.....1 Thess. 5: 22.
P onder the path of thy feet.....Prov. 4: 26.
P ray one for another.....James 5: 16.
Y ield yourselves unto God.....Rom. 6: 13.

N ew things do I declare.....Isa. 42: 9.
E nter not into the path of the wicked.....Prov. 4: 14.
W atch and pray.....Matt. 26: 41.

Y ear of my redeemed is come.....Isa. 64: 4.
E very word of God is pure.....Prov. 30: 5.
A bhor that which is evil.....Rom. 12: 9.
R ejoice in the Lord always.....Phil. 4: 4.

BIBLE LESSONS.

STUDIES IN JEWISH HISTORY.

LESSON II, Jan. 10, 1886.—Jeremiah predicting the captivity. Jer. 8: 20-22; 9: 1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT.—The harvest is past, the summer is ended, and we are not saved. Jer. 8: 20.

[Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Sin is self-destroying. vs. 20–22. Sinners die unrepentant, not for lack of opportunity, but because they neglect to seize the golden Now. The Divine Healer stands ready, but they seek, in their sickness, other physicians. The deepest dreg of bitterness in a lost sinner's cup must be the thought that he has destroyed himself;—that he has allowed the summer of life to slip by and the harvest to end without putting forth one genuine, honest effort to gain his soul's salvation.

2. The fruit of secret false worship. vs. 1–8. It was during this period that Ezekiel was shown the vision of the elders of Israel worshipping the sun toward the east (ch. 8). Here we have a vivid description of the state of society which these secret false worships had produced. (1) an utter lack of confidence in each other. The object of every secret organization is to gain surreptitious advantages for its own members over outsiders. What is done in the lodge-room must be "ever concealed and never revealed." Here is certainly ground for distrust. Through lodge favoritism, "every brother will utterly supplant," courts be corrupted to shield criminals, the few be enriched at the expense of the many. (2). An atmosphere of falsehood, teachery and slander. "They will deceive every one his neighbor." The essence of Freemasonry and its kindred organizations is deception. A gigantic swindle to begin with; the ceremonies of initation throughout a tissue of absurd fables, is it strange that its influence is to undermine all national probity? Masonry is a school of slander, defamation of opponents being one of its requirements. And as Masonic writers uniformly trace back its origin to these ancient secret worships, we have reason to look upon this passage as an accurate picture of what our beloved land will become under lodge rule.

3. The destructive power of false worships. vs. 9–16. The terrible judgments which befell the Jews had a cause. "They walked after Baalim." Their secret false worship destroyed them. There is here a solemn lesson for every true patriot. Like causes produce like effects. The subtle poison of the lodge will be no less fatal to republican America than it was to ancient Judah.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

Where else do we find a picture of society under a system of secret lodge worship? Ps. 64: 3–6; Is. 59: 4–7, 13–15. Have we as a nation any excuse for forgetting God? Jer. 11: 7.

From Peloubet's Notes.

"And we are not saved." Not saved from their sins; not saved from the calamities which threatened them; not saved from their enemies, who not long afterwards laid waste their country, destroyed their city, and carried the people away captive. And yet they might have been saved, had they been willing to obey God. But they rejected their Father in heaven; they were deaf to his voice of love. These proverbial expressions speak of golden opportunities forever lost; of salvation long within their easy grasp, yet utterly neglected; till at length ruin comes and salvation is no longer possible. The harvest time is past, and no supplies for winter can now be gathered. The summer is ended; nothing to purpose is done, and dread winter knows no mercy.—Cowles.

THE SINS WHICH BROUGHT THE CALAMITIES UPON THEM.—Vers. 2–8.

(1) Impurity. "For they be adulterers." They were faithless to God in breaking their covenant with him, to serve idols; and they worshiped the idols, Baal and Ashtoreth, whose very worship was lascivious and adulterous. They broke the first and second commandments, and also the seventh, which forbids all impure thoughts and deeds.

(2) Treachery. "An assembly (or gang) of treacherous men." Men who are faithless, perfidious in private life, and traitorous to the State.—Imp. Dic. A character which leads to the breaking of all the commandments.

(3) Lying. "They bend their tongues like their bow for lies." Their tongues are like a bow which shoots lies like sharp, swift, deadly arrows. Here is broken the ninth commandment.

(4) Misuse of power. "They are not valient (rather, do not exercise their power, rule) for (rather, with) the truth (or faithfulness)." The prophet has in mind the great and mighty, who had power in their hands, and used it to oppress their inferiors.—Keil. As the rev. ver. puts it, "They are grown strong, but not for truth;" they use their strength in the wrong way, thus breaking the last five commandments.

(5) Godlessness or moral atheism. "And they know not me, saith the Lord." They do not recognize him as God, as judge, as having authority over them. They do not think of God; they try not to believe in him. "The fool hath said in his heart, There is no God." Here they break the whole of the first table of the law.

(6) Dishonesty. "Take ye heed," etc. Such was their character that each one must be continually on his guard against his neighbors and even his own brothers, lest he be cheated and defrauded out of his rights. Herein is broken the eighth and tenth commandments.

(7) Slander. "And every neighbor will walk with slanders." Will go about talebearing, telling lies, and distorting facts to the injury of others.

LESSONS FROM THE LIFE OF JEREMIAH.—1. Those who feel most unfit for certain work are often on that account the best fitted for it. 2 The tender, gentle, sensitive, natures, full of love, must often utter the most terrible denunciations against sinners. Their love and tenderness make men feel most strongly the evil and injury of sin. 3. We must withstand the tide of popular sin, though we stand alone, hated and unpopular. 4. Conviction of duty and the conscious presence of God can triumph over physical weaknesss and shrinking sensitiveness. 5. We must go on warning, entreating and opposing sin, whether we are successful or not. It is our part to do duty; it is God's to give success. 6. Some of the sweetest songs are sung in the minor key. 7. There is ever an outlook of hope in the darkest times, a silver lining to the blackest cloud, a morning radiance after the longest night.

2. Vers. 20–22. God has abundant salvation, spiritual blessings, happiness, heaven, for all people.

3. Many waste their opportunities, refuse to gather the harvest of good.

4. There comes a time when it is too late; when the door is shut fast; when the future is fixed.

5. Opportunities are lost (1) by neglect; (2) by delay; (3) by sin; (4) by false confidence in self.

6. Vers. 1, 2. We ought to mourn over the evils of our times, and do all we can to save the nation from them.

7. Vers. 3–8. The only real danger to a community is in the bad character of its people.

8. Deceit and lying are among the most dangerous of sins, for they undermine the very foundation of virtue in the character.

9. Vers. 9–11. Punishmeut is certain to follow unrepented sin.

10. Warnings against siu, punishment, and the anouncement of punishment proceed from love, not hate. If God hated he would punish without warning, would let men go on sinning. If his ministers did not love men they would not warn and entreat. Preaching future punishment is a proof of love.

11. Ver. 15. God's punisments here are not only bitter, but a medicine. They are intended to cure men of sin.

12. The only hope of a people is in good morals, righteous lives, and true service of God.

—Mr. Mollendorf, at the head of the Corean Custom Department, has been removed. He was most bitterly opposed to Christianity, and used his office for the benefit of German and Russian schemers. Judge Denny, of Oregon, who succeeds him, cordially favors missionary activity and the introduction of Western civilization.

—Lord Coleridge recently stated, while charging a grand jury, that there had been a steady diminution of crime in England and Wales for the last ten years, and that, while the population had increased nine or ten millions, the actual number of criminals is less than it was forty or fifty years ago.

DAVID BERNARD (Continued from 9th page.)

In 1826 the Rev. Dr. Frederic Dalcho, of South Carolina, was one of these three Sovereign Inspector Generals of the order. With him were deposited the written manuscripts of Masonry (all above the Royal Arch are written) of all the higher degrees. When the Lodge of Perfection at Schenectady was installed Dr. Dalcho furnished the manuscripts. He copied them from the original records for that lodge and gave Mr. Yates of Schenectady, the Grand Commander, the eleven degrees for that lodge, and all the rest. Mr. Yates held them in connection with Prof. Whiting for some years. They had them in possession alternately. As Mr. Yates was at the head of the lodge for whom they were written he held them most of the time. But when not in the hands of Yates, they were held by Whiting. When I called on Whiting, Mr. Yates had them in possession; and, not until then did I know that any such manuscripts were in existence. I indeed had supposed that my cup was full already, for I had the first three degrees of the Blue Lodge from the pen of Captain Morgan, and sealed with his own blood! And I had the four chaptoral degrees and the degrees of the Cross and Encampment of the Knight Templars from the report of the convention of one hundred and three seceding Masons at Leroy, N. Y., and the eleven Ineffable degrees which I had from the Lodge of Perfection, making twenty-three degrees of pure and unmixed Masonry, and from undoubted authority. I felt well, but little thought I was destined to be the depository or medium through which all the treasures of "Solomon and Hiram the Widow's Son" were to flow to mankind! Rather through which and by whom this lady of the night, and of the darkness, and of blood, should be unveiled, and this great harlot of Hades be brought into the light of the unclouded, mid-day sun. Brought out, denuded of all her jewelry, her silk, lace, and pearls, and now can be seen with her hood-wink, cable-tow, skull-cup of wine, and dreadful poniard of Masonic vengeance. Seen in all her fulsome nudity, breathing out profanity, blasphemy, and death; and belching forth fire and brimstone and double damnation on all of her simple-hearted and honest-minded victims, who refuse to obey her laws and disobey her mandates. Don't think I am painting. I am not. I don't deal in furbelows of speech, nor speak in the language of hyperbole. John Quincy Adams called the inside of Masonry made bare in my book, "the execrable secrets" of Masonry revealed. In other words, that I told the world what an accursed old hag Masonry was, and he commended me for it. And, believe me, I think of it with great humility, and I say it with much diffidence, that if the good Lord ever approved anything that I have ever done for him or his truth or his kingdom, he approved of my publishing to the world the "execrable secrets" of Masonry.

When I entered the house of my friend and brother, Whiting, although knowing his views were all in favor of Masonry, and that he was one of the highest Masons in the world; and remembering that I had taken the higher degrees of Masonry at his suggestion and by his aid; and knowing, too, that he knew as well as I that we were now antipodes on Masonry, and possibly might become violent beligerents, yet I had no misgivings. I knew he had the intelligence, the learning, the piety, the knowledge of Masonry,—everything in advance of myself, save truth, common sense, conscience, and God. On the great question at issue I knew, I KNEW I was right. No hesitancy, no tremblings. Not a bit of it—but a perfect confidence in the truth and righteousness of my mission.

We met in love. The Master was with us. Mr. Whiting knew that I was about to publish my "Light on Masonry." I told him all about it. He was not angry; nor was I. We opened the subject pro and con. The questions at issue were: 1st, Is Masonry wrong? 2d, Should Masonry be revealed? 3d, Are the oaths of Masonry legally or morally binding?

The first question—Is Masonry wrong?—I gained without a flesh-wound; for he helped me. He said casually and rather confidently in the course of remarks, that a revelation of the upper degrees of Masonry would do more to pull down Masonry than all the lower degrees which I was going to publish could do. "How so?" I asked. "Why, they are anti-Christian." "Indeed! Well, then, upon your own showing Masonry must be wrong." And so there I had him. "Masonry is wrong, is it? I have gained the first point, I think; and gaining that I have gained the second also, for it cannot be maintained that wrong should be concealed." He gave up both points. But there the third point was involved in the other. But on this came the tug of war. He was fastidiously conscientious on the keeping of oaths and promises. We had a long and hard battle on this point. I took the ground that extra-judicial oaths to do wrong were neither legally nor morally binding. And that such an oath should always be broken. And I contended that the existence of Masonry depended on the keeping of its secrets inviolate. If its secrets were kept it would continue and we should be responsible for the evils which would flow from its continuance.

He was intelligent, learned, conscientious, and pious; an astute lawyer and a sound theologian. And after about three day's and night's discussion, I laid my hand upon his heart and conscience, and, appealing to his better nature, asked him if he was willing to cherish an enemy to the Bible, to the church of God, to the Lord Jesus who had bought us with his own blood? or would he aid in destroying this great reptile from the earth? I cannot tell you half that was said, but the battle was won, and the truth was victorious. "I can help this cause now; I may not have another chance." And by this servant of God Mr. Yates was gained, and though not willing to assume any responsibility in the matter, was willing to give up the manuscripts to Mr. Whiting to dispose of as he thought best, and my good brother Whiting thought best to loan them to me, and to me for publication. I copied them carefully as I could; and I thought best to give them,—as I had nothing else to give—and myself for the life of the world; taking pattern from my glorious Lord.

You can find all the "secrets" of Masonry up to the thirty-third degree as I received them, and as I have here testified, from the hands of the Rev. Dr. Frederick Dalcho, Sovereign Inspector General of the thirty-third degree, through the hands of the Grand Commander, Mr. Yates, of the Lodge of Perfection in Schenectady, N. Y., and Rev. Prof. N. N. Whiting, and if intelligence and learning and piety and official standing as a Mason, and a correct knowledge of Masonry are essential to authenticity and belief, then we have full and reliable evidence of the truth of the higher degrees of Masonry as revealed in "Light on Masonry."

And now is it not a matter of congratulation that this Convention is in the possession of Masonry in its details as given in the lodges in this country, from the first to the thirty-third degree, obtained from the highest and purest and the most authentic and reliable sources of Masonic authority and knowledge in the world?

THE CHURCHES.

—Pres. C. A. Blanchard attended the dedication of a Union Evangelical church at Kokomo, Indiana, last Sabbath, Rev. W. A. Hile, pastor. The church membership is about 100, but the attendance is some 400. Last Sabbath the hall was crowded by nearly 500 persons. Among the congregation were a number saved by divine grace from tobacco, liquor, and the lodges of various sorts, and God is continually working by his Spirit to save others.

—Rev. Henry Cogswell is now living in Englewood near this city, where he has begun a very favorable mission work which promises soon to become a strong church. The health of Mrs. Cogswell seems better in Englewood than it has been elsewhere for some time.

—Sam Jones closed his evangelistic meeting in St. Louis Dec. 20th, and has gone to Knoxville, Tenn. In January he will go to Cincinnati, and in February to Springfield, Ill. An effort has been made to have him visit Chicago, but his engagements will not at present permit it.

—The Salt Lake papers report a sermon preached by the Rev. J. B. Thrall, Congregationalist, at Salt Lake City on Thanksgiving Day, in which he takes ground in favor of the government of the Territory by a Territorial Commission—a plan first proposed by the late Dr. Leonard Bacon in the columns of the Christian Union.

—The Blanchard, Iowa, Record says of Rev. Mr. Sharp, lately come to the place as pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian church, that he "handles secret societies without gloves when the question comes in his way."

—Rev. Wm. Johnston, D. D., of College Springs, Iowa, went to Pittsburgh, Pa., a few days since in response to an invitation to preach from one of the leading churches in that city.

—The London Hospital Sunday Fund this year amounts to $167,220, and the Saturday fund to $80,000, to be divided among 101 hospitals and 53 dispensaries.

—The Rev. Thomas Tennant recently died at Evansville, Ark., at the age of 115 years. He had been a Methodist minister ninety years, and was probably the oldest preacher in the world.

—A remarkable work of grace is reported at Bethany church, Philadelphia, during the last three months. The number of names voluntarily placed on the converts' roll is 530.

—Dr. Augustus F. Beard, who left Plymouth church, Syracuse, to become pastor of the American church in Paris, has sailed for New York, having accepted a position as Secretary of the American Missionary Association.

—A missionary of the American Sunday-school Union writes that in one county in Missouri 140 persons have professed conversion during the past month. From Tennessee a missionary writes of ten churches organized from Sunday-schools established by missionaries of the Union. In Nebraska the interest in religion is increasing every year. In the past three months five churches have been organized from Sunday-schools in three months.

—The Bombay Guardian reports a remarkable revival among the native Christians of the Church Mission at Tricur, Southern India. It was first manifested in the Girls' Boarding-school in the evening after a public meeting, when women and girls were prostrated on the floor in great distress on account of sin. At the next public service so many came forward for prayers that the whole church was required for an inquiry-room.

—The New York Observer says that the interest awakened by the addresses of Mr. Studd to the students at Princeton, has led to the establishment of preaching services in the town. A hall has been opened, and Drs. Patton, Paxton, and others preach on Sunday evenings. The young men of the place are gathered into this hall, and there are evidences of the presence and blessing of God upon these services.

—The interest in religious affairs in St. Joseph, Mo., still continues, and the revival meetings which are being held in the various churches have been attended largely and with beneficial results. It is thought there have been nearly eight hundred additions to the several churches since Rev. Sam Jones closed his campaign in St. Joseph. The following additions have been made to the different churches: Baptist, 279; Christian, 150; Methodist South, 138; Methodist North, 97; Presbyterian, 26; Protestant Episcopal, 35; Hundley Chapel, 25. A deep interest still prevails.

—There are a number of Corean officials, among whom we have good reason for numbering the king himself, who would like to see missionary work being successfully carried on in the country, and, in view of the present uncertain state of affairs, we are led to hope that the next social trouble may remove the opposition and place the party in power which is favorable to our work. Already one man has applied to have his brother taught English and Christianity by our missionary, Mr. Underwood, and in the absence of any religion it seems that Christianity, once started, must make rapid progress.—Foreign Missionary.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year.
clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

BUSINESS.

Thanks are due to quite a number who have returned to this office their copies of the Cynosure of Dec. 10th and 17th, and we hope many more may yet be received.

The Christian Cynosure is sent to some who have never subscribed for it, by some friend in order that you may become acquainted with its principles, and if possible that you may be lead to hearty co-operation in its work. You will be notified when the time paid for has expired, and you will not be called upon to pay for any copies you may receive.

CUT THIS OUT

and place it conveniently for reference: Tracts number 11, 13, 21, 23, 24, 27, 29, 31, 34, 40, 41 and 49 are out of print and none will be printed during this year.

DON'T YOU THINK

THAT YOU CAN SEND IN A CLUB OF SIX or more trial subscribers at twenty-five cents each? We continue the offer of eight numbers of the Christian Cynosure to any address for 25 cents.

3 months' treatment for 50c. Piso's Remedy for Catarrh. Sold by druggists.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2	83½	@84⅛
No. 3		69
Winter No 2	92½	96
Corn—No. 2		@36⅜
Oats—No. 2		27½
Rye—No. 2		62
Bran per ton		12 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@11 50
Mess pork per bbl	8 80	9 87½
Butter, medium to best	11	@25
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 45	@1 67
Flax	1 08	1 12
Broom corn	03½	@ 07
Potatoes	50	@ 60
Hides—Green to dry flint	06½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 15	@5 65
Common to good	2 00	@4 70
Hogs	2 50	@3 85
Sheep	2 00	@3 00

NEW YORK.

Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	90	@ 97
Spring		94
Corn	40	@50
Oats	35	@42
Mess Pork	9 85	10 50
Eggs		27
Butter	7	26
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@5 25
Hogs	3 25	@3 75
Sheep	1 50	@3 50

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre, said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. MME. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Proprietor, 48 Bond St., New York. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers throughout the United States, Canadas, and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"I have read it from its commencement with decided interest, and have derived from it no inconsiderable instruction."—JUSTICE STRONG, late of U. S. Supreme Court.

The Christian Statesman,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL,

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF

PUBLIC MORALS AND NATIONAL RELIGION.

ESTABLISHED TO DISCUSS the principles of government and current political questions in the light of the Christian religion.

TO MAINTAIN our Sabbth Laws, the Bible in the Schools, and other Christian Features of the American Government.

TO CALL the Nation back to the God of our fathers.

It is an uncompromising advocate of PROHIBITION and other vital reforms.

It opposes the union of Church and State.

It has no sectarian relations.

It is not "in politics," but deals with all parties from an independent position.

Its expositions of the International Sabbath School Lessons are of exceptional value.

It includes the STANDARD BEARER, a weekly illustrated paper for Young People.

"I hardly know of a paper whose wide circulation would be more advantageous."—President Seelye, of Amherst College, Mass.

"An instrumentality of unsurpassed usefulness in the Christian reformation of American politics."—Dr. A. A. Miner, Boston.

"Its course has been manly and consistent, its editorials able, its success marvelous."—President Scovel, Wooster University, O.

"As a Thesaurus of facts and arguments bearing on the important questions of morality and religion, invaluable and unrivaled."—Prof. A. Rittenhouse, Dickinson College, Pa.

"More weighty instruction and cogent reasoning to the square inch than any paper with which I am acquainted."—Rev. R. G. McNeice, Pres. Pastor, Salt Lake City.

"The exhibit of ability, patience, earnestness and truth."—Dr. Jonathan Edwards, Philadelphia.

"On some of the great questions of the age I have sometimes been puzzled to know exactly the position of several of our leading religious weeklies, but from the trumpet of the CHRISTIAN STATESMAN I have never yet heard one uncertain sound."—Prof. M. S Terry, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ills.

TERMS $2.00 a year.

Specimen Copies sent FREE.

Address,

THE CHRISTIAN STATESMAN,

1520 CHESTNUT ST., PHILA., PA.

THE LILY OF PURITY

This beautiful Lily is one of the rarest novelties known to Florists, and it is by rare good fortune that we are able to offer it as a PREMIUM to our Subscribers and Readers for a limited time. This lovely Lily is PURE WHITE and has a delicate fragrance—one Lily filling the house or yard with its delicious perfume. It has another valuable peculiarity—that of blooming two to four times without rest. By planting it in a mixture of equal parts sand and loam, in 3-inch pots, a plant will usually be produced twenty inches high, bearing from twenty to forty flowers at one time. One on exhibition in New York bore 150 Lilies.

$5.00 IN GOLD premium to the subscriber who produces the largest number of Lilies on a single stalk from the premium bulb. A single bulb is sold by Florists at $1.00. We have imported a large number direct from Bermuda, and are able to offer ONE BULB FREE BY MAIL to anyone who subscribes for six months at fifty cents, or two bulbs to anyone who subscribes at $1.00 from now to Jan. 1, 1887; the postage (five cents on one bulb and eight on two bulbs) to be remitted with subscription price. This offer is limited to October 1, 1885. Bulbs will be ready for delivery about Sept. 15, for Fall planting. Specimen copies of HOUSEKEEPER and new Premium List for 1885-6 to any address. BUCKEYE PUB. CO., Minneapolis, Minn.

Cures BLOOD Diseases, CANCER, ECZEMA, Salt Rheum, etc., when all other remedies fail.

Send for 20-page descriptive circular and testimonials.

D. NEEDHAM'S SON'S

World renowned Red-Clover Blossoms and Fluid and Solid Extracts of the Blossoms, 116 and 118 Dearborn street, Chicago.

Readers ordering goods, or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)

Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.

Brethren (Dunkers or German Baptists.)

Christian Reformed Church.

Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)

Congregational—The State Associations of Illinois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.

Disciples (in part.)

Friends.

Lutherans—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferences.

Mennonites.

Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.

Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conference.)

Moravians.

Plymouth Brethren.

Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.

Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)

United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowship and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Sandford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.
Sugar Grove Church, Green county, Pa.
Military Chapel, M. E., Lowndes county, Miss.
Hopewell Missionary Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Cedar Grove Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Simon's Chapel, M. E., Lowndes Co., Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Brownlee Church, Caledonia, Miss.
Salem Church, Lowndes Co., Miss.
West Preston Baptist Church, Wayne Co., Pa.

OTHER LOCAL CHURCHES

adopting the same principle are—

Baptist churches: N. Abington, Pa.; Menomonie, Mondovi, Waubeck and Spring Prairie, Wis.; Wheaton, Ill.; Perry, N. Y.; Spring Creek, near Burlington, Iowa; Lima, Ind.; Constableville, N. Y. The "Good Will Association" of Mobile, Ala., comprising some twenty-five colored Baptist churches; Bridgewater Baptist Association, Pa.; Old Tebo Baptist, near Leesville, Henry Co., Mo.; Hoopeston, Ill; Esmen, Ill.; Strykersville, N. Y.

Congregational churches: 1st of Oberlin, O.; Tonica, Crystal Lake, Union and Big Woods, Ill.; Solsbury, Ind.; Congregational Methodist Maplewood, Mass.

Independent churches in Lowell, Countryman school house near Lindenwood, Marengo and Streator, Ill.; Berea and Camp Nelson, Ky; Ustick, Ill.; Clarksburg, Kansas; State Association of Ministers and Churches of Christ in Kentucky.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Who depend on voluntary contributions of Christian people in whole or in part for their support:

J. F. BROWNE, Berea, Ky.

ELI TAPLEY, Columbus, Miss.

J. F. GALLOWAY, Okahumka Florida.

WM. HAZENBURG, Cape Town, S. Africa.

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES, Andros, Greece.

C. B. WARD, Secunderabad, India.

The Evangelists associated with Rev. John G. Fee, of Berea, Ky.

Contributions for either of these brethren may be forwarded through the Treasurer of the N. C. A. PLEASE DESIGNATE to which one such funds shall be sent.

Sing the Reform

Into the Hearts of the People!

One of the most popular books against lodgery is the latest compilation of GEORGE W. CLARK, the Minstrel of Reform, a forty-page book of soul-stirring, conscience-awakening songs appropriate for lectures, conventions and the home circle. What can add more to the interest of a meeting than a song well sung? What means will more quickly overthrow the power of the secret lodges than to sing the truth into the popular conscience?

Get this little work and use it for God and home and country. Forty pages. Price 10cts. postpaid. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison Street, Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Mason & Hamlin

ORGANS: Highest Honors at all Great World's Exhibitions for eighteen years. One hundred Styles, $22. to $900. For Cash, Easy Payments or Rented. Catalogues free.

PIANOS: New mode of Stringing. Do not require one-quarter as much tuning as Pianos on the prevailing "wrest-pin" system. Remarkable for purity of tone and durability.

ORGAN AND PIANO CO.

154 Tremont St., Boston. 46 E. 14th St. (Union Sq.), N. Y. 149 Wabash Ave., Chicago.

A. B. C. STEAM COOKED CRUSHED WHITE OATS.

A.B.C. Wheat, A.B.C. Barley, A.B.C. Maize,

Hulled, Steam-Cooked Desiccated.

BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!!

American Breakfast Cereals.

Made from the Finest Grains. All Impurities removed. Prepared for the table in ten minutes. Ask for A. B. C. Brand only. (Registered Trade Mark) PATENTED. For sale by all Grocers. Send for circulars, etc., to THE CEREALS M'F'G CO., 83 Murray Street, N. Y. (Incorporated 1875.)

Special Inducements

To Christian Workers in the United States.

Bagster's Bibles Cheaper than Ever.

Bound in French Morocco, protecting edges, elastic bands, etc.

No. I. Smallest size	$1 00
No. II. Medium size	1 50
No. III. Large size	2 75

For a short time we will mail to parties in the United States these Bibles at the following Special Discounts:

No. I.....For 70c. No. II.....For $1 10
No. III.....For $1 90

Better Binding of Bagster's and Oxford Bibles at Corresponding Discounts.

Complete Bible Catalogue sent free on application

Bagster's Pictorial Bible.

This Bible is specially prepared for Mothers, S. S. Teachers of the smaller Classes, and Children. Well bound, good clear ruby type, with a large number of Outline Illustrations and Maps. Size, 6x4x1 1-4 in.

Price, Roan Leather, round corners	$1 00
Turkey Morocco, elegant	2 00

DISCOUNT, 20 Per Cent.

Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price.

S. R. BRIGGS,

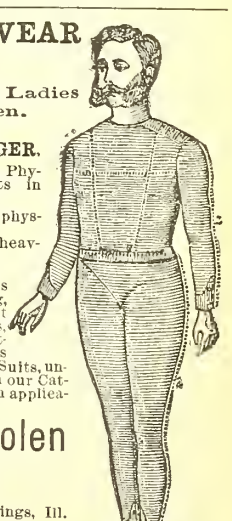
Toronto Willard Tract Depository,

TORONTO, CANADA.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.



System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health

Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.

Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors, Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.

Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure. Special prices made to clergymen and the workers.

HOME HINTS.

PLANT A HOME.

Young beginners in life's morning,
Don't forget the rainy day;
Sunshine can't last forever,
Or the heart be always gay.
Save the time and then the dollar,
Lay up something as you roam,
Choose some blooming spot of beauty,
Some fair lot, and plant a home.

You, too, who have babes around you,
Coming up to take your place,
Give them something to remember,
Homestead memories let them trace.
Would you feel the pride of manhood,
Let the sun your dwelling greet,
Breathe the blessed air of freedom,
Own the soil beneath your feet.

You, too, who perhaps have squandered,
Life's fair morn—'tis not too late!
Start at once to woo bright fortune,
Rail no more at so-called fate.
Sow the golden seeds of saving
In the rich and quickening loam,
Spend your last days not with strangers,
Enter heaven's gate from home.

—The Home.

A HOUSE OF OUR OWN.

Next to being married to the right person, there is nothing so important in one's life as to live under one's roof. There is something more than a poetical charm in the expression of the wife:

"We have our cosy house; it is thrice dear to us because it is our own. We have bought it with the saving of our earnings. Many were the soda-water fountains, the confectionary salons, the luxuries of the market, we had to pass; my noble husband denied himself the comfort of tobacco, wore his old clothes and even patched his boots; and I, O me! made my old bonnet do, wore the plainest clothes, did the plainest cooking—saving was the order of the hour, and to have 'a home of our own' had been our united aim. Now we have it. There is no landlord troubling us with raising the rent, and exacting this and that. There is no fear harbored in our bosom that in sickness or old age we will be thrown out of house and home as the money we shall save from paying rent will be sufficient to keep us in the winter days of life."

What a lesson do the above words teach, and how well it would be if hundreds of families would heed them, and instead of living in rented houses, which take a large share of their capital to furnish, and a quarter of their earnings to pay the rent, dress and eat accordingly, would bravely curtail expenses, and concentrate their efforts on having a "home of their own." Better a cottage of your own than a rented palace.

SENSIBLE STYLE PREFERABLE TO GINGER-BREAD ARCHITECTURE.

A few words as to domestic architecture. Our rural dwellings are almost universally throughout the country of wood. In consequence it is difficult to overcome their box like appearance and identify them with the landscape. An average village, unless so embowered as to conceal its construction, looks too much like an accumulation of dry goods crates. The nearest approach to harmonization with nature is generally to be found in old, weather beaten farm houses, nestling in their fields, among the orchards, almost as naturally as the great boulders in the pastures. A landscape photograph, into which the average trim dwelling intrudes, is a proof of how trying to natural beauty is the usual abode of man in this country. Well-meaning efforts have been made to remedy this ugliness by the addition of adornment, which, however, being for the most part purposeless, and adding to the cost without any corresponding benefit, only aggravates the evil. The jig saw work drops away, the gay paint washes off and a distressing shabbiness ensues. Even when such a house is kept in smart repair the change of fashion in "architectural millinery" makes it look ridiculous, like a woman with a last year's bonnet. Really good architecture, however, looks as well fifty years hence as it does to-day, whatever the prevailing style may be. In building a house, the true way is to make its plan as convenient as possible, and let its exterior conform thereto. Symmetrical lines and good proportions give a house its artistic character, and not its ornamentation. The best houses are those which have little or no ornamentation for ornamentation's sake—although useful features, like verandas, dormers and bay-windows, may serve the purposes of ornamentation. For a wooden house nothing more substantial, economical and pleasing to the eye can be devised than one designed in good proportions, without any ornamentation whatever, and entirely covered with shingles, stained, perhaps, in two or three tints. The stain, in wearing away, will not become shabby, like paint, but the surfaces will assume weather-beaten grays, soft and harmonious, and slightly varying according to the original hue. The stain may be renewed when desired, or the natural hues which nature gives allowed to stay, as they have been imparted by her kindly touch. Then, as vines clamber over the walls, and trees and shrubbery grow up round about, from year to year, the house will gain character as a home and become dearer to the dwellers therein.—Outing.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

In Nervous Diseases.

DR. HENRY, New York, says: "In nervous diseases, I know of no other preparation to equal it."

AN INIMITABLE SUMMER RESORT.

The largest majority of health or pleasure-seeking tourists that have not the requisite time and wealth to visit the mountain resorts of Colorado or the cool lake retreats of Northern Wisconsin and Minnesota, long for a resort that will combine the benefits of easy access, pure air and enough natural attraction to entertain and invigorate the spirit. Origon, Ogle county, Illinois, possesses the combination in the greatest degree: On the Burlington route, but 99 miles from Chicago, and reached from that point twice per day in less than four hours, with good and ample hostelries; numbers of springs gushing forth pure and health-giving water; the beautiful Rock river; towering hills and massive rocks, one can well imagine that of all the popular and interesting resorts of the jontinent have been merged together to be enjoyed at this delightful place. Detailed information furnished upon application to Perceval Lowell, General Passenger Agent C., B. & Q. R. R., Chicago, or M. L. Ettinger, General Ticket Agent, C. & I. R. R., Rochelle, Ill.

FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY

—OF—

SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.

Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886. Send for particulars.
H. G. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street, Chicago.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!

"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."

THE PILLOW-INHALER.

A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH. BRONCHITIS. CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."
E. L. HEDDEN, 38 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELS, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

1842. A PROCLAMATION. 1886

Know ye! Know ye all! Men, women and children—that the great staff of editors, who, headed by Dr. George Thurber, have kept the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST at the front for twent-five years, are now reinforced by Chester P. Dewey, and Seth Green, the fish culturist. We propose to add to the hundreds of thousands of homes in which the

American Agriculturist

is read and revered from the Atlantic to the Pacific as an old-time friend and counselor. We are accordingly enlarging the

HEARTH, HOUSEHOLD AND JUVENILE DEPARTMENTS,

and adding other features, so that it is to be, from this time onward, essentially a home periodical, as well as being devoted to Agriculture and Horticulture. Every person who immediately sends us $1.50, the subscription price, and 15 cents for posting book, making $1.65 in all, will receive the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 and the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST LAW BOOK, just published—a compendium of every-day law for Farmers, Business men, Manufacturers, etc., enabling every one to be his own lawyer. It is a large volume, weighing one pound and a half, and bound in cloth and gold. The AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST

Wants the Earth

to yield bigger returns by increasing its great army of readers. We distributed 60,000 presents to those who aided in the work last year, and we are planning to give 100,000 presents to workers this year. Send for confidential terms to workers, when you forward your subscription. Subscription price, $1.50 per year; single number, 15 cents

 Send 5 cts. for mailing you grand double number of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, just out, and sample pages with table of contents of Law Book.

CANVASSERS WANTED Everywhere!

Address
PUBLISHERS AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST,
751 Broadway, New York.
DAVID W. JUDD, Pres. SAM'L BURNHAM, Sec.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1846

The most popular Weekly newspaper devoted to science, mechanics, engineering discoveries, inventions and patents ever published. Every number illustrated with splendid engravings. This publication furnishes a most valuable encyclopedia of information which no person should be without. The popularity of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is such that its circulation nearly equals that of all other papers of its class combined. Price, $3.20 a year. Discount to Clubs. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & CO., Publishers, No. 361 Broadway, N. Y.

PATENTS. Munn & Co. have also had Thirty-Eight years' practice before the Patent Office and have prepared more than One Hundred Thousand applications for patents in the United States and foreign countries. Caveats, Trade-Marks, Copy-rights, Assignments, and all other papers for securing to inventors their rights in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany and other foreign countries, prepared at short notice and on reasonable terms.

Information as to obtaining patents cheerfully given without charge. Hand-books of information sent free. Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American free. The advantage of such notice is well understood by all persons who wish to dispose of their patents.

Address MUNN & CO., Office SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, 361 Broadway, New York.

THE AMERICAN
Building Association News.
MONTHLY. $1 PER YEAR.

LEADING PAPER OF THIS GROWING INTEREST IN THE UNITED STATES.

Address J. T. SUTOR, Editor, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

Wrigley's "How to Manage Building Associations," price $2, "The Building Societies Chart," $1, and other building association literature, for sale.

Building Associations are Savings Banks for the poor, who can draw money from them to build homes. The rich find in them a safe investment and realize compound interest. They are uniting labor and capital and encouraging economy and thrift as no other institution of the present day.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Sibley's Tested Seeds
Catalogue free on application. Send for it.
HIRAM SIBLEY & CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y. ANN CHICAGO, ILL.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.
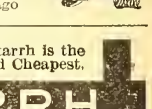
Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY
sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Gilt Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Songster, 1 50-Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts.
IVY CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.



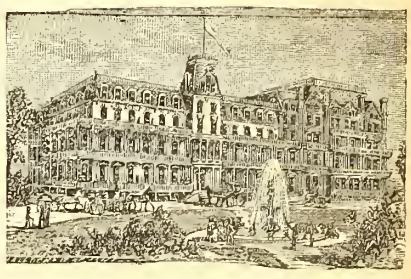
150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts.
TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.
BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.
DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

Agents Make $5 a Day Selling Perfect FAMILY SCALES
Entirely new in principle. Weigh one ounce to 25 pounds. What every family needs and will buy. Rapid sales surprise old agents. FORSHEE & MCMAKIN, CINCINNATI, O.

FREE $2 SAMPLES
fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago



Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.

CATARRH

Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

The Medical and Surgical
SANITARIUM.

LARGEST SANITARIUM IN THE WORLD

This institution, one of the buildings of which is shown in the cut, stands without a rival in the perfection and completeness of its appointments.

The following are a few of the special methods employed: Turkish, Russian, Roman, Thermo-Electric, Electro-vapor, Electro-hydric, Electro-chemical, Hot-air, Vapor, and every form of water bath; electricity in every form; Swedish movements—manual and mechanical—Massage, Pneumatic treatment, Vacuum treatment, sun baths. All other remedial agents of known curative value employed.

An artificial climate, possessing the advantages of perfectly pure air and an equable temperature, is produced for the benefit of those invalids who annually visit the South and other warm climates. Porches enclosed in glass afford fine opportunity for promenading without exposure, and a fine gymnasium offers every facility for thorough and systematic physical training.

Pure water, good ventilation, steam heating, perfect sewerage. Special departments for the Eye, Ear, Throat, Lungs, etc. For circulars with particulars, address SANITARIUM, Battle Creek, Mich.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers, will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

OUR CLUB LIST

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

IN THE COILS;

— OR —

The Coming Conflict.

A NEW AND STRANGE STORY BASED ON STARTLING FACTS, VIVIDLY PORTRAYING A MYSTERIOUS AND DANGEROUS POWER AT WORK IN THE GOVERNMENT, THE CHURCH, AND THE HOME.

"All will agree that this is a powerfully written story."—Evangelist, (Chicago, Ills.)

"A book which we trust may have a wide circulation."—National Baptist, (Philadelphia.)

"So intensely interesting did I find it that it was hard to pause until the last sentence was read. This work places the author high among the writers of fiction."—W. W. Barr, D. D. in Christian Instructor, (Philadelphia.)

"Unless we are greatly mistaken, the work will do more to awaken the American church and people to the evils of Freemasonry than any other book recently published."—Evangelical Repository.

"The book will create a sensation in Masonic circles, and evoke criticism of a most relentless character. The courage of the author in attacking such a rock-rooted bulwark as Freemasonry is something to admire, Fanatic though he be."—Nebraska Watchman.

"Light is needed on this subject and needed badly, and we welcome this contribution to the literature of anti-secretism, and cordially commend it to the favorable attention of our readers."—United Presbyterian, (Pittsburgh.)

"A charming work, fit to be classed with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin;' it is indeed less a work of fiction. The volume is as valuable as a work of reference as it is agreeable, truthful and useful. Our young folks will not leave the book, if they begin it, till they 'see how it turns out.'"—Cynosure, (Chicago, Ills.)

Thick paper, beautifuly bound, 352 pages, sent to any address for $1.50. AGENTS WANTED.

FINNEY ON MASONRY.

The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth, 75c; per dozen $7.50. Paper cover 35c; per dozen, $3.50.

No Christian's library is complete without it. Send for a copy in cloth and get a catalogue of books and tracts sold by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO.

MASONIC OATHS,

BY

E. Ronayne,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

A masterly discussion of the Oaths of the Masonic Lodge, to which is appended "Freemasonry at a Glance," illustrating every sign, grip and ceremony of the Masonic Lodge. This work is highly commended by leading lecturers as furnishing the best arguments on the nature and actual character of Masonic obligations of any book in print. Paper cover, 207 pages. Price, 40 cents.

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. Send for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

A NEW

Anti-masonic Scrap-book.

A neat pamphlet, comprising forty-three tracts against secret orders, published by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. It contains some of the MOST POWERFUL ARGUMENTS put in brief form, written by men of distinguished ability, showing the evil nature and dangerous tendency of secret societies. Those who circulate tracts need the book to make their selections wisely.

Send for a copy to Anti-masonic headquarters, the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO. Price, 25 cents.

Five Dollar LIBRARY.

"The Broken Seal."
"The Master's Carpet."
"In the Coils, or The Coming Conflict."
"The Character, Claims and Practical Workings of Freemasonry," by Pres. C. G. Finney.
"Revised Odd-fellowship;" the secrets, together with a discussion of the character of the order.
"Freemasonry Illustrated;" the secrets of first seven degrees, together with a discussion of their character.
"Sermons and Addresses on Secret Societies;" a valuable collection of the best arguments against secret orders from Revs. Cross, Williams, McNary, Dow, Sarver, Drury, Prof. J. G. Carson, and Prests. George and Blanchard.

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

BATAVIA CONVENTION PAMPHLET.

A Staggering Blow!

Such was to Freemasonry the great NATIONAL CONVENTION held in BATAVIA, N. Y., September 1882. It gave the world

Thurlow Weed's Great Letter

On the abduction and murder of WILLIAM MORGAN in 1826, which has been the most widely published of any Anti-masonic document. The dedication of a noble granite monument to the memory of Morgan, and the able and eloquent addresses of the Convention make this a most valuable pamphlet.

SEE WHY.

It contains—
1. Portrait of Morgan.
2. Portrait of Thurlow Weed.
3. Fine picture of the Monument.
4. The great letter of Thurlow Weed and his affidavit—almost the last public act of his life.
5. Address by J. E. Roy, D.D.
6. The monument oration by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.
7. Addresses on "Christian Politics" by Pres. J. Blanchard, on the Character of Freemasonry by Prof. E. D. Bailey, on the "Freedmen and Secret Societies" by Rev. H. H. Hinman; and very interesting personal and historical reminiscences.

READ ABOUT THIS GREAT HISTORICAL MEETING.

A handsome pamphlet. Price, 25 cents, postpaid. Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

BIRNEY.

The sketch of JAMES G. BIRNEY, candidate of the Liberty Party for President, in pamphlet for 25 cents. A limited number of copies of this handsome pamphlet for sale at the N. C. A. office.

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc. of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.

For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature. 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—
Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.

SING THEM!

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.

Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

THE BROKEN SEAL;

Or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene.

One of the most interesting books ever published. In cloth, 75 cents; per dozen, $7.50. Paper covers, 40 cents; per dozen, $3.50.

This deeply interesting narative shows what Masonry has done and is capable of doing in the Courts, and how bad men control the good men in the lodge and protect their own members when guilty of great crimes. For sale at 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

LUCILLE VERNON.

Cloth.....75 cents.

THIS is a pleasant surprise in many ways. The author is Rev. W. T. Meloy, of the United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and the book is published by the Board of Publication of his denomination. It is a love story, not "fascinating," but with so much of genial interest that the reader is in no danger of laying it down unfinished. * * * The moral purpose of the book is to describe and vindicate Christian character, in its more heroic aspects, and it is a success. We congratulate the author and the United Presbyterian Board of Publication on this literary lily of the valley.—The Interior.

"LUCILLE VERNON" is evidently not an ideal sketch, but the fictitious names used represent to a great extent real men and women of flesh and blood. The characters of many of them are by no means attractive, but are perfect counterparts of querulous, obstinate and parsimonious professors who are thorns in the flesh of many a pastor in all the churches. But as in all the churches, there were also good and true men and women at Lansington, who upheld and encouraged the pastor. * * * In its author will be recognized the worthy pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and a welcome contributor to these columns.—United Presbyterian.

The heroine, who becomes the bride of the pastor of the church at Lansington, is a wonderful exemplification of how a woman who is a true wife and help-meet may throw her life and energies into the great work of saving souls; aiding, by gentle words and sympathy, wise counsel and brave endurance, the husband having charge of a congregation where the Demon of Misrule held full sway. We follow with interest the history of the wife and husband through their hours of despondency and discouragement to the happy ending, where religion, harmony and peace have gained the ascendency and the good man and wife find their reward.—Pittsburgh Daily Telegraph.

MAH-HAH-BONE,

COMPRISING IN ONE VOLUME,

HAND BOOK

OF

Freemasonry,

Which gives the correct or "standard" work and ritual of Masonry; the proper position of each officer in the Lodge room, order of opening and closing the Lodge, dress of candidate, ceremony of initiation, the oaths, the proper manner of giving the signs, grips, etc., are fully illustrated and explained:

The Master's Carpet

Which explains the true source and meaning every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, the showing the principles on which the order is founded: and

FREEMASONRY AT A GLANCE,

Which illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge, and gives a brief explanation of each, making a most valuable compilation of information concerning Masonry. Bound in fine cloth covers. 589 pages. Price $1.00. Address,

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Facts Stated.

HON. THURLOW WEED ON THE MORGAN ABDUCTION.

This is a sixteen page pamphlet comprising a letter written by Mr. Weed, and read at the unveiling of the monument erected to the memory of Capt. William Morgan. The frontispiece is an engraving of the monument. It is a history of the unlawful seizure and confinement of Morgan in the Canandaigua jail, his subsequent conveyance by Freemasons to Fort Niagara, and drowning in Lake Ontario. He not only subscribes his NAME to the letter, but ATTACHES HIS AFFIDAVIT to it.

In closing his letter he writes: I now look back through an interval of fifty-six years with a conscious sense of having been governed through the "Anti-Masonic excitement" by a sincere desire, first, to vindicate the violated laws of my country, and next, to arrest the great power and dangerous influences of "secret societies."

The pamphlet is well worth perusing, and is doubtless the last historical article which this great journalist and politician wrote. [Chicago, National Christian Association.] Single copy, 5 cents.

FREEMASONRY AT A GLANCE,

BY

E. RONAYNE,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

Illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge and gives a brief explanation of each. This work should be scattered like leaves all over the country. It is so cheap that it can be used as tracts, and money thus expended will bring a bountiful harvest. 32 pages. Price, postpaid, 6 cents. Per 100, $3.60. Address,

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper cover, 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

A WOMAN'S VICTORY;

OR

THE QUERY OF THE LODGEVILLE CHURCH

BY JENNIE L. HARDIE.

This simple and touching story which was lately published in the Cynosure is now ready for orders in a beautiful pamphlet. It is worth reading by every Anti-mason —and especially BY HIS WIFE. Get it and take it home to cheer the heart of your companion who may desire to do something for Christ against great evils, but is discouraged from making any public effort. PRICE, FIFTEEN CENTS. Ten for a dollar

Wonderful Woman, A Wonderful Life, AND A Wonderful Book.

Laura S. Haviland is a quiet, gentle, unassuming Quaker woman, 76 years of age, yet vigorous, who has had a remarkable career of usefulness, and has now given to the world a remarkable history of her "Life Work" as a teacher, at an early day, of the colored refugees in Canada and in Michigan, and in other States, as a traveler down South in the guise of a "berry picker," helping out into freedom many slaves; as a nurse and preacher to the sufferers in hospitals during the war; and with Gov. St. John and Elizabeth Comstock, relieving the destitute and suffering refugees in Kansas, etc.

Her book is neither fiction nor founded on fiction, but is an interesting narration of facts of a most thrilling character, as every one will find and testify who will get and read her book, now on sale at the Cynosure office, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill. Price, cloth, $1,75, half Russia, $2.25.

Sunday-School Papers.

MONTHLY.

THE PEARL,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter	3cts
Per year	12cts

THE LILY,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter	3cts
Per year	12cts

PURE WORDS,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter,	2 1-2cts.
Per year	10cts.

SUNSHINE,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter	2 1-2cts.
Per year	10cts.

Single subscriptions for either one of the above papers, one year, 25 cts.

We have excellent facilities for furnishing Sunday-School Supplies of every description including trade papers at publishers' prices. If you wish any publication send to us for it.

T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.
106 Franklin street, Chicago, Ill.

STANDARD ILLUSTRATED RITUALS!

Complete WORK and "SECRETS"!

Revised Odd-fellowship; Freemasonry, 7 degrees; Knight Templarism 8th to 14th Masonic degrees. Three volumes, $1 each. Knights of Pythias, 25 cents. Also other illustrated rituals, sent post paid. Catalogues free. National Christian Association, 221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.

The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

In an election suit at Atlanta, Ga., Thursday, Judge Marshall J. Clark decided that he could not interfere with an election, and dissolved an injunction to restrain the announcement of the result, upon which the Ordinary, who was in court, officially announced the vote.

A decree ordering the suspension of the Whig and the sale of the paper and its establishment was rendered Tuesday by Judge Holliday, at Richmond, Va. The paper has been published continuously since January, 1824.

The City Council of Cleveland has indefinitely postponed action upon an ordinance for opening the saloons on Sunday.

A dozen or more drunken persons engaged in a street riot at Wellsville, Ohio, Friday. Three men were stabbed, spectators wounded, and stones and beer-kegs hurled through windows.

Fire in One Hundred and Sixty-sixth street, New York, early Christmas morning, destroyed a dwelling occupied by Patrick Driscoll and his family. Driscoll, his wife, and one son, escaped in a badly burned condition, but two youths, 17 and 14 respectively, and a girl aged 7, perished in the flames.

Rev. John R. Elmore, a Baptist minister, residing near Clayton, Ind., having been dismissed by his congregation for bigamy, broke the ice in a pond Thursday night, plunged in and was drowned.

The Spring Valley waterworks at San Foancisco were destroyed Thursday afternoon by the explosion of five boilers in the establishment, involving a loss of $150,000. Two men were killed and two dangerously wounded.

The names of the United States grand jurors just discharged at Salt Lake City have been published by the Mormon papers so that they may be boycotted.

Another cave-in Monday stopped the work of the men who were endeavoring to rescue the twenty nine buried miners in the Nanticoke (Pa.) colliery, and all hope of taking them out alive has been abandoned. It will be two weeks before the bodies are reached, a new shaft having to be sunk for the purpose.

The explosion of a boiler in a distillery at Beaver's Station, Ohio, Monday killed two men, wounded three others and destroyed property worth $5,000.

Many of the Southern States are becoming greatly agitated by the growth of prohibition, which threatens the overthrow of the Democratic party and a break in the "solid South." Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi, South Carolina, and even Kentucky, are considered "shaky" States.

The American whaling bark Amethyst is supposed to have been lost in the Arctic Ocean. She carried a crew of forty men.

Work at the Nanticoke, Pa, colliery, where the recent accident occurred, burying nearly thirty men, has been abandoned. The company will recompense the relatives. The victims are doubtless buried deeply beneath sand, culm, and rock, and can never be found.

FOREIGN.

The Grand Orange Lodge of Ireland, at a meeting held in Dublin on Monday, issued a manifesto addressed to the Orangemen of Great Britain, protesting against complying with the demands of the Parnellites.

Parnell informs his colleagues that he will oppose all schemes affecting Ireland which does not allow the Irish to control their own police.

The London Times, in an editorial Thursday morning, proposes that all the Parnellites recently elected to Parliament be denied admission to seats, and that Ireland be placed under martial law.

In the French Chamber of Deputies on Thursday the Tonquin credit was adopted by a vote of 274 to 270. It is rumored in Paris that owing to the closeness of the vote the Cabinet has resigned.

A French Government dispatch from Madagascar says: "Peace between France and Madagascar has been concluded. It is reported that the treaty gives France a protectorate over the whole of Madagascar, and that there will be a French Resident Minister at Anntanarivo, the capital, who will be charged with the duty of conducting the foreign affairs of Madagascar, and who will be attended by a permanent guard. French troops will occupy Tamatave until a war indemnity of 10,000,000 francs is paid."

A colliery explosion occurred at Pont-y-Pridd, Wales, on Wednesday, in the Ferndale pit, four hundred men being at work at the time. At latest advices 45 dead bodies had been taken out and thirty miners rescued more or less injured.

Fire Tuesday night destroyed the largest rope walk in the world, owned by the Colonial Cordage Company, at St. Johns, N. F. The loss is $140,000; uninsured.

The London Daily News says editorially that an Irish Parliament, strictly limited to legislation on purely Irish questions, would be the beginning of pacification, and is the essential condition of it. The Standard says "Gladstone has done more for home rule in a week than Parnell and his agents have done through years of toil." It suggests that the Irish National movement can be more properly called the Irish-American movement.

A Paris dispatch says that it is generally understood that the Brisson Cabinet will resign, and that M. DeFreycinet will form a Ministry after the election of M. Grevy as President of the French Republic, which now seems certain. M. Grevy will mark his election by proclaiming amnesty to all political offenders.

The College of the Propaganda announces that up to Nov. 1. in Cochin China, 21,000 Christians were massacred, ten convents destroyed, and 225 churches burned.

The Russian Governors of Southern Asia have been ordered to make preparations for the coronation of the Czar, which will take place in the spring of the coming year.

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days. No pain. Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa

ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy. Sold under POSITIVE GUARANTY. Sample FREE. L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Established 35 years. Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free. TROOP, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.

PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN & FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

It has a record of 18,000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.

The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published. Finely illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!

THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM.

We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient) in preference to stamps, and address

The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,

Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

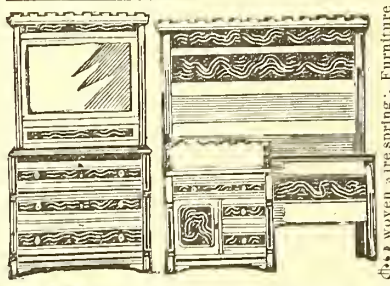
Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

ARCADE PUBLISHING CO.,
147 LaSalle street, Chicago.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the

SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!



Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking,
$1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treatise on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING,
SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price, 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited,
$50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.)

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

$2 weekly—one spring. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

A BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FOR $1200

* * * This marvelous house has been built more than 300 times from our plans; it is so well planned that it affords ample room even for a large family. 1st floor shown above; on 2d floor are 4 bed rooms and in attic 2 more. Plenty of Closets. The whole warmed by one chimney.
Large illustrations and full description of the above as well as of 39 other houses, ranging in cost from $400 up to $6,500, may be found in "SHOPPELL'S MODERN LOW-COST HOUSES," a large quarto pamphlet, showing also how to select sites, get loans, &c. Sent postpaid on receipt of 50c. Stamps taken, or send $1 bill and we will return the change. Address, BUILDING PLAN ASSOCIATION, (Mention this Paper.) 24 Beekman St., (Box 2702,) N. Y.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a wash board which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability.
Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

The best is the cheapest.

We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY
PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.
82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing. Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

Is used by thousands of first class Manufacturers and Mechanics on their best work. Received GOLD MEDAL, London, '83. Pronounced strongest glue known. Send card of dealer who does not keep it, with five 2c stamps for SAMPLE CAN FREE

TESTED TO OVER 1600 LBS. TO SQ. INCH

Russia Cement Co., Gloucester, Mass.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 16. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1886. WHOLE No. 819.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
Editorial Correspondence. 8
How they Learned Socialism..... 8
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The English Elections in Relation to Religious Progress..... 1
Hiram and the Resurrection..... 2
The New York Witness... 2
The Great Apostacy of the Latter Days—II..... 2
The Prohibition Victory in Worcester..... 4
SELECTED:
The New York Witness on Logan and the Lodge.. 3
On the Lord's Side..... 3
Masonry and the Bible.... 9
Washington Letter..... 4
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
LITERATURE..... 9
REFORM NEWS:
A Year in Wisconsin; The Work in Iowa; From the Kansas Agent; How to Keep a Lecturer; From the Illinois Lecturer....4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Another Suggestion; The G. A. R.; Anti-masons write thus for your paper; Pith and Point.. 6
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
THE CHURCHES..... 12
Prospectus..... 12
BUSINESS..... 13
FARM NOTES..... 14
CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.... 14
IN BRIEF..... 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
MARKETS..... 16

Miss Rose Cleveland, the President's sister, and mistress of the White House, it is said, gave an emphatic testimouy the other day against polite liquor-drinking, by asking the waiter to remove the wine glasses from her place at a dinner where she was a guest. Her noble example was directly followed by the other ladies at the table; and if she can persuade her brother to the same course and again clean out the White House, her name will have as noble a place in history as that of Lucy B. Hayes.

It is suggested by the Interior that a fine and scholarly passage in the President's message upon the question of polygamy was writteu by Miss Cleveland. If so, the more honor is due them both; one for her interest in public affairs and a noble tribute to the Christian home, the other for accepting the assistance of his sister and adopting her generous sentiments as his own on so important a question and on such an occasion. The passage reads: "The strength, the perpetuity, and the destiny of the nation rests upon our homes, established by the law of God, guarded by parental care, regulated by parental authority, and sanctified by parental love. These are not the homes of polygamy. The mothers of our land, who rule the nation as they mold the characters and guide the actions of their sons, live according to God's holy ordinances, and eaeh, secure and happy in the exclusive love of the father of her children, sheds the warm light of true womenhood, unperverted and unpolluted, upon all within her pure and wholesome family circle. These are uot the cheerless, crushed and unwomanly mothers of polygamy. The fathers of our families are the best citizens of the Republic. Wife and children are the sources of patriotism, and conjugal and parental affection beget devotion to the country. The man who, undefiled with plural marriage, is surrounded in his single home with his wife and children, has a stake in the country which inspires him with respect for its laws and courage for its defense. These are not the fathers of polygamous families. There is no feature of this practice, or the system which sanctions it, which is not opposed to all that is of value in our institutions."

"Mr. Spurgeon," says the Independent, "shows decided signs of premature age, and is much broken in general health. Incessant smoking has greatly injured him." The italics are the Cynosure's. A few weeks ago we learned that by a process of dieting the great London preacher would escape the return of his usual malady and remain with his church this year. The hope has been in vain, aud on another page may be read his parting words to his people, full of tenderness, and of the Gospel spirit. But a few years since when an American preacher rebuked the tobacco habit, Mr. Spurgeon told his people, more rashly bold than humbly wise, that he liked to "smoke a good cigar for the glory of God!" But these are not days when God can wiuk at such iguorauee, and we believe the world will yet hear a warning against the tobaeco curse from him that will not be forgotteu. If much was due the world from Gen. Graut in respect to his bad example as a smoker, mueh more is such au one as Spurgeou to be condemned if he ueglects to testify against the vile habit that is cutting his life short.

Before another general election there are very cheering assurances that the Republiean party will acknowledge the temperauce question to be a natioual issue demanding respectful recognition from the great political parties. The latest evidence is in the New York Tribune which calls upon its readers for answers to the question: "What is the best method of dealing with the acknowledged evil of the liquor traffic?' The replies are requested to cover oue of four eases: the great cities, the large cities, the small cities and country towus, the rural districts. The replies will be edited in a few weeks, and will be awaited with much iuterest, for the opinion of a great mass of iutelligent people such as subscribe for the Tribune will be deserving recognition. Thanks are due the Tribune for this effort, since we cannot doubt what will be the tenor of the great bulk of the answers—a strong plea for prohibition of the rum curse.

The resignation of the Brisson ministry in France, aud the hesitation of De Freycinet to undertake the government indicates a serious eoudition of Freuch politics. Financially the uation is perhaps in worse condition. To the extravagance of the government is attributed the critical state of affairs. Some $400,000,000, it is said, have been spent on roads, and $150,000,000 for schools. These vast expenditures have inflated the currency, which has tempted to speculation and extravagance, so that a crisis impends darkly over the nation. This condition of affairs explains how De Lesseps has been able to get and spend $125,000,000 on the Panama Canal; and the expenses of that big ditch only help to hasten the day of bankruptcy. While the civilized world would have cause to dread a financial panic in France, yet few would regret if that nation should suffer a severe peualty for their attempts to subjugate Tonquiu and Madagascar.

The final effort of the Odd-fellows to keep the lodges known as the "Patriarchal Circle" under their control has been in vain. The latter is a military degree for Odd-fellows, and three years ago was condemned by the lodge grandees who saw that the new degree would soon be beyond control. The Odd-fellows last fall instituted a new degree ("Patriarchs Militant"!) expecting the disaffected Circle would fall in with the idea. But the quarrel has been too long to be so settled, and the Circle members numbering 5,000 will leave Odd-fellowship once for all.

THE ENGLISH ELECTIONS IN RELATION TO RELIGIOUS PROGRESS.

BY REV. JOHN BOYES.

The turmoil and excitement of the elections are happily over and both sides know the worst. The boroughs which were formerly the strongholds of liberalism have this time been favorable to conservatism, while the countries that in past years were the strength of toryism have this time fought the battles of freedom and progress. Some of the candidates for parliamentary honors whose ancestors have sat in Parliament for generations have been bowled out in the most unexpected manner. The election began with the formation of a league between Lord Salisbury and Lord Randolph Churchill on the one hand, aud Mr. Parnell and the dignitaries of the Romish church on the other hand. As a consequence there went out the commaud that all Irishmen and Catholics were to vote on the conservative side. Ireland has in this way shown its ingratitude to liberalism which has done so much for that land of ignorance and religious vassalage by voting against its friends and in favor of its foes.

Religious questions generally get mixed up with polities, and the late election has been no exception to the rule. The disestablishment of the Episcopal church has been thrust into the front by the clergy and the Tory party generally, who no doubt thought that by raising the cry "the church in danger" would frighten large numbers of voters into the conservative camp. There have beeu so many anomalies and abuses in that church that a strong feeliug has risen against the coutinuance of uudue privileges; while inside the church large hearted men have long recognized the importance of a radical change being effected.

The church papers, as the Record, are on all hands making the admission that one of the chief causes of the aversion to the parochial system is the failure of its instruments to make it attractive and efficieut. The Record says that reformation in many things is essential, if the church is to maintain an existence. It has been by the coueessiou of reforms that it has continued thus far and it is only by a similar course of action that it can satisfy the progressive requirements of the age.

In the year 1828 Earl Russell, then known as Lord John Russell, said that every man ought to have the liberty of forming his own religious opinions from the impressions made upon his own mind, and to worship God in accordance with these opinions, without the imposition of auy penalty or disqualification. This is a doctrine which ought to be recognized by all governments. This, however, has not always been the case, even in England, for about fifty-five years ago no person could occupy any position in the State until he had been qualified by tak ing the sacrameut. This often gave rise to great scandals. Prior to the year 1836, if any oue wished to be married, he was obliged to go to the Episcopal church, or his marriage was unlawful. The natural rights of Nonconformists were set aside altogether. At that time, there were no public cemeteries. Every one who died had to be buried in the parish churchyard by the parish miuister. Now there are cemeteries connected with every town and with many villages, while Nonconformists can conduct services in the churchyard by the graves of their departed friends. In 1854 and 1871, concessions were made to open the universities without subscribiug to the creed of the established church, though even now mauy of the highest offices and those paying the largest salaries, can be held only by established clergymen. As late as 1858 uo Jew could sit in Parliament, but England is none the worse for the change. As recently as 1868 every rate-payer was taxed to keep the parish church in repair, to supply the clergy with clean linen, and the communion table with wine.

While it is true that many reforms have been effected, it is also true that the clergy have invariably been iu opposition to every extension of liberty and every remedy of abuses. Every measure of ecclesiastical reform has been met with the most dismal predictions of calamity. In the Nineteenth Century, Nov., 1877, Mr. Gladstone said: "I am a decided member of the Church of England. I have been there all my life, and there I trust I shall die. But that will not preveut me from bearing an emphatic testimony to this, that the cause of justice, the cause of humanity, of mercy, of truth, of right for many millions of God's creatures in the East of Europe has found its best, its most consistent and its almost unanimous supporters in the nonconformist churches of the land." Yet these very nonconformists have with difficulty become recognized and are even now subject to great disabilities. A nation that has health in its constitution dare not cannot, staud still, but must flow into greater freedom, till it attains the highest. This can only be when the state recoguizes merit in its individual members without enquiring about the sect to which he belongs. The forcing of the questiou of the disestablishment of the Episcopal church of the couutry will doubtless help forward the movemeut, aud it is generally supposed that the Parliament just elected will be called upou to express its opinion by resolutiou. The number of Liberal members, most of whom are pledged to disestablishmeut, exactly equals the Conservatives aud Paruellites put together. If the Liberal members are as ungenerous in their oppositiou as the Tories were in the last Parliament, the Conservative rule will be very short lived.

Grimsby, England, Dec., 1885.

HIRAM AND THE RESURRECTION.

BY WILLIAM FENTON.

Nathaniel West has just delivered some lectures ou the resurrection of Christ at Farwell Hall, Chicago. Now will the Great, Great, Grand Hocus Pocus, "Worshipful Master," "Knight of the Holy Sepulchre," "Iutendant of Buildings, or Master iu Israel," "Chief of the Tabernacle," "Knight of the Brazen Serpent," "Rev. G. C. Lorimer, D. D., pastor of Immanuel Baptist church, acting President of the Chicago University, au ecclesiastical dignitary or prelate of the Sir Knight Templars' step on the platform and prove the resurrection of Hiram. Let him demonstrate that Hiram lay in the grave fourteen days, that an Eutered Apprentice Mason aud a Fellow Craft Masou between them stripped the flesh from the boues of Hiram's right hand; and after that King Solomon did the raising to life from a dead level to a living perpendicular on the five points of fellowship, namely: Foot to foot, knee to knee, breast to breast, hand to back, and cheek to cheek, or mouth to ear.

Then we shall understand, as never before, that Jesus Christ is not the "first fruits of the resurrection," but Hiram's resurrectiou antedates that of Christ's by hundreds of years. And then we shall understand the reason why Bishop Fallows, and other eminent Masons say that if compelled to give up the church or Freemasonry, they would give up the church. We have here a right to ask Mr. Lorimer for a proof of the resurrection of Hiram. A no less personage than a doctor of divinity and learned doctor of laws, who was a Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of the State of Minnesota having all its attendant Hocus Pocus titles attached to his name, actually and seriously urged his lodge brethren to the duty of a prayerful life and conduct, basing his argument for that duty upon the faithfulness of Hiram even unto death, Hiram, he said, being waylaid and murdered while on his way to his accustomed place of prayer. He calls Hiram the first martyr Grand Master.

Now, if Mr. Lorimer refuses to respond to so reasonable a request, ought we not to treat him as the Emperor William, of Germany, treated the Masonic fraternity at the laying of the corner-stone of the Reichstag, because of their inability, or refusal to answer a similar request.

If, in the above, a Masouic title has been applied to Mr. Lorimer's name that does not belong to it, he will feel complimented rather than offended, because it is certain that he loves Freemasonry, and has taken the degrees of Blue Lodge, Chapter and Commandery at least. He says that it is an insult to a Freemason to question the moral power of his Masonic obligation. Therefore he loves the wine of the fifth libation with the human skull for a wine goblet; and if he was a just man, and the Masonic penalty just, he would love to see that awful penalty executed upon the victim who has violated the corresponding obligation.

A minister, now pastor of a Baptist church in Pittsburg, and not a Freemason, argues that the Masonic penalty is no greater than the penalty God has established for those who sin against him; and he goes into the pulpit and sets forth Freemasonry in glowing language and attractive form for the admiration of all those who love it, apparently not perceiving any difference between penalties invented by wicked men and devils, to be executed upon all who violate certain wicked obligations invented and imposed by the same wicked men and devils, and the just penalties of God that are inseperable from the foundation of the material and spiritual creation. Is it a matter of doubt, or not, whether that minister has ever experienced the regenerating power of the Holy Ghost upon his own soul beyond the workings of his own imagination?

The atonement made by Jesus Christ makes such a work of regeneration possible. But, although Freemasonry has a system of regeneration all its own, it has no atouement for sinuers against the siu of Freemasoury. However, we will wait for President G. C. Lorimer to step out on the platform and prove the resurrectiou of Hiram; aud in the event of his failure to establish every priuciple of Freemasoury embraced by himself, both exoteric aud esoteric, we shall see more Baptist pareuts seudiug their sons aud daughters to Wheatou College rather thau the Baptist Uuiversity, of Chicago, for their educatiou; fearing Presideut Lorimer's hoodwiuk and cable-tow more than the (to them) error of sprinkling. There are some of "the excelleut of the earth," who may hold some error of doctriue; even the Quakers, who repudiate both water baptism and the Lord's Supper, have been called "the salt of Englaud," aud that not without some reason at least.

It further appears to my mind that it is not unreasouable to ask President Lorimer to prove the resurrectiou of Hiram because at least one Baptist miuister whom I know does sincerely believe that Hiram rose from the dead, aud that being the case a presideut of a University who embraces that doctrine as taught in the Masonic lodges ought to be able to prove it if true.

St. Paul, Minn.

THE NEW YORK WITNESS.

BY ALEXANDER THOMSON.

Amoug the men who have obtained an enviable reputation for true nobility of character, who have served their day and generation loyally and well, there are few who occupy a higher position than John Dougal, of the Montreal, and of the New York Witness. I learned to love and respect him when a boy in my Canadian home. His paper was the first for which I subscribed, and proud was I in those by-gone days to be able to take the Witness, even though at that time its subscription price represented nearly a week's hard work. I believe the Montreal Witness had a distinct influence in helping to shape my character, and I can truly say that from it and from its great New York brother, which now makes its weekly visits to my home, and is helping to educate my children, I have received nothing but good.

As seen above, the Witness was the first paper for whieh I subscribed. It was the first to publish an article from my pen. It helped to fix in my young mind those lofty conceptiens of man's duty and man's destiny that are the gold in all genuiue character, and for all this I love the Witness. But to do this is to like John Dougal, its creator and inspiration. I have never seen him or heard him speak, yet with an admiration similar to that which I entertain for John Bright, William Gladstone or Abraham Lincoln, do I think of John Dougal.

In continual and consistant opposition to the church of Rome he has no equal. I believe the Romanists of Montreal dreaded the Witness more than all the Protestant churches combined, and in this the N. Y. Witness has been a twin of its Montreal namesake. In these days, when this old enemy of man is creeping back into power, her saints' bones, her crucifixes, her army of idle priests who never marry, and nuns who never become mothers, hating our free schools as the Hindoo hates the cobra, accumulating vast amounts of property, not taxable, for the benefit of its well-fed priests, and to furuish the "sinews" for a possible contest in the future, abating uot one jot of her infallible pretensions; purring like a cat when her ends can thus best be attained, and springing like a tiger whenever the prey is within her power,—this ancient enemy of mankind, which had the deadly wound and is healed, is now marching on in her avowed mission to exterminate heretics; and against this incoming foe there is not a more courageous warrior than the Witness.

In behalf of the poor the Witness has ever lifted a trumpet voice. No monopoly has ever controlled its columns, and in the irrepressible conflict between labor and capital, when the poor man has sought by peaceable and lawful means to obtain his rights, in the Witness he has ever had a faithful support.

In the mighty conflict which this generation, with the desperate instinct of self-preservation is waging with the drink demon, no Wallace, with his resistless sword; no Warwick, with his ponderous battle-axe; no white-plumed Henry of Navarre ever fought with more lusty strength or more unwearied effort than the Witness, and upon this most deadly enemy of all the rights and hopes of men, the New York Witness is at the present time pouring a torrent of stormy eloquence that is like the ringing trumpet, or the long roll calling to battle.

There is, however, one question on which the Witness has for been some time mute. The Secret Empire, which, in my opinion, is the mighty stumbling-block lying in the way of the car of progress it is manfully rolling on, now receives few words of condemnation. Wheu the New York Witness was first started it most manfully attacked Freemasonry. Through its Grand Secretary for New York the order made a characteristic reply, using the words of our Lord and declariug, with rauk blasphemy, "Whosoever falls upon this stoue shall be broken, but upon whomsoever it shall fall, it shall griud him to powder." Has the stoue of lodge vengeanee fallen upon the Witness and crushed out free discussion ou this subject? If so, how great must that power be that can silence such a warrior, who, to my certain knowledge has for a quarter of a century guarded every right of man and faced every foe with uuflinching fidelity and courage. I cannot but believe that Johu Dougal is as true on this subject now as he has ever been. I do not believe he underestimates the deadly evil of the Secret Empire, aud, therefore, conclude that he hopes by concentrating his power mostly on intemperance and securing the overthrow of that gigantic evil, to be better able to grapple with the other. This may be true, but "my heart dies withiu me" when I think of Masonic prohibitionists assisting to ruin the busiuess of their sworu brother of the saloon: and though I followed the Witness aud my own sense of right aud voted for St. John, last election, I shall not do so again, unless he gives a public assurance that he is uot one of the children of darkness. This, not because my whole soul is uot in sympathy with national prohibition, but because I have no faith in any prohibitory legislation secured through the iufluence of the lodge. There may be a mighty conflict and outpouring of money and time, there may be a victory at the polls, only to be all nullified by treasou among the victors. Yet let the Witness live, though in this cause it may not be so warm as formerly, so warm as I could wish, it will ever be hailed as a friend in my home, and Johu Dougal ever be to me au ideal servant of the Master, a dauntless hero in every good cause, and an enemy of all that threatens the welfare of man.

Since writing the above I have been filled with pleasure by seeing in the Witness a sudden flashing of the old light on the questiou of the Seeret Empire, and an asserting of Christian independence of all clans and parties, iu a manner that must be refreshiug to every soul prepared to defend the right of private judgment aud the independence of man.

Bartlett, Ill.

THE GREAT APOSTASY OF THE LATTER DAYS.—II.

BY CYNTHIA DERBYSHIRE.

In the New Testament we have not so much of typical representation, but plain and direct prophecy of the dreadful nature and fearful prevalence of this apostasy of the latter days.

The second chapter of the second epistle of Peter is wholly taken up with a description of it. The reader may note the "false teachers among you." They are in the churches with the true followers of the Lamb, uot in a church by themselves like the Roman Catholics, but these work their way into Christ's true church, and privily, that is slyly, secretly, in au underhanded manner, "bring in damnable heresies, eveu denying the Lord that bought them: and bring upou themselves swift destruetion." "And many shall follow their pernicious ways." It is not a small affair, that may vanish in a short time, it is a terrible and widespread apostasy, working swift destruetion unobserved and unknown by the church.

Corroborating the words of the apostle Paul to the Ephesians: "For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise speaking perverse things." Acts 22: 29. Now if they are in the church, and are such as were once on right ground, and have fallen into the mire of secretism, as is said in the 22nd verse, they are real apostates from Christianity; and have now no true part with Christ, or with his church, and it is plain they ought to be separated from it.

In the epistle of Jude is another description of this same apostasy, so similar that I leave the reader to make his own comparisons, only calling atteution to the "spots iu your feasts of charity, when they feast with you," aud to the 22nd and 23d verses where the apostle earuestly incites us to labor to save as many as we can out of this miserable defection. "And of some have compassion, making a difference: and others save with fear, pulling them out of the fire: hating even the garments spotted by the flesh." The regalia and such like trappings are what is meant by garments spotted by the flesh.

This same apostasy is fore-shown in the book of Revelation: and is described as the first and second woes. In the first woe there is a star which falls from heaven to earth. A star is the hieroglyph of persons in high and influential stations, as, a "star out of Jacob," "we have seen his star in the east," "the star in my right hand." The falling of the star signifies the apostasy of some person, or persons, from the Christian faith. The bottomless pit is infidelity. This whole first woe consists in that loose, unorganized infidelity, which burst forth like a volcano in England in the early part of the seventeenth century; first proclaimed by Hobbs and Rochester, and afterwards by Voltaire and others.* It was partly headed off and broken by the powerful vindications of the advocates of Christianity, but has continued on in the form of heartless deisms, that strive to destroy the true religion, by destroying its agencies, denying its power and scandalizing its ministers and professors. How ought we to bless God for the limitation of time and of power annexed to it.

The smoke is that general tendency to questioning, caviling, criticising, and unbelief which has even affected the church, which is represented by the sun, and the whole moral atmosphere has been darkened by it during the past century, or since it burst forth in the seventeenth century.

I think this is the true reason why the churches do not have the power and glory of the apostolical age. Let any person observe how often the words "I don't believe," come into common conversation, and he can see how the smoke affects us all. The mental powers are so blinded that we cannot see the truth as we could do, if the work of the Holy Spirit was unimpeded in our souls.

The locusts that came out of the smoke, are individuals acting in the spirit of apostasy, and they have a poisonous influence on all around them, as scorpions sting and poison. They are a spiritual poison to all who accept of their doctrines.

The true-hearted Christians are to be exempted from their power though low and humble as the grass, or in green and growing experience, or high in the service and work which God enables them to do, as sturdy trees furnishing shade, help and benefit to others, they are all to be kept by the power and merey of their Lord, from contamination with this apostasy: but it affects those men who have not the seal of God in their foreheads. These locusts have not power to produce spiritual death, which means such a withdrawing of the enlightening spirit of God as would seal their eternal destruction; but they are tormented five months, or one hundred and fifty years, which is the time this heresy is to run on in this form. The torment consists in wicked sug gestions, vile and blasphemous thoughts, and infamous desires. They are seeking for spiritual death by striving to grieve away the reproving Spirit and grace of God, without whose saving influence all must become darkness and death in their souls; but he will not so withdraw his Spirit from them as to seal their doom.

They are numerous as is represented by locusts; they are powerful as is shown by comparison with war horses; they are successful, wearing crowns of victory; "faces of men," gives us the idea of an appearance of wisdom; hair of women signifies an orderly, decorous life, they prevent their true character from being understood; the teeth of lions are a bitter, revengeful, or malignant spirit when aroused to animosity. A high-strung, malignant, angry disposition is frequently called lion-like, and oftentimes such persons are figured as lions in Scripture, "and as an old lion who shall rouse himself up." Gen. 49: 9.

The breastplates of iron symbolize the hardened, seared conscience; so very impregnable to conviction that the best presentations of Gospel truth fail to produce any saving effect upon the minds of these apostates, and I think this case is analagous to that spoken of by our Saviour in the parable of the sower, where some seeds fell by the wayside, and the fowls of the air came and devoured them up; which is explained to mean that the devil comes and takes away the good seed out of their hearts. Now these are those reasonings suggested by the devil, so that as soon as any truth is lodged in the mind they reason it away, and thus they do even on their death-bed, so that we cannot even speak of a death-bed repentance in their case, so that the hardness and unconcern respecting the welfare of their souls, which they manifest on their death-beds is an encouragement to others in the same course of life; and this is what is meant by the stings in their tails. We are plainly told that the general diffusion of this heresy is the work and influence of one fallen angel, who is called the angel of the bottomless pit, and Abaddon, or Apolyon, because this heresy would work to uproot all the benefits and advantages which come to us through Christianity, without seeming to offer anything as a substitute. As was said by Peter, these would go away from Christ, without first knowing to whom they should go.

"The sound of their wings as the sound of many horses running to battle" represents the noise they make in the world; and this gives us the idea of a popular theory. The time of their continuance in this form is again said to be five months, or one hundred and fifty years, not to repeat it but to em phasize it as in the double dream of Pharaoh.

Inthe 21st and 22nd paragraphs of section 1st in Mosheim's General History of the Christian church for the seventeenth century.

THE NEW YORK WITNESS ON LOGAN AND THE LODGE.

(From the Witness of Dec. 10.)

There was once a candidate for the Presidency of this great Republic who lost his opportunity by prefacing his letter of acceptance with the information that he had just finished a hasty plate of soup. That finished his hopes. And we can hardly avoid thinking that Senator Logan has accomplished a similar demise by announcing from Chicago that he could not attend Vice President Hendrick's funeral at Indianapolis, because he had made his arrangements to be advanced a degree or two in Freemasonry the same day. Clearly, we think, Mr. Logau should be left to ascend all the steps of the Jesus-excluding fraternity, unembarrassed by the cares of political preferment. As his public declaration is apparently a bid for the support of Freemasons, it shows the danger to which the nation may be exposed from secret societies, which are directly contrary to the teachings of the Lord. "For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, lest his deeds should be reproved. But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest that they are wrought in God." John 2: 20, 21.

(In reply to a Masonic correspondent, Dec. 24.)

We have heard and read enough about Masonry to believe:

1st. That it reverences the All-Father, as all Deists claim to do.

2nd. That the claims of Jesus Christ to being the Saviour of the world are practically ignored, as they must be where Jews and other unbelievers in Christ are welcomed as members of the Masonic fraternity. This ignoring of the Saviour by Freemasons in their meetings would not be objectionable any more than it would be in a railway or insurance company if the society made no claim to a religious character, and did not bring its members into much closer relations than these other companies do. It is the close bond of a union that is not in Christ, that we find so objectionable.

3d. That Masons, in an election or on a jury, may be expected to favor a Freemason in preference to a non-Mason; and also to trade with a Mason in preference to a non-Mason, preferences which are a strong inducement to business men to enter the fraternity.

4th. Any society which demands from its members a loyalty superior to their loyalty to the general interests and well-being of the community in which they live, such as the church of Rome, the Nihilists, the Mormons and the Freemasons, is dangerous to the well-being of the State, and should be shunned by all good men. While saying this, we do not, in any way, make light of the good objects placed before both Masons and Romanists.

Our great objection to Masons is their oath of secrecy, and of allegiance to the society. Our Saviour taught distinctly that no good thing could thrive in the dark. Secrecy is the essence of darkness. "He that loveth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifest," are the Master's words. We fail to see how secret societies could have been more distinctly condemned.

ON THE LORD'S SIDE.

Satan claims to be the God of this world, but he is a usurper. Christ, its true Lord, has come to expel him and to recover his own rightful dominion. Christ has organized the church as his army. It is an army with banners. It is composed of various divisions, each having its distinctive organization and drill and armament, but all marching together under his leadership. He issues this proclamation as he advances: "He that is not with me is against me." He recognizes no neutrals and no non-combatants. All who do not enlist as his soldiers he regards as his enemies.

This proclamation seems stern and harsh to many. They disclaim any hostility to Christ. They have, indeed, a certain respect and admiration for him. They rejoice in his success and contribute to the support of his army. But they don't want to leave their business and become soldiers. They don't want to take up the cross and join in the great crusade against sin and Satan. Why cannot they be permitted to go on as friends of the Lord in a quiet way? Why does he insist upon their taking the oath of enlistment, putting on the armor of the sacramental host and marching with it? He tells us in his Sermon on the Mount, "No man can serve two masters." Mammon is in possession of the world, and, hence, whoever lives a worldly life, no matter how amiable or moral he may be, helps to sustain the usurper. His influence is thrown in favor of the government de facto and against the government de jure. As Moses, when he came down from the mount and saw the golden calf which the people had set up, cried, "Whoso is on the Lord's side, let him come to me," so the church of Christ cries to-day. She is commissioned to summon us to loyalty and to enlist us in the service of her great Captain. Her ministers, as ambassadors for Christ, beseech men, in Christ's stead, to be reconciled to God. She, as the bride, joins with the Holy Spirit in crying, "Come." If we love the true Master, if we want him to have his rights, if we regard the rebellion against him as without excuse and long to see it subdued, there is only one course for us—we must come out on the Lord's side. That is the place of duty, that is the place of safety.

But men sometimes say, I am not a neutral. I am on the Lord's side though I do not belong to the church. I read the Bible; I pray; I try to live as a Christian. I believe that I am doing quite as well, if not better, than many professors of religion. God, you say, looks at the hearts, and if my heart is right, is not that enough?

The answer to these specious and plausible questions is: God has chosen to commit the standard around which his friends are to rally to an organized church. He has entrusted the defense and extension of his cause to the church. He sent down the Holy Spirit to abide with the church. He instituted ordinances to be administered by the church. He has carried on his work thus far through the church. The gospel is preached by the church. Missionaries are sent out by the church. The Bible is translated, printed and circulated by the church. All the benevolent institutions are sustained by the church. It is the fountain of those streams which are watering the earth, and making its deserts rejoice and blossom as the rose. If God has thus established his head-quarters in this world-wide conflict in the church, we must join it, if we would be on his side. We cannot enjoy the blessings of loyalty or meet its duties outside of the church.

He who is on the Lord's side will desire and need the protection of the Lord. But the army is in a hostile land. Foes confront it on every side, and it cannot be responsible for their safety who are without its lines. Imagine a Hebrew in the wilderness, withdrawing from the camp and pitching his lonely tent by some spring among the hills. He says, I can serve God here as well, or better, than when following the pillar of cloud and fire. I will have a little altar here of my own and will offer sacrifices on it. Would the Lord protect that solitary worshiper from the prowling Amalekites? And even if he escaped their swords and spears would he not lose a great deal by not seeing the new miracles that Moses wrought and hearing the revelations that he received from God? Like that Hebrew in the solitude of the desert is the man who proposes to be a Christian without joining the church.

Christ laid the duty of conquering the world upon his church and gave to her the Holy Spirit and the promises, then, whoever remains out of the church says, by his example, this organized movement is unnecessary. He throws whatever influcuce he has against the divine plan of the campaign. He says: Let the army be disbanded and every soldier fight on his own hook. Such advice in a civil war would be called treason, and this is a civil war. It is a war in which we must join one side or be counted as on the other. Neutrality is opposition because it means disorganization.

The Lord's side seems feeble sometimes. The soldiers appear sluggish and cowardly, but it is the side that must prevail. To its leader all power is given in heaven and on the earth. He goes forth on his white horse conquering and to conquer. Our faith is not in men, but in him, and we identify ourself with his church because thus we identify ourselves with him. Those who are on his side now he will gather at his right hand, in the great day, and say unto them, 'Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." Thus, by helping Christ and this church to conquer the world we secure for ourselves crowns and palms in paradise.—Interior.

THE PROHIBITION VICTORY IN WORCESTER.

BY REV. HENRY T. CHEEVER.

The Tidal Temperance Wave, which, it may be remembered, your correspondent ventured to predict in October last, has fully come. With a sweep and majesty that at the same time both astonish and appalls, it overflows all the banks of conservatism, covers the grass-grown marshes of doubt and indifference, and runs up into all the rocks and caves and crannies of public opinion with its healthy brine.

Today Worcester with its 70,000 stands redeemed, regenerated, disanthralled by the irresistible genius of PROHIBITION. It has not only overcome an adverse vote of 2,123 majority in favor of license last year, but it has carried the city this year for no license by a major vote of 867. Five elements have united to procure this grand result: 1st. The intolerable audacity of the liquor power that has controlled the city for a decade of years under local option, and now, like vaulting ambition, has o'er-leaped itself and fallen on the other side. 2nd. The conviction among Republicans and responsible tax payers in general that the control of the city by the rum power must come to an end. 3d. The positive hostile position of the Roman Catholic priests toward the liquor traffic, on account of its disastrous, demoralizing influence upon their members. 4th. A revolt in the Democratic party, rebelling against the dominations of rum, and uniting with Republicans and no-license voters against a popular candidate for the mayorality dictated by the liquor traffic. 5th. The activity of the Woman's Temperance Union and the united protest of the evangelical ministry of the city in public mass-meetings and otherwise to awaken and organize public sentiment against the traffic, and procure a popular decree of prohibition.

Worcester Prohibitionists will now be put to the proof as to the stuff they are made of. A leading journal of a neighboring State says:

"All Worcester will say that the law ought to be enforced. But the law will not enforce itself. Whether it will or not be enforced will not depend so much upon what the majority of the citizens think about license, as upon the real regard for law and the amount of moral courage possessed. The liquor dealers in their arrogance overshot the mark; the question will be whether they be allowed to violate the law without punishment. If Worcester cannot maintain its own law in this matter, it will be difficult to find a place of, say twenty thousand inhabitants, that can. Those not only who voted "no license," but those who believe in law and order are bound by every worthy consideration to give the new law a fair trial. The experience of our neighbor will be watched with interest."

At the Sunday afternoon mass temperance meeting in Mechanic's Hall, immediately preceedent to the no-license vote of the city on the 15th of December, your correspondent is reported to have said that while many in Massachusetts had been debating, doubting, and drifting, lying on their oars, and divided among themselves as to the practicability of any radical measure of reform, a large and growing city in the South had boldly pushed to the front with an achievement in the line of temperance that electrifies the land, and opens a new era for the South and for the nation. After a campaign and canvas most extraordinary for its thoroughness and absorbing interest, Atlanta has carried prohibition by a good round majority. And all but fourteen of the 137 counties of Georgia are now under prohibition by vote of the people. He therefore moved the thanks and congratulations of the assembly to our sister city of the south in these terms:

Worcester, Mass., to Atlanta, Ga.

GREETI G. The Prohibitionists of Worcester are convened at our Mechanic's Hall, on this afternoon of the Lord's day, Dec. 13 h. in the interest of temperance, to stir up the people of Worcester to take in hand the demoralizing liquor-traffic and make it a loo, by voting no-license at the pending municipal election of Dec. 15th., and this assembly hereby heartily tender the enthusiastic congratulations to the prohtbitionists of Atlanta upon their late signal success in procuring a decree of prohibition by a major vote of the people of their goodly city. All hail, Atlanta! The old Worcester of 1775 accepts the lead and will try to follow the noble example of the young Atlanta of 1885; that so these sister cities of the North and south, united under one right, confederacy, may emulate each other in the career of prosperity and greatn ss that opens before them by the sure providence and blessi g of Almighty God, through the prevalency of temperance and morality and the legal and constitutional suppression of the pernicious liquor-traffic.

Signed, by order and in behalf of the mass meeting of citizens of Worcester at Mechanic's Hall, Sunday, December 13th, 1885, and transmitted to ex-governor Colquitt of Atlanta, Ga.

HOMER T. FULLER, Chairman.
GEORGE M. WHITTAKER, Secretary.

It is from eight to sixteen that boys begin to break away from parental control and the restraints of the fireside. It is then that they seem to feel that they know more than they who bore them; it is then that they begin to assert the liberty of the street, and taste its delusions, its vices, and its crimes. Said an English jurist of great distinction: "A large majority of all the criminals who are brought before me have been made what they are by being allowed to be away from home evenings, between the ages of eight and sixteen."—Dr. Hall.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The Edmund's amendment to the anti-polygamy bill reported back by the judiciary committee just before the Congressional recess, strikes at the root of the real difficulty. The only real obstacle to the enforcement of the anti-polygamy law has been the oath-bound seerecy in which all plural marriages were celebrated. But for this there would have been no more difficulty of enforcement than of any other law which is offensive to a considerable body of its violators. It is doubtless true that in Maine, Iowa and Kansas, as well as Utah, the laws have an imperfect enforcement, but the difference is, that the dram-shop has been open to public inspection. The officers of the law might go in and out when they would, but the Endowment House, like the lodge, was sacredly closed against all but initiates, and the right to such exclusive secrecy has heretofore been conceded; nay, more, a large percentage of the people, including most of the officers of the law, are practicing—not polygamy—but systems of seerecy which are held to be just as inviolable as those of the Endowment House and under which crime might be and often has been consummated. That any class of institutions should deny to the government the right of inspection and refuse to be responsible both to law and public opinion both for what they are and what they do, is a strange anomoly in a free government. The right of privacy is one thing and the right of absolute concealment is another. That in which the public has no concern needs no publication, but all institutions and organizations which affect the public welfare ought to be open to the inspection of the public.

Mr. Edmund's bill in requiring the certification and registration of all marriages and requiring that the books of record shall be open to inspection, is certainly a most useful and far-reaching measure. A similar law was passed in 1832 by the legislature of Rhode Island. The Masonic lodges were required to make a record of all initiations, including oaths and ceremonies, and to report them to the court of records. This record was to be open to inspection. It is needless to say that under this law Freemasonry ceased to exist. It was not until after the Dorr rebellion in 1842 that it revived. In the other States Masonry successfully resisted the right of inspection and has continued to do so to this day, only with an increasing arrogance.

Whatever may be the immediate effect on polygamy, the result of this measure, if it becomes a law, will be to establish the right of inspection in reference to all organizations involving public interests. Just as the recent judicial decisions in favor of the right to suppress the manufacture and sale of oleomargerine imply the equal right to suppress the manufacture and sale of whisky, so the right to inspect the doings of the Endowment House implies the equal right to investigate the Knights of Labor and Masonic lodges. Such inspection implies suppression.

The recent prohibition victories in the South, particularly in Georgia and Kentucky, are opening the eyes of even the politicians. The Star, of this city, says that no one can question the advantage to public morals, and instances counties in Kentucky where crime has been brought to a minimum through local option laws. The Star comes round so far as to favor local option laws. Very well, let us have local option in this District to commence with.

Our mission work is going on with unabated vigor. The attendance is on the whole increasing, especially at our noon meetings. On last Sabbath we had two services in the Dime Museum, a large hall on the avenue between 11th and 12th streets. There was a large attendance of the class that do not go to public worship in the churches, and there was much seriousness. Major Milton, who addressed the meeting, is a man of fine abilities and of great earnestness. He has no faith in temperance orders, or in any other order than that of the songs of God, and he preaches the Gospel as the remedy for intemperance and all other sins.

The Star gives us this picture of what is called high-toned Washington society:

Assistant Attorney-General Maury revived an old Washington custom of having a number of friends in to drink eggnog with him after church services on Christmas day. Among the gentlemen who partook of the spicy draught were Chief-Justice Waite, Admiral Welles, Admiral Rowan, Justice Miller, Justice Woods, Capt. Tanner, and Judge Cox.

This is the reason why we have more than 1,200 saloons, and why there are more arrests in proportion to the population than in any other city in the nation. This is why there is a continual conflict here with helpless poverty and terrible crime. The Chief Justice of the nation goes from church service to dram drinking. His assistant judges are his boon companions in social tippling. This is the reason why both houses of Congress are disgraced with drunkenness, and why the Senate restaurant, in defiance of law, publicly advertises the sale of intoxicating liquors.

This is the source of the inspiration of Senator Ingalls's license bill recently introduced into the Senate, which if rightly named would be called a bill to increase, promote, protect, and perpetuate the liquor traffic in the District of Columbia. This is what makes city missionary work at once so needful and so difficult. When will great men of the nation, and especially the sons of the Puritans, consider that their example in promoting the practices, from which comes the great bulk of our crime and misery, is a thousand-fold more potent than their efforts to suppress them? H. H. HINMAN.

A "Trades and Labor" Convention has been holding its sessions in this city for several evenings past. Seventy-nine delegates out of one hundred and sixty who attended the first meeting answered the roll-call last Monday evening. Many had left, including Knights of Labor, because of the extreme and unlawful measures proposed. The meetings are stormy, and more harm than good is likely to be the result of such incendiary speeches. It is marvelous—the blindness of these men who suggest all sorts of remedies for hard times, but say nothing of the evil and terrible waste of intemperance. Night after night they talk about convict labor, monopolists, rates of wages, the Chinese, etc., and not one word about the rum traffic, which is the great drain on the purse of the workingman.—The Pacific, San Francisco.

Secretary Manning has a son in New York who is a saloon-keeper. Dispatches say he was arrested for keeping his saloon open a part of election-day. The court dismissed him under the flimsy excuse that he could not get the crowd out of his saloon. This may open a loop-hole for saloonists to keep open on election-days in the future. All they will have to do will be to gather up a crowd who will not leave.—Telescope.

Mr. Eaton, the head of the Bureau of Education, has resigned after a long term of faithful service, to take the presidency of a college. He did his work well in the main, but with too evident leanings toward a merely secular type of education, which is not the most likely means to make good citizens, whatever it may do to make "smart" Americans. Dauiel Webster quotes Mr. Jefferson as saying in his old age that he had been greatly impressed with the truth of Mr. Burke's saying that "religious education is the cheap defence of States."—The American.

REFORM NEWS.

A YEAR IN WISCONSIN.

Bro. Bancroft's report of his work in Wisconsin for the year shows that he has lectured in the following places: Milton and Milton Junction, Rock county; Pleasant Hill, Richland City, Orion, Sextonville, Richland county; Douglas, Marquette county; Rural, Wapacca county; Belle Plain, Waukechon, Shawano county; Wilson, Oconto county; Flintville, Brown county; Sturgeon Bay, Clay Banks, Door county; Ahnapee, Kewaunee county; Kasson, Manitowoc county; Brillion, Calumet county; Fond du Lac, Byron, Fond du Lac county, Greenbush, Sheboygan county; Bolton, Washington county; Waubeeka, Ozankee county; Wauwatosa, Oak Creek, Milwankee county; Raymond, Racine county; Martin, Green county; Wankesha, Prospect Hill, Genesee, Delafield, Sussex, Waukesha county; Stoughton, Cambridge, Belleville, Dane county; Oakland, Kosh konong, Jefferson county; Sugar Creek, Fayette, Walworth county. He also spoke in Wheaton, Winslow, Riley and Huntley in Illinois. It thus appears that the State has been fairly canvassed by Bro. Bancroft, and a foundation laid for good work in every direction.

Bro. Bancroft has borne his own expenses during the year and so kept no account of them. Neither did he make any charge to the State Association for services, nor take contributions for the same. Probably his work would have a deeper, more abiding effect if the people he visited had contributed, and with a liberal hand. However, as many of the places were visited for the first time, little would have been received had it been asked.

Bro. Bancroft concludes thus:

"I have traveled with my own conveyance of horse and buggy 2,416 miles. I have distributed, by gift, over 39,000 tracts in 4,686 families in thirty different counties in this State, and eight or ten in Illinois. In my repert above the places are only those where I have preached or lectured. But I have visited from house to house and given away tracts and conversed in families and with individuals on the subject of secret societies in a great many more places. In fact I have hardly ever given away tracts where I have lectured or preached, but they have mostly been given as I have gone from place to place during the week. I have not lectured much in the large cities and villages because I am not qualified for that, but I have canvassed to some extent and done what I could, and it will be satisfactory to those that I have labored for an with."

THE WORK IN IOWA.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—When I was at the Washington Convention I met friend James Harvey, and his wife, from Pleasant Plain, and they invited me to come to their place to lecture, Accordingly, after the lecture at Wyman, which was on a rainy night to but a handful of people, I went to Pleasant Plain. I reached there before noon, and before night we had a notice out for a lecture that evening in the Friend's meeting house. I lectured that evening, and preached the next evening in another Friend's meeting house a few miles distant; and returned and lectured again at Pleasant Plain, on the third evening.

The Principal of the Academy kindly gave his pupils permission to attend the first lecture. The second lecture was given ou Christmas night, when the studeuts had many of them gone to their homes. But the Odd-fellows, who showed their interest in the ladies by attending the meeting of the Rebecca's on the evening of the first lecture, were out to hear the second lecture. There are some warm frieuds of Christ and Christian reform at Pleasant Plain.

Mr. Geo. Brokaw of Washington, Iowa, offered to give one dollar a month to support the lecture work in Iowa. Friend James Harvey of Pleasant Plain, will also give one dollar a month, aud he thiuks there are one hundred men in Iowa who would cheerfully do the same. Friend Harvey is what some call a slow Quaker. But do not fancy that he will be behind in this, or any other good work. He may be slow to speak, but he will be free to give. Aud the sinews of war will uot be lacking for a protracted campaign in Iowa, if Mr. Brokaw's and friend Harvey's generous liberality shall provoke ninety-eight other friends of Christ and truth and reform to emulate their noble example.

Is it not time that we awake to the fact that the religious philosophy of Freemasonry dethrones Christ, and exalts Mohammedanism and Paganism and Judaism, and every other false religion, to an equality with the religion of our Lord aud Saviour Jesus Christ? Thus Satan seeks to accomplish by this indirect method what infidel philosophers who have openly attacked Christianity have failed to do.

The Young Meu's Christiau Association are responsible for the statement that but five out of one hundred of the young men of America, are professing Christians. Shall we wait until this lodge demon has corrupted the faith of our young men, as effectually as the saloon is debauching their morals? Let us arise and strangle these twin devils with cords of truth, before they have wrought the ruin of our land, which they will surely do if we do uot in the uame, and by the power of Christ withstand them.

The religious philosophy of Freemasonry is the worm iu the root of the Christian faith of the young men of our couutry. And if we let that worm alone the Christian faith of the masses of our young men will droop, and eventually die. Friends of Jesus, lovers of reform, do not wait until Christ has only old men and cripples, and women for pillars in his church, but come to the rescue now.

Help your State lecturer to get up meetings, and conventions, and organize associations for pleading the truth everywhere. Aud let our couuty associations have auxiliary bands in every township, who will give themselves to prayerful effort to win souls from the saloon and lodge, as well as from every other haunt of vice and sin, to Christ.

Let us humble our hearts before God, and confess our sius and our lukewarmness; and with faith in Jesus to cleanse us by his blood from all sin, let us wait for the promise of the Father, until the Holy Ghost comes upon us, and we are anointed for this work of soul-winuing. Let us get enough of the Spirit of Him who is no respecter of persons, in our hearts; so that we will deal as faithfully with the elder or deacou, who goes to the lodge and joins in the devil-worship practiced there, as we do with other sinners.

They must be taught that they cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils; that they cannot be partakers of the Lord's table, and the table of devils; that if they join in the rival worships of the lodge, that dethrone Christ as the one Mediator between God and man, they provoke the Lord to jealousy, and that they cannot escape his wrath who is stronger than they.

What Christ wants is anointed men and women who are not afraid to grapple with the lodge demon in their revival work, by calling to repentance the votaries of the lodge, as they would the frequenters of the brothel and the saloon. And, though this lodge wickedness may be found in high places in the church, yet the command to show my people their transgression, and the house of Judah their sins must be obeyed, and this lodge wickedness exposed until men would just as soon think of clinging to fornication, or theft, or drunkeuness, or adultery, as they would think of adhering to the carnal brotherhood and false worships of the lodge.

Again, I say, let us awake! and take hold of this matter as Samson did of the pillars of Dagon's temple, in the streugth of Christ, with prayerful effort, until the Spirit of God descends like a flood upou the people and the very foundations of this wickedness are washed out. Your brother in Christ.

C. F. HAWLEY.

FROM THE KANSAS AGENT.

NORTH CEDAR, Kans., Dec. 31, 1885.

DEAR EDITOR:—While enjoying the hospitalities of Father Mullinax and son, about five miles south of North Cedar, Jackson county, where I am to lecture to-night and to-morrow night, aud where I preached to quite full audieuces yesterday and last evening, I will write a few items of travel aud labor.

I left home Wednesday, the 9th inst.; reached Bro. B. Franklin's Saturday evening, although it snowed all day. Preached Sabbath evening, and left two appointments to lecture iu the U. B. church four miles north of Rossville, Shawnee Co. Left my horse and buggy; took train, and reached Olathe Tuesday noon, where I met Bro. M. N. Butler, the American agent, and remained the next day, while he succeeded in affecting a State organization of the American party.

A protracted meeting being in progress at the Wesleyau Methodist church, (with some degree of revival interest) there was no opportunity to have a series of lectures. I therefore returned to the Franklin church, where I spoke to fair audiences, Friday and Saturday evening, and preached Sabbath evening, wheu Rev. C. M. Parsley took a collection for me. I received four subscribers there for the Cynosure, and two on my trip to Olathe.

Tuesday, December 22nd, went to Rev. J. S. T. Milligan's, near North Cedar; lectured Wednesday evening at the Woodburn school-house, and then, on account of Christmas trees and Santa Claus, alias Satan, hindering me, I could not get appointments till Sabbath, at the Mullinax school-house, where I am to speak to-night and to-morrow night. Thursday and perhaps Friday evenings I am to speak in the Reformed Presbyterian church at North Cedar.

My experience shows that we get a larger number of hearers in proportion to the ordinary congregations in the country churches and school-houses, than in the cities; and yet where the work is entirely new it is very discouragiug financially, and unless the iutelligent friends of the cause in this uncultivated field (Kansas) speedily come to the rescue it will have to be abandoned. The N C. A. giving but half, or less, of its former help the way of your unworthy servant is very uear closed up. I feel very deeply interested in the reform work, and will do the best I can, but fear that this will be my last trip, unless there are some special calls. R. LOGGAN.

HOW TO KEEP A LECTURER.

PLEASANT PLAIN, Iowa, Jan. 1, 1886.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—C. F. Hawley was here last week and delivered two lectures on the religion of Freemasoury, clearly exhibiting the difference between it and the Christian religion.

We have also received a letter from Delta, Keokuk Co., giviug an account of two lectures he delivered there this week on the same subject, which had wonderfully enlightened and aroused many in that town and vicinity. All the ministers (three in number) received him with open doors. All the friends of the cause here consider him a worthy and efficient workman, and are anxious that arrangements be made to keep him in the field.

This can easily be done if a number of cards could be sent to some good worker in each locality in the State, and he get each one to state on the eard above his own signature how much he would pay per month for that purpose; send the cards to J. A. Laird, our treasurer, to hold as our subscription or obligation given. The local agent having a list of the subscribers in each place could collect and forward to our treasurer. and thus raise the money necessary to keep Bro. Hawley at work all the year, without the disagreeable task of passing the hat when he comes to talk to us.

I merely make these suggestions for consideration. Some better way may be devised. I heard one man say he would pay $1 per month.

JAMES HARVEY.

FROM THE ILLINOIS LECTURER.

GILMAN.

There is no hall in this place fit for use. However, I had the privilege of exhibiting the large chart in two places in town. Each time I had a small but interested audience. On the latter occasion a number of ladies were present, one of whom declared on hearing "Jubela, Jubelo, Jubelum," that she intended to repeat these names to a Masonic friend when next she met him. But she changed her mind when she saw Hiram Abiff "duly and truly prepared" to become a Master Mason.

While passing along the street a merchant halted me, saying as he did so, "Let me introduce you to this gentleman coming. He'll talk to you."

The approaching party, advancing by one upright regular step, bawled out on being introduced, "Well, if he can tell us anything about the unknown and unknowable, I am willing to listen to him; but if he can't, I don't want to hear him or any other d—d preacher."

I would not give the iucident this passing notice but for the fact that it is but one specimeu from among the many of the like nature which every lecturer must encounter, and as often ignore in making his report. I merely said that my Bible directed me to "Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou also be like him;" and to "Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit."

PAXTON.

The Masons have erected a very fine brick building iu this city, the upper stories of which are devoted to worship of "the god of this world;" and he has succeeded iu blinding the eyes of very many Christian people through the representations of one pastor and some who profess the religion of Christ. I was told that this pastor boasts of his order in the pulpit. Masonic professors of religion point to him with a triumphant air, as a Mason, and consider that a sufficient excuse for their "fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness."

Here I met Rev. Wm. Blanchard, who welcomed me to his home and endeavored in every way to assist me in bringing this reform before the people; and though we spent an entire day, we could not obtain a church in which I might either preach or lecture. Sabbath came, but the situation was unchanged. We were about to despair of securing a place in which to speak, when a Christian brother directed me to rent a hall and he would pay for it. This was encouragement indeed; so that if the Elijah of this reform is yet to be found, we are sure we can place our finger on Obadiah.

Lawrence Hall was obtained, and on Sabbath evening, at the union meeting of the churches, I arose and asked the officiating minister for the privilege of making an announcement, which was granted. Accordingly, I stated the nature of my mission and invited the public to a free lecture on "The anti-Christian Character of Freemasonry and Kindred Secret Societies."

Tuesday evening the hall was well filled, additional seats having been provided. Here again the large chart did good service. The audience listened respectfully aud with marked attention. At the close a crowd of young meu came forward to examine the chart more minutely aud ask for informatiou. Altogether, the favorable turn things took at that time, wheu it seemed impossible to obtain a church or hall in which to speak, the orderly audience, the respectful attention given, and the effect of the truth appearing at the close in the enquiring attitude of so many of that audience, encouraged me to believe that the Divine Spirit was manifestly present.

Many are expecting Pres. C. A. Blanchard to lecture at no distant date in one of the Swedish churches. I had the pleasure of meeting Rev. A. E. Wenstrand and Rev. A. Edgren, both of whom are Swedish pastors, aud with their congregations are united in their opposition to secret orders.

The morning after the lecture I met a man in front of one of the stores who, with the air of one possessed of superior knowledge and condecension, patronizingly addressed the group arouud him substantially as follows:

"Gentlemen, I supposed that this mau knew something about Freemasonry. I supposed from the statement in the bills that he was a seceder from Freemasonry, but I see from his conversation that he knows nothing at all about it. He never was there." Then he turned, looked me in the face, as if to say, What can you make of my method of disposing of your case, Sir. I simply asked him if he was a Mason to step to the nearest justice's office and make affidavit that he did not swear in the first degree to bind himself "under no less penalty" than having his throat cut, etc., offering him $10 for his trouble.

"No, sir. I'll not do any such thing," he shouted.

"Why not? You cannot make ten dollars easier, if your assertion be true, viz: that I know nothing at all about it."

"I don't care," he responded, "I don't want to make ten dollars. I–I–I don't need it; I've got plenty."

I did not doubt his last remark, nor did the crowd, who did not let him off so quietly, as I afterwards was told. There may be some difference between telling a falsehood and swearing to that falsehood after it has been told. G. T. DISSETTE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

ANOTHER SUGGESTION.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—As great efforts are being made to build church edifices for a mixed worship, in which those who hold to one way to heaven are held to worship with such saints as hold to "another Gospel which is not another" in the lodge, my suggestion is, that if the lodge men lack room at home, that Anti-masons help them build lodges enough to hold them. We submit the idea that it would be better for both kinds of worshipers, but more speci ally for purely Christian worshipers. While the inconsistency of the Mason in mixing is not so glaring, that of the believer in the one way is too absurd for toleration. We could never help build one hive both for honey bees and yellow jackets. Would rather help build two—one for each. Yours for one way. N. C.

THE G. A. R.

TWIN BROOKS, Dakota.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—A country paper says: "Gen. Humphrey Post, G. A. R., held another of their popular camp-fires at the court house last Saturday afternoon, at which the usual jollity and sociability prevailed." "The G. A. R. band was present and made one and all 'mark time' with their inspiring strains of old familiar and war-time airs."

We have claimed that the G. A. R., as an organization, is not for the physical, mental or moral improvement of its members, or of any other persons. This is clear from what usually transpires at the camp-fires. In the first excerpt above quoted the basis of the social development of the members is made to appear as "jollity," light amusement, noisy mirth according to Webster. It is well known that the old comrades spend their time (in part) at these camp-fire gatherings, relating impure and obscene stories, telling army lies, etc. We are not detracting from the character or reputation of the noble soldier who stood by his country's flag in an hour of peril, but the facts as stated are known to be true. There is but little that transpires at a camp-fire that is ennobling and elevating that is not made of little effect by the ridiculous and improper conversation that goes with it.

The next point we desire to notice is, that the speeches, the songs, etc., all tend to develop and keep growing the sectional animosity that the late war engendered. Is it right to keep open the sectional wound?

And again, while the G. A. R. keeps up its camp-fires, parades, etc., the spirit of bitterness is kept welling up in the hearts of the rebel soldiers. Would it not be more like manhood to strive to unite the hearts of the Northern and the Southern soldier? Would it not be more becoming the Christian to dispel hatred, rather than keep it growing? Would it not be more in keeping with the teaching of our Saviour to spend the time used in "jollity" to better the condition of the race rather than dis-unite a people?

Ministers of the Gospel are often connected with the G. A. R. Is it right and proper for the pastor of God's people to waste his much-needed time in a crowd where jollity is the thing most in store, instead of using this time in Christian work? Riding along the sea of life on "the waves of popularity" as these preachers in the G. A. R. are doing, how successful will they be as soul-winners? Is the man who is led along by such worldliness a fit man to lead the world to Christ? Dear reader, do you approve? Will you be found wasting your time, money and talent in such ways as the G. A. R. invites? Arise, shine. Isa. 60: 1. "Come out from among them." C. E. WALKER.

ANTI-MASONS WRITE THUS FOR YOUR PAPER.

EDITOR CYNOSURE:—In the Cynosure I notice a reform writer says he had adopted one of Miss Martineau's rules for writing for the press; which rule was, "To strive earnestly to serve my day and generation," and as I read this it came forcibly to my mind that the very best way to be useful to others by writing is to write only on those subjects in which we have taken such a deep interest as to have made it a subject of importunate prayer.

The more a writer has of Jacob's experience when he wrestled with the Angel of the Covenant, when he said, "I will not let thee go except thou bless me," the more useful will their articles be to others.

With such previous preparation, burning, loving, powerful words will be written, coming from full hearts; and what comes from the heart reaches the heart: and the heart must be reached in order to rightly affect the life. The intellect may be instructed, and convinced even; but if the heart remain untouched our work for others will be mere outside work, ending in a wordy war or a tinkling of cymbals.

May every one who seeks to wield the pen look up for help. M. P. N.

PITH AND POINT.

NOTICE TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All are duly and respectfully notified that my regular address is hereafter to be Green Grove, Lackawanna county, Pennsylvania, instead of Thompson, Susquehanna county, Pennsylvania. Mail matter addressed to me at Thompson, Pa., and 1409 Dixon avenue, Scranton, will reach me in time.—NATHAN CALLENDER.

FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

While all over the land, as we travel from place to place, sojourning, a week here, a month there, and three or six months farther on, we see evidences of the almost unlimited and ubiquitous, as well as iniquitous, reign of the "lodge" in old and new forms. There are everywhere seen also the tokens of its approaching end. There is a general restlessness under its yoke, and the invention of new forms and names of the same nature, show a felt necessity of new devices to divert the oppressed victims from their galling yokes—new toys to please impatient children! This cannot last always. The end is at hand if we are faithful. "Once more all together."—S. COLLINS, Hoboken, N. J.

THE POLE-STAR IN THE SOUTH.

I admire the course your valuable paper is taking, and in the way it defends the truth. I have been a member of two secret orders, but consider myself a member of none, now: and, the Lord being my helper, shall never enter another again. May Heaven bless the noble work that is being done by your paper and associates, throughout this South country, especially.—(Rev.) E. E. SIMS, Dodd City, Texas,

ZEAL UNDIMMED BY AGE.

I will write for my father, J. Day, as he is nearly 80 years old. He would be glad to work more in the reform and does all he can. There are but few here who care to think of this, except the Adventists, as a good many Masons are here. But if we could get a good lecture or two it would do good and wake the people up. Some of our ministers are Masons; and that abomination hinders much in temperance work. Father has been an Anti-mason since Morgan's time. He is a radical, and distributes tracts, etc., as much as he is able. We need a wide-awake lecture very much, but we are not able to bear all the expense. Will do what we can toward getting subscribers. Yours for earnest work.—MRS. S. A. SMITH, Hutchinson, Minn.

GIVE OTHERS THE LIGHT.

For some time you have been sending the Cynosure to our Reading Rooms at Berwick, and to myself at Cannon Store, and it has done great good and been of incalculable benefit to every church and hundreds of people. I hope you will send the same God-sent blessing to Rev. B. Dorsey. He is one of our worthy ministers and an anti-secret society man. He has done good work in battling against these evils. Please furnish him with ammunition as he needs to keep firing.—A. L. REESE, Cannon Store, La.

A SAMPLE OF GOOD TEMPLARISM, VERBATIM ET LITERATIM.

It [the Cynosure] has not been at all a welcome visitor. For some time it was regularly consigned to the flames by the mother of the family. Perhaps you think us Masons or rank secretists of some kind. We are not. No member of our family ever belonged to a genuine secret society. But from the father down all are GOOD TEMPLARS, who are old enough, and we are proud of it! And no one who knows of the simple ceremonies of our noble order, or any lover of truth can read the infamous fanatical and utterly untruthful tirades, or covert hints at ceremonies which never were a part of our exercises, can read unmoved the Cynosure. It is a wonder to me, a full degree member, that you dare write or print such articles. Rail at Masonry all you please—it may deserve it, but we don't like to have the Good Templars lied about.—S. A. ROSCOE.

BIBLE LESSONS.

STUDIES IN JEWISH HISTORY.

LESSON III, Jan. 17, 1886.—The faithful Rechabites. Jer. 35: 12-19.

GOLDEN TEXT.—For unto this day they drink none, but obey their father's commandment. Jer. 35: 14.

Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. Israel's ingratitude contrasted with the filial obedience of the Rechabites. v. 12–15. The fierce, yet probably sincere zealot, Jehonodab, from whom even Jehu sought inspiration for his sanguinary warfare against the priests of Baal, had his reasons, partly politic and partly religious, for desiring that his descendants should form a separate community. The command to live a nomadic life, engaging in no trade and owning neither houses nor lands, seems to have been dictated by motives of policy. As they had no blood affinity with the native Jew, it saved them on the one hand from rivalries that might have led to persecution from the dominant race, and on the other from being absorbed into the body of the nation and thus losing their separateness as a people. They are thus a striking type of the Christian who as a stranger and pilgrim on the earth cannot properly call anything earthly his own. His treasure is in heaven, and whatever worldly wealth may fall to his share he is only the Lord's steward. But the Rechabites are remarkable chiefly as being the first recorded instance of a temperance society on the total abstinence principle. Necessity had driven them to take refuge in Jerusalem from the Chaldean invaders—but even the command of a prophet could not tempt them to violate their vow to drink no wine. They were willing to be peculiar, and, in an age of universal wine-drinking, to bear their testimony for temperance. By making their filial obedience a rebuke to stubborn and ungrateful Israel, God has put the stamp of his approval on total abstinence as a principle. Another powerful argument for temperance is afforded by the fact that

2. God makes their obedience in this respect the pledge of their perpetuity as a tribe. vs. 16–19. Wolff thought that he found a remnant of this tribe in the deserts of Arabia. God punishes and rewards through the operation of natural laws. There is no destroyer of a family line like intemperance in its members. Mr. Nelson, the most distinguished of English actuaries, after long and careful research has ascertained that between the ages of fifteen and twenty, where ten total abstainers die, eighteen moderate drinkers die. Between the ages of twenty and thirty where ten total abstainers die, thirty-one moderate drinkers die. Between the ages of thirty and forty, where ten total abstainers die, forty moderate drinkers die. God's law, "the soul that sinneth it shall die," is written in the very constitution of our bodies, and only in obedience to his laws is the fountain of life—physical and spiritual.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

Were the Jews a nation of drunkards? Isaiah 5: 11, 22. Why did Jeremiah take them into the temple with priests for witnesses? Isaiah 28: 7; 56: 10–12.

From Peloubet's Notes.

THE RECHABITES.—Their origin. The Rechabites were a nomad tribe, not of Jewish, but of Kenite race, who were a branch of the Midianites, i. e., the descendants of Midian, the son of Abraham, and his wife Keturah—so that they were related to the Jews. In the days of Moses, the Kenites pastured their flocks on the southern slopes of the Sinai Mountains, in the southern angle of Arabia between the two branches of the Red Sea. Moses, when he fled hither from Pharaoh of Egypt, married a daughter of this race. They were very kind to the Israelites as they passed through this region on their way to Palestine. Moses invited his father-in-law, Jethro, to go with him to the promised land, but he refused; but afterward some of the tribe went and settled in southern Judah (Jud. 1: 16; 1 Chron. 2: 55). One family of them went into Northern Israel and settled in Kedesh Naphtali (Judg. 4: 11) on the Northern Jordan, four miles northwest of the "waters of Méron." One of these was Jael, the wife of Heber, the Kenite, who slew the general Sisera (Jud. 4: 17, 21).

Their Creed. (1) They were believers in the true God, for they descended from Abraham; all their leading names in this chapter (Jer. 35) are compounded with the name of Jehovah; they opposed idolatry; and later on they joined in the temple worship. (2) They were pledged to total abstinence, refusing to drink wine or strong drink. (3) They were to own no fixed property, as houses, vineyards, and lands, but did possess cattle. (4) They were not to settle in cities and villages, nor build houses, nor cultivate the land, for this would soon bring them to village life; but to live in tents, moving from place to place as they could find pasturage.

The object of their manner of life. (1) It was a protest against the luxury and vice of the age. (2) It was to maintain among them the purer morality and higher feeling of the desert contrasted with the laxity and effeminacy of the city life. It was to preserve to them their freedom. Hence, although living among the Israelites, they never became a part of either kingdom.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete exposition of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone, comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H. Brockmau; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," by Miss E. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret labor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50.

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry, by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Joseph Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies, Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c.

A Masonic Conspiracy, by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c.

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAG

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, G. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, care Cynosure.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Jackson Valley, Pa.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Hancock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	2
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oaths and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Croshy on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men	2

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Master's Carpet

BY

F. Ronayne.

Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 63: Chicago.

Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, thus showing the principles on which the order is founded. By a careful perusal of this work, a more thorough knowledge of the principles of the order can be obtained than by attending the Lodge for years. Every Mason, every person contemplating becoming a member, and even those who are indifferent on the subject, should procure and carefully read this work. An appendix is added of 32 pages, embodying

Freemasonry at a Glance,

which gives every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge together with a brief explanation of each. The work contains 422 pages and is substantially and elegantly bound in cloth. Price, 75 cents. Address

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and libertics, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following, as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

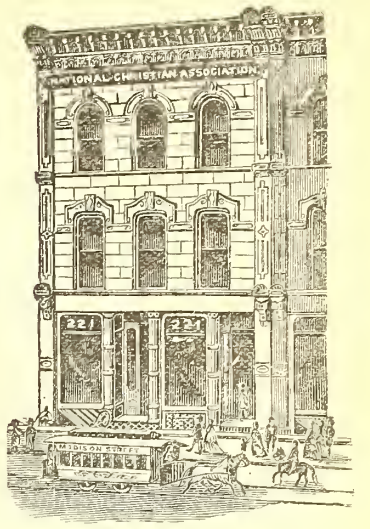
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency.

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,

221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N. Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos H. Gault, C. A. Blanchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of —— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook, Albion; Treas., Benj. Uls Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; See., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Terrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood. Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINIA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafton. Treas., H. B. Higgins, Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 7, 1886

A Cincinnati church officer, who is an intelligent gentleman says, "Till the churches take better care of their poor, we cannot blame the lodges." The lodge that does most for its members (not for its poor, for they pay, rich and poor alike) is the Odd-fellows, whose reports show an average of three dollars received to one paid out for relief. The Chicago Masonic Relief Committee, after the fire, (printed report) show ninety thousand dollars received and thirty thousand paid for relief. To exalt such stupendous swindling above the church of God argues, as Kossuth says of another case, "A stupendous ignorance." Brigands give a portion of what they rob.

BEREA COLLEGE is "beautiful for situation," surrounded by hills whose dark green crests aspire to be mountains, which send their springs into the valleys which run among the hills. Under the administration of President E. M. Fairchild, three large and well-built buildings have arisen where, when Mr. Fee pitched here, there was nothing but a wilderderness dotted with cabins. Four or five thousand people now attend the commencements, and the college is popular with both political parties, and even the frost of sectarianism is melting in the sunlight of the truth which it reflects from Christ. It is astounding that a Masonic lodge should have come into such a place after the war, which was organized in the Southern lodges, had failed. "Then I saw," said Bunyan "that there is a way to hell from the very gate of heaven."

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

RICHMOND, Ky., en route to Berea,
Thursday, Dec. 24th, 1885.

Thirty-nine years ago, I left Cincinnati an inconsiderable town to what I find it to-day. In its swarming multitudes are a few former friends whom I baptised and received to the Sixth Presbyterian church, who have done no discredit to their Christian profession: and who still linger, like stars above the evening horizon, to give life's sunset an agreeable glow. Leavitt and Glenn and Corey and Merrill are names held in respect by all who who know them. Preaching on Mt. Auburn on Sabbath evening, I went in an elegant barouch, belonging to Mr. Martin, who has read and written for the Cynosure and stands fast by its principles: to Lane Seminary on Walnut Hills. By invitation I attended, and spoke against the lodge in the Monday Presbyterian ministers' meeting: and, an hour later to the Congregational ministers' meeting at Vine street. They wish the Ohio State Journal's account of our Columbus convention, which I hope you will send them. On Tuesday evening, by the politeness of Dr. Ritchie, secretary of the Reform Book and Tract Society, and brother-in-law of Mr. Gray of the Interior, I met some fifty clergymen of the City Evangelical Alliance at the Burnett House. This is a young, vigorous body of men, some of whom remembered me, and more knew of my debate with Dr. N. L. Rice. All the ministers here thirty-five years ago are gone to heaven, except, perhaps, the sainted John Rankin and Prof. Calvin E. Stowe.

THE COLORED PEOPLE.

Several were in the cars from Cincinnati, seated promiscuously, and were neither ejected nor scowled at. A white Baptist gentleman farmer rode and conversed with me out here. He was one of Morgan's men, and when I told him I lived near Chicago he smiled and said, "I lived two years in Chicago at Camp Douglass, a Confederate prisoner of war." He said, "I was in favor of slavery, and fought for it; but I have learned that the owners are better off without them; and if the restoration of slavery were to be fought for, nine would fight against where one would for it." He said, "The order of the Immaculates are a great order in Madison county, and, no matter what the negroes are doing they drop all and run to these secret meetings. I do not know what they do in them, but I reckon no good. They waste their time and money and gain no solid ideas, but follow after little frivolous things. There are exceptions, but such are the masses."

The pastor of the colored Baptist church of six or seven hundred members here in Richmond has just called on me. He said he saw that these societies were destroying the churches, and, said he, "I stood out against them till I was almost alone." I told him of his Baptist brethren of Memphis, and their tribulations, but he was as conservative as if he had been a white man. "I had to join some of them," he said, "and so I chose the Odd-fellows."

I go over to Berea in a few hours. All colored and white speak well of Fee and Fairchild. I am hoping to speak in Cincinnati if permitted to return from Washington by this route. J. B.

HOW THEY LEARNED SOCIALISM.

The Congregational ministers of Chicago have made an experiment. It is to be supposed that they all believe the Scripture, "One is your master;" nevertheless, they called in to their meeting, to give them a special lesson on socialism, August Spies, editor of the Arbeiter Zeitung, and a champion of the foreigners who spend their Sabbaths in loud denunciations of the existiug state of society. What they expected is unknown to us; what they heard was probably a surprise to them. But it need not have been. The idea was like the pretensions of Freemasonry which strips a minister, who has studied theology for years, and after he is sufficiently humiliated and debased, teaches him to ask for light by which divine truth may be revealed to his uninitiated sight. For these Congregational brethren to sit at the feet of Spies was about equivalent to going to a lodge to learn how to interpret Scripture. The daily papers all commented on the singular meeting, but the Advance, the Congregational organ, may tell the story:

"Mr. August Spies, editor of the Arbeiter Zeitung, was present, by invitation, at the Ministers' Union last Monday, and spoke at length of socialism. He was listened to patiently and questioned closely. He represents the intelligent socialism, and advocates, with a good deal of ability, all the vagaries of his class. Starting with the premises that men are out of employment, that over-production exists in many quarters, and that laboring men work for pittances, and that capital and labor need such an adjustment that friction will cease, he proposes as a remedy for all these evils, property taken from all who have any and held in common. The danger that selfish, able men may again get more than their share out of the common store will be averted, it is thought, by the development of universal unselfishness under the new order of things. Monogamy, in the view of a socialist, is only another form of private property. Marriage will be a voluntary matter, to be entered into or dissolved at the pleasure of parties interested. Free love of an exalted kind will be the rule. Children will be owned by the whole body. There is no God. Right and wrong are meaningless. What is right to-day may be wrong to-morrow. There is no standard of moral action. Mr. Spies' statements that the church is a failure as a moral force, and that socialism is the preventive of the very ills the church is seeking to cure, were rather startling. Next week the hour is to be given up to prayer, to be led by Dr. Goodwin."

The last suggestion is a hopeful one, and indicates, we trust, the acknowledgement of an error. They certainly by recognizing the teacher of such monstrous doctrines, gave to them such respect as the socialistic following will quickly take advantage of. Doubtless some of these brethren reflect upon the incident thus: Is it not true that the example and instructions of Jesus Christ furnish the most complete, and the only correct theory and practice of socialism? May we not sit at his feet and learn how to combat the dangers that threaten our homes from these foreign agitators? May we not learn from actual contact and relief of the poverty that thrusts itself upon us in every street, more of the necessities of the poor, the disorders of our social system, the inequality of our laws, and the remedies that will surely effect a cure? We know what must be the answers to these questionings. An honest man can learn more in an hour in one of our city missions, where the Holy Spirit is bringing men out of that state where they suppose they need the stay of communism, than by listening to the revolting theories of Spies for a twelve-month; and if our pastors would test this method their churches would soon become more nearly what Christ would approve.

The Baptist Weekly says a very undesirable man in the prayer-meeting is the "hobby" speaker. "He is always charged on some one topic. It used to be slavery, and now it may be secret societies, theatergoing, or prohibition. No matter what the trend of the meeting, however gracious the influences prevailing, he feels that he must deliver his soul." But the trouble is with the other brethren who dare not from one year's end to another, either in public or in private, say a word on unpopular Christian reforms that will make the devil wince. If they did their duty our brother hobbyist would cease to be singular, his vocation would be gone. He bears a needed testimony against great evils, "stands up for a suffering truth," and because no one else stands by him there is need that he say the more to make up for the delinquency of the rest. It is his "burden;" but let his brethren remember the words of Jesus, "Bear ye one another's burdens." The time will come when all such Christians who testify in the spirit of the Master will be honored, even upon the earth; while their mute brethren will be anxious to claim a share of the popular award.

—Bro. B. G. Huber, editor of the Highway of Holiness, Chambersburg, Pa., has our thanks for calling attention to a printers' error last week which makes it appear that the Conservator of Dayton is not well patronized. The number should have been 1,300 instead of 300.

—The "Deacon's" talk on child-training on another page is selected for its many good points on this subject. But we are sorry that few good things on this earth are unmixed with evil. The cheap ridicule of Solomon was probably borrowed from Ingersoll, while the character of "Mr. Hardcap" is a man of straw set up after the manner of some pulpits in a sad attempt to cheat the truth.

—A call comes from Dakota that the articles on the Grand Army of the Republic by Rev. D. Simon, printed not long since, be reissued in tract form. In many places there is a felt need of some plain, pointed, brief documents to counteract the Grand Army efforts. What say the Publication Committee of the N. C. A. Board to this proposition?

—Secretary Stoddard returned to his work in this office Monday with the intention of soon going to Indiana to work up a reform interest in that State. The Cynosure has not mentioned the fact of his happy marriage to Mrs. A. E. Tanner at Columbus, O., December 14th, Rev. C. W. Hiatt officiating.

—Bro. R. D. Nichols, of Jonesville, Mich., desiring to inquire how he might assist the association of that State, has written several letters to Rev. H. A. Day and the treasurer of the association and can get no reply. Will Bro. Day please communicate with him after reading this notice. It is severely discouraging to the ardor of the most determined reformer to have such a difficulty to overcome. If the postoffice addresses need correcting let the Cynosure be informed.

—Rev. E. Barnetson has lately removed from Jackson Valley, Pa., to Haskinville, Steuben county, New York. He recently gave an address on Odd-fellowship in reply to an orator of the order.

—The United Presbyterian of last week prints from some twenty or thirty writers a choice sentiment suitable for the closing of the old year and the opening of the new. Among the names are those of Drs. Cooper, Lytle, McAyeal, Johnston, Boyd, French, Hanua, Meloy, Sankey and others of the U. P. church, and Dr. Gray of the Interior. The editor of the Cynosure was kindly asked to contribute, but being on his way to Berea, the remailed letter did not probably reach him seasonably. In the same number is one of Dr. J. P. Lytle's earnest and strong articles on the secret orders.

—The Berea Evangelist notices thus the visit of the Cynosure editor to the region of Kentucky forever of greatest interest to reformers, so long as the name of John G. Fee and the principles for which he has suffered shall be remembered: "Ex-president J. Blanchard of Wheaton College is making a tour of the South, for the promotion of the work of the National Christian Association opposed to secret societies. Berea is his first stopping place south of the Ohio. He arrived here on the 24th. On the 26th he met teachers and invited friends in the parlor of Ladies' Hall, and gave an hour's profitable and enjoyable talk on the lodge question. On Lord's day, the 27th, he preached in the chapel to much edification, showing how Ahaz ruined the Jewish nation by running into the idolatrous lodge worships of those times, and how Hezekiah restored and strengthened the government by casting out false worships and establishing the true worship of Jehovah. Bro. Blanchard is to speak again on Wednesday, the 30th, at 7 P. M., on the 'Relation of Secret Orders to the Church of Christ.' We bespeak for him a good hearing."

—Rev. William Warner, a faithful minister of the Wesleyan church, died at his home in Cazenovia, Wisconsin, Dec. 3d last. He was a faithful preacher in this denomination for some forty years, and leaves two sons: William W., pastor at Fond du Lac, and E. D., pastor at Oskosh, who, like their father, are faithful in their testimony against the lodge. He was for several terms president of the Minnesota and Wisconsin conferences, and member of the General Conference, and his death will be widely felt in the denomination. His last sickness was brief and his death sudden. "He had remained at Jacksonville," writes Rev. J. E. Gould to the Wesleyan, "where the last session of his conference was held, to continue the revival meetings; had returned home much worn with labor; was taken sick, and died in about a week, of malignant erysipelas." His funeral sermon was preached by Bro. Gould, in the Bethel church near Ironton, Wis., to a congregation over which he was pastor.

LITERATURE.

"JOURNEYINGS IN THE OLD WORLD, BY JAS. W. HOTT. D. D. Embracing Ireland, Scotland, England, France, Italy Greece, Turkey, Syria, the Holy Land, Egypt, with maps and over 100 illustration."

This book will be read with pleasure and profit by two classes of persons; those who can go abroad, and those who cannot. Its style is easy and picturesque, its scenes graphic, its history reliable, and the persons who appear in its pages are done to the life. The writer is of the United Brethren in Christ, and the book issued from their press at Dayton, Ohio, and so supposed to be unfavorable to ideas which used to be termed Calvinistic. See how he treats John Knox, the father of cast metal Scotch Orthodoxy. Standing by his grave he writes:

"Beneath this stone rests the ashes of him who never feared the face of man. Knox, strange to say, has no statue or monument in Edinburgh, and yet all Scotland is a monument to his memory. The quiet Sabbath, such as is nowhere else to be found, with the fullness of religious liberty throughout the land, is his monument of an imperishable fame." p. 79.

And Watts and Bunyan and Wesley seem in these pages to be called back to life, and mingle again in the scenes of earth, along with Spurgeon and the living worthies, divines and statesmen who in long procession appear as in a panorama.

But Bunhill Fields, Parliament houses, cities, pyramids, and ecclesiastical councils, where great men meet and mingle in debate, the beaten paths of tourists—these were not the only objects he has described:

"Where'er the old inspiring genii dwelt,
Methinks he went and meditated there."

He found, on the road from Ayr to Bonny Doon, "the identical Bible" in a chamber of his monument which Burns gave to his "Highland Mary" at their parting of which he writes:

"Wi money a vowe and locked embrace
Our parting was fu' tender;
An pledging aft to meet again,
We tore oursels asunder."

But Dr. Hott never allows sentiment to eclipse the truth. He even gives the source of the accursed vices which embittered the life of Burns's "dearie," and sent her where he sings:

"But cauld, cauld now those rosy lips
I aft hae kissed sae fondly,
And closed for aye the sparkling eye
That beamed on me sae kindly."

He writes thus: "The gatherings of the Masonic lodge and other clubs and fellowships are the causes which led a great genius to paths which virtuous and sober mortals shun."

We value too highly the good opinion of the Cynosue readers to mislead them in purchasing a book, and we are sure that those who buy and read this volume, will thank us for bringing it to their notice.

CORRESPONDENCIES OF FAITH and views of Madam Guyon. A comparative study of the unitive power and place of faith in the theology and church of the future. By Henry T. Cheever. Pp. 292. Price $1.25. Anson D. F. Randolph & Co., publishers, New York.

Some weeks since this interesting volume was noticed from the advance sheets as forming a very valuable contribution to the religious literature of the year. The publishers have done well their part, and the attractions of a well made book enhance the value of the important propositions discussed by Mr. Cheever respecting the approaching victories of the Christian church, through faith in her Divine Lord. The attention of Christians is wonderfully called to these questions by the faith-healings at our city missions, by the activity in independent and faith missionary work, by the preaching of Christ's personal coming, and the reviving of genuine interest in the last command of the Lord, to go everywhere preaching the Word. We trust that the interest in these all-important questions will create a wide demand for the book.

The Century for January is a finely illustrated number to which one turns again and again. The portrait of Verdi, the composer, is the frontispiece, which is accompanied by an entertaining paper by Frederick A. Schwab. It includes a picture of the composer's birthplace, and a fac-simile of two pages of the score of "Il Trovatore." Ex-Minister Benjamin's second and concluding paper on "The City of Teheran" is profusely illustrated and is replete with incidents relating to Persian life and character. This remote people are likely to be next engaged with Russian diplomacy in the march of the Muscovite to the south. W. J. Linton, the well-known author and engraver, contributes both the portraits and the text of "Some European Republicans," which include Mazzini. Mr. Linton was associated with the men whose characters he decribes with the warmth of personal admiration. John S. Wise of Virginia and John W. Munson contribute papers on "Pointers," illustrated with engravings of seven fine dogs. A subject of scientific interest is the paper on "Feathered Forms of Other Days," by Dr. R. W. Shufeldt, U. S. A. Among the illustrations are a remarkable engraving of the fossil remains of a feathered reptile, or reptile-like bird with teeth, and several restorations of extinct forms from drawings by Dr. Shufeldt.

In the War Series we have General John Pope's pungent and personal description of "The Second Battle of Bull Run," which in its fighting, its depressing results, and its controversies involving the trial and cashiering of Fitz John Porter, was one of the most remarkable events of the war. Few of the war articles have been so fully illustrated with map and pictures; and the "Recollections of a Private," describing "Two Days of the Second Battle of Bull Run," is replete with incident and attractively illustrated. The writer criticises Gen. Pope, but is careful of giving any judgment of Porter's case. A forcible essay on "Spiritual Preaching for our Times" is contributed by the Rev. Edward Hungerford; and in "Open Letters" are brief articles on "A National Conservatory of Music;" "Southern Women as Teachers of Colored Children;" "Some Recent Experiments in Hybridization," by Charles Barnard.

The Library Magazine for January in its gleaning from the field of literature, has gathered a generous sheaf of contributions, including Mr. Gladstone's "Dawn of Creation and of Worship;" "Habits of Bees, Ants, and Wasps," by Sir John Lubbock; "The General Election in France, October, 1885," by Jules Simon; "The Anglo-Saxon Alliance," by John Redpath Dougall; "A Greek View of the Present Crisis," by a Greek Statesman; "The Eastern Question as Viewed in Persia," by Hon. S. W. G. Benjamin, late U. S. Minister to Persia; "The Future of the Fellah," by Lieutenant-Colonel Kitchener of the British army. Other articles are "Free Cities in the Middle Ages," "The Wesleys at Epworth," "With the Hungarian Gypsies," "Macauley and Sir Elijah Impey," "Culture and Science," "Provincialism in Literature."

Edmund Alton's recollections of a page in the U. S. Senate "Among the Law-makers," has one of its best chapters in the January St. Nicholas describing the city of Washington and the Capitol. In the series on "Choosing an Occupation," boys who have a taste for architecture will read how and what they must study. H. H. Boycsen writes a charming story of a Norwegian boy's adventures in this country. The first chapters of an historical biography of George Washington finely illustrated with maps and engravings are included in the number; and in the brief papers on great musicians, the story of Wagner concludes the series. We cannot by any means commend parts of this number, such as Mr. Howell's Christmas story, which is too trashy for wise children, if it is not beneath the dignity of a writer of such repute.

Mrs. Molesworth and Wilkie Collins each contribute a story to the January number of the English Illustrated Magazine. In the same number the Rev. Mr. Ainger continues his study of Charles Lamb, by a paper on "Charles Lamb in Hertfordshire." The subject of the frontispiece is a portrait (after a picture by Millais), of Sir Henry Thompson, the author of the striking story, "Charley Kingston's Aunt," which was published anonymously. "A Month in Sicily" is an interesting illustrated paper, reviewing the old historical places of the island.

Art and Decoration is a handsome and profusely illustrated monthly devoted to exterior and interior ornament. Amid the various designs for mantels, windows, chairs, knockers, hanging lamps, etc., it is an interesting study to mark the frequent reappearance of designs a century old, which shows that art is ever new. Published at No. 9 Warren St., New York, at $2.50 per year.

A rivulet of crystal water runs down the sunny slope of Cheyenne Mountain, and at one place in its course this stream passes a spring, around about which is a soft carpet of pine needles and trailing killickinnicks. At that spot has been made the grave of the writer and reformer, Helen Hunt Jackson. Rocks in zigzag outlines stand against the blue above, and at sunset the silvery fires catch the light from the west.

Emil Behnke and Lennox Browe, F. R. C. S., are authors, and Ditson & Co., publishers, of a curious and valuable collection of facts relating to "The Child's Voice," its treatment and development. It forms a little volume of great interest.

Macmillan & Co. announce a new edition in eight monthly volumes, of the Writings of John Morley, uniform with the pretty Eversley Edition of Kingsley, issued a year or two since. The first volume, containing Voltaire, will appear in January.

MASONRY AND THE BIBLE.

How much of the Bible must one believe to be eligible for becoming a Mason?

This question has also been left unanswered. It cannot mean belief in the whole Bible, for in the said jurisdictions, Jews, who disbelieve in the New Testament, are nevertheless initiated into Masonry.

It cannot even be said to mean the whole of the Old Testament, because modern science has made such belief impossible. Can an astronomer believe in the Mosaic cosmogony? Can an astronomer believe that the sun and moon stood still? Why, my dear brother, not many weeks ago I read in a newspaper that a Baptist minister was expelled from his church because he believed in evolution! But when he appealed to a higher ecclesiastical tribune, the said tribune reinstated him. This fact shows that even the followers of Calvin must ship from the old theological landmarks, and why should Masons be less liberal than the Baptist church?

The following extracts from the Grand Lodge of England's constitution of 1784, will, however, prove conclusively that a man can be initiated into Masonry without believing in the inspiration of either the New or the Old Testament.

"At the meeting of the Grand Lodge of England, held at Freemason's hall, February 5th, 1777, Bro. Gahagan from the lodge at Trichnopoly, near Madras, attended with a donation of ten pounds to the charity. He reported that the eldest son of the nabob of the Carnatic had been initiated into Masonry there and professed great veneration for the society. It was then

Resolved, That a complimentary letter be sent to him on the occasion, accompanied with the present of a blue apron, elegantly decorated, and a book of constitutions, bound in the most superb manner. (Noorthouk's Constitutions, page 322.)

"On the 2nd of February, 1780, the Grand Master laid before the brethren a letter in the Persian language, enclosed in an elegant cover of cloth of gold, addressed to the Grand Master and Grand Lodge of England, from his highness, Omdit ul Omrah Bahander, son of the nabob of Arcot, a translation of which was read to the brethren. As the good sense and warm spirit of benevolence that animated the whole of this generous letter must be highly agreeable, and peculiarly so to English Masons, the translation of it is inserted for their gratification:

* * * By the accounts which have reached me of the principles and practices of your fraternity, nothing can be more pleasing to the Sovereign Ruler of the universe whom we all, though in different ways adore, or more honorable to his creatures; for they stand upon the broad basis of indiscriminate, universal benevolence.

Under this conviction I had long wished to become admitted of your fraternity; and now that I am initiated, I could consider the title of an English Mason as one of the most honorable I now possess; for it is at once a cement of the friendship between your nation and me, and confirms in me the friend of mankind.
* * *

May the common Father of all, the omnipotent and merciful God take you into his holy keeping, and give you health peace, and length of years.

Prays your highly honored and affectionate brother,
OMDIT UL OMRAH BAHANDER."

This letter and the contents of it were so grateful to the brethren that they unanimously resolved that a proper letter be written to his highness, acknowledging the receipt of his letter, expressing the high opinion the Grand Lodge entertains of his merits, and requesting a continuance of his friendship and protection to the Masonic institution.

That the translation of this letter be copied on vellum, and with the original be elegantly framed and glazed and hung up in the Grand Lodge at every public meeting of the society.

That the thanks of this Grand Lodge be transmitted to Sir John Day, for the particular attention paid by him in the execution of the commission with which he was entrusted to his highness, Omdit ul Omrah Bahander. (Ibid pages 332–334.)

To show, however, to young Masonic readers that the doings of the Grand Lodge of England of 1777 was not a new departure from ancient landmarks I shall give the following quotation from the 1723 constitution, viz:

"But though in ancient times Masonry was changed in every country or nation whatever it was; yet 'tis now thought more expedient only to oblige them to that religion in which all men agree, leaving their particular opinions to themselves, that is, to be good men and true, or men of honor and honest, by whatever denomination or persuasion they may be distinguished; whereby Masonry becomes the center of union and the means of conciliating true friendship among persons that must have remained at perpetual distance."—Jacob Norton in the Detroit Freemason.

—Rev. D. S. Jenkins of Ellington, New York, in renewing the subscription of Mrs. Evalina P. Mather, says that the old lady is in needy circumstances, and quite indisposed, so that to human probability she cannot remain long to testify for Christ upon earth. Many will remember her appearance before the Batavia convention, and brief account of the night when Morgan was seized at the door of Canandaigua jail. His thrilling cry she remembered distinctly.

THE HOME.

[illegible] STRAINS

[illegible] flakes falling,
[illegible] dropping
[illegible] trod!
[illegible] ring.
[illegible] calm!
[illegible] ring,
[illegible] dear!

[illegible] falling,
[illegible] year,
[illegible] ring
[illegible] HAPPY YEAR!"
[illegible] wed,
[illegible] we,
[illegible] ring
[illegible] sparkle
[illegible] air,
[illegible] allied,
[illegible] there!
[illegible] friendship,
[illegible] cheer,
[illegible] silver,
[illegible] HAPPY YEAR!"
[illegible] ming
[illegible] dreaming
[illegible] —
[illegible] d gladness
[illegible] good appear,
[illegible] kindness
[illegible] A HAPPY YEAR!"
[illegible] owing [illegible] vast,
[illegible] ging
[illegible] past;
[illegible] ed.
[illegible] th of cheer,
[illegible] beings
[illegible] HAPPY YEAR!"
[illegible] hood.
[illegible] uth.
[illegible] maidens,
[illegible] for truth,
[illegible] parents.
[illegible] dear,
[illegible] ling toilers
[illegible] HAPPY YEAR!"
[illegible] ken,
[illegible] r deeds,
[illegible] d no be broken
[illegible] r needs:
[illegible] reathing
[illegible] e ear.
[illegible] ing
HAPPY YEAR.

— Wm. Oland Bourne.

[illegible] CHILDREN.

[illegible] fathers to the children and [illegible] arts.—Mal. 4: 5,6; Luke 1: 17.

[illegible] EN.—When God deter[illegible] on earth, he "called [illegible] him and increased him.' [illegible] ation, and by mighty [illegible] to build a great church [illegible] and promised that he [illegible] on, because he knew [illegible] his children, and his [illegible] they should keep the way [illegible] when he gave a written [illegible] t they should teach it [illegible]

[illegible] unexpected command is [illegible] of Israel, but in the [illegible] If Hebrew parents [illegible] up in ignorance of [illegible] and to stray about from [illegible] and from church [illegible] whims, how long [illegible]?

[illegible] their duty to their [illegible] complaint about feeble [illegible] the best; let us then [illegible] dren in the nurture [illegible] in a knowledge of [illegible] ip of the church.—

I

[illegible] CHILDREN FOR GOD.—There should be [illegible] intelligent, and sol[illegible] of our children to the govern[illegible] saving power of God, through Jesus Christ. [illegible] Abraham, Hannah, Joseph, and many others. The conversion of children to the Lord is [illegible] course of definite Christian teaching on the part of parents, or, if you please, a continuous, sacred process of binding the sacrifice to the altar. And first in point of importance, in this process, comes the truly devout heart and life on the part of parents. A material defect here proves fatal, and tends greatly to render ineffectual all other means that may be employed to save the children. —Sel.

THE INFIDEL'S FAMILY.—Adolphe Monod tells us of the mother of a family married to an infidel who made jest of religion in the presence of his own children: yet she succeeded in bringing them all up in the fear of the Lord. Being asked how it was done, this was her answer: "Because to the authority of a father I no not oppose the authority of a mother but that of a God. My children have always seen the Bible upon my table. This holy book has constituted the whole of their religious instruction. I was silent, that I might allow it to speak. Did they propose a question, did they commit a fault, did they perform a good action, I opened the Bible, and they were answered, reproved, or encouraged. Constant reading of the Scriptures has wrought the prodigy which surprises you." Such faith in God's Word will everywhere work marvels of grace.—Sel.

Parents, if you have any care or concern for the purity and salvation of your children, examine carefully the advertisements in the newspapers and magazines that come to your homes. If you do not find in nine-tenths of the secular papers a number of advertisements that are at once an insult and a menace to modesty, purity, and virtue, we are ready to make public acknowledgement of our mistake. The evil is one of fearful magnitude. Let newspaper publishers learn that they cannot have the support of respectable people as long as they pander to the foulest vices of corrupt society. Get clean, decent papers, or none!—Sel.

The Sunday-school teacher ought to labor for the salvation of his class. The Sunday school is sometimes too lightly regarded. Even teachers sometimes come to look upon it as a kind of place of recreation for the children, and instead of trying to instruct they try to entertain and amuse. This is a grand mistake. The object of a Sunday school is to teach the truth as it is in Jesus, and the object of that truth is to bring those who learn it to Christ.—Baptist Banner.

THE DEACON ON CHILD TRAINING.

"I should like," said the Deacon, "to start a new society, it should be called 'The Society to Prevent Kindness to Children.'"

"Why, Amos Goodenough!" said his wife.

I think that is as near as I ever heard the Deacon's wife come, in public dissenting from any opinion expressed by the Deacon. How much she may dissent in private, I do not know. She is an independent little woman, and has a mind of her own, and knows how to express it when there is occasion.

"I have no doubt," continued the Deacon, not replying to his wife, and apparently not hearing the interruption, "that in what are called the lower classes of society children suffer very often from cruelty and neglect; but I am sure that in the circles represented in this club our children suffer a great deal more from over-care and mistaken kindness."

"That's jest my opinion," said Mr. Hardcap; "I often tell my wife, 'Spare the rod and spoil the child,' but she don't b'lieve me. I am glad to hear you say so, Deacon, and hope Elizy'll take it to heart."

"You know, Mr. Hardcap," said the Deacon, "that the Revisers have discovered that that's a wrong translation or a wrong reading of that passage. They're going to give us a new reading. In the new revision it's going to read, 'Spoil the rod and spare the child,' and I think myself that will be a great improvement."

There was a ripple of laughter at this new revision, which we all recognized as the Deacon's own, all except Mr. Hardcap, who did not lessen the ripple by his solemn protest:

"I don't b'lieve in these new fangled readin's of Scripter," said he; "I jest wish they would leave it as it is. I think the Bible is good enough jest as the Lord gave it to us. It don't want no improvin'."

"But, Deacon," said Jennie, "pray tell us what you mean. Do you really think we can love our children too much, or do too much for them?"

"We can make idols of our children, certainly," said the parson.

"No," said the Deacon; "I don't believe we can. We can love God too little, and truth and righteousness too little; but we can't love our children too much. But we can love them not wisely, and can kill them by mistaken kindness."

"I remember," said I, "a case that illustrates that. I had a friend, some years ago, who had a son, a little boy of five or six years old, whom he idolized. He could not bear to deny him anything. One hot summer evening the family had cucumbers for tea. The boy wanted some. The mother said no; he appealed to his father; the father could not bear to deny him; the boy ate a saucer of cucumbers, drank his usual glass of milk, was taken with cholera morbus in the night, and was dead in twenty-four hours."

"But that's an extreme case; don't you think so?" said Mr. Grier.

"Yes," said the Deacon, "that is an extreme case. Most parents look ahead as far as twenty-four or forty-eight hours; but a great many parents do not look ahead much further. The true secret of child nurture is given in the text, 'Train up a child in the way he should go.' Look ahead. See what sort of a man you want your boy to be, and train in him the qualities you want in him in his manhood."

"I wish you would tell me," said Mr. Wheaton, "how to cure my boy of being late to breakfast. He never comes down till breakfast is half over. I have told him hundreds of times that he never can get on unless he is punctual, but it doesn't make any difference, not a bit."

"Suppose you had a clerk," said the Deacon, "who was regularly late to the bank; what would you do?"

"He wouldn't have the chance to be late but three times," said Mr. Wheaton. "The fourth day, when he came to his desk, he would find his discharge on it."

"Exactly," said the Deacon. "And by suffering your boy to be regularly late to breakfast, you are preparing him to get his discharge whenever he begins to work where men have to live up to law or leave. You can't very well discharge your boy, but if you carried the same spirit into your house that you carried into your bank, you would soon cure him of his lateness."

"I'd take that nonsense out of him very soon if he was my boy," said Mr. Hardcap, "with a good dose of switch, applied externally."

"Do you believe, Deacon," said Mrs. Hardcap, timidly and appealingly, "in whipping children for every offence? It seems to me very hard; and they are so ignorant, and we have our faults too. I can't bear it."

"I should have supposed myself," said the Deacon, "that any Christian man living in this nineteenth century, and possessing an average degree of intelligence, could be able to find some less brutal and barbaric way of governing his children than flogging them. But it seems that there are some who can't."

"It was Solomon's way," said Mr. Hardcap, doggedly; "and Solomon's way is good enough for me."

"I doubt," said the Deacon, quietly, "whether there is any better way for a man who has as many wives and as many children as Solomon had. He and that old woman who lived in the shoe were about in the same case."

"It seems to me," said Jennie, "that there are different kinds of rods."

"Hickory's the best," said Mr. Hardcap; "I've tried e'm all."

"I don't see," continued Jennie, without heeding the interruption, "how any child can be governed without being compelled to obey, and sometimes by fear of punishment."

The Deacon nodded his head in a sort of silent "Hear! hear!"

"But surely," continued Jennie, "there are other forms of fear that will do quite as well and are less brutalizing than whipping. I have heard little Jennie cry as if her heart would break because I told her she was a naughty girl. Indeed, I think she would rather take a whipping from any one else than 'naughty girl' from me."

"She must be a very sensitive child," said Mrs. Grier.

"I think she is," said Jennie; "but then I very rarely say that to her. It is my last resort."

"That don't do no good with my boys," said Mr. Hardcap. "I've tried that. I have scolded 'em from morning till night, and it didn't do no good."

"And has the whipping done them much good, Mr. Hardcap?" inquired the Deacon.

"Well, no, Deacon," said Mr. Hardcap; "to tell the truth, it hasn't, and I don't know what to do. I'm at my wits ends."

"He hadn't far to go to get there," said the Deacon's wife to me in a furtive whisper.

"I wish you would expound your text a little more fully," said the Parson.

"Well," said the Deacon, "what I suppose the good Book means is, that we ought all to look forward, see what we want our children to become, and train them for that; and we never ought to allow either their present pleasure or our present pleasure to interfere. For instance: if my boy is to be a useful citizen of this grand Empire State, he must learn to obey; he must be a law-abiding citizen; he must know how to have a strong will, and yet yield it to the will of others. And now is the time for him to learn that lesson. The mother who lets her boy disobey because she can't bear to compel him to obey, is training him to be a law-breaker, or at best, leaving him to learn in the office, or in the counting-room, or in the school-room, of hard, unsympathetic teachers, what she ought to have taught him herself. So, again, I want my boy to be brave, courageous, and self-denying; to be able to bear all his share of the burdens of life, and rather more; to be heroic whenever a chance of heroism offers itself, as chances do to every one sooner or later. But if I take all the burdens off from him, throw on him no responsibilities, stand between him and all disappointments, cuddle him whenever he is hurt in mind or body, I am training him to be a coward, not a hero; to be a burden to others, not to carry for others their burdens. I want my daughter to be a good housekeeper; to learn how to darn the stockings and to make the beds, and to sweep and dust the parlor, and to cook a good breakfast. And I want her not only to know how to do it, but to have a habit of doing it. And I would rather have her practice with her bad coffee on me than practice on her husband after she gets married. A bad cup of coffee is a dreadful interference with the honeymoon. Look ahead, gentlemen, look ahead; imagine your son in business, and your daughter a young wife and mother. What sort of men and women do you want them to be? Get that clearly in your mind, and make your home a training-school for that, and you'll do better by your children than most of us do. And, Mr. Hardcap, do I understand you to say that you are really at your wits' ends about your children?"

"I am that, Deacon," said Mr. Hardcap.

"And may I give you a bit of unasked-for advice?"

"I wish you would, Deacon," said Mr. Hardcap, with unwonted humility. But, somehow, no one ever resents the Deacon's advice.

"Try your wife's wits for a year."

Mr. Hardcap looked surprised at the Deacon, and then with a perplexed expression from under his shaggy eyebrows at his wife, as though it was a new idea to him—and I guess it was—that wives have any wits. But Mr. Hardcap's is a slow-moving mind, and he did not look up soon enough to see the quick glance of gratitude with which poor Mrs. Hardcap expressed her thanks to the Deacon.—Christian Advocate.

TWO LITTLE PAIRS OF BOOTS.

Two little pairs of boots, to-night,
Before the fire are drying,
Two little pairs of tired feet
In a little bed are lying;
The tracks they left upon the floor
Make me feel much like sighing.

These little boots with copper toes!
They run the livelong day!
And often times I almost wish
That they were miles away,
So tired I am to hear so oft
Their heavy tramp at play.

They walk about the new plowed ground,
Where mud in plenty lies,
They roll it up in marbles round
And bake it into pies;
And then at night upon the floor
In every shape it dries.

To-day I was disposed to scold,
But when I see, to-night,
Those little boots before the fire,
With copper toes so bright,
I think how sad my heart would be
To put them out of sight.

For in the trunk up-stairs I've laid
Two socks of white and blue;
If called to put those boots away,
O God, what should I do?
I mourn that there are not to-night
Three pairs instead of two.

—Sel.

Kind words are the bright flowers of earth's existence; they make a very paradise of the humblest home the world can show. Use them, and especially around the fireside circle. They are jewels beyond price, and make the weighed down spirits more glad than all other blessings the earth can give.

Christ is not valued at all, unless he be valued above all.

THE NEW YEAR.

I am the little New Year, bo, ho!
Here I come tripping it over the snow,
Shaking my bells with a merry din—
So open your doors and let me in!

Blessings I bring for each and all,
Big folk and little folk, short and tall;
Each one from me a treasure may win;
So open your doors and let me in.

Some shall have silver and some shall have gold,
Some shall have new clothes, and some shall have old;
Some shall have brass and some shall have tin,
So open your doors and let me in.

Some shall have water, and some shall have milk,
Some shall have satin, and some shall have silk;
But each one from me a blessing may win;—
So open your doors and let me in!

—Youth's Companion.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!—"I've got an orange."

"LITTLE BOYS MAKE MEN."

Some people laugh and wonder
What little boys can do
To help the missionary thunder
Roll all the big world through.
I'd have them look behind them
When they were small—and then
I'd like just to remind them
That little boys make men.

The bud becomes a flower,
The acorn grows a tree;
The minutes make the hour,
'Tis just the same with me;
I'm small, but I'm growing
As quickly as I can,
And a missionary boy like me
Is bound to make a missionary man.

—Exchange.

"HATE EVIL."

Dr. Arnold of Rugby, that great and good lover of boys, used to say, "Commend me to boys who love God and hate the devil."

The devil is the boy's worst enemy. He keeps a sharp lookout for the boys. He knows that if he can get them he shall have the men. And so he lies in wait for them. There is nothing too mean for him to do that he may win them.

And then, when he gets them into trouble, he always sneaks away and leaves them! Not a bit of comfort does he give them.

"What did you do it for?" he whispers. "You might have known better!"

Now, the boy who has found out who and what the devil is ought to hate him. It's his duty. He cannot afford not to hate this enemy of all that is good and true with his whole heart.

Hate the devil and fight him, boys; but be sure and use the Lord's weapons!

TEMPERANCE.

SHAME OF THE UNITED STATES SENATE.

It is within the truth to say that the report of Tuesday's debate in the United States Senate was received by the country with astonishment and shame. Charges of inebriety and drunkenness have often been made against individual members of both houses of Congress, but these have been considered more as ill-natured gossip than the statement of disgraceful truths. On Tuesday, however, a good portion of the day was consumed by the Senators publishing to the world their own naked shame. From the course of the debate the people of the United States might justly infer that the Senators of the United States had been out all night in some quarter where whisky was freer even than in the national capitol. If the Senators had been gathered around some bachanalian board they could not have been more hilarious than they were over the reading of the list of liquors for sale at the Senate cafe. Bursts of applause welcomed the name of each favorite brand, and the debate drifted off into a discussion as to whether the present Senate was a soberer body than some of its predecessors. The spectacle was one over which the nation may well feel the deepest chagrin. If it does not arouse a demand for the banishment of intoxicants from every part of the capitol we mistake the American people.

This is no question of prohibition, or even temperance. It is a question of common decency and of natural self-protection. The great interests of this nation demand the sober deliberation of sober men as far removed from the influence that steals away the brains as possible. Not one drop of intoxicating liquor should be permitted within the capitol building. If members of Congress, or justices of the Supreme Court, or the attendant clerks cannot get along without liquor or stimulants, let them go and get it outside the capitol. This is the American idea of decency and sobriety, which in the most liberal communities forbids the sale or bringing of intoxicating beverages within the limits of public parks and institutions. Because Senators and Congressmen will not patronize temperance lunch-rooms is no reason why the legislative hall of the nation should be turned into a gin-mill and the whole country scandalized by their reputation as wine-bibbers and whisky-guzzlers. Before Tuesday's disclosures it was supposed that the luxurious habits of wealthy Senators accounted for their disinclination for business. Hereafter the public will charge all delays in Senate legislation to the whisky bottle. Let it be banished from every chamber of the capitol.—Chicago News, Dec. 17.

EXTRAORDINARY CASE OF DELIRIUM TREMENS.

A considerable sensation was caused in the Lozells district the other night by the extraordinary conduct of a man named Butler, aged 44, living in St. Silas Square, Birmingham. It is stated that Butler was for a time a teetotaler, but latterly has taken to drinking again, with the result of bringing on a violent attack of dilirium tremens. About seven o'clock he was found crawling along Church street, Lozells, with his right foot cut off. The foot with the boot on it was found separated from him by the width of the road. The man was put in a cab and taken to the General Hospital, the vehicle being followed by a large crowd. It was found necessary to amputate the leg; but when an attempt was made to administer chloroform for this purpose Butler suddenly recovered from the state of semi-consciousness he appeared to be in, and behaved so violently that five men had to hold him while the drug was applied. After the operation had been performed, and the patient had been removed to the accident ward, he again commenced raving, and attempted to injure himself in various ways. Two policemen, therefore, were called in, and they remained watching him all night. While he was in the surgery, Butler stated that he cut his foot off with a carving-knife. A knife stained with blood was found in the house.—Golden Rule, Toronto.

The greatest thing that we can desire, next to the glory of God, is our own salvation; and the sweetest thing we can desire is the assurance of our salvation.

THE CHURCHES.

—At the late meeting of the Central South Congregational Association in Little Rock, Arkansas, the following resolutions in appreciation of Dr. Roy:

WHEREAS, the A. M. A. has seen fit to transfer Rev. Jos. E. Roy, from the Superintendency of our churches to the office of Secretary at the West.

Resolved, By the Central South Association of our Congregational churches, now in session at Little Rock, that we remember with profound pleasure and gratitude the relations which Dr. Roy has sustained to the work among us, as special Superintendent of the churches.

Resolved, that as representatives of the churches, fostered by the American Missionary Association, at the South, we deeply regret to lose from the field this tried and true friend and officer in the work. His visits and presence with our churches and annual meetings have endeared him to us as a co-worker, whose fatherly wisdom and genuine sympathy, have more and more awakened our confidence and love.

Resolved, that while we reluctantly take leave of Dr. Roy, as Superintendent in the field, our prayers and good will are hereby most cordially extended and shall follow him in his new field of continued arduous labor of the same good cause.

—The churches in Westfield, Conn., have been united in a powerful work of grace for five or six weeks, resulting in about 300 conversions.

—Dr. William Johnston, of College Springs Presbytery, says the Instructor, is spending a few days in Pittsburg. He occupied the pulpit of the First church, Allegheny, morning and afternoon last Sabbath.

"San Francisco is clamoring for brass bands in churches." If the San Francisco churches are overcrowded, the average brass band would remedy the evil—that is, it would obviate the necessity of enlarging the church: but if a larger attendance is desired, a comic opera should be sandwiched in the service.—Norristown (Pa.) Herald.

—Berea College and Hampton Institute, founded by the American Missionary Association, were at its late annual meeting dropped from its rolls as having had for years a virtually independent existence. For Hampton we can say that the cordial and sympathetic relations it has always sustained to the Association will never abate nor the pride with which it acknowledges itself the child of this noble mother of so many noble charities.—Southern Workman.

—A revival has been in progress in Fayette, Me., for a month past, resulting in one hundred and sixteen conversions. Ninety additions were made to the Methodist church, and thirty-three to the other churches in the place.

—The Rev. Dr. Wells, the Presbyterian evangelist, has been holding a series of meetings in Atlantic, Iowa, and more recently in Cedar Falls. The Presbyterian churches in Iowa seem to be aroused to spiritual activity, and there are indications of a great revival throughout the State.

—At a recent crowded Sabbath meeting in the Opera House of Denver, Colorado, which was called rather a secular than a religious movement, it was resolved, as "every man needs for his highest physical, intellectual, and moral development" a day of rest, to request the merchants of Denver to close their places of business one day in seven.

—The New York Observer says that the interest awakened by the addresses of Mr. Studd to the students at Princeton, has led to the establishment of preaching services in the town. A hall has been opened and Drs. Patton, Paxton and others preach on Sunday evenings. The young men of the place are gathered into this hall, and there are evidences of the presence and blessing of God upon these services.

—It is estimated that the Third Presbyterian church in Chicago, of which Dr. A. E. Kittredge is the pastor, sustains the largest weekly prayer meeting in America. The lecture room will seat one thousand people, and it is usually full.

—Rev. Henry Hopkins, of Kansas City, son of Dr. Mark Hopkins, has been called to the pastorate of the Congregational church at North Adams, Mass., made vacant by the recent resignation of Dr. T. T. Munger. Dr. Munger has been installed pastor of the United Congregational church, New Haven, Conn. His examination was sharp, and six members of the Council out of twenty-four voted it unsatisfactory.

—A union meeting conducted by the Cumberland Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, and Congregational pastors of the city of Little Rock, Ark., aided by the evangelist Dixon C. Williams, recently closed after a continuance of four weeks, during which there were over 200 hopeful conversions. A religious interest was manifested, in depth and extent beyond anything ever seen in the history of the city.

—A union evangelistic effort began in San Antonio, Texas, November 29, with an introductory work of prayer. Six churches—three Presbyterian, two Methodist and one Baptist—have united for a series of evangelistic services to be continued for several weeks. The meetings are to be conducted by Mr. Dixon C. Williams, of Tennessee. Mr. Williams is a young Cumberland Presbyterian layman, and has developed remarkable power as an evangelist. He secures the confidence and co-operation of all denominations wherever he goes. In five meetings recently held in the same State by him there were about 2,000 conversions.

—Every Christian has a power of prayer. Our Lord prayed all night when the burden of human redemption rested on Him. The work of redemption is entrusted, under God, to the church. It is to be accomplished by prayer without ceasing, earnest and importunate. The present time calls for the unceasing prayers of God's people for the presence of the Holy Spirit in power. The proofs multiply on every side that there is an unusual willingness to listen to revealed truth, an unusual desire to know what God requires of men. The fact should be on the hearts of all Christians and incite to prayer for all engaged in Christian work and for the unconverted.—Intelligencer.

—The launching of the little steamer "Good News," on Lake Tanganyika, was one of the greatest events, says a missionary of the London Society, in the history of the natives of that part of Central Africa. It was celebrated by the astonished people by the firing of guns, and shouting and dancing. They would not believe that the vessel would float in her iron sheathing, nor could they see how she was to be moved into the water over a distance of 145 feet.

—The Hermansburg Missionary Society has recently been left a legacy of between 45,000 and 50,000 marks, or $10,000 and $12,000, the whole of the estate of a wealthy farmer near Berden. A few days before this happened, a lady friend of the Society had made it a gift in hand of about $1,200.

—The Norwegian Missionary Society has in Zululand and Natal 300 members, 700 or 800 attendants at church, and four native teachers. Thirty-two persons were baptized January, 1884.

—The great bulk of the Hindu population of India is formed by the Sudras, who belong to the middle classes. The conversion of India is to be achieved chiefly through the conversion of the Sudras. A missionary says of them:

"The character of the people makes Christian work among them comparatively easy, but at the same time slow. They are peaceably disposed, easily contented, easily governed, frugal and simple in habits, fond of home, and industrious. The courtesy with which they receive the missionary, the patience with which they listen to his message, and their friendliness when they have made his acquaintance, are very pleasing experiences of our work among them. On the other hand, their morality is superficial; the chief standard of moral life is caste respectability; there is no scorn of lies, no shame at impurity, no high sense of honor. Along with extreme scrupulousness as to food, there is supreme indifference as to character. They are very conservative, and bound by custom. To walk unquestioningly in the path of one's immediate ancestors, whether that be good or bad, is the highest law of duty; to adopt an innovation the greatest sin."

—At the Metropolitan Tabernacle in London Sunday morning, Dec. 6th, when the Rev. Dr. Munro Gibson, late of Chicago, conducted the services, the following letter was read from Mr. Spurgeon, who had been detained by the attack of rheumatism from starting for Mentone: "The Lord be with you in your assemblies for worship. May he specially make himself known unto you in the breaking of bread. My heart will be in sympathy with all your holy worship. I am detained before the Lord for some purpose unknown to me, but that purpose is sure to be full of wisdom and love. I should have been greatly disappointed if I had not learned that the Lord's appointments are those which must save his children. I can form no idea as to how long I may be shut up in this room. My Lord is not bound to give an account of his matters. Beloved, seek the prosperity of our Zion with all your hearts; may the Lord be gracious to you and to all his chosen. Pray for those who supply my lack. My love in Christ Jesus is presented to every member of the church."

—The German traveler, Buller, speaks in complimentary terms of the work of the Basle Missions on the Gold Coast. They have ten chief stations, the farthest of which are five days' journey from the Coast. Nearly all of the smiths, joiners and coopers on the West Coast are from its industrial schools. The missions also carry on a number of factories or trading houses, which are distinguished from the other concerns of the kind, not without some reduction of their pecuniary power by not selling rum or powder, although beer and wine may be bought at them.

A WORD FOR 1886!

Unlike its typical luminary, the pole-star of the north,

The Christian Cynosure

purposes not only to shine truly and steadily but with an increasing brilliancy and power from year to year. Many of our readers have marked this purpose. They write cheerfully of the success which the paper has attained, and testify that it is becoming

Better and Better.

What the Cynosure has been for sixteen years and more it will with God's help continue to be, a Pole-Star in the heavens of political and religious reform.

It will continue to be sustained by such able contributors as

E. E Flagg, Author of "Holden with Cords."
Rev. John Boyes, A. M., Grimsby, England.
Prof. Claudio Jannet, University of Paris.
Rev. A. D. Zaraphonithes, Andros, Greece.
Rev. Wm. Hazenberg, Cape Town, S. Africa.
Pastor Alex Djejizian, Ada Bazar, Asia Minor.
C. B. Ward, Missionary at Secunderabad, India.
Robert Shemeld, Missionary at Natal.
Prof. J. R. W. Sloane, D. D. Reformed Presbyterian Theological Seminary.
Prof. L. N. Stratton, Wheaton Theological Seminary.
Rev. John G. Fee, Berea College.
Pres. C. J. Kephart.
Rev. Geo. B. Cheever, D. D.
Rev. C. C. Foote, Detroit.
Pres. C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton College.
George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer."
Rev. Henry T. Cheever, Worcester.
Elder Nathan Caliender.
Rev. David McFall, Chambers St. Ref. Presbyterian Church, Boston.
Rev. B. F. Worrell, Olathe, Kans.
Rev. Wm. Moerdyk, Dutch Reformed Church.
Prof. J. A. Edgren, Swedish Theological Seminary.
Rev. William Wisbart, D. D.
Alexander Thompson.
Rev. Joel Swartz, D. D, Gettysburg, Pa.
Rev. Joseph E. Roy, D. D., Chicago.
Rev. Albert Sims, Uxbridge, Ont.
Rev. J. F. Avery, Halifax, N. S.
Prof. S. M. Hill, Wahoo, Nebr.
Rev. J. D. Gehring, Park College, Mo.
Albert M. Paul, Providence, R. I.
Elder J. L, Barlow, Wheaton.
Rev. W. J. White, Worcester.
Elder S. C. Kimball, Editor of the Christian Witness.
Rev. J. C. McFeeters.
Rev. B. F. Roberts, Editor of the Earnest Christian.
Rev, H. H. Hinman, Washington, D. C.
Dr. J. C. Clark, Carthage, Ind.
Rev. M. A. Gault, Western Secretary of the National Reform Association.
Rev. D. Simon, Prospect, O.
Prof. A. Fernholm, Kristineham, Sweden.
Rev. B. W. Williams, Itaska, Texas.
And many others whom space forbids to mention.

During 1885 sketches and fine portraits have appeared of Rev. A. M. Milligan, D. D., Rev. Adam Crooks, Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong, Dr. Benjamin Rush, Hon. Richard Rush, Hon. Samuel Plumb Hon. Henry Wilson, Hon. Gerrit Smith, Dr. E. Smith, John Quincy Adams.

For 1886 sketches and portraits of John G. Fee, George B. Cheever, George W. Clark, Charles C. Foote, David Bernard, Samuel D. Greene, Charles Sumner, George F. Pentecost, Nathaniel Colver, John Brown, John Marshal, and others are in preparation, and with each portrait will be one or more biographical sketches by the editor and other competent writers. This feature will be well worth the price of the paper for one year.

Histories of all the secret societies so far as they can be obtained will be given in the Secret Empire department of the Cynosure during the year.

The proposed conference of churches and Christians on the secret lodge will be an important movement to which the Cynosure will give profound attention.

The condition of the colored churches and their struggle for existence amid the overpowering influences of the multitude of secret societies will also have large space. The visit of the Senior Editor to the South and his correspondence will form a most important and attractive feature of the paper.

The Cynosure in short will be a paper in 1886 which no man who is honest in his profession of Anti-masonry can well afford to be without.

Let every present subscriber RENEW IN TIME AND GET

A New Reader for 1886.

BUSINESS.

CUT THIS OUT

and place it conveniently for reference:

Tracts number 11, 13, 21, 23, 24, 27, 29, 31, 34, 40, 41 and 49 are out of print and none will be printed during this year.

DON'T YOU THINK

THAT YOU CAN SEND IN A CLUB OF SIX or more trial subscribers at twenty-five cents each? We continue the offer of eight numbers of the Christian Cynosure to any address for 25 cents.

Hezekiah Clark writes: I will attend to the renewals this month and hope to add a few names. Will do my best, with best wishes.

J. B. Crall writes: Will try to secure some subscribers for the Cynosure. Have one renewal now, but will try to get others before I send it in. It may not be much that I can do, but you will hear from me in a short time.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

Names of those sending in cash for Cynosure from Dec. 21, 1885, to Jan. 2, 1886, inclusive:

Jas Patterson, Rev A H Bennett, L Gishwiller, Jno C Casteel, R Canning, J C Lawrey, J D White, Jr, Jas Beech, Simon Rowe, Nathaniel Cook, Mrs L C Andrews, A Hamilton, O A Chillson, Jas Mathews, F Britian, J H Crumrine, Chas A Blanchard, Allan Wright, O C M Bates, H D Chapman, R D Nichols, H A Fischer, J W Thompson, Mrs Fred Lloyd, W C Wilson, J C Ougheltree, J C Bryson, Julius Marks, D Owens, Wm B Walthall, Conrad Stegner, B F Worrell, R M Watson, Moses Ferrin, Wm Mee, W H Morrill, Frank Switzer, Hope Davis, D J Prince, B S Hunting, J D Joslin, Mrs H E Hayden, Neil McCallum, C F Holcomb, J Tiernan, Geo Avery, Rev St. Clair Ross, Mrs M A Gamble, J K Morris, Job Perkins, J Glotfelty, Thos Hennings, T R Sheldon, Wm Matthews, Cyrus Smith, N G Carlson, D R Mitchell, G W Jackson, H W Sham, A Carlton, Mrs C E Eno, Jas White, D Yant, S McCartney, F F French, Mrs T S Couch, J W McPherson, D Tweed, A Calhoon, E Jarvis, Jas Price, Sam Bushey, C A Blanchard, H F. Buffham, Israel Gable, J S Perham, Mrs C Worth, R W Kirkwood, Sam'l Phelps, Jno Dorcas, A C Staples, G A Paddock, Philo Gates, W T Elliott, Sam'l Simpson, Geo Clark, S P Miers, Rev J I Welo, Wm Mock, R R Pinkerton, N Bourne, D B Wells, L F Mittler, H W Goddard, W Sperry, D S Coyner, Geo Lawson, T Gilmore, Mrs R A Liscomb, Robt Wilson, D B Sherk, E Barnetson, P N Clapsaddle, J M Crobarger, Jno Turner, O W Warner, C Anderson, J W Emmerson, M M Ames, Geo. Brokaw, J S Hickman, D Marshall, H Holbrook, Jno Harvey, Jno A Gordon, Rev S R McClurkin, A K Richey, E F Ames, Jas Ramsey, Horace Frost, Alva Whitmore, A G Bailey, Rev J Long, Sub News Co, Hez Clark, C Quick, H G Roberts, Sam'l H Spencer, M R Becktell, J A Risheill, Jas Stewart, J C Young, J J Ames, Sr, Rufus Park, Jabez Mitchell, H Gaines, I E Whitnack, C W Schierholtz, S S Martin, G N Le Fevre, Rev. E P Ingersoll, T Ginn, G B Hopkins, Isaac Flagg. J W Sneidter.

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is agreeable to use. It is not a liquid or a snuff. 50c

ASTHMA. Smithnight's Asthma and Hay Fever Remedy. Sold under POSITIVE GUARANTY. Sample FREE. L. SMITHNIGHT, Cleveland, O.

BIRNEY.

The sketch of JAMES G. BIRNEY, candidate of the Liberty Party for President, in pamphlet for 25 cents. A limited number of copies of this handsome pamphlet for sale at the N. C. A. office.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper cover 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

A WOMAN'S VICTORY;

OR

THE QUERY OF THE LODGEVILLE CHURCH

BY JENNIE L. HARDIE.

This simple and touching story which was lately published in the Cynosure is now ready for orders in a beautiful pamphlet. It is worth reading by every Anti-mason —and especially BY HIS WIFE. Get it and take it home to cheer the heart of your companion who may desire to do something for Christ against great evils, but is discouraged from making any public effort. PRICE, FIFTEEN CENTS. Ten for a dollar

Wonderful Woman, A Wonderful Life, AND A Wonderful Book.

Laura S. Haviland is a quiet, gentle, unassuming Quaker woman, 76 years of age, yet vigorous, who has had a remarkable career of usefulness, and has now given to the world a remarkable history of her "Life Work" as a teacher, at an early day, of the colored refugees in Canada and in Michigan, and in other States, as a traveler down South in the guise of a "berry picker," helping out into freedom many slaves; as a nurse and preacher to the sufferers in hospitals during the war; and with Gov. St. John and Flizabeth Comstock, relieving the destitute and suffering refugees in Kansas, etc.

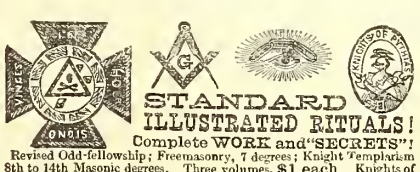
Her book is neither fiction nor founded on fiction, but is an interesting narration of facts of a most thrilling character, as every one will find and testify who will get and read her book, now on sale at the Cynosure office, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill. Price, cloth, $1,75, half Russia, $2.25.

Sunday-School Papers.

MONTHLY.

THE PEARL,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts

THE LILY,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts



PURE WORDS,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter, ... 21-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.

SUNSHINE,
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 21-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.

Single subscriptions for either one of the above papers, one year, 25 cts.

We have excellent facilities for furnishing Sunday-School Supplies of every description including trade papers at publishers' prices. If you wish any publication send to us for it.

T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.
106 Franklin street, Chicago, Ill.

Revised Odd-fellowship; Freemasonry, 7 degrees; Knight Templarism 8th to 14th Masonic degrees. Three volumes, $1 each. Knights of Pythias, 25 cents. Also other illustrated rituals, sent post paid. Catalogues free. National Christian Association, 221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

BATAVIA CONVENTION PAMPHLET.

A Staggering Blow!

Such was to Freemasonry the great NATIONAL CONVENTION held in BATAVIA, N. Y., September 1882. It gave the world

Thurlow Weed's Great Letter

On the abduction and murder of WILLIAM MORGAN in 1826, which has been the most widely published of any Anti-masonic document. The dedication of a noble granite monument to the memory of Morgan, and the able and eloquent addresses of the Convention make this a most valuable pamphlet.

SEE WHY.

It contains—
1. Portrait of Morgan.
2. Portrait of Thurlow Weed.
3. Fine picture of the Monument.
4. The great letter of Thurlow Weed and his affidavit—almost the last public act of his life.
5. Address by J. E. Roy, D.D.
6. The monument oration by Pres. C. A. Blanchard.
7. Addresses on "Christian Politics" by Pres. J Blanchard, on the Character of Freemasonry by Prof. E. D. Bailey, on the "Freedmen and Secret Societies" by Rev. H. H. Hinman; and very interesting personal and historical reminiscences.

READ ABOUT THIS GREAT HISTORICAL MEETING.

A handsome pamphlet. Price, 25 cents, postpaid. Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO, ILL.

IN THE COILS;

— OR —

The Coming Conflict

A NEW AND STRANGE STORY BASED ON STARTLING FACTS, VIVIDLY PORTRAYING A MYSTERIOUS AND DANGEROUS POWER AT WORK IN THE GOVERNMENT, THE CHURCH, AND THE HOME.

"All will agree that this is a powerfully written story."—Evangelist, (Chicago, Ills.)

"A book which we trust may have a wide circulation."—National Baptist, (Philadelphia.)

"So intensely interesting did I find it that it was hard to pause until the last sentence was read. This work places the author high among the writers of fiction."—W. W. Barr, D. D. in Christian Instructor, (Philadelphia.)

"Unless we are greatly mistaken, the work will do more to awaken the American church and people to the evils of Freemasonry than any other book recently published."—Evangelical Repository.

"The book will create a sensation in Masonic circles, and evoke criticism of a most relentless character. The courage of the author in attacking such a rock-rooted bulwark as Freemasonry is something to admire, Fanatic though he be."—Nebraska Watchman.

"Light is needed on this subject and needed badly, and we welcome this contribution to the literature of anti-secretism, and cordially commend it to the favorable attention of our readers."—United Presbyterian, (Pittsburgh.)

"A charming work, fit to be classed with 'Uncle Tom's Cabin,' it is indeed less a work of fiction. The volume is as valuable as a work of reference as it is agreeable, truthful and useful. Our young folks will not leave the book, if they begin it, till they 'see how it turns out.'"—Cynosure, (Chicago, Ills.)

Thick paper, beautifully bound, 382 pages, sent to any address for $1.50. AGENTS WANTED.

MASONIC OATHS,

BY

E. Ronayne,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

A masterly discussion of the Oaths of the Masonic Lodge, to which is appended "Freemasonry at a Glance," illustrating every sign, grip and ceremony of the Masonic Lodge. This work is highly commended by leading lecturers as furnishing the best arguments on the nature and actual character of Masonic obligations of any book in print. Paper cover, 207 pages. Price, 40 cents,

National Christian Association,
221 West Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

A NEW

Anti-masonic Scrap-book.

A neat pamphlet, comprising forty-three tracts against secret orders, published by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. It contains some of the MOST POWERFUL ARGUMENTS put in brief form, written by men of distinguished ability, showing the evil nature and dangerous tendency of secret societies. Those who circulate tracts need the book to make their selections wisely.

Send for a copy to Anti-masonic headquarters, the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO. Price, 25 cents

THE BROKEN SEAL;

Or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene.

One of the most interesting books ever published. In cloth, 75 cents; per dozen, $7.50. Paper covers, 40 cents; per dozen, $3.50.

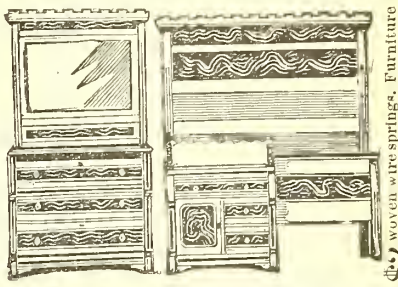
This deeply interesting narative shows what Masonry has done and is capable of doing in the Courts, and how bad men control the good men in the lodge and protect their own members when guilty of great crimes. For sale at 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

FINNEY ON MASONRY.

The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cl. 75c; per dozen $7.50. Paper cover 35c; per dozen, $3.50.

No Christian's library is complete without it. Send for a copy in cloth and get a catalogue of books and tracts sold by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO.

MISCELLANEOUS.



COMPOUND OXYGEN

Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

Sibley's Tested Seeds

Catalogue free on application. Send for it. HIRAM SIBLEY & CO., ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

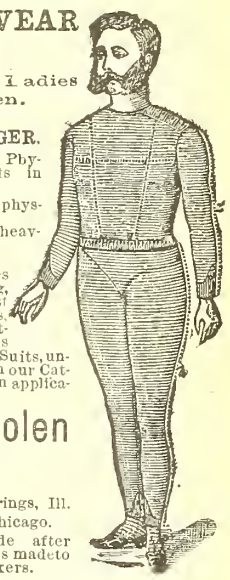
$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11. The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

$2 woven wire springs. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

HYGIENIC WEAR

(Jaros)

For Gentlemen, Ladies and Children.



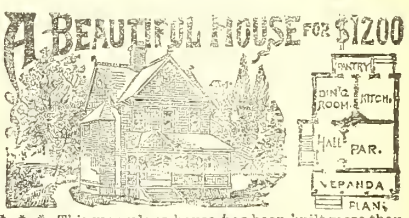
System:

PROF. GUST. JAEGER.

Endorsed by leading Physicians and Hygienists in America and Europe.

Safeguards erected for physical health

Lead to the temple of heavenly wealth.



Illustrations and prices of Gents' Underclothing, Night Robes, Long Chest and Kidney Protectors, Shoes for indoor and outdoor wear, with Leggins attached. Combination Suits, underwaists, etc., found in our Catalogue, will be mailed on application.

Novelty Woolen Works.

Factory: Western Springs, Ill.
Office: 103 State st., Chicago.

All Underwear made after measure. Special prices made to clergymen and the workers.

A BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FOR $1200

* * * This marvelous house has been built more than 300 times from our plans; it is so well planned that it affords ample room even for a large family. 1st fl or shown above; on 2d floor are 4 bed rooms and in attic 2 more. Plenty of Closets. The whole warmed by one chimney.

Large illustrations and full description of the above as well as of 39 other houses, ranging in cost from $400 up to $6,500, may be found in "SHOPPELL'S MODERN LOW-COST HOUSES," a large quarto pamphlet, showing also how to select sites, get loans, &c. Sent postpaid on receipt of 50c. Stamps taken, or send $1 bill and we will return the change. Address, BUILDING PLAN ASSOCIATION, (Mention this Paper.) 24 Beekman St., (Box 2702,) N. Y

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.

Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre, said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. MME. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Proprietor, 48 Bond St., New York. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers throughout the United States, Canadas, and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

FARM NOTES.

HOW A HORSE FEEDS.

Something may be learned by observing how a horse picks up his feed either in grazing or when fed in the stable. One will have a very good idea of the sensitiveness of the upper lip, and how cleverly the horse gathers in the choice herbage or hay, and rejects the waste. This mobile, prehensible lip is constantly in motion, and by its sense of feeling, separates the selected food from that which is rejected. The horse cannot see the herbage exactly under the mouth, but the lip pushes away the undesirable food, and gathers with the greatest precision, that which is selected from the rest. In a weedy pasture, this instinct of the lip is brought into action in a most peculiar and interesting manner, and exhibits in a striking degree, the exquisite sensitiveness of the delicate nerves of this organ. One who has seen this action of the lip, and realizes the great sensitiveness of it, will never permit himself to practice the excessive cruelty of putting a twitch about a horse's upper lip for any purpose, for the torture of it must be very great indeed.—American Agriculturist.

DON'T SHOE.

After spoiling two noble horses I was led to try driving without shoeing. Buying a three year-old I had the smith remove shoes which she had worn about six months, level the hoofs and rasp the edges of the shell rounding to prevent breaking up. She had an average good foot. I have driven her two years and never any horse faster nor longer drives, nor over more hard and stony roads, and her feet are still in good condition. When standing she rests back upon the frog; never stands braced. There are many who do not drive more than two or three times a week; the remainder of the time the horse stands in a narrow stall, on the floor. Soon, to the owner's surprise, "Ned" is lame; stands braced; step shortened. He is taken to another smith, who berates the former shoer, pulls off the shoes with great indignation, pares the feet, nails on some new shoes and warrants now that Ned shall travel all right. Perhaps an improvement for a few days, when the owner realizes that his horse probably is spoiled, sells at a sacrifice, buys again, etc. Now, by selecting young horses that have not been shod long (better if not at all) with good feet—an important item always—I am convinced that nine out of ten at least could be driven without shoes.

Barefooted they would escape lameness, drive better, faster and farther, last much longer and keep on less food, save suffering, and shoe and treatment bills, which are no small items. The reasons are evident: 1. No restriction to the natural growth of the feet, caused by shoeing, no matter how well done. Shoeing is unnatural. 2. Letting the frog, (nature's cushion) down to the ground, giving it exercise, softness, hence health to foot; whereas the shoe elevates the foot, suspends the frog causing it to dry, become hard and dead, following which is contraction of the heel, and inflammation of the foot. 3. The frog without shoe serves as a cushion to strike upon, relieving both foot and muscles from the jar of the step; especially can your steed be driven faster down grade; the step not so high as with shoe, and but little shock to foot or muscle; for the same reason can be driven further in a day. No danger of corking, forging, stumbling etc. My experience is that with feet properly trimmed the gait is natural, easy and clear. 5 No danger—with any care whatever—of contracting by standing on floor. As a rule, unless the drive is every day, and long at that, the feet will grow faster than they wear. So much for light drivers. But I know of a number of teams (draught horses) always at work that were never shod.—N. Y. Tribune.

MAD DOG.

A physician writing to the Country Gentleman says: "I can give some facts which may be of use to somebody, thereby saving life. The time between the biting of an animal by a mad dog and showing signs of hydrophobia is not less than 9 days, but may be nine months. After the animal has become rabid, a bite or scratch with the teeth, upon a person, or slobber coming in contact with a raw place, would produce hydrophobia just as though he had been bitten by a mad dog. Hydrophobia can be prevented, and I will give what is well-known to be an infallible remedy, if properly administered, for man or beast. A dose for a horse or cow should be about four times as great as for a person. It is not too late to give medicine any time before the spasms come on.

The first dose for a person is one and one-half ounce elecampane root bruised, put into a pint of new milk, reduced to one half by boiling, and then take all at one dose in the morning, fasting until afternoon, or at least a very light diet after several hours have elapsed. The second dose same as first, except take two ounces of the root; third dose same as last, to be taken every other day. Three doses are all that is needed, and there need be no fear. This I know from my own experience, and know of a number of other cases where it has been entirely successful. This is no guess work. Those persons alluded to were bitten by their own dogs, that had been bitten by rabid dogs, and were penned up to see if they would go mad. They did go mad, and did bite the persons.

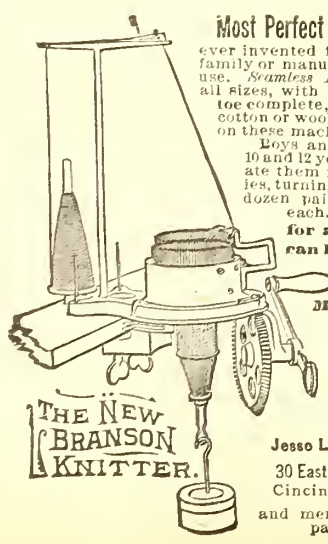
This remedy has been used in and about Philadelphia for 40 years and longer with great success, and is known as the Goodman remedy. I am acquainted with a physician who said he knew of its use for more than 30 years, but never knew a case that failed where it was properly administered. Among other cases, he mentioned one where a number of cows had been bitten by a mad dog. To half of this number they administered this remedy, to the other half not. The latter all died with hydrophobia, while those that took the elecampane and milk showed no sign of the disease."

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days. No pain. Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa

Ask Your Grocer For it And take no other. If he does not keep it, it is because of its durability. Price, Family Size, 50 cents; Laundry size, 75 cents.

This Washboard is made of one solid sheet of heavy corrugated zinc, which produces a double-faced board of the best quality and durability. The fluting is very deep, holding more water, and consequently doing better washing than any washboard in the market. The frame is made of hard wood and held together with an iron bolt running through a tube formed on the lower edge of the zinc, thus binding the whole together in the most substantial manner, and producing a wash board which for economy, excellence and durability, is unquestionably the best in the world. We find so many dealers that object to our board on account of its DURABILITY, saying, "It will last too long We can never sell a customer but one." We take this means to advise customers to INSIST upon having the NORTH STAR WASHBOARD.

The best is the cheapest.



We will forward board on receipt of price.

MANUFACTURED BY
PFANSCHMIDT, DODGE & CO.
82 to 86 Fulton st. - - Chicago, Ill

A. B. C. STEAM COOKED CRUSHED WHITE OATS.

A.B.C. Wheat, A.B.C. Barley, A.B.C. Maize,
Hulled, Steam-Cooked Desiccated.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS!!
American Breakfast Cereals.

Made from the Finest Grains. All Impurities removed. Prepared for the table in ten minutes. Ask for A. B. C. Brand only. (Registered Trade Mark)
PATENTED.
For sale by all Grocers. Send for circulars, etc., to THE CEREALS M'F'G CO., 83 Murray Street, N. Y. (Incorporated 1875.)

Most Perfect Knitter ever invented for either family or manufacturers' use. Seamless Hosiery of all sizes, with heel and toe complete, of either cotton or wool, are knit on these machines. Boys and girls of 10 and 12 years operate them in factories, turning out four dozen pairs a day each. A living for a family can be made with one of these Machines.

For descriptive circulars giving full particulars. Address
Jesse L. Branson,
30 East Fourth St.,
Cincinnati, O.,
and mention this paper.

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)

Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.

Brethren (Dunkers or German Baptists.)

Christian Reformed Church.

Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)

Congregational—The State Associations of Illinois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.

Disciples (in part.)

Friends.

Lutherans—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferenees.

Mennonites.

Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.

Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conferenee.)

Moravians.

Plymouth Brethren.

Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.

Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)

United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowshlp and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Saudford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.
Sugar Grove Church, Green county, Pa.
Military Chapel, M. E., Lowndes county, Miss.
Hopewell Missionary Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Cedar Grove Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Simon's Chapel, M. E., Lowndes Co., Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Brownlee Church, Caledonia, Miss.
Salem Church, Lowndes Co., Miss.
West Preston Baptist Church, Wayne Co., Pa.

OTHER LOCAL CHURCHES

adopting the same principle are—

Baptist churches: N. Abington, Pa.; Menomonie, Mondovi, Waubeck and Spring Prairie, Wis.; Wheaton, Ill.; Perry, N. Y.; Spring Creek, near Burlington, Iowa; Lima, Ind.; Constableville, N. Y. The "Good Will Association" of Mobile, Ala., comprising some twenty-five colored Baptist churches; Bridgewater Baptist Association, Pa.; Old Tebo Baptist, near Leesville, Henry Co., Mo.; Hoopeston, Ill; Esmen, Ill.; Strykersville, N. Y.

Congregational churches: 1st of Oberlin, O.; Tonica, Crystal Lake, Union and Big Woods, Ill.; Solsbury, Ind.; Congregational Methodist Maplewood, Mass.

Independent churches in Lowell, Countryman school house near Lindenwood, Merengo and Streator, Ill.; Berea and Camp Nelson, Ky; Ustick, Ill.; Clarksburg, Kansas; State Association of Ministers and Churches of Christ in Kentucky.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Who depend on voluntary contributions of Christian people in whole or in part for their support:

J. F. BROWNE, Berea, Ky.

ELI TAPLEY, Columhus, Miss.

J. F. GALLOWAY, Okahumka Florida.

WM. HAZENBURG, Cape Town, S. Africa.

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES, Andros, Greece.

C. B. WARD, Secunderabad, India.

The Evangelists associated with Rev. John G. Fee, of Berea, Ky.

Contributions for either of these brethren may be forwarded through the Treasurer of the N. C. A. PLEASE DESIGNATE to which one such funds shall be sent

Sing the Reform

Into the Hearts of the People!

One of the most popular books against lodgery is the latest compilation of GEORGE W. CLARK, the Minstrel of Reform, a forty-page book of soul-stirring, conscience-awakening songs appropriate for lectures, conventions and the home circle. What can add more to the interest of a meeting than a song well sung? What means will more quickly overthrow the power of the secret lodges than to sing the truth into the popular conscience?

Get this little work and use it for God and home and country. Forty pages. Price 10cts. postpaid. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison Street, Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

NO VELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50. Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin., Beaver Dam, Wis.

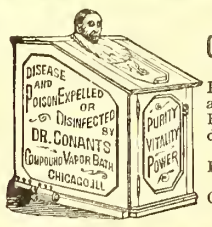
SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. end for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Glit Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Sougster, 1650 Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts. IVY CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts. TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited. BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free. DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.



AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing. Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.

Agents Make $5 a Day Selling Perfect FAMILY SCALES Entirely new in principle. Weigh one ounce to 25 pounds. What every family needs and will buy. Rapid sales surprise old agents. FORSHEE & MCMAKIN, CINCINNATI.

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Established 35 years. Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free. TROOK, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

FREE $2 SAMPLES fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons. Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS. 25 CTS.

DR. CONANT'S CompoundVaporBaths FOR HOME USE. Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago. Ladies—Room 5. Gents—Room 6. Call or send for circular.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

UNEQUALLED FOR CEMENTING WOOD, GLASS, CHINA, PAPER, LEATHER, &c. Awarded GOLD MEDAL, LONDON, 1883. Used by Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Co., Pullman Palace Car Co., &c. Mf'd only by the RUSSIA CEMENT CO. GLOUCESTER, MASS. SOLD EVERYWHERE. Sample Tin Can by Mail, 25c.

Readers ordering goods, or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE.

IN BRIEF.

A large bowlder, weighing about 10,000 tons, was loosened from the top of Shelter Hill Rock, near Bethel, Conn., by the frost and rolled down the mountain side the other day, sweeping large trees and everything before it. The shock was felt for twenty miles around.

Newspapers are appreciated in Washington Territory. The Weekly Signal at Old Yokima, was about to remove to the new town called North Rankin, a distance of four miles, and the office was placed on trucks Monday. That night the whole establishment was blown up with dynamite by the residents of the old town, who were opposed to the removal.

Natural gas is rapidly being substituted for coal in Pittsburg. At present over 1,500 dwelling houses, sixty-six glass factories, thirty-four rolling mills, and forty-five other industrial establishments are supplied. As nearly as can be ascertained, from 8,000 to 10,000 tons of coal are daily displaced. A contract has been signed between New York capitalists and members of the Westinghouse sindicate for converting this natural gas into a rich illuminant.

The Japanese are among the politest people in the world. Here is an illustration: A Japanese gentleman called on a Washington lady one day last week. He was asked to remain till lunch time and consented. They wanted him to go, but didn't know how to get rid of him. He lingered till midnight, when, with elaborate, almost abject, apologies for leaving, he took his departure. Next day, while the hostess was telling her friends how horribly she had been bored, her visitor was deploring her cruelty in not earlier in the day intimating to him that he might depart, Japanese etiquette requiring such signal of permission before he could go.

The latest proposal respecting the Great Eastern is to have her firmly moored in mid-Atlantic, and stored with provisions, etc., so that ships running short may have their larders replenished. It is also proposed to have a telegraph station on board in connection with the several cables, so that ship-masters can notify the owners as to their whereabouts. A postal, telegraph, and provision station in mid-Atlantic would be a novelty, and a great boon to the mariner as well.

Of the various European countries Germany is stated to be the best furnished with railways, having according to the report of the French Ministry of Public Works, more than twenty-two thousand miles; next to Germany comes the Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, which possesses about nineteen thousand miles, but adds to its lines much more slowly than any of its rival nations on the Continent; France is third on the list in regard to the total extent of road, having some 18,500 miles; Russia is next, with about 16,000 miles, while Austro-Hungary has 13,000; Italy, a country of skillful engineers, has as many as 6,000 miles coursing its restricted territory; Spain has kept pace almost exactly with the rival peninsula; while Greece can boast of a railroad system of only about fourteen miles, a considerable portion of which is very recent.

HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE
In Seasickness.

PROF. ADOLPH OTT, New York, says: "I used it for seasickness, during an ocean passage. In most of the cases, the violent symptoms which characterize that disease yielded, and gave way to a healthful action of the functions impaired.

1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886 Send for particulars.
H. G. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street, Chicago.

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc. of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.
For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature. 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

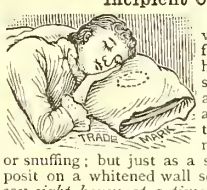
FOR COUGHS AND CROUP USE
TAYLOR'S
CHEROKEE

REMEDY
—OF—
SWEET GUM
—AND—
MULLEIN.

The sweet gum, as gathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the mullein plant of the old fields, presents in TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consumption; and so palatable, any child is pleased to take it. Ask your druggist for it. Price, 25c. and $1. WALTER A. TAYLOR, Atlanta, Ga.



Use DR. BIGGERS' HUCKLEBERRY CORDIAL for Diarrhœa, Dysentery and Children Teething. For sale by all druggists.

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!

"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."

THE PILLOW-INHALER.

A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH. BRONCHITIS. CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."
E. L. HEDDEN, 38 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELE, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no longer weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Five Dollar
LIBRARY.

"The Broken Seal."
"The Master's Carpet."
"In the Coils, or The Coming Conflict."
"The Character, Claims and Practical Workings of Freemasonry," by Pres. C. G. Finney.
"Revised Odd-fellowship;" the secrets, together with a discussion of the character of the order.
"Freemasonry Illustrated;" the secrets of first seven degrees, together with a discussion of their character.
"Sermons and Addresses on Secret Societies;" a valuable collection of the best arguments against secret orders from Revs. Cross, Williams, McNary, Dow, Sarver, Drury, Prof. J G. Carson, and Prests. George and Blanchard.

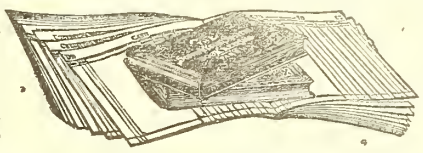
National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will be greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.



PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM!

Business College.

Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treaties on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING, SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price. 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books included, time unlimited, $50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.
The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against ~~the saloon~~ and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.
Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Sold by all Newsdealers. THREE VALUABLE PERIODICALS Price 10 cents each.

Johnston's Journal, An illustrated Magazine for the people. Estab'd 1874. Issues every other week. 36 pages. $2 a year.

Industrial America, An Illustrated Popular Record of Progress in the Arts and Sciences 16 pp.; every other week, $2 a yr

The Electrical World. An Illustrated Review of current progress in Electricity and its practical applications. 20 pp. wkly $3 y.

The CHRISTMAS number of JOHNSTON'S JOURNAL, now ready, is UNUSUALLY handsome. Order it and the January 9 issue, in which begins a powerful new serial story, interesting but not sensational. The current numbers of both INDUSTRIAL AMERICA and THE ELECTRICAL WORLD are also very attractive. Postage in U. S. or Canada prepaid. Agents wanted. Any dealer will take your order or subscription; or address, W. J. JOHNSTON, Publisher, 9 Murray st., New York, 48 Congress st., Boston; or 23 Bordeu Block, Chicago.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN & FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

It has a record of 18,000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.

The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published. THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM.
Finely illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!
We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient) in preference to stamps, and address

The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,
Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

☞We offer the Christian Cynosure for one year and Webster's Practical Dictionary, postpaid, both for only $2.00. W. I. PHILLIPS.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

WASHINGTON.

The estimates of the statistitician of the national department of agriculture for the principle cereal crops of the year have been computed, and the aggregate bushels are as follows: Wheat, 357,000,000; corn, 1,935,000,000; oats, 629,000,000.

The Secretary of the Treasury has issued a call for $10,000,000 3 per cent bonds, payable on Feb. 1. This is the first call for bonds issued since October, 1884, and it is believed that it was made in consequence of the recent attaek of Senator Beck upon the failure of the treasury to call bonds.

COUNTRY.

Fire at Detroit Friday afternoon destroyed D. M. Ferry & Co.'s mammoth seed house, White's Grand theatre, the Wesson block, and badly scorched other structures, causing a total loss of about $1,500 000. One fireman was instantly killed and another seriously injured by falling walls. The Ferrys carried insurance amounting to $460,000, the risk on the theatre reaching $80,000.

The United States District Attorney at Omaha, Neb., has received instructions to begin civil and criminal proceedings against several persons for the illegal fencing of public lands.

Two colored men who had set fire to cotton were taken from the jail at Crawford, Miss., by a mob last Monday and hanged.

It is authoritively stated that there exists near the villiage of Spring Grove, Houston county, Minn., a large number of cases of leprosy. The afflicted persons are all Scandinavians from the northern part of Norway. The first case which appeared was upon the person of an old man, and was at first thought to be measles. Later he was seized with excruciating pains in his limbs, and the extremities began to wither. This continued and the epidermis began to scale off, and now there is but a semblance of skin over the flesh.

The casket containing the body of a child, who had been temporarily interred over twelve years ago, was taken up at Yorkville, S. C., Wednesday, for final burial. After the casket had been removed from the grave a loud explosian occurred, shattering the glass lid and driving the fragments in all directions, a piece of the glass seriously wounding the father of the child. The cause of the explosion is a mystery, but the remains were found to be in an excellant state of preservation.

A boat's crew of a whaling schooner owned at Bedford, Mass., were pulled to the bottom by a whale near the Cape Verd Islands, Nov. 29 last, and no trace of boat or men was ever discovered.

Advice of the 28th from Corralitos, Mexico, say that a courier from Gen. Crook had passed there in search of Capt. Davis, who started several weeks ago for the Sierra Madras with his command, consisting of one company and 100 Apache scouts. Since their departure nothing has been heard of them.

The total number of buildings erected in Chicago during 1885 was 4,638; number of basements, 525; number of feet frontage, 108,952; number of sheds, 1,604; total cost, $24,530,125.

The cost of 18,433 building projected in New York during 1885 is $54,000,000.

The total number of business failures in the United States during 1885 was 10 637, with liabilities of a little more than $124 000,000, as compared with 10,968 in 1884, with liabilities of 226,000,000. The number of traders reported in busines in 1885 was 919,990. Of these one in every eighty-six failed. In 1878, with 574 000 traders, one in every sixty-four came to grief. The average amount of liabilities of each failure was: In 1885, $11,678; against $20,632 in 1884 and $22,369 in 1878.

The county penitentiary at Albany, N. Y., is a plague stricken spot. Its 1,000 inmates are exposed to a deadly form of typhus fever. A great many deaths have occurred. The epidemic is said to have some of the characteristics of the black plague which once decimated London.

There was a desperate attempt to burn the town of Tarentum, Pa., Sunday at an early hour. The villains had taken every precaution to make destruction sure, having cut the ropes of the two alarm bells, broke the principal pumps in the village, and carried off the fire buckets and tubs. The loss is $9,000. About two weeks before there was a similar attempt, when seven large buildings were destroyed, entailing a loss of over $50,000.

As the Boston express on the New York and Hartford road neared Pelhamville, N. Y., Monday morning, a strong wind blew a portion of the depot platform unto the track. The obstruction derailed the locomotive and baggage-car, both of which tumbled down a sixty foot embankment, killing the engineer and seriously wounding three other persons.

Near New Providence, Pa., Tuesday morning, the explosion of a threshing machine boiler killed two men, and set fire to a barn, which was consumed, together with a number of cattle, horses, cows and hogs.

In the police court at Cincinnati, Oliver Doud Byron, the actor, was convicted of violating the law prohibiting Sunday theatrical performances.

FOREIGN.

The Orange-Catholic riots have been renewed at Conception Bay, Newfoundland. An Orange mob attacked and fatally wounded two men Tuesday.

There is a wide breach between M. Brisson and President Grevy, the prime minister and the president of France. It is rumored that the former has written the latter refusing to lend himself any longer to a combination the object of which is to impose upon him lasting discredit.

The proclamation announcing the annexation of Burmah to the British Empire was received Jan. 1. There was a grand parade in honor of the event, and a large concourse of natives gathered to hear the reading. England cedes to China part of Upper Burmah in order to make the Chinese and Indian frontiers contiguous. India advocates an offensive and defensive alliance between China and India.

A circular was recently sent to all the Liberal members of the new British Parliament asking them to state their opinions on the Irish home-rule question. The majority of those who express a difinite opinion are opposed to giving to an Irish Parliament the control of the tariff and of the police.

December 29 was the 76th anniversary of the Rt. Hon. William Gladstone. During the morning he was the recipient of 400 letters congratulating him on having attained his 76th year. Mr. Gladstone left his residence at daybreak and walked to the village church, where special services were held

The Balkan Conference will reopen at Constantinople Jan. 17. The Italian embassador will make a motion in favor of the Bulgarian union, and will be supported by the Russian embassador.

The Czar, it is understood, is about to reinstate Prince Alexander of Bulgaria in his former rank in the Russian army. The presence of Prince Voickoff and other Russian officers at Sofia makes a close ailiance between Russia and Bulgaria. These facts have caused alarm among the friends of Turkey. It is believed the compact between the Czar and Prince Alexander, by which Russia recognizes the Bulgarian union, is the prelude to a Russian campaign in the spring, and the final dismemberment of the Turkish Empire.

The Pall Mall Gazette is authority for the statement that Gladstone is ready to entertain proposals from the Marquis of Salisbury for joint action on the question of home rule.

A vein of pure petroleum has been discovered near Park Hill, Ontario, 175 feet below the surface.

The leading distilleries and liquor merchants of Germany are unanimous in opposing the government monopoly of the liquor trade.

There has been an alarming increase of rabies throughout France. Officials of the various provinces, and police of the cities have orders that severest measures be adopted to rid the streets and country of stray dogs.

☞ Readers ordering goods or making inquiries concerning articles advertised in this paper, will confer a favor by stating that they saw the advertisement in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

BAGSTER'S Fac Simile Series.

Fac Simile Series. BIBLES!

The only Bibles that will bear the constant wear of a long life.

Extra flexible silk sewed in best Bagster morocco binding. With Maps, Index and other Helps. For sale by all Booksellers. If you cannot get them from your bookseller, send to us direct.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, Limited, London, England.

OUR CLUB LIST

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2		@84⅛
No. 3		71
Winter No 2	92½	96
Corn—No. 2		@36⅜
Oats—No. 2		28
Rye—No. 2		58½
Bran per ton		11 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@11 50
Mess pork per bbl		10 00
Butter, medium to best	15	@34
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 65	@1 74
Flax	1 08	1 12
Broom corn	04½	@ 09½
Potatoes	50	@ 75
Hides—Green to dry flint	06½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 15	@5 65
Common to good	2 00	@4 70
Hogs	2 75	@3 95
Sheep	2 00	@4 00

NEW YORK.

Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	90	@ 95½
Spring		93
Corn	40	@49
Oats	35	@42½
Mess Pork	9 85	10 50
Eggs		27
Butter	18	36
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@5 25
Hogs	3 50	@3 85
Sheep	1 50	@3 50

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ILLUSTRATED.

By a Past Chancellor. A full illustrated exposition of the three ranks of the order, with the addition of the "Amended, Perfected and Amplified Third Rank." The lodge-room, signs, countersigns, gripe, etc., are shown by engravings. 25 cents each; per dozen, $2.00. Address the
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally Situations procured all pupils when competent. end for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

ART AND DECORATION,

An Illustrated Monthly.

EACH NUMBER CONTAINS 50 ILLUSTRATIONS IN BROWN AND BLACK.

The leading exponent of the progress of Decorative Art and devoted to the development of the highest artistic ideas in connection with every branch of industry to which art is ancillary. No architect, decorative artist, art student or art amateur should be without it. For sale by all newsdealers. Publication office
7 WARREN STREET, NEW YORK.
GEO. R. HALM, - - - - - - Art Manager.
ED. HUGH BROWN, Publisher.

Sample copies 25 cents. $2.50 per annum.

The Woman's Art Department will be found of great interest to lady readers

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

UNEQUALLED FOR CEMENTING WOOD, GLASS, CHINA, PAPER, LEATHER, &c. Awarded GOLD MEDAL, LONDON, 1883. Used by Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Co., Pullman Palace Car Co., &c. Mf'd only by the RUSSIA CEMENT CO. GLOUCESTER, MASS. SOLD EVERYWHERE. ☞ Sample Tin Can by Mail, 25c.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—
Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.

SING THEM!

HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.
Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

"I have read it from its commencement with decided interest, and have derived from it no inconsiderable instruction."—JUSTICE STRONG, late of U. S. Supreme Court.

The Christian Statesman,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL,

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF

PUBLIC MORALS AND NATIONAL RELIGION.

ESTABLISHED TO DISCUSS the principles of government and current political questions in the light of the Christian religion.

TO MAINTAIN our Sabbth Laws, the Bible in the Schools, and other Christian Features of the American Government.

TO CALL the Nation back to the God of our fathers.

It is an uncompromising advocate of PROHIBITION and other vital reforms.

It opposes the union of Church and State.

It has no sectarian relations.

It is not "in politics," but deals with all parties from an independent position.

Its expositions of the International Sabbath School Lessons are of exceptional value.

It includes the STANDARD BEARER, a weekly illustrated paper for Young People.

"I hardly know of a paper whose wide circulation would be more advantageous."—President Seelye, of Amherst College, Mass.

"An instrumentality of unsurpassed usefulness in the Christian reformation of American politics."—Dr. A. A. Miner, Boston.

"Its course has been manly and consistent, its editorials able, its success marvelous."—President Scovel, Wooster University, O.

"As a Thesaurus of facts and arguments bearing on the important questions of morality and religion, invaluable and unrivaled."—Prof. A. Rittenhouse, Dickinson College, Pa.

"More weighty instruction and cogent reasoning to the square inch than any paper with which I am acquainted."—Rev. R. G. McNeice, Pres. Pastor, Salt Lake City.

"The exhibit of ability, patience, earnestness and truth."—Dr. Jonathan Edwards, Philadelphia.

"On some of the great questions of the age I have sometimes been puzzled to know exactly the position of several of our leading religious weeklies, but from the trumpet of the CHRISTIAN STATESMAN I have never yet heard one uncertain sound."—Prof. M. S Terry, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ills.

TERMS $2.00 a year.

☞ Specimen Copies sent FREE. ☜

Address,

THE CHRISTIAN STATESMAN,
1520 CHESTNUT ST., PHILA., PA.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 17. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1886. WHOLE No. 820.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.
221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
Editorial Correspondence. 8
Why Churches Fail and Missions Succeed..... 8
The Mormon Cancer..... 8
The Band of Hope..... 9
The Week of Prayer..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Warfare and its Weapons..... 1
The Great Apostacy of the Latter Days—III..... 2
The Beauty and Power of Gentleness..... 2
SELECTED:
Moody Again Stands by the Truth 3
The Namcless Prophet... 3
Why Should Christians Oppose Secret Societies. 3
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
REFORM NEWS:
The Debate in Ohio; From the Illinois Agent; In Champaign Jail.....4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Christian Politics; Tell it Abroad; Masonic Blasphemy; Sectarianism Condemned.....5,6
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 9
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
Suggestive..... 12
THE CHURCHES..... 12
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
LECTURE LIST..... 7
BUSINESS..... 13
HOME HINTS 14
IN BRIEF..... 15
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
MARKETS 16

A Worcester preacher thus succinctly defines atheism, infidelity and Christianity: The atheist says: "No God." The theist says: "A God." The Christian says: "My God." Freemasonry, the "pure theism" of Mackey, is by this definition exactly located in its religious character.

Miss Sarah Brown, one of the daughters of old John Brown, has been for some years a clerk in the San Francisco mint. A few days ago she was discharged by the new Democratic superintendent. But the man who struck down the old hero at Harper's Ferry, and tried to kill him when prostrate, has been appointed as Indian agent.

The new city election law which is now to regulate the voters of Chicago provides that the polling places "shall be in the most public, orderly, and convenient portions of the precinct, and no building or part of building shall be designated or used as a place of registry, or revision of registration, or as a polling place where spiritous or intoxicating liquor is sold." To single out the saloon and put a brand of infamy upon it above all other disreputable places, marks the power of public sentiment: but, when the local politicians of both the leading parties are among the best friends of the saloon, of what account will the best framed statute be? Only when the political party of the future shall come into power, whose character and aims shall befit Christians and Americans, such regulations will lose their force because there will be no saloons.

A dispatch from London bears the important news that a new play has been brought out in one of the theaters in which the peculiar morality is taught that a woman guilty of adultery is redeemed and purified by motherhood. "The play," significantly adds the dispatch, "promises to have a long run"; and no comment could more clearly indicate the vicious character of the play or characterize the lacivious tastes of the people who delight in such representations. The theory of the play is not, however, worse than the Masonic doctrine that an Abiffite who has been through the mock resurrection of Hiram is "free from sin;" or in the higher degrees that a Mason can in a spiritual sense clense his nature from sin, or in the lodge parlance, "wash his robes in his own blood."

The late incendiary destruction of the American Missionary Association building at Quitman, Georgia, has some redeeming circumstances. They are thus reported in the Advance: "When the building was burned at one o'clock in the morning, the Mayor invited the teachers to become his guests at the hotel. His hospitality was accepted by all except Mr. and Mrs. Parr, who found a vacant store where they remained until morning. The Baptist minister and his wife also ealled at the hotel and offered to entertain the teachers while they remained in Quitman, an invitation which was accepted. The Mayor promptly offered a reward for the arrest of parties guilty of setting fire to the school building, and an indignation meeting was held four days afterward and largely attended by both whites and negroes. It denounced the outrage, and requested the A. M. A. to re-establish the school. A petition, signed by numerous property holders, pledges aid for such a school, and it will be opened as soon as possible." It is a gleam of light in this dark affair that the work of the Association is really appreciated and valued by the best people of the South. Their views will ultimately prevail because founded on justice; but one could wish their influence had been felt before so terrible an exigency was necessary to call it out.

General James W. Husted was last week elected by the Republican majority Speaker of the New York Legislature. His military title is not a very deep brand, being an honorary distinction in connection with the State militia only. But he is doubly a "carpet knight," for he has a bushel of titles sticking to him after rolling on the lodge floor while taking his thirty-three degrees of Masonry. Husted began his political career as a secretist in the Know Nothing party and has followed that lodge rut ever since. A little circumstance related by him and published in the daily Standard of Syracuse, shows the character of the man, and the kind of influence he will be likely to exert on the legislature. He has been three times Speaker of the New York assembly before, and had noticed an opportunity to make himself famous. The House he observed was remiss in its etiquette, awkwardly rising when the Senate came in for joint session. He expected to become Speaker, his Masonry was warrant for as much, and determined to inaugurate a great reform—worthy indeed a Mason of so high rank. The opportunity came, and Husted, aware of his magical powers, gave the three familiar raps with his gavel which seventy-five Masons in the room had been trained like puppets to obey. They jumped to their feet and the rest followed. One rap and all were seated. Every one who has seen a public initiation will remember these lodge signs. So Husted found some use for Masonry—it helped the legislature to get up and sit down again. But, if the lodge gavel is so supreme, what is the lodge OATH? Husted has betrayed the lodge, and revealed its power in our law-making bodies. He shows the same legislature which once employed the ablest lawyers to prosecute the murderers of Morgan now bending a pliant knee at the beck of the lodge. New York is not an exception. What, Americans and patriots, does such a revelation demand of you?

At the White Cross meeting in Association Hall, New York, Dr. De Costa, who made the closing address, referred to the work done by Mr. Stead, saying that he was the emancipator of England from that false delicacy which so long kept the people from dealing plainly with social evils, and declaring that, though Mr. Stead was now under a cloud, the sunshine would return; that what is already the fact will be evident to all, namely, that there are only three persons in England who have a greater number of true friends among the good and the true than Mr. Stead. Those three were the Queen, the Princess of Wales and William Gladstone, a statement that was followed by deafening and prolonged applause, showing at least how some people feel. Dr. De Costa is well prepared to speak, having studied the whole question while in England last summer, and knows perfectly well the motives of Mr. Stead, as well as the animus which inspired the prosecution.

THE WARFARE AND ITS WEAPONS.

"Madness is in their heart while they live."—Ecclesiastes 9:3.

Sin is madness. Oft times it rages like a fire that cannot be extinguished, like a volcano whose vomiting of flame and fire submerges flocks, fields, towns, cities and whole districts, carrying devastation and death. Jesus came to the earth filled with sin and its terrible effects. No writer's pen or painter's brush can suitably set forth the condition of the earth, ruined by sin. Human thought cannot conceive the terrible nature of sin and its results. It is madness in human hearts, and it produces deluges of madness to flood the earth. It is multiform and manifold in shapes and methods. In one age it rages in one direction, in another it takes another course, and still another. It seems that every evil is engrossed in a single method and rages with a vehemence that threatens everything sacred or precious in human well-being. It is madness in human hearts.

The history of the earth is an illustration of this terrible truth, and candid, thoughtful minds can now behold it on every hand raging with a vehemence that is appalling to the hearts of all the friends of God and man who are struggling against its fearful ravages. Especially is this seen in the spread of organized secret lodges. No devastating fire ever swept over prairie, city or forest with such fearful speed, or spread such terrible havoc and ruin. I know not a single element of evil but is involved in, or is sustained and promoted by, these organized secret lodges. They confront and resist Christianity itself which embodies the well-being of the human race. It is true, they use artifice, deceive and flatter and pretend, but their work is subversion and destruction. This needs no proof. The willingly blind and ignorant may be deceived, but all who will investigate as honestly and throughly as they would the title to a lot, or the validity of a five dollar note, can easily see they are squarely opposed to and in fierce conflict with the Christian religion, and unless they are vanquished, Christianity must fail. They are also in vital conflict with human government and domestic institutions. They dominate and threaten everything human and divine, and either the one or the other must fall in the conflict; and which, my beloved brethren, shall it be? Shall these dark minions of hell, or the God-given institutions of light, triumph? Never were they more flourishing than at the present time. Never were they more bold or exacting; never were ministers, churches, governments, literary and religious institutions more under their control, and never did men stand in more terror of them than now.

What can be done? Is there any help? Yes, verily there is. Jesus Christ came single handed and alone to the world in just this condition. He furnished instruments and methods by which a triumphant victory can be gained over every foe. He successfully used them himself, to show us how, and then put them into our hands and told us to use them, and we must do it or fail. The fervent and effectual prayer of the righteous man availeth much with God. It enlists Almighty God in the conflict, and when God is enlisted, it is not doubtful where victory will fall. Believing prayer is sure to be answered. Jesus has said it, and this must be done or we fail. Persevering prayer never failed of success. The prayer of agreement is a mightier instrument than the most efficient engine of carnal warfare, and when used as it is designed to be, never failed of accomplishing wonders. These instruments are put into our hands and we are bid to use them. They must be used as they were designed to be, or they will have no effect. In this lies our weakness. We are like undisciplined soldiers who do not know how to use their weapons, and are certain to be conquered. Cost what it will we must know how to use these spiritual weapons, or we should not expect to succeed. From every part of the world the cry comes from the reformers, "Pray for me."

Are these simple compliments, or are they the deep yearnings of struggling souls? We treat them as simple compliments. The Almighty instrument of the prayer of agreement is not brought out and put into operation by the believing, persevering, fervent prayer of righteous men: if it was, mighty results would follow. Unbelief, spiritual indolence, selfishness, love of the world, love of ease, dread of the cross, cowardice—well, here is enough—if these cords of Satan were cut, all the rest would snap, and there would be such wrestling prayer over the face of this whole earth as would shake the whole foundation of the empire of darkness. Jesus used this prayer How did he pray? Whole nights were spent in the mountains in prayer; and at one time he spent forty days and forty nights in prayer and fasting: and his instructions, his commands and exhortations, and his melting tender entreaties to prayer blaze out of his whole life, example and teaching in his Gospel, like the light "above the brightness of the sun" to move us to prayer. This will arouse and awaken the whole earth, and drive madness from the heart of man; and without this nothing else will do it.

There is an effort to get a great general convention of ministers and churches to oppose secret organizations. This is all well. Who will take the lead to get true-hearted Christians all over this earth to intelligently, earnestly, purposely to use the prayer of agreement? Brethren, who will take the lead in this matter and persevere until this divine, mighty instrumentality shall be used as the great power of God to drive madness from the heart of man?

AN OLD BELIEVER.

THE GREAT APOSTASY OF THE LATTER DAYS.—III.

BY CYNTHIA DERBYSHIRE.

The time is fulfilled. One woe is past: and now this first woe is rapidly being merged into the second. And now we come to consider the appalling description given under the sounding of the sixth trumpet, as the second woe, representing this same apostasy putting on a new form; culminating in power, and coming to a head, that is, to a firmly and thoroughly organized conspiracy against Christianity, and using the most subtle and effective means for its overthrow.

In the first woe we had one apostate acting in the power of one fallen angel. Now we have four fallen angels, and Abaddon is reinforced by four others. Those who have followed the writer through these pages thus far will have concluded that the evils described are very great; what must it be when its power becomes five time as great! These fallen angels are loosed from the great river Euphrates, and are "prepared" to work mischief to the human race. I suppose them to be evil angels because of the evil they work. Euphrates is so called, because the first idea of secret combinations originated on the banks of the Euphrates, either under the tyranny of Babylon or Nineveh; and this whole figure represents the great flood of secretisms of our day; for it is all the same thing, under all its protean forms and differing names; and prophecy names things from their origin very frequently.

Rising from small beginnings as is indicated by the hour; receiving accessions of strength and numbers as is shown by the day; greatly increasing in influence and popularity, expressed by the month; it becomes an overflowing flood bearing all before it, as is manifested by the year. These several periods make the sum of three hundred and ninety-one years, and a fraction of a year called the hour, as the time of the continuence of this evil; but this time extends till the sixth vial of wrath is poured out upon this same river Euphrates.

The figure is now changed to a vast army at war, horsemen prepared, that is, thoroughly organized, and equipped with all needed appliances, to slay the third part of men. While they are trying to overthrow Christianity, they can only cause the spiritual death of those who join with them in their nefarious measures. Under the first woe, men sought for spiritual death, but did not find it; but this second woe is spiritual death, the death of the souls of men. Well may we remember the words of the apostle John, "There is a sin unto death, I do not say that he shall pray for it." John 5: 16.

Reader, are you such a lover of popularity that you are willing to sacrifice your soul for it? If so, then join this company, for they are two hundred million strong, so astonishing is the influence they are wielding. So much does this terrible iniquity please the corrupt heart of man.

The breastplates are of fire and jacinth and brimstone, instead of iron, as it was under the fifth trumpet. We have before explained that fire signifies a murderous war spirit, a fiery zeal in the service of Satan, and for carrying foward plans of wickedness. Fire of the altar, spoken of elsewhere, is Christian zeal, sanctified and holy, and is exercised in the service of God. This fire is of an opposite nature and tendency from that. Brimstone is hellish principles, and doctrines of devils. It represents principles and practices that are abominable in the sight of God. In the present case it is a revival and restoration of the ancient sun worship, or Baal worship so often condemned in the Bible. It is heathenism brought up again after having been so long laid aside; and the ceremonies of the lodge are real devil worship, and as heathenish as the Eleusinian mysteries. This is the brimstone of our text. Jacinth is a blue color, and is the same as smoke in this place. Bold, overbearing, impudent, and cruel dispositioned persons are meant by the heads of horses being as the heads of lions. Horses are spirits, and white horses are good spirits; but horses with lion's heads must be both powerful and terrible spirits.

And now we come to the great leading characteristic of this stage of this apostasy. "And out of their mouths issued fire, and smoke, and brimstone." This is the murderous, infidel and piratical and hellish oaths and obligations which they take when they become members of these "prepared" combinations, and which always come out of every mouth that belongs to them. These same oaths, or obligations are the breastplates that so cover their consciences as to prevent their timely repentance and return to God.

So also these oaths and obligations are the weapons wherewith they "slay" the third part of men. "By these three was the third part of men killed, by the ffre, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths." Killed, not tormented as in the first woe; but killed spiritually, killed outright, no half way work about it. Their destruction is completed by these soul-damning obligations and oaths. How many of these dead corpses have the churches got in them, having a name to live while they are really dead? What makes you a Mason? Answer, My obligation; so reason Oddfellows, and all other forms of secretism say they are made so by their obligations, and that which makes them secretists, makes them not Christians, and cuts them off from Christ. However they may carry a vain profession, they have really nothing left but a hypocritical pretension to religion.

"Their power is in their mouth, and in their tails; for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt." How these serpent's tails represent the end of their lives, which are not only hardened and unrepentant, as in the first woe, but are actively made use of by gorgeous funerals, pompous orations, and dashing display of regalia and arms and paraphanalia of the different orders, to to lead others into this dreadful destruction; thus causing ungodly men, who look for their best things in this life, to adopt their tenets; for we should recollect that this apostasy affects or holds fast some of the Lord's sealed, or covenanted ones. Those who are truly in the everlasting covenant of our Lord Jesus Christ, will be satisfied with him, and neither want, nor accept, nor risk any other covenant or obligation; or if they do get ensnared they will be brought out of it, as was Charles G. Finney. Sometimes the Lord's children are permitted to be temporally ensnared, as was Lot in Sodom, in order that the evil may be more generally exposed in its true character through their deliverance from it.

THE BEAUTY AND POWER OF GENTLENESS.

BY E. W. TOWNE.

Gentleness is a divine attribute and one of the graces of the Spirit. It may be called kindness, or mildness, or meekness, but the term gentleness expresses its essential qualities more perfectly than any other. It is not only graceful, but of great power because an attribute of God. David, when seated on the throne of Israel, acknowledged God as his deliverer from all his enemies, who had placed him in his present exalted position, saying, "Thy gentleness hath made me great." Ps. 18: 35.

Gentleness was conspicuous also in the character of Jesus. Paul says to the Corinthian church when exhorting them to a higher standard of Christian character, "I beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ." The gentle nature of Jesus was so manifest that mothers brought their little ones to him that he might put his hands on them and bless them; and fallen women sought his presence, sympathy and aid to escape from their present wretched condition, to a life of purity and peace. Even the poor leper, who was not allowed to approach any one, came and kneeled to him, saying, "Lord if thou wilt thou canst make me clean." His gentleness in restoring life shows its power. The evangelists sometimes use so much circumlocution in description that the beauty and sublimity of the scene is in a measure lost. As in Mark 5: 41, when he raised Jairus's daughter from the sleep of death, he took her by the hand and said, "Come, my child!" The very words and loving tone of voice her mother would use to call her in the morning. (This is Dean Alford's view.) And when he met the funeral procession at the gate of Nain, he says to the grief-stricken mother, who had drank the bitter cup of widowhood, and now was called to part with her only son on whom she was leaning in her declining years, in accents of sympathizing gentleness: "Weep not!" Then turning to the bier, he says, "Young man, arise!" "And he delivered him to his mother." When caught in a tempest on the sea of Galilee, and their boat was sinking, the disciples came to him, as he was sleeping, and awoke him, saying, "Master, we perish!" And he arose and said to the wind and the waves in accents as mild and gentle as when he called the little maiden back to life, "Peace, be still!" Then turning to his disciples he quietly says, "Why are ye so fearful? Where is your faith?"

And when being entertained at the house of Martha, she, being cumbered about much serving, came to him, with anything but a gentle spirit, and said in a scolding tone, "Lord, dost thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her therefore that she help me." But that gentle voice that stilled the tempest on the sea, replied, "Martha! Martha! thou art careful and troubled about many things; but one thing is needful, and Mary hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her." This was as potent in stilling the rising storm in Martha's bosom as the tempest on the lake. But with Martha the storm was laid forever, and the irritable temperament that had marred the symmetry of her character was cast out, and in place of it the heaven-born grace of gentleness, so prominent in Mary, and so lovely in woman, reigned in Martha's breast also.

Gentleness was manifestly prominent in the character of Jesus, for notwithstanding all the bitter opposition and persecution of his enemies it was never but once said that he was angry, and then it was anger mingled with grief at their hardness of heart: a state of mind akin to that when he wept over Jerusalem, saying, "If thou hadst known, even thou, at least in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! But now they are hid from thine eyes."

How wonderful was his loving gentleness in reproving Peter for the dreadful sin of thrice denying him. Not a reproachful word was uttered, but the simple question three times addressed to him: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me?" Oh, that when we read, we could also see the benignity of that countenance and hear the loving, gentle tones of that voice when the words fell from his lips! Peter was grieved—no wonder, for the power of those words and the manner of their utterance produced such a radical change in him that he was ever after a new man, and in a good degree worthy of the name his Master had given him.

Another illustration of the gentleness of Christ we find in his method of dealing with Paul, who before his conversion was perhaps as relentless a persecutor of Christians as ever lived. As Paul was one of those who thought they were doing God service in the persecution of Christians, a sign from heaven was necessary to convince him that Jesus possessed divine power which man could not successfully resist. Therefore a supernatural light and a voice saying, "Saul! Saul! Why persecutest thou me?" was only sufficient to convince him (as soon as he learned who was speaking) that in persecuting the disciples of Jesus he was persecuting him, and sinning against God. Hence he instantly surrendered, and trembling and astonished, asks, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" There was nothing in this scene to excite terror beyond a wholesome fear, and, therefore, he was not "frightened into religion," as is sometimes said. He was convinced that Jesus of Nazareth was indeed the Messiah, and soon learned that his kingdom was not of this world, and that he was the Saviour of all men. He therefore entered the service of Christ as his apostle and a preacher of his Gospel as heartily, and more zealous than he was as a persecutor. He was completely disarmed of his hostility, by Jesus's language of gentle expostulation, "Why persecutest thou me?"

Oh, the power of gentleness to produce such a radical change in a man of an iron will and transcendant intellectual power, changing a bitter persecutor to a loving friend and devoted servant who gloried in unceasing labor and suffering for Christ and the success of his Gospel. Yet with all his earnestness and zeal we learn that like his Master, he was affectionate and gentle, even as a nurse cherisheth her own children; and in his counsels to Timothy and Titus, his fellow-laborers in the Gospel, he enjoined upon them the importance of gentleness toward all men, "apt to teach, patient; in meekness instructing those that oppose themselves."

Christian character is made up of the nine graces of the Spirit, (Gal. 5: 22, 23) and if one is there, all are there. There is a semblance of these graces, more or less, in the natural man, and these have deceived many, thinking the graces within them were divine, when in fact they were only human and common to all men. The divine graces are heaven-born, the human are earth-born, and multitudes have failed of eternal life because they mistook the human for the divine, having never recognized the difference; although it is so plainly pointed out in the Scriptures that he who runs may read.

Others make a fatal mistake by denying the heaven-born graces and claim that the human graces well cultivated are all that is necessary to obtain eternal life, strangely overlooking the fact that it is by faith we are saved and not by anything we can do. The heaven-born graces are implanted in the soul of man by the Spirit of God. This is being born again, or born of the Spirit; and the cultivation and growth of these graces is the work of the Spirit. This is sanctification. But this work of the Holy Spirit is never given but in answer to prayer. Hence a living, growing Christian is emphatically a praying Christian, and co-operates with the Spirit who is working in him to will and to do of his good pleasure, by not only praying for his divine aid, but putting away all sin and watching against it, keeping under the body, crucifying the old man, with his affections and lusts and a daily study of the Scriptures as his guide and counsellor in all the duties of life. And as he advances in the divine life, the greater his attainments in divine knowledge, and likeness to his Saviour, the more earnest and constant are his prayers for perfection in holiness and the more perseveringly he searches the Scriptures as an inexhaustable fountain of divine knowledge which is to be his delightful study not only in this life, but the life eternal. Oh, the possibilities of the Christian even in this life! They cannot be anticipated. The joy and peace of a living, growing, Christian life is as unknowable as God himself, for the same reason that God is unknowable, except as we become like him; and unless we become Godlike, we shall fail of eternal life. "Whosoever will may come and take of the water of life freely."

MOODY AGAIN STANDS BY THE TRUTH.

A correspondent of the Christian Instructor writes as follows of the strong and fearless testimony Mr. Moody gave against the soul-destroying orders during his late meeting in Altoona, Pa:

While holding his meeting recently in Altoona, Pa., the great evangelist was asked the question: "What is the relation of the Christian to the secret societies of the world?" when he replied in substance as follows: "The Saviour says, 'In secret have I said nothing.' I do uot see how a Christian can join a secret society. The command is, 'Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers.' If you join in with the enemies of Christ in such associations, they will outvote you and lead you into sin. Years ago I thought of joining a secret temperance society, and about that time they decided on having a dance. That was enough for me. I determined never to have anything to do with such societies."

Mr. Moody mentioned particularly Freemasons, and told of their infidelity in France. He mentioned Knights of Pythias and other similar orders, and spoke of them as obstacles in the way of the church's work. He said when he was holding meetings in California he found the churches all mixed up with these orders, and he was informed that, as every night in the week was taken up with lodge meetings, no uight could be had for prayer meetings but Sabbath night.

While giving utterance to these sentiments Mr. Moody was surrounded by members of these anti-Christian orders, and he certainly does deserve much praise for his fearless testimony against them. And it is to be hoped that many young men will be saved from this snare by his timely warning.

THE NAMELESS PROPHET.

In an able exposition of the story of the prophet of Judah who prophesied against Jeroboam's altar and calf worship at Bethel, and who was afterwards slain, but not devoured, by a lion (1 Kings 13th chapter), H. L. Hastings, editor of the Christian, Boston, derives the following valuable lesson from the story, in his paper:

"It is remarkable that both the leading actors in this tragic scene are nameless. They may have been held in deserved repute for good which they had previously done; they had sinned and had suffered; and the Spirit which records the sins of David and of Solomon, notwithstanding their wealth and power, deals tenderly with the reputation of a poor disobediaet prophet, as it suppresses the name of "a woman that was a sinner."

"The history of the nameless prophet closes beneath a cloud. Name, honor, reputation, life itself are gone. Had he obeyed his God, who can tell what service he might have been permitted to perform in the world? But he made shipwreck through disobedience, met a violent death, and was buried in a stranger's grave. And all this came from listening to an old, gray-headed minister of God—a man who evidently had enjoyed at some time a personal experience of communications, but who lacked those principles of truth and righteousness, without which no man can be a safe adviser or guide.

"It was a bitter message that the old prophet bore to his deceived and unsuspecting guest, and no doubt it made a deep impression upon the lying prophet's mind. That which he had spoken, perhaps in jest or carelessness, had cost a man of God his life, and he could not fail to charge himself with being guilty of his brother's blood.

"There are solemn lessons in this record. God sends men still to cry against the sins and follies that are in the world. Those who obey the call and fulfil the Master's will, speaking his words and doing his work, may have before them a career of usefulness and honor such as cannot be elsewhere attained. But let them beware of Bethel's lying prophets, let them beware of listening to the evil council of old backslidden ministers who feel at home among the calves and idolatries of Bethel, whose consciences are seared, and who, to accomplish their ends, will lie. The race of lying prophets is not extinct, and honest and faithful men are still misguided, deceived and ruined by their falsehoods. Let goodly men beware of godless leaders. Let the servants of the Most High know their mission and their Master, let them take council from the Lord, obeying his voice, and they shall find safety and peace and blessing. But woe to those who seek their ease and pleasure in forbidden paths; who sit down to rest beneath the oak when the call of God bids them hasten on their way; who count the voice of a fellow-servant as more authoritative than the voice of their Maker, and who will accept the teachings of a lying prophet in preference to the solemn admonitions of the living God. Let the servants of the Lord take heed to their ways, and let the untimely death of the nameless prophet be a warning to many a soul to know their own duty in the sight of God, and to pay no heed whatever to any man, whether priest or prophet, who teaches them to disobey the Lord's commands, or disregard the instructions of his word."

WHY SHOULD CHRISTIANS OPPOSE SECRET SOCIETIES?

(An address delivered by Rev. J. P. Lytle, D. D, before the United Presbyterian Synod, of Ohio, at Unity, Oct. 22d, 1885. Subject assigned by the session.)

A short answer might be given to this question by saying, "Because they are opposed to Christ." They affect neutrality, but Jesus says, "He that is not with me is against me." Neutrality in religion is impossible from the nature of the subject. As the true God "fills heaven and earth," there is no room for any other. The true religion is equally pervasive and exclusive. The secret orders which do not ape the offices and ceremonies of religion are few and insignificant, if they exist at all. And with these orders it is the rule to exclude the name, office, atonement, righteousness, intercession and grace of the Lord Jesus Christ.

"My name is legion," said the demon whom our Lord commanded to come out of the unfortunate Gadarene. The spirit of secrecy might adopt the same language, "We are legion." Eighty-two lodges are found in the directory of Louisville, and one hundred and eighty in that of Washington City. There is a strange furore prevailing on the subject, and men seem to have run mad on it. There is evidence of an invisible agency at work, and of a revival in the kingdom of darkness.

Among the reasons which should lead Christians to oppose secret societies, may be mentioned the following:

1. They are unnecessary. Every proper and laudable end can be gained without them, and is gained by those who oppose them. The state, the church, the family, and the various voluntary and open associations among us, afford all needed scope for the exercise of our social nature, for affording mutual assistance, and for the exercise of charity. I think it would be admitted by a large majority of the members of secret orders, that a community or state of society in which no secret orders existed, is preferable to one in which they do exist. Men are often led into them as a means of self-defence. They fear that the members of these orders will "monopolize the avenues to wealth and power, and the means of promotion," and that they cannot enjoy an even chance in the race of life without their aid.

2. They are selfish, necessarily and intensely so; and, strangely enough, professedly so. They make no profession of regard of the welfare of men in general, or of a design to assist them. Their sympathy and help are exclusively for members of the order and their immediate dependents. I do not mean that there may not be an occasional and accidental deviation. But they profess nothing of the kind. Their very prayers, cheap and worthless as they are, are characterized by this selfish spirit.

But more, they take special care that none are admitted who are ever likely to need assistance. The candidate must be a man of full age (twenty-one) and not in his dotage, sound in body and in mind, and have some visible means of support; must be able to help himself and the lodge too by promptly paying his dues. Women, one-half the human family, the weaker sex, and most likely to need assistance, are excluded. In a few instances, and from deference to public opinion, women are formed into seeret societies of their own; but these are without influence or power, and are mere playthings. The combination of men of some means, in the prime of life, hale in body and sound in mind, for the purpose of mutual help, while the poor, the old, the weak, the diseased, the maimed, and all women are excluded, is so evidently selfish that it needs no argument to prove it. No insurance company is so heartless, either in its principles or its practice.

The boast, however, is frequent that these orders are benevolent. Suppose one of these orders, uniting its pretentions and its practices, should emblazon on the front of its temple, "Benevolent Institute," and then add beneath in smaller letters, "The aged, the infirm, the diseased, the blind, the maimed, those without visible means of support, and women, need not apply." If men could suppress their laughter long enough, they would execrate such hypocrisy.

3. They are profane, one and all of them. The obligation to secrecy contains an appeal, in some form to God. The parties imposing the obligation, being merely a voluntary and self-constituted society, have no right, in the sight of God or man, to do so; nor are those who assume it at liberty to obligate themselves in such a manner. All writers on civil and ecclesiastical law unite in condemning extra-judicial oaths. An oath can be lawfully administered only by a civil, military, or ecclesiastical court or officer, or, where the functions of these have been partially or wholly suspended, by those who, for the time being, assume them. The multiplication in endless variety of extra-judicial oaths by voluntary associations, which, though bearing different names, have yet a common object—mutual aid—is one of the crying evils of our times. Through this means "profaneness is gone forth into all the land." Jer. 33: 15. Every oath administered in the lodge is a piece of profanity. The oaths of the Masonic society, which is the prototpye of all, are simply diabolical. If a party of fiends had met together in convention to devise their peualties, they could have produced nothing more shocking. "Binding myself under no less a penalty than to have my throat cut aeross from ear to ear, my tougue torn out by the roots, · · · my left breast torn open, my heart and vitals taken thence, · · · my body severed in two, · · · my bowels burned to ashes," etc., etc. These ideas are borrowed from the Inquisition, and from the savage and bloody executions of the dark ages.

But we do not know the secrets of Masonry, do we not? Indeed! Jesus said, "There is nothing covered that shall not be revealed; neither hid that not be known." Even the Secreta Monita of the Jesuits have been published. Forty-five thousand seceding Masons attested the truth of the revelations made in 1826. Two hundred and fifty high Masons met in convention and affirmed their accuracy. Members of the Grand Lodge of Rhode Island and adhering Masons, swore to their truth in a legislative investigation. And we still do not know anything about them! Well, that is more wonderful than the secrets themselves. A Mason who had left the lodge said to me the other day, "You can know all about Masonry for twenty-five cents."

These orders undertake to make men ministers of religion, with power to perform religious rites officially. They constitute men priests, high priests, grand high priests, etc.

Now it is a settled principle in the Scriptures that none can make men priests but God. "No man taketh this honor unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron. For even Christ glorified not himself to be made an high priest, but he that said unto him: Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee." Even Christ did not make himself a priest, nor did men, nor could they, but God. But in the lodge we see men profanely undertaking to exercise the prerogative of God. And often, too, making "of the lowest of the people" morally, infidels, blasphemers and drunkards, priests. The government sometimes appoints a chaplain, but always men whom God has called through the church to exercise spiritual functions. It does not constitute men ministers of religion, but simply employs those whom God has constituted.

It is claimed that these societies do not really pretend to invest men with spiritual authority, and constitute them official ministers of religion, but that their rites are only a form, or, perhaps a farce; then we say that it is an impious form, and a blasphemous farce. The apology is worse than the offence—United Presbyterian.

—The following is the report of the Wabash conference (Free Methodist church) on secret societies: "We believe that secrecy is incompatible with Christian experience, also with the true spirit of republican government, especially Masonry. We believe, also that the teaching of the Bible is against them. Jesus says, 'In secret have I said nothing;' also he has said, 'Thou shalt not forswear thyself.'—which is required by all secret societies; therefore,

"Resolved, that we, as a Free Methodist conference, will use all lawful means to abolish this gigantic evil. We are also opposed to inviting ministers to our pulpits, or to fill appointments on our circuits, whom we have good reason to believe are adhering members of Masonic or other Christ-ignoring fraternities.

"Resolved, further, that we use all means in our power to enlighten the people in regard to the baneful effects of secret societies."

The boy Josiah was the son of a King, with all the temptations of an ungodly court. There is at the top of the Queen's stair-case, in Windsor Castle, a statue of good Edward VI., pointing with his sceptre to this passage in an open Bible which he holds in his left hand, and upon which he earnestly looks. "Josiah was eight years old when he began to reign, and he did that which was right in the sight of the Lord, and walked in all the ways of David his father, and turned not to the right nor to the left." This statue was erected by the will of the late Prince Albert to convey to his son, the Prince of Wales, the divine principles by which the future ruler should mold his character and reign on the throne of Great Britian. While only the children of the noble and royal can look upon this statue in Windsor Castle, every boy and girl has the picture and character of Josiah on the Bible page as a stimulus and example.—Christian Standard.

The picture of the cross in helps to be used in the Sabbath school, or on the walls, or top of the church building is a long step in a dangerous direction, as well as an offense to every intelligent and rightly-exercised Christian mind. The cross, as an instrument, was an accursed thing. The "cross of Christ" spoken of in the Scripture is widely different from this. When Paul said, "God forbid that I should glory save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ," it never entered his mind that he was referring to, or including the instrument on which his Lord died the accursed death. It is a strange Christian taste that would wear the figure of that instrument on the person, or set it up before a Sabbath school, or a worshiping congregation of Christians!—Christian Instructor.

REFORM NEWS.

THE DEBATE IN OHIO.

CLAYTON, O., Jan. 7th, 1886.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—I am once more reminded that I should chronicle some of the events of the past week, which like other weeks, have not been few. Time and space will not permit the mention of many pleasant calls, kindness to myself, and the cause which I endeavor to represent.

New Years day was spent at Northwood. I need only to say that there is a large Covenanter congregation at this place to let you know that I met many friends. Sabbath morning I spoke to a very attentive audience in the U. P. church of Huntsville. Rev. Orr, the pastor, has recently taken the skating rink of this place by the throat and choked it until I am told it is nearly dead.

At Bellefontaine Rev. Foster and his associates are contending nobly for the faith. We found the Odd-fellows and Knights of Pythias here having a grand parade in the shape of a funeral. The man whom they buried lived and died without God and without hope. They marched out with swords and staves, just as the mob who came to take our Saviour. Some one said they were trying to scare off the devil and get the brother safely to the grand lodge above.

At Sidney, Rev. Sharp of the U. P. church made me welcome, and invited me to return and speak for him Sabbath morning, January 17th, which I have promised to do.

I feel a little delicacy in reporting the discussion at Harrisburg, as I naturally would be somewhat prejudiced. It is generally considered by all parties that the truth prevailed. Mr. Shaffer, my opponent, was evidently not used to debating, and as he had an elephant on his hands he felt as if he must make a desperate effort; accordingly he brought in a stack of books not quite as large as the British Encyclopedia. When I asked him how much time he wanted, he replied that he did not wish to be limited; he wanted to debate according to Cushing's Manual, taking the beginning and closing address and give me the rest. I accepted the situation and waited patiently while he delivered his opening remarks, which lasted one hour and twenty-five minutes by the watch. Mr. Shaffer argued that he thought Adam was an Odd-fellow. He said that when people were very sick in Spain it came to the front, that it was better in some respects than the church. He argued first that they were a secret society and did "their alms" in secret; then that they were not a secret society, but were only private like the family. He denounced all opposers of the institution generally and said they had better join and find out whether they were a charitable society or not. His effort was amusing to say the least. When he would twist himself up, he would read some more from his books. When he concluded it would not have been necessary for me to have said anything, for a majority of the audience I think were convinced that Odd-fellowship was not a charitable institution; at least they had no evidence that it was. I occupied about three-fourths of an hour, showing from their constitution that Odd-fellowship is not in any sense of the word a charitable institution.

When Mr. Shaffer arose for his second speech, the audience started for the door and so we adjourned sine die.

I omitted to say that on my arrival at Harrisburg I found the church locked and the saloon open. The hall in which the discussion took place would seat some 200 and was crowded, as I naturally expected. Of the results I had rather some one else would write. If there is any other Odd-fellow of good standing in the order in the State of Ohio who wishes to meet me and discuss this question at any suitable place, I will meet him.

My appointments for the future are: Sidney, Jan. 16th and 17th; Huntsville, Jan. 20th; Northwood, Jan. 21st; Belle Center, Jan. 22nd; Rushsylvania, Jan. 23d. I shall doubtless make arrangements for meetings at Bellefontaine and Mt. Victory in the near future. Will friends in Hardin county please write me if they desire any work?

W. B. STODDARD.

FROM THE ILLINOIS AGENT.

While waiting for the southbound train, at the Illinois Central depot, in Chicago, I was hailed by a gentleman at the head of a party from Paxton on their return trip.

"Here is your old friend!" he exclaimed; and I recognized the man to whom he referred, as the same person who in Paxton asserted that I did not know anything about Freemasonry and to whom I had offered ten dollars if he would swear before a justice of the peace that throat-cutting was not one of the Masonic penalties.

"Does he want to make ten dollars!" I enquired as we all shook hands.

"Oh yes! He wants to make ten dollars," responded the first speaker.

"Not in that way, not in that way. I don't want to make ten dollars in that way!" rejoined the craftsman.

As the passengers filed into the car, one shouted, "You're loaded. What have you in those valises?"

"Lodge dynamite. Just wait until I open one of them and you'll see," I answered. I supplied all who would accept them with tracts and soon the whole car was a Babel of voices, with three links of the devil's chain rattling on the chorus. Sometimes three or four individuals were standing in the car aisle, vociferating and gesticulating at the same time. They were members of secret orders and their friends. Presently the conductor with his Knight Templar badge entered the car and immediately he was appealed to by two or three, who pointed me out and wished him to tell them what kind of a man he was carrying on his train. He looked about him like "Tray in bad company," gathered his tickets and fled.

Then an Oddfellow said to me in a loud and authoritative manner. "You've told us what you think of Freemasonry, what have you against Odd-fellowship?"

"Mainly, that it is an anti-Christian institution." I replied.

"Well, sir, it is better than your churches. It inculcates charity and benevolence. If I'm sick, two or three brothers nurse me. If I'm dead broke I can get funds to carry me on my journey. Which of your churches will do that for her members, sir?"

"Which best deserves the name of charity, that act which results from initiation and swearing in a secret lodge and which is the sole motive which prompts the individual to perform it, or that act which is the result of the operation of the Divine Spirit on the hearts of men whereby they are led to recognize the brotherhood of man?"

"That is the way with you fellows. You always try to get out of it in some such way as that," he replied. "Well, what more have you against Oddfellowship?"

"A great many things, among which is its semi-political character. Every male member of secret orders has a vote, hence if they were as virtuous as they profess to be, National Prohibition would long since have become law and the liquor curse abolished. Sensible people will draw their own inferences whether Odd-fellows or Masons like it or not, and they see that you are casting your ballots to support the rum traffic. That you are not casting them for prohibition is evident, for had the reverse been true, St. John would now be President of the United States.

He then resorted to the usual argument, viz., that prohibition interferes with the rights of the individual, etc,, and wound up by boasting that he kept a supply of liquor in his cellar. "Law, or no law," he said, I'm going to have it. If I have to break the law, I'm going to have it."

From that time until I left the train his companions and himself poured forth a tirade of abuse and invective on the prohibitionists, and especially the anti-secretists, of such a personal character as would be heard only when passing a saloon. This rabble must not be confounded with the Paxton people who were both civil and friendly.

CHAMPAIGN.

Here I have circulated some tracts amd exhibited the large chart while surrounded by Knight Templars, and Royal Arch Masons.

An old justice of the peace said to me, "My observation leads me to believe that the Masons clear every one of their members when they get in a scrape."

On Sabbath evening I had the privilege of preaching in the M. E. Church in this city. Rev. W. D. Best is their pastor, and he has never been cable-towed by any secret order.

On Monday I attended the union meeting of the churches in the Congregational church. It was led by the pastor. When the time came for testimony I arose and stated that I had been trying to determine in my mind my relation to that meeting; that it seemed to me that I was there as a witness for Christ, that, in years past, I had been put through the Christ-dishonoring rites of the Masonic religion; that to quiet my expression of my convictions respecting the institution I was appointed chaplain of the lodge by its Worshipful Master, and, in that capacity, while a candidate was shamming death upon the lodge floor, I was called upon to pray for the first time, which I did extemporaneously, and when the lodge was dismissed the Worshipful Master came to me with Webb's Freemason's Monitor in his hand, exclaiming as he handed it to me, "Here! All the prayers of Blue Lodge Masonry are to be found in that book! Confine yourself to the ritual as found in that book! The way you prayed to-night may be Christianity, but I'll assure you it is not Blue Lodge Masonry;" that I handed it back to him, telling him never to call on me to pray again as long as I was in the lodge; and how God in his mercy led me to renounce the entire system as being all of the devil.

On Tuesday I attended the union meeting in the M. E. church. The pastor, who is not a member of any secret order, came to me and requested me as a personal favor, that if I spoke in that meeting I should not mention the subject; that my speech the day before had stirred the people all up; that it would do no good and only divide the people, many of whom had come to him, and he now urged me not to mention it.

It looked to me as though I had to choose between Christ and this good but terror-stricken brother. Therefore I told him that I could make no such promise. He returned to the pulpit. At first out of sympathy for him I did think of leaving the church: but I prayed over it and saw that my way was to remain for the service, and did so.

When I spoke I related the request, (for the interview took place in sight of most of the audience) and stated that I feared to compromise myself in any such manner, and illustrated it substantially as follows:

"Suppose that a convert from the worship of Diana were among you, every one present would be ready to exclaim, 'Tell us your experience, brother! Let us hear all about it.' Every neck would be strained, and every ear would be open, to hear such an experience. But if a soul has been released from modern idolatry, he must keep silence. This, too, in the face of the fact that through it souls are going to perdition all around us." Then I finished by quoting the last verse of Ecclesiastes. I think that the heaviest cross I ever bore was to utter that testimony under the existing circumstances.

Then one of the brethren arose and stated that he believed that I had "sounded the key note for a revival of religion." When the meeting closed an old gentleman climbed over the petition between the seats to shake hands with me, and bid me God-speed. Said, he, "Those are my sentiments, and yet, a great many years ago, I helped to mob President Blanchard. But that was before your day, in the early anti-slavery struggle. Oh, he's all right. He and I are fast friends now, and have been many a year." His name is A. O. Howell.

At two P. M., Wednesday, I went to the union prayer meeting, led by the Presbyterian pastor in his church. He was careful to call by name on each one to pray and speak. Of course I was not called upon, and therefore had no opportunity to speak.

I attended the union meeting which was in the Baptist church, and was led by the pastor. The lesson read was first Thess., first chapter. The leader in his remarks referred to a conversation which he had with an Odd-fellow, who enquired why he had not attended a lodge feast last night. His reply was that he was not an Odd-fellow, and asked what was taught tonight in the order? He was told that teaching was "As ye would that men should do to you, do ye also unto them." He applied this Scripture to the very one who quoted it, by showing him that if he would obey it, he would become a Christian. The leader requested all to feel at liberty to speak, hoped that any who felt like doing so, would avail themselves of the opportunity.

After a number had spoken I arose and called attention to the ninth verse of the lesson, and remarked respecting Odd-fellowship, as the subject had been introduced by the leader of the meeting, that the entire ritual might be searched from beginning to end for the name of Christ, in vain. Christ is excluded from all of its religious teachings. One of the pastors had assured us that all present were Christians; such being the fact, in view of the lost condition of men and of the judgment, at which all shall give an account, it became us to examine the truth. "And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." I was continuing when to my surprise up jumped one of the pastors and rudely interrupted me by loudly protesting against my speaking, and said something about "This man had better hire a hall, if he wants to expose Freemasonry. He has disturbed every meeting we have had this week." While he was speaking most of the audience sprang to their feet. A woman behind me ordered me to "sit down, we don't want you to talk," and enforced her sentiments by striking me with her kid gloves. The whole room was in an uproar.

The leader announced aloud that it was time to close. Some one started the doxology and the audience were dismissed. G. T. DISSETTE.

IN CHAMPAIGN JAIL.

[After the experiences narrated in the above, Bro. Dissette had a trial of more severity, which he writes to us from the wretched jail of Champaign, during last Friday afternoon.—ED.]

DEAR BROTHER:—After mailing you my report to-day I proceeded to circulate tracts. While passing through the business portion of the city, engaged in this work, I went into the Matheney Hotel, to see a sick man. I asked the proprietor if he had any objections? He replied, "No sir. Go right up there. Have you seen the city marshal? He wants to arrest you," he added. "Where are you stopping?"

"He will find me at Mr. Conklin's," I replied, "but during the day he will find me on the street." I visited the sick man, and then continued distributing tracts. When I had passed them almost all over the city and was crossing the main street, I was hailed by the city marshal, Brown by name, I believe, who said, "Consider yourself under arrest." He took me before Justice H. H. Bryan on charge of "Peddling without a license." I pleaded not guilty on the ground that I was the National Christian Association's agent for Illinois. The city marshal asked me "What books are you selling? What are they about?"

"They are the publications of the N. C. A., showing up the anti-Christian character of Freemasonry."

"Did not you sell some? Are you not selling them?"

"Most certainly I am," I replied. "But I am doing so as agent of the Association."

"Ten dollars and costs," said the Justice.

"How much are the costs?" I asked.

"Three dollars," was his reply.

"What is the alternative?"

"Go to jail," he responded.

"Then I'll take the latter," I said. "Can I write to my wife and the Association at your desk?"

"Yes, sir, and here is paper," etc.

I wrote to my wife from his office, but the city marshal was in a hurry to go to dinner and said I could write in the jail. So giving the justice my watch and knife to lock in his safe, for the city marshal would have deprived me of them any way, the latter and myself made our way to the jail.

When he opened it, of all the sights that met my gaze this eclipses them. A cannon stove, dribbled ashes and cinders all over the floor, which is covered with dirt so thick in places that it can be scraped with a shovel. On a raised platform of bare and filthy planks lies an unfortunate girl with no bedding under her; for a tick, on the dirty plank lies a cloak of fur that cost her fifty dollars, and she has no covering. A partition divides this den into two compartments. In the middle of this is an upright, iron-barred gate. This the valiant marshal unlocked, opened, and I entered. Here I found a young man, prisoner, who last Sabbath night was at the M. E. church and heard me preach. He likewise has to sleep on the floor, and this place is more filthy than the first room.

For the first time in my life I am seated on an empty beer keg, the only furniture in the room. It is bitterly cold and nearly three o'clock, I guess. The snow drifts in through the iron grating at the air-holes; my fingers are stiff with cold. Both the other prisoners are asleep. The authorities brought the other prisoners their dinner three, if not four, hours since, but they have not brought me anything yet, and I find that I am taking a severe cold.

RELEASED AND TOLD TO LEAVE TOWN.

CARTER HOUSE, JAN. 8TH, 1886.—Sometime after I finished the letter which I wrote while in jail yesterday, I heard the lock on the outer door click, then it swung heavily back and the marshal entered and proclaimed that I was at liberty. "Come out; your friends have paid your fine and expect you to pay it back to them."

"No, sir; I'll not come out! I did not authorize them to pay my fine. I never will pay a cent on this matter. Who paid it?" I asked.

"I went up to the church where you disturbed the meeting, and those preachers raised a collection among them and the people, and said that it was too bad to have you in jail, and they hope that you'll leave the town. If you don't they will never help you again."

"Well," I replied, "I did not authorize them to interfere in my behalf, but since it is so, it will look like contrariness in me not to come out."

"Well, come out; and now that they have paid your fine, don't offer those books for sale again without a license; and get out of this town by the train."

"I'll not leave this town," I said, "until my work is done." I then shamed the marshal for keeping human beings in such a wretched condition, and told him that it was a disgrace to the entire city. I went to the justice's office and found him with my watch and knife in his hands waiting for me, surrounded by a number of men. He handed them to me, remarking that my fine was paid and that I was at liberty. He advised me to leave town.

I was informed, contrary to the city marshal's statement, that the ministers took no collection. Some one did go to the meeting and report that I was in the jail, and one of the pastors sent word to a man who has taken all the degrees in Odd-fellowship, expressing disapproval and requesting him to go down and see that I was released, which he did, and when I called on him to-day he said that he paid it out of his own pocket.

The marshal, who is a Mason, and who had followed me to the justice's office, said as he saw I was about to leave, "What are you going to do? Are you going to sell any more of those books?"

"Not until I hear from the N. C. A."

"Well, are you going to leave town?"

"No, gentlemen; I am here to stay until my work is done." I left them holding "open lodge."

I returned to my lodging-house, but as soon as it was known who was at the door my valises were thrust at me and I was informed that they could not keep me any longer. So out into the storm and deep snow I had to tramp, conscious that Masonic hate had deprived me of my room, and fearing that I would be unable to obtain another one because of it. In short, that the Masons had succeeded in "boycotting" me throughout the city. But I obtained a better room at the Carter House. It is a respectable hotel, with good accommodations at reasonable prices. A number of Masons board here, and they leer at me, talk at me, and if I mistake not some of them are leaving to-night because of my presence. The place is owned by a lady who is an excellent hotel-keeper. Of course I cannot tell what moment I may be re-arrested, so please bear this in mind and keep an eye open on this place as long as I'm in it.

I must acknowledge that I feel these indignities keenly. I am neither sphinx nor ox. Where can I obtain redress or sympathy in this city, only as I go to Him who has promised, "Lo I am with you even unto the end of the world." I thought, while looking through those iron bars, of Bunyan, John Newton, and of Jeremiah, because of the filthy condition of the prison in which he was plunged, and wondered if he had a filthier place than this. Do you wonder that I could sing, "Praise God from whom all blessings flow?" I know you don't, for you know the comfort we have in Christ. I have no assurance that ere you read these lines I shall not be re-arrested on some trumped up charge. The cold I took in that vile den may lay me up, for my head has ached all day and my eyes hurt me if I glance sidewise or move them. GEO. T. DISSETTE.

Anticipated troubles are harder to bear than real ones, because Christ does not support us under them.

CORRESPONDENCE.

CHRISTIAN POLITICS.

CLEARFIELD, Iowa.

There is an argument of the lodge power which will have some weight with good Americans if they allow it to take root in their hearts: "The N. C. A. had better not be organized in States; let it stay at Chicago, for it is a political machine."

The N. C. A. is a non-sectarian Christian Association composed of Christians of the different denominations opposed to secret societies. The American party is a child of this organization. All good things in all ages have been born of or come out of the church.

Wherever the organ of the National Christian Association, the Christian Cynosure, makes its weekly visits to regular subscribers, you will invariably find them to be inveterate enemies of the whole lodge system, and it is generally easy to obtain their subscription to the American. Whenever we help the Cynosure to a new subscriber, we are helping the American party and its organ, for the Pole Star of reform deals death to the lodge in every family it visits. Let good Americans be careful and not try to disfranchise their Christian mother.

CYRUS SMITH.

TELL IT ABROAD.

Tell what? That Freemasonry is worse than its worst men. General Butler found the institution too base to be longer tolerated by an unscrupulous politician, and went back on it when ruling in New Orleans. It was too much of a conspiracy against government for this not very scrupulous wireworker. Tell it to the world, that General Butler with all his faults, is better than Masonry. His political conscience revolted when the institution essayed to do its handy work in overthrowing the best government known. So he left the Masons..

Tell it to the clergy, to the church, to the Christian (?) editor. Will not our somewhat conscientious politician just enlist as missionary to preach to the preachers, and thrill their callous souls with the awful fact that Masonry is tenfold more a conspiracy against the Son of God than against any other known government. Here is the root meaning of the lodge—conspiracy against all wholesome government; but its animus is against Jesus. Its published lives are against him distinctively, pointedly. Now, dear General, will you not become our "Sam Jones" to preach to our Masonic clergy? Tell our Drs. of Divinity that Masonry is a pure antagonism to the Bible Jesus. Peradventure they do not know it. Well, what Drs. to be sure! Can not the N. C. A. raise a salary for the General if he will enter upon the proposed mission? I will contribute, for I have all confidence in the ability of the General, and I am convinced that his conscience is far in advance in rectitude, of the Masonic preachers. Let a "Beast" rather than an apostate teach us.

Very truly yours. NATHAN CALLENDER.

MASONIC BLASPHEMY.

DELAVAN, Ill.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—It seems to me height of wickedness or blasphemy for a man to assume or wear a title that belongs exclusively to the Christian's God, who alone is all-wise and omnipotent. A desire to be equal to the Most High was what made a rebellion in heaven, when one proud spirit said, "I will be like the Most High." Now, I can see no difference, except in phrasology, between Omnipotent and All-puissant. These two words express the same unlimited power, and can only belong to one being who must be supreme. Now, when this latter title is given to or assumed by the master of a lodge of Masons, as in the degree of "Knights of the East and West," it proves that Masonry is of heathen origin, and that the worshipful master is the sun-god of the lodge. Webster says under the word "blasphemy": "To arrogate the prerogatives of God."

Masonry blasphemes again when it assumes the power of making holy. In the ceremony of the degree above mentioned the All-puissant takes the ewer filled with perfumed ointment and anoints the head, eyes, mouth, heart, right ear, hand and foot, and then tells the initiate, "You have this day been made holy" (See Bernard's Light on Masonry). Here then Masonry claims moral purity as the result of its own immoral act; and, as no being has power to make men holy but God, Masonry blasphemes when it claims that power.

Again, Masonry blasphemes when it claims infinite wisdom. See lecture in Lodge of Perfection, in answer to question, "Who are you?" Answer: "I am a Grand, Elect, Perfect, and Sublime Mason, and there is nothing unknown to me."

Again, a little blood drawn from the candidate's arm is claimed to be the equivalent of that blood with which the saints in glory washed their robes. The S. W. says to the candidate in answer to his own previous question: "They are those who came here after passing through great tribulation, and have washed their robes in their own blood."

O my Christian brother, how dare you see that precious blood of the dear Redeemer thus profaned without raising your voice in solemn warning!

Take another glimpse at Masonic comment on divine revelation. Question: "What signifies the book sealed with seven seals, which none but one can open?" Answer: "A lodge or council of Masons, which the All Puissant only has a right to convene and open." Now let us see Masonically what is contained in these seven seals: 1. "One bow, one arrow, and one crown. 2. A two-edged sword. 3. A balance. 4. A death's head. 5. A cloth stained with blood. 6. The power to darken the sun, and tinge the moon with blood. 7. Seven trumpets and perfumes. (See Light on Masonry, 3. 243.) On which I offer the following brief comment: 1. The lodge contains the instruments of death (seals 1 and 2). 2. A disposition and will to murder its members (seals 4 and 5). 3. Power to obscure the light of the sun-god in the east (the worshipful master), by taking his life if he offends Masonry, as did Judge Whitney. Yours for light on Masonry. D. VAN DEVENTER.

SECTARIANISM CONDEMNED.

Christ sought and prayed for the concentration of his forces. "That they may be one, as thou, Father, art in me and I in thee." He in the person of God, has organized on earth one body, and placed the members in it "as it hath pleased him." Paul insisted upon this plan. "Let there be no divisions among you." He emphatically pronounced against schism and sect building, charging his fellow disciples to "mark them which cause divisions and . . . avoid them." Of these he declares, "They that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ." Figuratively, Christ himself represents his followers as being "one fold," under one shepherd. Now brethren of the Christ family, in anguish of soul, in view of the facts in the case, I ask what is our exhibit to the world? The answer is patent to the most obtuse observer.

In direct contradiction to the letter, and markedly so to the spirit of Christ's teachings, his followers stand before the enemy a divided and subdivided host.

In his letter to the Galatians, Paul says, "I marvel that ye are so soon removed from him that called you into the grace of Christ, unto another Gospel." It is truly a marvel of marvels that the disciples of Christ should persist in sustaining a suicidal policy. In the very nature of things an army divided against itself cannot conquer. The marvel is still further magnified when standing before the fact that good men, like John Wesley, Abel Stevens, and very many others who in unmistakable terms condemn, as being unscriptural, sect divisions, while at the same time they practically sustain them.

But, thanks be to God, the light is penetrating the thick clouds of darkness, and Christ's free men are casting off their self-riveted chains. Not long since a man well and favorably known as one of erudition and of vital godliness, Philip Schaff, has, in his report of the doings of another body, said to the so-called Evangelical Alliance of the United States, meeting in New York, "that one of the greatest drawbacks to the success of the Christian church to-day, was its denominational distinctions."

Denominational distinctions. What are they? Organized substitutions for the church on earth, founded by Christ, and against which he has declared the gates of hell shall not prevail.

We shall never bring our fellow men to Christ, and conquer the earth for our Immanuel, in our present divided and fractional condition.

R. W. LYMAN.

BIBLE LESSONS.

STUDIES IN JEWISH HISTORY.

LESSON IV, Jan. 24, 1886.—Captivity of Judah. 2 Kings 25: 1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT.—By the rivers of Babylon, there we sat down; yea, we wept when we remembered Zion. Ps. 137: 1.

Open the Bible and read the lesson.]

COMMENTS ON THE LESSON BY E. E. FLAGG.

1. The danger as well as folly of disbelieving God's Word. vs. 1–7. Unbelief was the prime cause of Zedekiah's fate. Josephus tells us that because of an apparent disagreement between the prophesies of Jeremiah and Ezekiel, one prophesying that he should be carried captive to Babylon, the other that he should not see Babylon, he flattered himself, encouraged doubtless by his courtiers with the belief that they were both wrong. When his eyes were put out by his cruel conqueror, and he was taken a blind captive to the Assyrian capital, he realized too late that inspiration cannot err. The seeming discrepancies of Scripture have always been a favorite theme with infidels, and many a soul willing to pin its faith on the sneers of the freethinkers has gone into eternity to bewail forever its miserable mistake. Note that Zedekiah based his disbelief on one isolated and trifling apparent discrepancy, ignoring the fact that in other and more important points the two prophets were in perfect agreement. Both alike warned, expostulated, and denounced, with the same solemn burden of approaching woe if they refused to turn from their evil ways, the sins of himself and people.

2. God's judgments are gradual but sure. vs. 8–11. Jerusalem was given space for repentance. Not speedily was her sentence executed. But the fiat went forth at last. The temple whose walls had been converted into "chambers of imagery" for the dark and unclean rites of Egyptian lodge worship could only be purified by fire Jeremiah expressly declares that the judgment on Jerusalem was "for the sins of her prophets and the iniquity of her priests." It was right that judgment should begin at the sanctuary. But if God spared not "his holy and beautiful house" because defiled with idolatry, will he spare churches defiled with the heathen rites of lodgery? They may not be burned with fire by a foreign foe, but they may suffer a worse fate in total spiritual extinction.

3. God's judgments are mixed with mercy. v. 12. We notice the fulfillment of the divine promise of mercy to all who left the doomed city and submitted themselves to the invaders. In Ezekiel's vision of the sack of Jerusalem, a mark is set "upon the foreheads of the men who sigh and cry for the abominations done therein." God has his mark to-day on all who grieve in secret for our national sins. In his sorest judgments he saves a remnant. In the darkest cloud he sets a bow of promise.

LIGHT FROM THE WORD.

Where do we read a vivid description of the horrors of the siege? Lam. 4. Of the sack of Jerusalem? Ez. 9. What does Jeremiah say amid all these judgments? Lam. 3: 33.

From Peloubet's Notes.

Nebuchadnezzar surrounded Jerusalem, captured it, and carried away many of the treasurers of the temple, and many of the leading persons of Jerusalem, to Babylon. Among them was Daniel, then a very young man, and his three companions (Dan. 1: 1–6). This was the beginning of the 70 years' captivity foretold by Jeremiah (Jer. 29: 10; 2 Chron. 36: 21).

After this Judah was ravaged by roving bands of surrounding nations, Moabites, Syrians, and Ammonites (2 Kings 24: 2).

Toward the end of his reign, so full of iniquity and rebellion, Nebuchadnezzar again came to Jerusalem, and bound King Jehoiakim in fetters to carry him to Babylon (2 Chron. 36: 6), but he seems to have died in Jerusalem before the plan was carried out (2 Kings 24: 6; Jer. 22: 18, 19). His son Jehoiachin (Jeconiah) was made king in his stead. He was only 18 years old, and was as bad as his father. He seems to have immediately rebelled against Babylon, for he had reigned but three months when Nebuchadnezzar sent back his army to Jerusalem, captured the city, sent a great amount of treasures from the palace and the temple to Babylon, with 10,000 of the more important of the people (2 Kings 24: 9–15.

Among these were King Jehoiachin, who lay 37 years in prison at Babylon and then was released (2 Kings 25: 27–30); the prophet Ezekiel (Ezekiel 1: 1, 2; and the great grandfather of Mordecai, Queen Esther's cousin (Esther 2: 5, 6).

God did everything he wisely could to prevent his people from rushing down to their own destruction. (1) He laid upon them several lesser evils as warnings to avoid the way which would lead them swiftly on to final destruction. These were devastations of the country from which a few years would suffice to recover. Then Jerusalem was captured and part of its treasure removed, but the city was not destroyed, and the temple stood. Kings were made captive as a warning to coming kings; but new kings were chosen and the kingdom remained. Leaders of the people were carried captive to Babylon, but their places could be filled. These were warnings, not destruction. (2) The doom came slowly, and in mercy, to give time for thought and repentance. (3) Prophets were sent to warn and entreat. Jeremiah had been speaking God's word to them for forty years in Jerusalem. For nearly ten years Ezekiel, also, from the land of captivity in Babylonia had been uttering earnest words to the Jewish Palestine. We cannot understand the history of these times without reading these Prophets; nor do we see the meaning of the Prophets without a clear and comprehensive view of the history and the times. These prophecies are "the pulpit literature of the age." (4) All through the last investment and siege, in those times of despair, there were sent by Jeremiah gleams of hope, and promises of return and prosperity, of the Messiah and his kingdom. (See Jer. 23: 3–8; 30: 15–22.

"The city was broken up." Broken into, i. e., a breach was made in the walls, and the city was entered at midnight (Josephus; Ezek. 12: 2–12). The entrance was effected by the northern gate.—Stanley. This part of the wall could most easily be reached by their battering-rams. The entry thus effected was into the lower, or northern city. This brought the invaders to the "middle gate," or gate of communication between the lower and upper cities, or between Jerusalem proper and Zion; and as this gate was near the palace, and this line of defence was indefensible, the king at once took to flight.—Todd.

"Slew the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes." The punishment of Zedekiah was doubly cruel; first, his being made to witness the execution of his own sons, and then his being deprived of sight, so that the last scenes impressed upon him would be the death agonies of his children. According to Jer. 52: 10 and 39: 6; all the nobles of Judah, i. e., those who had fled with the king, were also slain before his eyes. "Put out the eyes of Zedekiah." Blinding has long been a common oriental punishment. In Persia, during the time of the younger Cyrus, men deprived of their sight were a common spectacle along the highway." This penalty is still inflicted by the Persians on princes who are declared to have forfeited their right to the throne.—Freeman.

"And carried him to Babylon." According to Jewish tradition Zedekiah was, like other slaves forced to work in a mill at Babylon. Jeremiah tells us that he was kept in prison till he died (52: 11).

Thus were reconciled in a very remarkable way prophecies, apparently contradictory which had been made concerning him. Jeremiah had propesied distinctly that he would be carried to Babylon (Jer. 32: 5; 34; 3). Ezekiel had said that he should not "see Babylon" (12: 13). His deprivation of sight before he was carried to the conqueror's capital fulfilled the predictions of both prophets.—Cook.

"Every great man's house." This clause limits the preceding one. The writer means to say, not that every house whatsoever was destroyed, but that all those of any pretentions were set on fire. The temple, the palace, the houses of the nobles, were deliberately set on fire. The very bones and framework of Jerusalem appeared to be wrapped in flames. The walls and gates seemed to lament and cry, as they sunk into the earth. The sepulchres, even the consecrated catacombs of the kings, were opened, and the bodies thrown out to the vultures and beasts of prey, which flocked to their frightful feast outside the walls. Jackals wandered even over the sacred hill of Zion. Some of the princes were hung up by their hands on the temple walls; others were carried off to execution at Riblah. The havoc and carnage in the streets were such that passers-by avoided every one they met, lest they should be defiled by their bloody touch. Age and youth, men and women, alike fell victims to the passion or cruelty of the conqueror.—Stanley.

Standard Works

—ON—

SECRET SOCIETIES

FOR SALE BY THE

National Christian Associat'n

221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois.

A complete Catalogue sent free on Application.

Terms cash with order, or if sent by express C. O. D. at least $1 must be sent with order as guaranty that the books will be taken.

[Unless otherwise designated these works are bound in paper.]

ON FREEMASONRY.

Freemasonry Illustrated, a complete expositiou of the seven degrees of the Blue Lodge and Chapter. A historical sketch of the institution and a critical analysis of each degree, by Pres. J. Blanchard of Wheaton College; 640 pages, 75c, cloth $1. First three degrees, 376 pages, 40c, cloth 75c.

Knight Templarism Illustrated. A full illustrated ritual of the six degrees of the council and commandery, 341 pages, 50c, cloth $1.

Mah-Hah-Bone, comprises the Hand-Book, Master's Carpet and Freemasonry at a Glance, bound in one volume; 589 pp. cloth $1.

The Master's Carpet, or Masonry and Baal Worship Identical, explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the lodge; 420 pages cloth, 75c.

Adoptive Masonry Illustrated. An illustrated ritual of the five degrees of female Freemasonry, by Thomas Lowe; 20c.

Light on Freemasonry, by Elder David Bernard. To which is appended "A Revelation of the Mysteries of Odd-fellowship (old work), by a member of the craft." Cloth, $1.50. First part, Light on Freemasonry, 416 pages, paper, 75c.

Freemasonry Exposed, by Capt. Wm. Morgan. The genuine old Morgan book republished; 25 cents.

Freemasonry at a Glance, illustrates every sign, grip and ceremony of the first three degrees; 6c.

Grand Lodge Masonry, its relation to civil government and the Christian religion, by Pres. J. Blanchard; 5 cents.

Judge Whitney's Defense before the Grand Lodge of Illinois; 15c.

Oaths and Penalties of Freemasonry, as proved in court in the New Berlin Trials; also the letter of Hon. Richard Rush; 10c.

Stearns' Inquiry into the Nature and Tendency of Freemasonry; 338 pages, 40c, cloth 60c.

Masonic Oaths Null and Void; or, Freemasonry Self-Convicted, by E. Ronayne; 207 pages, 40c.

Bernard's Appendix to Light on Masonry; 25c.

Freemasonry Self-Condemned, by Rev. J. W. Bain; 20c.

Masonry a Work of Darkness. By Rev. Lebbeus Armstrong (Presbyterian), a seceding Mason of 21 degrees; 15c.

The Mystic Tie, or Freemasonry a League with the Devil, by Mrs. Lucia C. Cook; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. James Williams, M. E. Presiding Elder, a seceding Master Mason; 10c.

Are Masonic Oaths Binding on the Initiate? By Rev. A. L. Post; 5c.

Freemasonry Contrary to the Christian Religion; 5c.

Thirteen Reasons Why a Christian Should not be a Freemason, by Rev. Robert Armstrong; 5c.

Oaths and Penalties of the 33 Degrees of Freemasonry; 15c.

ON ODD-FELLOWSHIP.

Revised Odd-fellowship Illustrated. The complete revised ritual of the lodge encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees; 50c, cloth $1.

Odd-fellowship Judged by its own Utterances; its Doctrine and Practice Examined in the Light of God's Word, by Rev. J. H. Brockman; 25c, cloth 50 cents.

Sermon on Odd-fellowship and other Secret Societies, by Rev. J. Sarver; 10 cents.

OTHER SECRET SOCIETY RITUALS.

Ritual of the Grand Army of the Republic, and the Ritual of the Machinists' and Blacksmiths' Union. The two bound together; 10c.

Knights of Pythias Illustrated. By a Past Chancellor; 25c.

United Sons of Industry Illustrated; 15c.

Exposition of the Grange. Edited by Rev. A. W. Geeslin; 25c.

Temple of Honor Illustrated; 25c.

Good Templarism Illustrated; 25c.

Five Rituals bound together—Odd-fellowship, (old work), Knights of Pythias, Good Templars, the Grange and Grand Army of the Republic; cloth, $1.

Rituals and Secrets Illustrated—Temple of Honor, Adoptive Masonry, United Sons of Industry and Secret Societies Illustrated; $1.

MISCELLANEOUS.

"Between Two Opinions, or the Question of the Hour," by Miss E. E. Flagg, a reform story founded on fact, told with wonderful strength and interest, showing the power of the secret labor and temperance societies, and the prohibition movement. Cloth, $1.00.

In the Coils; or the Coming Conflict. A historical sketch, by a United Presbyterian minister, vividly portraying the workings of secretism in the various relations of every-day life. Cloth $1.50.

Holden with Cords; or, the Power of the Secret Empire. A faithful representation in story of the evil of Freemasonry, by E. E. Flagg; 50 cents, cloth $1.

Finney on Masonry. The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry, by Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin; 35 cents, cloth 75 cents.

The Broken Seal; or, Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan, by S. D. Greene; 40c, cloth 75c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, by Gen. J. W. Phelps; 50c.

John Quincy Adams' Letters on the Nature of Masonic Oaths, Obligations and Penalties; 35c, cloth $1.

General Washington opposed to Secret Societies. This is a republication of Gov. Josepb Ritner's "Vindication of General Washington from the Stigma of Adherence to Secret Societies." 10c.

College Secret Societies, Their customs, character and the efforts for their suppression. By H. L. Kellogg. 25 cents.

Secret Societies. A discussion of their character and claims, by Rev. David McDill, Pres. J. Blanchard and Rev. Edward Beecher; 15c, cloth 35c.

History of the Abduction and Murder of Captain Wm. Morgan; 25c.

Reminiscences of Morgan Times, by Eld. David Bernard; 10c.

Sermon on Secretism, by Rev. R. Theo. Cross, pastor Congregational church, Hamilton, N. Y. 5c.

Prof. J. G. Carson, D. D., on Secret Societies; 10c.

Freemasonry a Fourfold Conspiracy, address of Pres. J. Blanchard before the Pittsburg Convention; price 5c.

A Masonic Conspiracy, by Mrs. Louisa Walters; 20c.

Sermon on Secret Societies. By Rev. Daniel Dow, Woodstock, Conn. 5c.

Discussion on Secret Societies. By Elder M. S. Newcomer and Elder G. W. Wilson, a Royal Arch Mason; 25c.

Pres. H. H. George on Secret Societies; a powerful address; 10c.

Secrecy vs. the Family, State and Church. By Rev. M. S. Drury; 10c.

Narratives and Arguments, showing the conflict of of secret societies with the constitution and laws, by Francis Semple; 15c.

Sermon on Masonry, by Rev. J. D. Brownlee; 5c.

History of the National Christian Association; 25c.

Secret Societies, Ancient and Modern, and College Secret Societies (bound together); cloth, $1.

HAVE YOU EXAMINED

The list of Books and Tracts for sale by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. Look it over carefully and see if there is not something you want for yourself or for your friend. Send for full catalogue to 221 W. MADISON STREET, CHICAG

ANTI-MASONIC LECTURERS.

GENERAL AGENT AND LECTURER, J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

STATE AGENTS.

Illinois, G. T. Dissette, Cynosure office.
Indiana, S. L. Cook of Albion
Iowa, C. F. Hawley, care Cynosure.
Missouri, Eld. Rufus Smith, Maryville.
New Hampshire, Eld. S. C. Kimball, New Market.
Ohio, W. B. Stoddard, Columbus.
Wisconsin, Isaac Bancroft, Monroe
Kansas, Robert Loggan, Clifton.

DEGREE WORKERS.—[Seceders.]
J. K. Glassford, Carthage, Mo.

OTHER LECTURERS.

C. A. Blanchard, Wheaton, Ill.
N. Callender, Thompson, Pa.
J H. Timmons, Tarentum, Pa
J. H. Baird, Templeton, Pa
T. B. McCormick, Princeton, Ind.
E. Johnson, Dayton, Ind.
H. A. Day, Williamstown, Mich.
J. M. Bishop, Chambersburg, Pa.
A. Mayn, Bloomington, Ind.
J. B. Cressinger, Sullivan, O.
W. M. Love, Osceola, Mo.
A. D. Freeman, Downers Grove, Ill
E. Mathews, Spring Arbor, Mich.
Wm. Fenton St Paul, Minn.
E. I. Grinnell, Blairsburg, Iowa.
Warren Taylor, South Salem, O.
J. S. Perry, Thompson, Conn.
C. F. Hawley, Wheaton, Ill.
J. T. Michael, New Wilmington, Pa.
S. C. Kimball, New Market, N. H.
S. G. Barton, Breckinridge, Mo.
Joel H. Austin, Goshen, Ind.
J. F. Browne, Berea, Ky.
E. Barnetson, Haskinville, Steuben Co, N. Y.
Wm. R. Roach, Pickering, Ont.
D. A. Richards, Brighton, Mich.
R. J. Williams, Winnebago City, Minn.

ANTI-SECRECY TRACTS.

Orders filled at the rate of 50 cents per 1,000 pages at the office, or 75 cents per 1,000 pages by Mail.

Contributions are solicited to the TRACT FUND for the free distribution of tracts.

In this series of Tracts will be found the opinions of such men as Hon. J. Q. Adams, Wm. H. Seward, James Madison, Daniel Webster, Richard Rush, John Haucock, Millard Fillmore, Chief Justice Marshall, Seth M. Gates, Nathaniel Colver, President Finney, President Blanchard, Philo Carpenter, Chancellor Howard Crosby, D. L. Moody, and others.

NO.		NO. PAGES.
1	Historical Sketch of the N. C. A.	4
2	Voice of the Empire State in Condemnation of Masonry	4
3	Address to American Pastors on the Secret Lodge	4
4	Freemasonry in the Family	4
5	Pres. Finney on the Duty of Christians toward the Lodge	4
6	Warning against Masonry	2
7	To the Boys who Hope to be Men	2
8	Freemasonry Modern Heathenism	4
9	Ministers at Rival Altars	4
10	A Pastor's Confession	4
12	Alexander Campbell's Estimate of the Lodges	4
14	True and False Templarism	4
15	Secrecy and Sin	4
16	Selling Dead Horses	4
17	History of Masonry	4
18	Despotic Character of Freemasonry	4
19	Freemasonry a Christ-excluding Religion	5
22	Masonic Oatbs and Penalties sworn to by the Grand Lodge of R. I.	4
26	Address of the Niagara Association on the Murder of Morgan	4
28	Nathaniel Colver and Howard Crosby on Secret Societies	2
30	Masonic Oaths Null and Void	4
33	Hon. Wm. H. Seward on Secret Societies	2
36	Masonic Chastity	4
37	German Tract: Why a Christian should not be a Freemason	4
38	Masonic Oaths and Penalties	4
39	Should Freemasons be admitted to Christian Fellowship?	4
42	Duty and Ability to Know the Character of Masonry	4
44	D. L. Moody on Secret Societies	4
45	Ought a Seceding Mason to Keep his Lodge Oath?	4
48	Tract in Hollandish: On Knowing and Opposing Masonry	2
50	Swedish Tract: To Boys who Hope to be Men

National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The Master's Carpet.

BY

E. Ronayne.

Past Master of Keystone Lodge No. 639 Chicago.

Explains the true source and meaning of every ceremony and symbol of the Lodge, thus showing the principles on which the order is founded. By a careful perusal of this work, a more thorough knowledge of the principles of the order can be obtained than by attending the Lodge for years. Every Mason, every person contemplating becoming a member, and even those who are indifferent on the subject, should procure and carefully read this work. An appendix is added of 32 pages, embodying

Freemasonry at a Glance,

which gives every sign, grip and ceremony of the Lodge together with a brief explanation of each. The work contains 424 pages and is substantially and elegantly bound in cloth. Price, 75 cents. Address

National Christian Association,
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

The American Party.

FIRST NOMINATION for President at Oberlin, Ohio, May 23, 1872.

PLATFORM ADOPTED at Chicago, June 28, 1872.

NAME ADOPTED at Syracuse, N. Y., June 3, 1874.

PRESIDENTAL CANDIDATES:

1872—Charles Francis Adams and Joseph L. Barlow.

1876—James B. Walker and Donald Kirkpatrick.

1880—J. W. Phelps and Samuel C. Pomeroy.

1884—J. Blanchard and J. W. Conant nominated; the former withdrawing, Samuel C. Pomeroy was nominated. Both nominees withdrawing, the support of the party was generally given to John P. St. John and William Daniel, candidates of the Prohibition party.

AMERICAN PLATFORM.

ADOPTED AT CHICAGO, JUNE 20, 1884

Viewing with deep concern the corrupt and unsettled condition of American politics, and witnessing with alarm the fearful prevalence of caste and clannishness by which our citizens are being arrayed in hostile bands, working secretly to compass political ends, a method directly and powerfully tending to increase corruption, to destroy mutual confidence, and hasten disruption and bloodshed; and having no hope of adequate remedy for these evils from existing parties, and believing the foundation of a party based upon the fundamental principles of the Declaration of American Independence, both inevitable and indispensable:

We, therefore, a portion of the American people, believing with our fathers that we have our rights and liberties, not from men or parties, but from God; believing in the Christian marriage, and not in Mormonism; believing in the religious democracy of the New Testament, and not in the despotism of the lodge; believing, also, with our Scotch and English ancestors, that civil government, though ordained in God, is "founded in nature, not in grace," and, therefore, that all have equal civil rights; while we abhor the idea of enforcing religion or controlling conscience by human laws and penalties as calculated to make hypocrites, not Christians, and savoring of the days of priestism, the fagot and the stake, we at the same time as firmly believe that atheism and priestcraft are twins and both alike foes to human liberty and welfare. We further most firmly believe that a government without God has none but lynch power, and is destitute of all legitimate authority to maintain civil order, to swear a witness, to try a criminal, to hang a murderer, to imprison a thief; and while we consider government without God as a mere usurpation, we regard all religions and worships invented by men, and so having no higher than human origin, as mere swindling impositions and cheats. We believe in peace and in national arbitration as a means of perpetuating it; yet we as profoundly believe that the bravery and blood of our soldiers have bought us the peace which we enjoy, and we honor the memories of the dead and will be just to the claims of the living; and we take up and prolong the strain raised by the women of this country: "For God, and home, and native land," and trust that this beautiful and patriotic motto will soon be not only echoed by their voices, but sustained by their votes.

We, therefore, solemnly adopt and present the following, as containing a brief synopsis of the principles of our government, by which we intend to be governed in casting our votes. We hold:

1. That ours is a Christian and not a heathen nation, and that the God of the Christian Scriptures is the author of civil government.

2. That the Bible should be associated with books of science and literature in all our educational institutions.

3. That God requires, and man needs a Sabbath.

4. We demand the prohibition of the importation, manufacture, and sale of intoxicating drinks.

5. We hold that the charters of all secret lodges granted by our Federal and State Legislatures should be withdrawn, and their oaths prohibited by law.

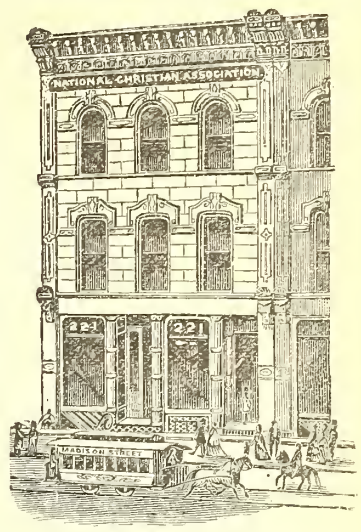
6. We are opposed to putting prison labor or depreciated contract labor from foreign countries in competition with free labor to benefit manufacturers, corporations or speculators.

7. We are in favor of a revision and enforcement of the laws concerning patents and inventions; for the prevention and punishment of frauds either upon inventors or the general public.

8. We hold to and will vote for woman suffrage.

9. That the civil equality secured to all American citizens by Articles 13, 14 and 15 of our amended National Constitution should be preserved inviolate, and the same equality should be extended to Indians and Chinamen.

10. That international differences should be settled by arbitration.



11. That land and other monopolies should be discouraged.

12. That the general government should furnish the people with an ample and sound currency.

13. That it should be the settled policy of the government to reduce tariffs and taxes as rapidly as the necessities of revenue and vested business interests will allow.

14. That polygamy should be immediately suppressed by law, and that the Republican party is censurable for the long neglect of its duty in respect to this evil.

15. And, finally, we demand for the American people the abolition of electoral colleges, and a direct vote for President and Vice President of the United States.

N. C. A. BUILDING AND OFFICE OF THE CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE,

221 WEST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

PRESIDENT.—F. W. Capwell, Dale, N.Y.

VICE-PRESIDENT—Rev. W. T. Meloy, D.D., Chicago.

COR. SEC'Y and GENERAL AGENT.—J. P. Stoddard, 221 W. Madison st., Chicago.

REC. SEC'Y. AND TREASURER.—W. I. Phillips, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

DIRECTORS.—Alexander Thomson, M R. Britten, John Gardner, J. L. Barlow, Joseph Travis, William Moerdyk, O. F. Lumry, M. C. Ranseen. L. N. Stratton, Thos. H. Gault, C. A. Blauchard.

The object of this Association is:

"To expose, withstand and remove secret societies, Freemasonry in particular, and other anti-Christian movements, in order to save the churches of Christ from being depraved, to redeem the administration of justice from perversion, and our republican government from corruption."

To carry on this work contributions are solicited from every friend of the reform.

FORM OF BEQUEST.—I give and bequeath to the National Christian Association, incorporated and existing under the laws of the State of Illinois, the sum of ——— dollars for the purposes of said Association, and for which the receipt of its Treasurer for the time being shall be sufficient discharge.

THE NATIONAL CONVENTION.

PRESIDENT.—Rev. S. Collins, D. D

SECRETARIES.—Rev. S. A. George. H. L. Kellogg and M. N. Butler.

STATE AUXILIARY ASSOCIATIONS

ALABAMA.—Pres., W. A. McAlpine; Sec., G M. Elliott; Treas., E. Fishel, all of Selma.

CALIFORNIA.—Pres., L. B. Lathrop, Hollister; Cor. Sec., Mrs. U. P. Merrill, Woodland; Treas., C. Ruddock, Woodland.

CONNECTICUT.—Pres., J. A. Conant, Willimantic; Sec., Geo. Smith, Willimantic; Treas., C. T. Collins, Windsor.

ILLINOIS.—Pres., Wm. H. Chandler, Dover; Sec., H. L. Kellogg; Treas., W. I. Phillips Cynosure office.

INDIANA.—Pres., William H. Figg, Reno Sec., S. L. Cook. Albion; Treas., Benj. Uls Silver Lake.

IOWA.—Pres., Geo. Warrington, Birmingham; Rec. Sec., J. W. Dill, Mediapolis; Cor. Sec., C. D. Trumbull, Morning Sun; Treas., J. A. Laird, Wayne.

KANSAS.—Pres., J. P. Richards, Ft. Scott; Sec., W. W. McMillan, Olathe; Treas., J. A. Torrence, N. Cedar.

MASSACHUSETTS.—Pres., S. A. Pratt; Sec., Mrs. E. D. Bailey; Treas., David Manning, Sr.; all of Worcester.

MICHIGAN.—Pres., D. A. Richards, Brighton; Sec'y, H. A. Day, Williamstown; Treas., Geo. Swanson, Jr., Jackson.

MINNESOTA.—Pres., E. G. Paine, Wasioja Cor. Sec., W. H. McChesney, Fairmont; Rec. Sec'y, Thos. Hartley, Richland; Treas., Wm. H. Morrill, St. Charles.

MISSOURI.—Pres., B. F. Miller, Eagleville Treas., William Beauchamp, Avalon; Cor. Sec. A. D. Thomas, Avalon.

NEBRASKA.—Pres., S. Austin, Fairmount, Cor. Sec., W. S. Spooner, Kearney; Treas J. C. Fye.

NEW HAMPSHIRE.—Pres., Isaac Hyatt, Gilford Village; Sec., S. C. Kimball, New Market; Treas., George Crosby, Gilford Village.

NEW YORK.—Pres., F. W. Capwell, Dale; Sec'y, John Wallace, Syracuse; Treas., M. Merrick, Syracuse.

OHIO.—Pres. Wm. Dillon, Dayton; Cor. Sec., J. P. Lytle, Sago; Treas., J. M. Scott, Alexandria.

PENNSYLVANIA.—Pres., A. L. Post, Montrose; Cor. Sec., N. Callender, Thompson; Treas., W. B. Bertels, Wilkesbarre.

VERMONT.—Pres., W. R. Laird; Sec., C. W. Potter.

WISCONSIN.—Pres., J. W. Wood, Baraboo, Sec., W. W. Ames, Menomonie: Treas., M. R. Britten, Vienna.

WEST VIRGINA.—Pres., D.B. Turney; Sec., John Bosley, Grafino. Treas., H. B. Higgins Petroleum.

The Christian Cynosure.

EDITORS.

J. BLANCHARD. HENRY L. KELLOGG.

CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 14, 1886

Children can not be too numerous if they are good ones. if bad, one is too many.

Every man consulted thus far is strong for a general Christian convention against the secret lodge system.

President Fairchild, of Berea College, seems eminently fit to be the chairman of an inter-church convention against the lodges. He is located between the white and colored races, and has the confidence of both. He comes near belonging to no sect. He has been sixteen years at his present post and steadily successful. He is quiet and dignified, but positive and determined; he understands and hates the lodge thoroughly, and is held in high esteem by the thinking, giving New England people.

EDITORIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 4, 1886.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—So far as I have come as yet in "the South," slavery has made color a "dissolving view," and the agony and struggle of the small aristocracy to keep up the color line would be laughable, if it were not wicked.

A pious young man, son of a Methodist preacher who is a Mason, who roomed with me at a little hotel, told me that his folks had taken and raised a young colored boy who was greatly attached to him, as they were children together.

"Do you shake hands with him, when you go home?" I asked.

"No, sir!" was his astonished reply.

The thought that Christ may have been of as dark a color as one-half of the present negroes, never seems to have occurred to these Christians; nor do they seem to see that caste makes a white skin honorable, though steeped in crime; and a dark face dishonored, though worn by an "Uncle Tom," and beaming with lofty intelligence, as many of them certainly do.

It is amusing to memory, that when I was a youth at Andover (Mass.) Seminary, I looked on Morse's old atlas, and, charmed with the then town of Knoxville, embosomed in mountains, and watered by the Tennessee river winding among them, I longed and sought by correspondence to get a school here with the somewhat romantic notion that I could study the slave system, and perhaps find a place to insert a lever under our nation's great curse. Now, behold, I am here and there are no slaves! But Satan is not dead yet: nor less active than then, but more so. In this mountain city, whose scenery is more beautiful than any I have seen, except, perhaps, Berea, there are twenty-nine churches and forty-two lodges! I cannot get the statistics (these chartered bodies make no reports to the State), but a heavy initiation is paid to the lodges; none to the churches. The lodges tax and govern their own members; the churches get voluntary subscriptions: and if the cash paid to the two systems were ascertained, the people would be astonished to find they are paying more than ten dollars to support the worship of devils (Rev. 9:20) to one dollar to keep up the worship of Christ. At Richmond, Ky., an old colored pastor of a church of 600 or 700, said in all sincerity, "The secret societies are injuring our churches, but my people was all rushin' into them and I was left alone, so I chosed the Odd-fellows." Thus far the universal, unwavering testimony is that secret orders are a curse: but all join them in self-defence: "That none might buy or sell save he that had the mark of the beast in his forehead or in his hand."

I have been pleasantly disappointed at Berea. The Kentucky Association had been disbanded to get rid of a brother and church who were receiving Freemasons, and an annual convention provided for in its place: another instance of the lodge devil rending before being cast out. I feared alienation would come to the Berea brethren; but piety and sense seem likely to prevail better than in the vicinity of Dayton and Chicago. A general convention may with God's blessing heal the whole. There are none of the anti-Sabbath, no-government heresies which disturbed and split the Abolitionists. All say they are opposed to the lodge-curse, and if they will do as they say, all will be well.

CHATTANOOGA, TENNESSEE, JAN. 4th, 1886.—Here I am, with Lookout Mountain on one side, Mission Ridge on the other, and Chickamauga farther back between them; but all close by. The night shades those fields of blood where deeds of terrible valor were done; where battle raged from the valleys, up—up—above the clouds; where Captain Blanchard fell; where Tourtelotte, though but a lieutenant, fought his company till his leg was torn in pieces; and where thousands laid down in their last bloody sleep, because our nation forsook the God of their fathers, and violated his law.

I have just come down from Knoxville, the home of Parson Brownlow, whose house still stands there, and where Longstreet undertook to dislodge Burnside, but was beaten back in a rout. I slept in the colored college which stands on a rise where the rebel fort stood, surrounded by Longstreet's rifle pits. The works are still there: and death missles are dug up, once aimed at the lives of men. Andy Johnson sleeps fifty-five miles east of Knoxville, in the little village of Greenville, among the hills. While coming down, I said to a fellow traveller, "I came into Richmond, Ky., with one of Morgan's men."

"I was with Morgan when he was killed at Greenville, where Andrew Johnson is buried," he replied. Morgan was on a raid. His men were encamped in the town, and he should have been with them. But he was a tall, handsome man, with a heavy moustache, and he went to lodge in the house of Mrs. Willams. One of her daughters had married a Union officer, and she let the Union troops know where Morgan was and how to take him. A handful of men surrounded the house; Morgan ran out down in the orchard and they shot him. He was not a general, but a raider."

I then asked him, "How do you look upon your part in those scenes?"

"As a piece of consummate folly, which I should not have been in had I been old enough to know better."

"Is that opinion common?"

"Yes: so far as I know. They all see that slavery was of no use to us, and are glad it is wiped out."

The Kentuckian at Richmond said the same thing in other words. This gentleman lives in Texas and his brother trades in Arkansas. They are both agreeable, Christian gentlemen and professed Christians; one an Odd-fellow and the other a Mason. Both have given me their address for anti-secret documents, and promised to have their wives read them to them. These three opinions come from three States; Texas, Arkansas, and Kentucky. The Arkansas brother was for Blaine, but he says that prohibition is making steady progress in Arkansas, and is sure to rule saloons out of the State. "The drinking men vote to put them out."

I purpose to make our readers thoroughly acquainted with the opinions of the masses where I journey throughout the South. One of these gentlemen said his father was educated in Tusculum College, where the Feemsters' father graduated, and a son and son-in-law were professors. Mrs. McCormick, of Chicago, has just given the college a new building.

I am more and more convinced that the new political party will carry the South first; that the hope of the country lies here. To-morrow I hope to be in Nashville, and by Saturday in Memphis. J. B.

WHY CHURCHES FAIL AND MISSIONS SUCCEED.

Prof. F. W. Fisk, of Union Park Theological Seminary, Chicago, writes suggestively in the Advance upon the work of the churches compared with the city missions. He notes that no religious meetings of whatever kind seem to draw the young men from the street as he observes them near the Cynosure office; and those brought into the churches are not converted. He gives these figures: "As the result of a year's work in the 285 churches which belong to the Rock River Methodist Conference, with an aggregate membership of 26,712, only 476 persons were received to full membership, and 2,422 persons were received as members on probation. Making every allowance for removals by death, by letters, and the transfer of members to other conferences, the additions, all told, probationary and full, do not exceed 3,837. It is doubtful if any of the other denominations in this territory can make so good a showing. Look now at some of the results which come from pursuing a radically different method. The Pacific Garden Mission which is little more than a series of nightly prayer meetings, with two or three extra services on Sunday, which is largely supported and carried on by Col. Clark and his wife, report 3,016 hopeful conversions for the year, and 3,665 earnest seekers. The mission is in a room not much more than fifty feet square, and is surrounded by saloons, gaming-houses and brothels. No one can for a moment pretend that Col. Clark's work is as important as the need of the churches mentioned above, but we cannot help asking, if there is not something in Col. Clark's method of reaching men for ministers to learn?" Yes, there is much to learn; and one or two points will readily suggest others.

1. The missions have one object—salvation. The churches have not. Whatever they profess, as a rule, our city churches are not seeking first of all to save souls. If they were their converts would be numbered by ten thousands.

2. The class of persons reached by the missions are generally the poor and outcast and hope forsaken, men and women who have learned that there is no strength in themselves, whose extremity is God's opportunity. The young men who would go to the churches have some means and self-sufficiency, and they have already been tricked into the devil's church, the lodge. Their time and attention is already engaged, and they hear from the pulpit no warning to turn them from their allurements; no word of power to break the snare.

In the missions men are often testifying of the power of God, by his Spirit, to save them from the secret lodges, and we know of no mission in this city where such testimony is not encouraged. To how many church prayer meetings can Prof. Fisk point us where such testimony would be allowed? When the Holy Spirit comes to a people in power he gives deliverance from this bondage of secretism over the churches, and we shall see the young men throwing off this slavery, and the young women the slavery of fashion, and accepting the liberty of the sons of God.

THE MORMON CANCER.

Mormonism is being crowded sorely. The United States Supreme Court decided a few days ago (Dec. 14) in the case of Angus Cannon which was appealed, affirming the judgment of the Supreme Court of Utah, which fined Cannon $300 and sentenced him to six months imprisonment for violation of the Edmunds' law. The Mormons in Salt Lake have also been balked at a vile plot by which they attempted to entrap the Governor of the Territory and other Federal officials. The scheme was to establish houses of prostitution to operate on this class especially, and contracts were entered into with certain women who were to be the agents in this infamy. Judge Zane dealt with this business with a firm hand; he offered to excuse any juryman who feared the consequence of a faithful verdict. He said they must defend themselves, if necessary even by shooting their assailants.

But the most important feature of the Mormon case is the passage in the Senate of the new Edmunds bill by a vote of 37 to 7.

The bill provides that, in any prosecution for polygamy or unlawful cohabitation the husband or wife of the accused shall be a competent witness, and may be compelled to testify; that all the laws of Utah which declare that prosecution for adultery can be commenced only on the complaint of the husband or wife are annulled; that all marriages in the Territories of the United States shall be certified in writing by the parties and the person performing the ceremony, and that this certificate, when produced in court, shall be prima facie evidence of the facts set forth; that female suffrage shall not be allowed in the Territory of Utah; and that no illegitimate child, born subsequently to the passage of the bill, shall be entitled to inherit any portion of its father's estate. In addition to these provisions, the bill declares that the laws of the legislature of Utah incorporating the Mormon church, are disapproved and annulled, so far as the same may preclude the appointment by the United States of certain trustees of the church corporation, and that it shall be the duty of the President, with the advice and consent of the Senate, to appoint fourteen trustees of said corporation, to hold office for two years, who shall annually report to the Secretary of the Interior in regard to all the business affairs and operations of such corporations. The bill also abolishes the so-called Perpetual Emigrating Fund Company and all the Territorial laws of Utah incorporating the same.

The bill was three days under discussion, and was chiefly opposed by Senator Teller, of Colorado, a Freemason of thirty-three degrees in Pike's council. He was supported by Morgan, of Alabama, and Call, of Florida. Even Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, opposed the bill because of the clause abolishing woman suffrage in Utah, but saved himself from utter ignominy by saying that he would vote for the bill in spite of his objection if his vote had been needed to carry it. Senator Blair, of New Hampshire, the temperance champion, also voted against the bill!

The provisions of this new act are in a degree extraordinary and in violation of some of our traditions, but our public men are coming to know that this evil cannot be put down by any ordinary measures. The new law aims to overthrow the whole polygamous system, by more severe measures against polygamy itself, and also by provisions designed to break up the despotism of the Mormon priesthood. If this power can be broken, its oaths annulled, and its priests deposed there is more to be expected of this measure than of any other yet proposed in Congress.

THE BAND OF HOPE, the Juvenile branch of the Chicago Anti-secrecy Christian Association, will on the 19th of this month have completed its fourth year. The children are taught sewing in addition to the other good things they learn there. They are taught Bible texts about their duty to God and their duty to man. The evils of ways that lead to intemperance, secret societies, profanity and tobacco, as well as other sins, are showed them in contrast with the blessings that follow seeking first the kingdom of God and his righteousness. Friends who can aid this work by attending the meetings of the band which are held in Carpenter Hall Saturday mornings at 10 o'clock, or can donate money for the work, will please address Mrs. E. A. Cook, 316 Washington Boulevard, Chicago. The work among the children we regard as of great importance.

THE WEEK OF PRAYER is closed, but in many churches is continued in revivals. This annual season of prayer was suggested first by a band of devoted missionaries at Lodiana, Northern India. Their object was made known in a powerful appeal to all the people of God throughout the world, in which they urged that the Christian church should return to the pattern shown them by the early Jerusalem church, which, in obedience to the word of the Lord Jesus, continued ten days in prayer until the Holy Spirit came in power. United and importunate prayer for the gift of the Holy Spirit in power upon all the churches of Christ was the burden of the appeal. The call was heard and the season soon became widely observed, but directly fell into formalism by the supervision of a well-meaning but meddling committee, which began issuing topics. A son of the missionary leader in this movement is now a pastor in a Western State; he republished his father's appeal some years ago, and showed that the one object suggested was of prayer for the Holy Spirit. This is fundamental and covers and includes all minor objects. It is a note-worthy and cheering fact that the conservative old American Board lately issued a similar appeal in the Missionary Herald for January. It is such an appeal as the National Christian Association, the National Reform Association, the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, all missionary and all Christian reform bodies may heartily join, for until the Holy Spirit comes with power upon the churches of Christ they will neither separate themselves from the lodge, or the saloon, or from the secularizing, Sabbath-breaking immorality that grossly abounds. Shall there not be a united appeal for such prayer next year? The American Board's appeal begins thus:

"We regret to see that the British Evangelical Alliance, in the list of topics it has put forth for the approaching Week of Prayer, has again ignored the one object had in view by those who originally proposed this observance. As a matter of history it is unquestionable that those who at the first invited the Christian world to set apart the week had no thought of asking their fellow believers to unite in general supplications for all sorts and conditions of men. They had before their minds one specific need, a need felt by Christ's devoted servants in all parts of the world—that the power of the Holy Ghost should be given to accompany the preached Word. Recalling the command given by the risen Saviour to his early disciples to tarry in Jerusalem until they were endued with power from on high, and remembering the results at Pentecost which followed that prayerful waiting, these men who first issued the call for the Week of Prayer urged Christians to seek the same enducment in the expectation of a similar result. The one object for supplication which they set before themselves and others was 'that God would now pour out his Spirit upon all flesh, so that the ends of the earth might see his salvation.'

This is not a narrow theme. None can be broader. The presentation of it holds the thought to the fundamental need of this and of all times, the indwelling of the Divine Spirit in the hearts of his followers in such fulness and power that mighty works shall be wrought by them. The work of the Spirit should be clearly apprehended; his person should be honored. Any tarrying together which helps the people of God to appreciate the supreme importance of this gift of the Holy Ghost will prove an inestimable blessing to the church and to the word,"

—The California Free Methodist conference lately presented their editor, Rev. Joseph Travis, chairman of the N. C. A. Board, with a fine walking cane from the wood of the black musquite tree.

—The Free Methodist calls attention to the fact that the Methodist Episcopal Board of Bishops have appointed Judge Foraker, governor elect of Ohio, as fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the M. E. church South. As a political champion of a political compromise with the liquor party of Ohio, and as a high Mason, and advocate in Masonic trials, the selection could hardly have been more inappropriate.

—The severely cold storm wave that has just swept across the whole country to lose itself in the wastes of the Atlantic, is in abrupt contrast to the mild and open weather that has prevailed for several weeks. About New Year's time overcoats were thrown aside in St. Paul, and pansies were shown that had just blossomed in the front yard of a citizen.

—Hon. Joseph Cook, the greatest lecturer living, begins another course in Boston about February 1st. The topics have not been announced, but we hope there may be such a word on the lodge iniquity as shall ring through the press and among the pulpits of the land. It is to be regretted, perhaps, that the national church conference has not met to strike the key note to this discussion so full and strong that aided by Mr. Cook it might reverebrate to every part of the country.

—Bro. Dissette's letters which reached this office Monday were something of a surprise. Instructions and advice were immediately sent him, with plenty of ammunition to continue the battle, and promise of heavy reinforcements shortly to follow if the necessity demands. The Champaign lodges will yet find they have overstepped their line of safety and have brought themselves before the bar of public opinion in such a manner as they will wish they had avoided.

—M. N. Butler, general agent and organizer for the American party, passed on to Wisconsin Monday evening, after spending a few days in this city and Wheaton consulting with friends on the outlook for the political part of our work, and planning for future campaigns. He is profoundly in earnest in his efforts against the lodge, and loses no point of vantage from which to strike. From Wisconsin he will go farther East and clear the way for an early and earnest campaign.

—Bro. Butler sometime since sent to the ex-rebel, Jeff Javis, a circular which mentioned the name of the latter as a Mason. Davis takes the pains to deny the allegation through some Grand Lodge official. The text of this denial is not at hand as we go to press. It will be given next week. In spite of these denials, there are such proofs of the statement which are not easily explained, that we are inclined to doubt the sincerity of the denial and mistrust some concealed duplicity in the matter.

—The Chicago Legal News in an editorial note calls attention to the fact that Norman T. Gassette, of Conclave fame, has opened a real estate and law office in this city: "For several years Mr. Gassette devoted his entire energies to Masonry. He was chairman of the Triennial Committee and Commander of the Lines in 1880, and in 1883 he took Apollo Commandery to Europe. Had he devoted one-half the time he did to Masonry to his own business, he would undoubtedly be worth several hundred thousand dollars more than he is to-day. He now devotes more time to business and less to Masonry." This eminent Knight Templar, Commandant of the Lines, etc., comes down at last to the practical business of life, confirming what the Cynosure has always claimed that the successful and really eminent business men of the country do not "run with machine" as Masons or secretists of any other brand.

—Many of the readers of the Cynosure who read Miss Flagg's latest and best story, "Between Two Opinions," in part or wholly as it appeared in these columns, have secured the handsome volume in which it has been re-issued. They will read with ardor and approval the press comments in another column. One of the best of these, because so much more than was expected from the Congregational paper of San Francisco, is the notice of the Pacific. Those who do not own the book should read and consider of how much good they are depriving themselves. The Pacific says:

It is a story intended to do service against the saloons, and in favor of Woman's Christian Temperance Work, and especially against the secret orders —Freemasons, Odd-fellows, Knights of Labor, etc. No reflecting man can doubt that any combination of picked classes and individuals is liable to great abuse. It is obvious, also, that secret orders are specially capable of being used in a selfish and unprincipled way. Whether because of this liability the method of reform should be one that would exterminate such orders, is a question. But it must do good to have books written which show the excesses and dangers to which these societies are exposed; for our civilization is honey-combed with them, and in many places citizens, who really don't care for them, appear to be obliged to join a half-dozen of them for fear of losing some business. Life is short. There is plenty of serious, square work to be done, and every man should beware how he entangles himself in bonds which imperil his freedom for the highest ends of existence."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The "three unclean spirits, like frogs, that came out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet," doubtless represent the powers of darkness that are coming up to the great battle, and which are to be overthrown by the people and the power of God. It may be difficult to point to them specially, but it is very evident that the vast brood of secret orders belong to this triad of evils. It is a matter of thanksgiving that even the purblind conservatives are beginning to see the sources of danger, and are not afraid to oppose them.

Last Sabbath President Cleveland, as usual, attended the First Presbyterian church, and Dr. Sunderland preached from the text, "Occupy till I come." In enumerating the evils that are in our pathway as a people, and which Christians must strive to destroy, he included Mormonism, Nihilism, Communism, the social evil, and trades unions. This is the first public utterance against this terrible despotism, that is to-day robbing the poor of employment and of the comforts of life, that has come from the lips of any pastor in this city, and the only public utterance, except Judge Snell's testimony last summer, outside the special lines of our reform. I was specially glad that it fell on the President's ears and that he was reminded that there is a higher power than these organized combinations which propose to rule or ruin our nation, and which will do both if permitted. I was reminded of Bossuet, who having, with a courage inspired by a sense of his responsibility, pictured the terrible wickedness and danger of a corrupt ruler, and having wrought up his congregation to the highest point of interest, slowly pointed his finger at the dissolute King, Louis XVI., and said, "Thou art the man." Of course there was neither the courage nor the occasion for its exercise that there was in the case of the French preacher, but it is refreshing to know that some one is willing to speak of popular iniquities in the presence of our chief magistrate.

New Year's day, like Christmas, was the occasion of extensive festivities and a vast amount of drunkenness and crime. It would, in some sense, be an inestimable blessing, especially to the poor, if these holidays could be blotted from the calendar. Some of those who had professed conversion in our Central Union Mission, and fortunately escaped the the dangers of Thanksgiving, were overcome by Christmas and New Year's, and have shown what manner of spirit they were of. Some, however, have since manifested penitence and we hope they may be fully restored. The difficulty in all these cases was a want of decision and positiveness in their consecration to God. They did not burn the bridges behind them. Not so with one who has recently found the Lord at our mission rooms. He had been a thief, but not a drunkard, and had gone under several assumed names. He at once renounced his names, and assumed the true one, gave to one of the board of directors his false keys and is willing to suffer if he can but be delivered from his sins.

Another, who had taken the first degree in Masonry, expresses his abhorrence of the whole system and his determination to trust in the church of the Living God as his sole society. Another, who at twenty-one had $10,000 and spent it all in drunkenness in spite of his being a member of the Good Templars, Temple of Honor, etc., says that he never found any power sufficient to break up the dominion of appetite until he found it in Christ. He has given up his tobacco and finds no need of help from any human and selfish organization.

H. H. HINMAN.

Religion ought to be carried into politics, but politics ought not to be carried into religion. The former principle makes a man a Christian politician; the latter makes him a political Christian. The former subordinates his politics to his religion; the latter subordinates his religion to his politics. He who follows the former is governed in his political conduct by religious considerations; he who follows the latter is governed in his religious conduct by political considerations. Hence, the former seeks only to please God; the latter seeks only to please men. The former aims to do right and to be right; the latter aims to do only what will make him popular.—Christian Statesman.

THE HOME.

The illustration of a Hindoo temple riven asunder by the roots of a peepul tree, the seed of which had found lodgement in its roof, has often been used in connection with the gradual but steady overthrow of the ancient superstitions by the living power of Christianity. The incident as first related by an Asiatic missionary has been happily versified by Mrs. Margaret E. Preston, in the Sunday-school Times, as follows:

From his home in an Eastern bungalow,
In sight of the everlasting snow
Of the grand Himalayas, row on row,

Thus wrote my friend:—
"I had traveled far
From the Afghan towers of Candahar,
Through the sand-white plains of Siude-Sagar;

"And once, when the daily march was o'er,
As tired I sat in my tented door,
Hope failed me, as never it failed before.

"In swarming city, at wayside fane,
By the Indus bank, on the scorching plain,
I had taught—and my teaching all seemed vain.

"'No glimmer of light (I sighed) appears;
The Moslem's fate and the Buddhist's fears
Have gloomed their worship this thousand years.

"'For Christ and his truth I stand alone
In the midst of millions; a sand-grain blown
Against your temple of ancient stone

"'As soon may level it!' Faith forsook
My soul, as I turned on the pile to look;
Then rising, my saddened way I took

"To its lofty roof, for the cooler air;
I gazed and marveled—how crumbled were
The walls I had deemed so firm and fair!

"For, wedged in a rift of the massive stone,
Most plainly rent by its roots alone,
A beautiful peepul tree had grown;

"Whose gradual stress would still expand
The crevice, and topple upon the sand
The temple, while o'er its wreck should stand

"The tree in its living verdure!—Who Could compass the thought?—The bird that flew
Hitherward, dropping a seed that grew,

"Did more to shiver this ancient wall
Than earthquake, war, simoon, or all
The centuries, in their lapse and fall!

"Then I knelt by the riven granite there,
And my soul shook off its weight of care,
As my voice rose clear on the tropic air:—

"'The living seeds I have dropped remain
In the cleft; Lord, quicken with dew and rain,
Then temple and mosque shall be rent in twain!'"

THE HEATHEN AT HOME.

There is surely a very wide contrast between the laymen of our city churches of to-day and the laymen of the early church, whose deacon Phillip went down to the slums of Palestine—to Samaria—and preached Christ unto them; whose deacon Stephen was not content to manipulate church monies, but was also "mighty in the Scriptures;" and whose private members "went everywhere preaching the Word."

If every Christian in America followed that pattern, there would be a home missionary for every four persons in the land. "Would to God that all the Lord's people were prophets, and that he would put his Spirit upon them!" God gives not only to every church its work, and to every minister his work, but especially "to every man his work." Are you doing yours? Are you earnestly working your pastorate of four? Infidelity can say nothing so severe against our christianity as our own statistics, when a church with hundreds of members leads to Christ but a score in a year. We need another revival, like that of Wesley's and Whitfield's time, of lay preaching and lay testimony. That would do much to solve the problem of great cities.

The Nineveh of "heathen at home," in each of our cities, is not to be conquered by waiting for them to come to the prophets, but by the prophets, clerical and lay, going for them, without waiting for any better commission than Jonah had from God. A few hours which I spent with a city missionary in the lowest "dives" of New York city, in a region which he called "the end of the race," resulted in bringing four persons out of those dens of the devil to the meetings of that night and the next, two of them having come out "to stay," by God's help. Such work is only paying what we owe God to those whom he has appointed to receive it. "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; both to the wise and the unwise." (Rom. 1: 14).

It is very difficult to do Christian work as a visitor among uptown church neglecters; but he who comes to the poor in Christ's name, finds everywhere "an open door" and a respectful hearing. Our "heathen at home" are nearly all intellectually familiar with Christianity, and in their filth have profound respect for purity. The entrance of a missionary into the lowest dens hushes the wildest revelry. In visiting one hundred and thirty-eight homes of the poor in Brooklyn in 1882, in behalf of the American Bible Society, I found, with universal courtesy, a suggestion of the heathenism that is at our very doors, in the fact that in eighty-four of those homes, mostly Protestant, there was no Bible.

In the light of these facts let us read anew the words of Christ commending those who visited him by visiting His despised and needy ones: "I was sick and ye visited me."—W. F. Crafts, in Christian Intelligencer.

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

It seems a very silly business, stopping the plow and wasting the time of a man and a boy and four horses to catch a mouse.

A number of Christian gentlemen on a committee, with business to do for the Lord which concerns thousands of souls, will wrangle over a point of order, or a matter of detail of the most minute importance, delaying great movements upon a subject not worth so much as one poor little mouse. A whole denomination of Christians will debate and dispute over merely personal differences which only in the smallest degree affect the grand enterprise in which heaven and earth are concerned. A body of Christians will split into pieces over a petty quarrel, a personal feud, or an infinitesimal point of opinion, while all around them the masses are perishing for want of the Gospel. Thus a miserable little mouse, which no cat would even hunt after, takes them off from their Lord's work. Good men will spend months of time and heaps of money in inventing and publishing mere speculations, while the great field of the world lies unploughed, and the hemlock of vice is running to seed all over it. In other matters, a little common sense is allowed to rule; but in the weightiest matters, foolishness is sadly conspicuous. Oh, that love to God and a concern for the salvation of men would lead good men to use their brains, and leave little things alone while eternal matters ask their attention!

Reader, let us kill a mouse when it nibbles our bread; but let us not spend our lives over it. Let us give our chief attention to the chief things—the glory of God, the winning of souls for Jesus and our own growth in grace. There are fools enough in the world, and there can be no need that Christian men should swell the number.—Sword and Trowel.

RESCUE THE PERISHING.

One of Boston's honored ministers said to me that he was hurrying from one part of the city to another, to meet a friend, when, looking down, he saw at his side a little sparrow fluttering with its wings. Hurriedly passing on, he thought of the piteous cry, and was kept awake two hours hearing the cry of that hurt sparrow. God, he said, had taken care of him till he fell, then he left him there for me to take care of, and I didn't. That man of God had his sleepless hours in remembrance of that incident, and doubtless for years hence he may hear the piteous cry of that wounded bird.

Did you pass a sparrow yesterday—some poor man on the street, hungry and desolate—some soul God had helped so far as your feet, that you might give your help to him? If to all this you may say, it is only morality, I would answer with Coleridge that this is all in morality. A great deal is now said about ethical questions. Ministers, it is urged, do not know how much we need ethics; but the one sentence which holds both to philanthropy and ethics, is that of the Lord Jesus Christ, "I do always those things which please Him." When this becomes the law, the pattern and inspiration of life, then ethics has begun to be preached; and it is hope in the prevalence of this law that makes it possible for us to live.

"BOGS."

During a series of meetings recently held in London, we noticed a well dressed lady, who was a regular attendant at all the services. She always managed to get a seat in about the same position of the hall, near the platform. She was a most attentive listener. She never engaged in the singing, but sat through all the services with a perfectly contented and satisfied expression on her face. Day after day, through three or four weeks, we watched her. She had become a sort of fascination. One day we asked a lady who was on the platform in the choir seats, if she knew her.

"O yes," was the reply, "very well."

"Is she a Christian?" was our next query.

"No," replied our informant, with an abrupt tone of voice, as if she did not care to say anything more about her; "she is a bog."

"A bog?" we repeated, not quite understanding what was meant.

"Yes," was the short, sharp reply, "a bog."

Still mystified, we repeated the question: "A bog?"

"Yes, a B O G, spelled with capital letters; that is what she is. Don't you know what a bog is?"

"Yes, I think I do," we replied; in our country, at least, it is a bit of marshy ground, or a stagnant pond, which catches the surface drainage of the surrounding country, but which has no outlet. It is usually covered with a green slime, and is the home of wild water-weeds, and all sorts of reptiles."

"Well, that is what she is; she is a bog. She is found at all the religious meetings in London. She is a marsh; she has an unlimited capacity for hearing sermons, and receiving all kinds of religious instruction; but she has no outlet. She is never known to do anything for Christ; she never speaks to a soul; she never gives to any cause, though she has money. She never does anything but just absorb, absorb, absorb. She is a bog. We have a lot of them in London, and that is what we call them."

We did not pursue the question any further, but we have kept up a good deal of thinking ever since. We have never called anybody a bog to their faces; we have never spoken of any particular persons to others as being bogs, but we have looked over a good many congregations, and as our eyes have rested upon certain professed Christians, we have been unable to keep the word, or at least the thought, "B O G," from rising to our lips. We pass the word along; it is a good one.—Words and Weapons.

A CRISS-CROSS DAY.

"Come, Amy, it's seven o'clock; get up.

It was a winter morning, and Mrs. Strong was calling her little daughter.

Amy awoke at the sound of her mother's voice, but she did not get up right away.

She lay still, thinking how nice and warm it was in bed, and how cold it must be out of doors. She knew by the grating of wheels over the frozen earth outside that it was a cold day, very cold.

That reminded her of a poor woman whom she had seen knocking at the door of an opposite house the night before; and then she began to think how grand it would be to be grown up, and rich like their neighbor, Mrs. Jones, and to have poor people coming to the door all the while and asking for help, and never to send them away disappointed, because she would have enough money to give them all something.

Then how grateful they would be, and how much they would love her, and how they would speak of her as the benevolent Mrs ——. She had not quite decided what her name should be, when her father came to her door.

"Amy, are you ready for breakfast? Come down stairs right away if you are."

There was a sudden end to the day dream. Amy jumped up and dressed herself just as fast as she could.

She was in such haste that she did not get her hair very smooth, and, sad to relate, she knelt down to say her prayers while she was buttoning her dress. Of course she could not think of what she was saying, and so she repeated "Now I lay me down to sleep," instead of "Now I wake and see the light." Then without any real thought of asking the Lord Jesus to be with her through the day, she hurried to the breakfast table. The rest of the family were through eating by that time, and Amy's food being cold did not seem to be as good as usual.

After her meal she had to help her mother with the housework, but I am afraid her part of it was not very well done, because she had to hurry so much in order to get ready for school.

As she felt in her pockets for her mittens she found two pennies there which somebody had given her the day before. She glanced at the clock to see whether she would have time to stop at the candy store, and made up her mind to run the risk of doing so.

She was leaving the shop with two sticks of peppermint, carefully rolled up in a piece of brown paper, when she met a school-mate.

This little girl, whose name was Katy Brown, was the daughter of a very poor woman.

She was shabbily dressed. Indeed, her clothing was not thick enough to keep her warm, and her face was so drawn and pinched that it looked as though it ought to have belonged to an old woman rather than to a little girl.

"Won't you give me some candy, Amy? I haven't had any in ever so long."

"Then ask your mother to give you money and let you buy some; I want mine myself."

Could that have been Amy Strong who answered so unkindly and selfishly? Was it the Amy Strong who had been thinking that morning how nice it would be to help everybody? Was it the Amy who had promised her mother at the commencement of the year that she would try to grow more like Jesus every day?

When the two children reached the school the teacher was calling the roll. Amy was just in time to say "late," and to have a long black mark put opposite her name.

That worried her so that she could not think about her geography lesson when she tried to study it; and then in the class, when she was asked, "What is the capital of Maine?" she said, "Androscoggin."

This was so funny that all the girls laughed—all but Amy herself, who was so angry that she almost cried.

It was just as bad all through the session. Amy made one mistake after another, and at last the teacher told her that she must stay after school to study.

How long that hour was! The hour in which she was "kept in." It seemed as though it would never be over. But it was at last, and then Amy rushed home to her mother to be comforted.

"Oh, mamma, isn't it dreadful? Everything has gone criss-cross all day, and I didn't mean to be naughty at all!"

The tears came then thick and fast. When the shower was over Mrs. Strong coaxed Amy to tell her the whole story of the day's misdoings.

"I think," she said kindly, "that my little girl made two mistakes before breakfast. The first was in not minding her mamma at once, and the second was in not asking the Lord Jesus to be with her through the day. Let me teach you a verse that Christ taught his disciples. It is this: 'Without me ye can do nothing.'"

Without his blessing neither children nor grown people can hope to have either pleasant or useful days.—The Christian Intelligincer.

MAMMA'S KISS.

A kiss when I wake in the morning,
A kiss when I go to bed,
A kiss when I burn my fingers,
A kiss when I bump my head.

A kiss when my bath is over,
A kiss when my bath begins,
My mother's as full of kisses
As nurse is full of pins.

A kiss when I play with my rattle,
A kiss when I pull her hair;
She covered me over with kisses
The day that I fell down stair.

A kiss when I give her trouble,
A kiss when I give her joy;
There's nothing like mother's kisses
To her own little baby boy. —Sel.

GOING TO SCHOOL IN CHINA.

The written Chinese is not an alphabetic, but a sign language; that is, the words are not expressed by letters, but by signs or characters, each word having its own special and distinct sign, each differing from all the others. There are as many as ten thousand in common use, and twenty-five thousand—some say more, and one author says two hundred and fifty thousand—different characters in in their written language. To learn these twenty-five thousand, or even the ten thousand, is almost an impossibility; so it is not probable that there lives any one person who can read all Chinese books.

The men of that country respect and value education; and most of them are proud of any ability to read they may possess. They even pretend to be able to read when their knowledge of the charaeters is very small. When they come into the Christian chapels, each one is ready to accept a hymn-book, and most of them know enough of numbers to find the place; but it is not an unusual thing to find a man singing from a book that he holds upside down.

If the men had time and money to spare, all would no doubt get an education, but poverty forbids. Only few women can read. It is hardly thought worth while to send a girl to school.

Schools are not free in China, nor are they usually open to all. Occasionally benevolent men hire a teacher or open a school to teach those who have time to learn and yet no money to pay; but most of the schools are supported by the relatives of the pupils. A number of families usually unite and hire a teacher for their children; though in the homes of the rich a special teacher, or it may be several teachers, are employed to educate the children. While there are schools supported by the government, the pupils are expected to pay in presents to ihe teachers. It is said that an allowance is also made by the government to the successful pupils in these schools.

There are no school houses, as we think of them, in China. Schools are taught in any room that may afford shelter from cold and heat, sun and storm. These are sometimes only sheds; at other times small, dark rooms connected with a dwelling; and not rarely are they parts of some idol temple. The furniture consists of a seat and a table for the teacher, and benches and desks for the scholars. Those for the pupils have usually very little ornament or beauty. Occasionally some sentences from noted writers, or the names of wise men, adorn the walls.

When the boys meet at the beginning of a term, though a scholar may enter at any time, they are examined by the teacher as to their knowledge. If it be a child's first day at school, he is soon and with little ceremony started on the road to learning. In former days the father who brought his son, led him, after an introduction to the teacher, to the name of Confucius, or of some other great name of the past, and taught his boy to bow to that name as though reverencing his greatness and worshipping his memory. This custom is more and more neglected now, and may soon be forgotten.

When the school is opened the teacher calls around the boys who are equally far advanced, and reads a line or two of their lesson. As soon as his voice is still, all at once shout out the words he read. The teacher listens and corrects any mistakes; then he has them repeat the line and continue the repetitions until all can read it correctly. They are then sent to their seats to fix both sound and sign of the words in their minds. Others are called up to go through the same course, until all have received their lessons. The boy who has never read a word is taught to study in the same way, the only difference being in the book from which the lesson is given. The book for beginners called the "Three Character Classic," because composed of short sentences of three words each.

The Chinese scholars all study aloud, and often each tries to outdo his neighbor in shouting. That they think is hard study. When all are diligently studying the teacher may be able to hear a good-sized clap of thunder, but ordinary sounds outside do not disturb his meditation. When there is a lull in the sound, the teacher speaks or raps on his desk, and the harmonious inharmony redoubles its volume. The Chinese think that noise and study go together.

When a boy is ready to recite, he takes his book to the teacher, and, as is said in China, "backs the book," that is, he turns his back on book and teacher, and recites the lesson. If well recited a commendation and new lesson are given, and the pupil returns to his desk to add to the volume of sound already filling the room.

The boys are also, at the beginning of their education, taught to write the characters; and in these two studies they may spend a year and even several years. After the pupil has learned to read many characters, the teacher begins to explain the meaning of the words and phrases read. After awhile the scholar is taught to write sentences and compositions of his own; he may also be taught a little history, but not much besides. Grammar, arithmetic, geography, philosophy, and other studies are seldom taught, in many schools never. Probably, except as compelled by business, not one Chinaman in a hundred thousand knows anything about other languages; and their knowledge of other nations is very slight. To the ordinary Chinaman the world is very little more than a square plot of ground a hundred miles or more across, with his own home in the centre.

A boy designed for business must gain his business education, especially a knowledge of accounts and letter writing, in places of business, not in the school. Business is for business, schools for reading.

The length of time spent at school varies from one day to a life-time. The Chinese system of education, such as it is, gives opportunity for a man to study till he dies of old age, and it is not an unheard-of fact for a grandfather, father and son to be students at the same time and place, each studying with the hope of graduating with the highest degree at Peking. It may be that the grandson will graduate first, and the grandfather receive his degree, too, before death closes the school to him.—Christian Weekly.

TEMPERANCE.

IMMENSE PROHIBITION MEETING IN CALIFORNIA.

I arrived in Los Angeles from Chicago Monday afternoon, December 21st, and found a beautiful city of 30,000 inhabitants, situated some eighteen miles from the coast, and possessing the loveliest climate under the sun. While the compositors on the Cynosure freeze at their cases, our party are enjoying a temperature of 50 to 70 degrees and feasting themselves daily on oranges, persimmons, bananas, pears, and apples which now load the trees. But I cannot stop to speak of these things, for I must tell you of something on altogether different lines.

At the corner of Main and Fourth is an immense wooden tabernacle, just completed, and used mainly for religious purposes. But on the evening of December 26th, an audience of 3,000 people assembled in the tabernacle to hear Prohibition discussed by one of its ablest champions, Hon. John B. Finch. It was quite a surprise to me to see such a gathering in the State that has more liquor dealers in proportion to the population than any other.

A local Prohibitionist, whose name I didn't get, spoke briefly (after the choir had sung a selection from Gospel Hymns), and introduced Rev. O. C. Wheeler, of Oakland. The reverend gentleman said he was one of California's earliest settlers, having come to 'Frisco on the first steamer that entered the Golden Gate. That was all right. He said he was a Prohibitionist, and had been engaged in the work for many years. That was all right, too. He was a Good Templar, and spoke in very high terms of the order and its "work." That wasn't all right. The order numbered 15,000 in California. The reverend gentleman had the unsought honor of being Grand Worthy Chief Templar of California—the highest honor which it was in the order in that State to bestow! It was indeed an exalted position, but this evening he had the pleasure of introducing to the citizens of Los Angeles a gentleman who had been even more highly honored, and who occupied a still more exalted position than himself; a gentleman in the electric glare of whose glory as a Good Templar his own modest tallow dip was made to cast a shadow; a gentleman who enjoyed the superlative honor of being Grand Worthy Chief Templar of the entire world—

HON. JOHN B. FINCH.

A hearty round of applause greeted the biggest duck in the puddle. Mr. Finch informed us that during the past year he had been traveling in the interest of the order, and had visited hundreds of points from Winnipeg to Florida, and from the Pine Tree State and the Bay of Fundy to Southern California. The order was first organized, as a local temperance society, in central New York in 1851. At the outset its methods, etc., were all open, and the society held no secrets. Soon it began to spread, and now the ritual is printed in eleven different languages, and is used in fifteen. The singing of the Opening Ode encircles the earth with a never-ending belt of song. The order includes Mohammedans, Buddhists, pagans, Christians; but it does not include men who do not believe in a God. (The same may be said of hell,—for a man must have some conception of God before he can so sin against him as to become culpable.) The order has spread as no church ever has spread, and as no church ever can spread. Mr. Finch then reverted to British slavery, and pointed out the antagonism that had existed between the theory of the universal fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man and that institution, deducing therefrom the tenet that whenever forces antagonistic to each other become embodied in the civilization of a nation bitter conflict was the inevitable result. As an instance he cited slavery in our own nation, and gradually coming round to his subject proper, the temperance movement, suddenly gave us, in explosive style, the sentiment of Patrick Henry at the Virginia Convention concerning the certainty of impending conflict. The orator then digressed slightly to canvass the ideas of our mutual dependence upon each other, and of responsibility for our influence upon our fellows, taking for a text the words, "We can't go to heaven on our own hook." Quickly swinging round again, he declared, "Either religion is a lie, or the doctrine that we have a right to license men to harm and destroy our brothers is a lie. Either your theory of government is wrong, or your theory of right to license that which debases and damns its citizens is wrong."

Speaking directly of the movement, Mr. Finch said: "You can't laugh it down; you can't jeer it down; you can't sneer it down; you can't bull-doze it. It is here to stay, until the evil which brought it into existence is abated. * * You can't kill it. During the last year there has been enough old clothes burned in effigy to kill any cause that could be killed."

The testimony of life insurance companies as to the relative longevity of drinkers and abstainers was briefly touched upon, and then followed an opening of the subject in its relations to marriage and the home. Here the speaker grew very pathetic and eloquent, eliciting frequent and hearty applause. As his way of stating that a man should live virtuously, and failure on his part so to live should be held as execrable as in the case of a woman, Mr. Finch said: "Vice is never respectable because it wears breeches." Several illustrations were given to show that vice was equally wicked and contemptable in either sex. Referring to legal prohibition he said: "We believe in reaching down a helping hand to a poor fellow who has fallen, and helping him out of the hole; but we believe in plugging up the hole, to keep other poor fellows from falling into it." A funny item of Mr. Finch's lecture was his comparison of bedbugs and lice to saloon-keepers—both being parasites, living off the blood of others. There were more than 200,000 of the latter class of parasites in our country. The orator then left his subject and spoke for some minutes on the Chinese question, taking the side that's popular out here, and iterating the sentiment, "The Chinese must go!" After giving a brief prospectus of the Prohibition party all over the country, Mr. Finch closed and bade his immense audience good-night and good-by.

A collection was taken for the Good Templars in Los Angeles, and after singing No. 7 in the Gospel Hymns, the benediction from G. C. Wheeler dismissed the audience.

I'm a Prohibitionist from hat to boots, but I despise and shrink from all secret orders, no matter what their ostensible object. I'm a Christian as well as a Prohibitionist, and won't go anywhere unless Jesus can go along. V. M. PEEL.

SUGGESTIVE.

It is the duty of the Government to make it easy for the people to do right, and difficult for the people to do wrong.—Gladstone.

Not the least of many reasons for opposition to secret societies is this one that is incompatible with a pure, progressive Christianity. This must necessarily be the character of its work when Scripture is perverted. Mock prayers are offered and a false trust cultivated. This being true in general of its work, every votary must suffer, in a measure, a deterioration in his spiritual life and powers. The misspent time, wasted means and foolish lodge services and largely worldly companionship are exceedingly detrimental to piety and spiritual growth and they cannot be blended with the salvation of the soul. "Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers."—Highway of Holiness.

The calamity at the Nanticoke mine develops some of the most pathetic incidents that have been witnessed in any of the numerous mining disasters in this country. Michael Sarver, the old miner whose two sons were buried and whose daughter died of grief, is a type of character to be immortalized by some future writer. He accepts his affliction without a murmur. "I have two as fine sons as ever a father had lying down there in the mine," remarked the old man, with the dignity of a great grief, borne with the heroism of a noble nature, "and as good a daughter as man could wish for lying dead at home. But it is the will of God, and I say: 'His will be done.' Others are suffering as much as I am. I'll go down again, as soon as they'll let me, to rescue 'em, dead or alive."—Chicago News.

The evidence is cumulative that, so far from promoting the cause of real, permanent temperance work, secret temperance orders have done more to hinder than to help the cause. What has one of these done for temperance or prohibition in this country or commonwealth that amounts to anything worthy of special mention or commendation? The sooner the Prohibition party cuts loose from such secret orders and works entirely through open, daylight organizations the sooner will its reformatory work be successful. We have recently read a volume of several hundred pages on this very subject and think its reasoning is conclusive and its arguments unanswerable in its demonstration of the fact that one of the greatest hinderances of the prohibition work to-day is just those secret temperance associations which, while professing friendship and help to temperance reform, really play into the hands of the saloonaties. They need themselves to be reformed out of existence, as one of the speediest means of real temperance success.—Sandy Lake, Pa., News.

THE CHURCHES.

—Rev. T. B. Arnold, publisher of the Free Methodist, gives an account of the embarking of another company of faith missionaries—two women, who go to India, and Robert L. Harris who goes to Liberia, Africa. These make the number thirteen who have gone out from the Free Methodist churches of this country.

—Rev. U. D. Lathrop, for years a pastor at Viola, Ill., is now laboring in northern New York, at West Chazy. Some fifteen were converted under his labors of late.

—A revival is reported in the Wesleyan at Driftwood, Pa., over forty converts rejoicing in Christ, the whole town moved, and the rink shut up.

—One of the Chambersburg papers says "Rev. James M. Bishop, the well-known United Brethren minister, has devoted the interest of $1,000 to the cause of missions in memory of his deceased daughter, Mrs. Laura E. Oyler. The interest is to be paid yearly to the Loyal United Brethren missions."

—At no period since the first century have conversions from Judaism to Christianity been so frequent as they are at present.

—When Mr. McAll began his now famous work in Paris he knew just two sentences in French. They were, "God loves you," and "I love you." In them is found the key to the noteworthy fact that at present in more than thirty halls in Paris the Gospel is proclaimed every evening in the week, and in France 800,000 people are brought under Protestant Christian instruction.

—D. L. Moody will give a week's service to Chicago, and then go directly to fill his engagements in the South. He will be in this city Jan. 17 to 24, inclusive, and will hold two daily services at the Chicago Avenue church. He will preach mornings and evenings of each Sabbath, and during the week will hold sessions at 3 o'clock in the afternoon for women, and evening services for men only. Admission to these services will be by ticket, which may be obtained at the Chicago Avenue church or at No. 150 Madison street after Jan. 10. An effort is being made to have a general visitation of all the families of the North Side of the city in preparation for the meeting.

—Bro. Robert Shemeld and his wife, now laboring as faith missionaries among the Zulus of Natal, South Africa, have some happy experiences. He writes thus to the Free Methodist: "In our week night prayer meeting, in the tent, I spoke on the possibility of little things keeping Jesus out of the soul. Several young men on reaching their home took their twists of tobacco, placed them in a pile, and kissing the precious idol good-by, good-by tobacco, they set fire to it. Their stock was large, making a good fire, burning bright and long. As the fire burned each one called out Hambani Njalo, go, therefore, or good-by. These twists of tobacco are about twelve to fourteen inches long and four square. From these they rub their snuff and tobacco from which they take great comfort. I really believe this act of theirs cost them much consecration, and considering that but one or two of them profess religion, shows their desire to forsake all for Jesus. They need line upon line, precept upon precept, as they are babes in understanding spiritual things."

—Great interest is manifested by all classes in the revival meetings now being held at the First Methodist church in Freeport, Ill., and nearly one hundred conversions are reported thus far. The meetings are in charge of D. W. Potter, a Chicago evangelist, assisted by E. F. Miller, of Denver.

—The forthcoming Congregational Yearbook will show the following statistics: Whole number of churches, 4,170; gain, 78; whole number of ministers, 4,043; of whom without pastoral charge, 1,179; whole number of church members, 418,564; gain, 17,015; added on confession, 21,729; whole number in Sunday schools, 510, 339; gain, 31,977; benevolent contributions, $1,700,235.17; increase, $176,310 95; home expenditures, $4,567,727.81; increase, $684,622.18; theological students, 367.

—The corner-stone of the new building of the Young Women's Christian Association on East Fifteenth street, New York, was laid Dec. 1. The building will be five stories high, and will cost $125,600.

—Arrangements have been made for a series of conventions in the interest of home missions in the several Presbyteries of the Synod of Ohio. It is the purpose of these conventions to bring before the churches all information on the work and needs of the home mission fields.

—The Norwegian Lutheran Synod has undertaken mission work among the Indians of Northern Wisconsin. The commitee appointed to push the matter has called candidate Erik O. Moersted to the position of missionary, and he has accepted, beginning his work near Wittenberg, Wis. It will be remembered that the Scandinavian Lutherans were among the first to prosecute missionary enterprises among the Indians; and Luther's Smaller Catechism was the first book translated into an Indian dialect.

—Rev. Mr. Newell presented the work of the McCall mission in France to the New England Congregational church of Chicago, Sabbath evening. The speaker, who is a co-laborer with Mr. McCall, said it was impossible to be identified with the mission in France and not be associated with Dr. Chamberlain, former pastor of the New England church. Dr. Chamberlain was known as the American apostle of French evangelization. The work of the mission was spreading all over France, and was even crossing the Mediterranean to Algeria and Tunis. Mr. McCall had been a Congregational minister in England, but he began his work in Paris, and had succeeded in making his name a household word on two continents. There were now over a hundred stations in the republic, and the work was chiefly among non-Catholics.

—A case of intolerance in Syria is thus described: A tribe named Nusarieh inhabits the mountains near Latakia, consisting of about 200,000 persons. A large number of this people have become converts to the Christian faith, through the labors of American missionaries. Mission churches have been built and Christian communities established. The governor of Damascus has given positive orders that no change of religion shall be recognized, and that all the Christians shall be registered and treated as Moslems, and at a late census this had been done.

—Huang Sih Chuen, his Imperial Chinese Majesty's new Consul at New York, sat on the pulpit platform of the Spring Street Presbyterian church on a recent Sunday evening. The occasion was the fifth anniversary of the Chinese Sunday school connected with that church. The Consul wore his silken robes, skull cap and white satin shoes, and made a short addres in Chinese to the thirty Chinese scholars present, which was translated by his interpreter.

—The Norwegian Lutherans in the interior of Madagascar in 1884 baptized 1,521 persons, and received 21 Roman Catholics, and 62 Independents and Friends into their congregations, making the entire number of their members now 6,446. They have 1,678 candidates for baptism, an average attendance on worship of 35,000 persons, 30,000 children in the schools, and 636 native preachers and teachers, 5 of whom are ordained. They have also on the West Coast, 50 baptized, reported during the year, and 600 or 800 attendants at church, with 3 native teachers.

THE
CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
A NEATLY PRINTED SIXTEEN PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL, UNSECTARIAN AND OPPOSED TO SECRET SOCIETIES.

THE POLE STAR OF REFORM.

EVERY Christian, every Prohibitionist and every Patriot should read it for the following among other reasons:

1. Because it meets the wants of the general public by giving in brief the latest reliable information on all questions of Reform, having the special object of exposing and opposing organized secrecy. Besides able editorial, contributed and selected articles upon this topic, which is of more than national importance, it has interesting sketches of progress and incidents from the reform lecturers in all parts of the country, reform news and notes, letters from the Old World, etc., etc. It is the especial organ of this movement in America—a movement which is sustained by the utterances of some of the ablest statesmen and divines whom the country has produced. Every person interested in either the family, government, or religion—the most sacred interests of humanity—is directly affected by secret societies, and needs to keep posted in this movement.

2. Because it is uncompromising on ALL questions of the day. On temperance, tobacco, Sabbath desecration, Mormonism, the Southern and Indian questions, civil-service reform, monopolies, the rights of labor, and every other question, its only aim is to be RIGHT, and advocate the TRUTH. It is hence FEARLESS and OUTSPOKEN.

2. Because it emphasizes the fact that political action should be directed by conscience enlightened by the WORD and SPIRIT of God and that Christ must be acknowledged KING of NATIONS, and presents a platform epitomizing the science of civil governments based on the supreme authority of the DIVINE WORD.

4. Because, in addition to these features, it contains a choice selection of wholesome reading for the family, from oldest to youngest, with religious and secular news, market reports, etc.

It is now owned and published by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

at its office, NO. 221 WEST MADISON STREET CHICAGO, ILL., on Thursday of each week

TERMS: $2. per year.
clubs of ten $15.

Sample copies sent free on application.

Address CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE
221 West Madison Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

BUSINESS.

CUT THIS OUT

and place it conveniently for reference:

Tracts number 11, 13, 21, 23, 24, 27, 29, 31, 34, 40, 41 and 49 are out of print and none will be printed during this year.

DON'T YOU THINK

THAT YOU CAN SEND IN A CLUB OF SIX or more trial subscribers at twenty-five cents each? We continue the offer of eight numbers of the Christian Cynosure to any address for 25 cents.

SUBSCRIPTION LETTERS.

Names of those sending in cash for Cynosure from January 2, to January 9, 1886, inclusive:

W B Graham, L Lovett, W O Shaw, E C Spencer, J N Daniels, H S Limbocker, Edmund Blackburn, Jason F Ames, E E Browne, J R Denison, J H Rasor, Benj Rohrer, Nathan Thomas, Rev D S Jenkins, Jno Lusk, Elbert Marcey, Daniel Callow, Mrs S H Nutting, L Powers, J P Bartlett, Mrs A F Rieder, J Campbell, Dea E Smith, R Hembrough, L C Livesay, Wm Machemer, G S Peck, R Ingraham, W M Hoobler, J W Wood, Rev D Faris, Jno W Smith, F L Grundtvig, A M Miller, C S Allen, O Sholes, I C Weidler, Chas B Etter, Isaac Crane, K J Hill, Daniel Mabec, J Osgood, R Hammond, Benj Bond, D Steel, Geo Perry, N M Minnel, F R Tobias, O Pickens, E D Olmsted, Eben Flagg, W A Bartlett, GeoMcHenry, J N Norris, W Knight, J K Letts, Jno Remington, W J White, B M Mason, Mrs Augustin, Chas Lander, W Reed, N G Carlson.

If a cough disturbs your sleep, take Piso's Cure for Consumption and rest well.

ON 30 DAYS' TRIAL.

THIS NEW ELASTIC TRUSS

Has a Pad different from all others, is cup shape, with Self-adjusting Ball in center, adapts itself to all positions of the body while the ball in the cup presses back the intestines just as a person does with the finger. With light pressure the Hernia is held securely day and night, and a radical cure certain. It is easy, durable and cheap. Sent by mail. Circulars free. EGGLESTON TRUSS CO., Chicago, Ill.

LUCILLE VERNON.

Cloth.....75 cents.

THIS is a pleasant surprise in many ways. The author is Rev. W. T. Meloy, of the United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and the book is published by the Board of Publication of his denomination. It is a love story, not "fascinating," but with so much of genial interest that the reader is in no danger of laying it down unfinished. * * * The moral purpose of the book is to describe and vindicate Christian character, in its more heroic aspects, and it is a success. We congratulate the author and the United Presbyterian Board of Publication on this literary lily of the valley.—The Interior.

"LUCILLE VERNON" is evidently not an ideal sketch, but the fictitious names used represent to a great extent real men and women of flesh and blood. The characters of many of them are by no means attractive, but are perfect counterparts of querulous, obstinate and parsimonious professors who are thorns in the flesh of many a pastor in all the churches. But as in all the churches, there were also good and true men and women at Lansington, who upheld and encouraged the pastor. * * * In its author will be recognized the worthy pastor of the First United Presbyterian Church of Chicago, and a welcome contributor to these columns.—United Presbyterian.

The heroine, who becomes the bride of the pastor of the church at Lansington, is a wonderful exemplification of how a woman who is a true wife and help-meet may throw her life and energies into the great work of saving souls; aiding, by gentle words and sympathy, wise counsel and brave endurance, the husband having charge of a congregation where the Demon of Misrule held full sway. We follow with interest the history of the wife and husband through their hours of despondency and discouragement to the happy ending, where religion, harmony and peace have gained the ascendency and the good man and wife find their reward.—Pittsburgh Daily Telegraph.

A NEW

Anti-masonic Scrap-book.

A neat pamphlet, comprising forty-three tracts against secret orders, published by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION. It contains some of the MOST POWERFUL ARGUMENTS put in brief form, written by men of distinguished ability, showing the evil nature and dangerous tendency of secret societies. Those who circulate tracts need the book to make their selections wisely.

Send for a copy to Anti-masonic headquarters, the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO. Price, 25 cents.

REVISED ODD-FELLOWSHIP ILLUSTRATED.

The complete revised ritual of the Lodge, Encampment and Rebekah (ladies') degrees, profusely illustrated, and guaranteed to be strictly accurate; with a sketch of the origin, history and character of the order, over one hundred foot-note quotations from standard authorities, showing the character and teachings of the order, and an analysis of each degree by President J. Blanchard. The ritual corresponds exactly with the "Charge Books" furnished by the Sovereign Grand Lodge. In cloth, $1.00; per dozen, $8.00. Paper covers 75 cents; per dozen $4.00.

All orders promptly filled by the

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

A WOMAN'S VICTORY;

OR

THE QUERY OF THE LODGEVILLE CHURCH

BY JENNIE L. HARDIE.

This simple and touching story which was lately published in the Cynosure is now ready for orders in a beautiful pamphlet. It is worth reading by every Anti-mason —and especially BY HIS WIFE. Get it and take it home to cheer the heart of your companion who may desire to do something for Christ against great evils, but is discouraged from making any public effort. PRICE, FIFTEEN CENTS. Ten for a dollar

Wonderful Woman, A Wonderful Life, AND A Wonderful Book.

Laura S. Haviland is a quiet, gentle, unassuming Quaker woman, 76 years of age, yet vigorous, who has had a remarkable career of usefulness, and has now given to the world a remarkable history of her "Life Work" as a teacher, at an early day, of the colored refugees in Canada and in Michigan, and in other States, as a traveler down South in the guise of a "berry picker," helping out into freedom many slaves; as a nurse and preacher to the sufferers in hospitals during the war; and with Gov. St. John and Flizabeth Comstock, relieving the destitute and suffering refugees in Kansas, etc.

Her book is neither fiction nor founded on fiction, but is an interesting narration of facts of a most thrilling character, as every one will find and testify who will get and read her book, now on sale at the Cynosure office, 221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill. Price, cloth, $1,75, half Russia, $2.25.

Sunday-School Papers.

MONTHLY.

THE PEARL,

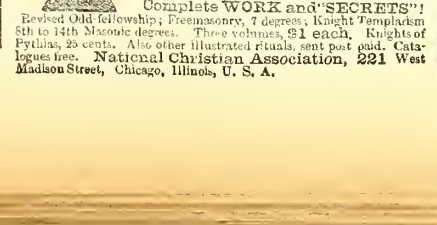
To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts

THE LILY,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 3cts
Per year..... 12cts

PURE WORDS,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter, ... 21-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.



SUNSHINE,

To Sunday-Schools, per quarter..... 21-2cts.
Per year..... 10cts.

Single subscriptions for either one of the above papers, one year, 25 cts.

We have excellent facilities for furnishing Sunday-School Supplies of every description including trade papers at publishers' prices. If you wish any publication send to us for it.

T. B. ARNOLD, Publisher.
106 Franklin street, Chicago, Ill.

STANDARD ILLUSTRATED RITUALS!
Complete WORK and "SECRETS"!
Revised Odd-fellowship; Freemasonry, 7 degrees; Knight Templarism 8th to 14th Masonic degrees. Three volumes, $1 each. Knights of Pythias, 25 cents. Also other illustrated rituals, sent post paid. Catalogues free. National Christian Association, 221 West Madison Street, Chicago, Illinois, U. S. A.

"I have read it from its commencement with decided interest, and have derived from it no inconsiderable instruction."—JUSTICE STRONG, late of U. S. Supreme Court.

The Christian Statesman,

A 16-PAGE WEEKLY JOURNAL,

DEVOTED TO THE CAUSE OF

PUBLIC MORALS AND NATIONAL RELIGION.

ESTABLISHED TO DISCUSS the principles of government and current political questions in the light of the Christian religion.

TO MAINTAIN our Sabbth Laws, the Bible in the Schools, and other Christian Features of the American Government.

TO CALL the Nation back to the God of our fathers.

It is an uncompromising advocate of PROHIBITION and other vital reforms.

It opposes the union of Church and State.

It has no sectarian relations.

It is not "in politics," but deals with all parties from an independent position.

Its expositions of the International Sabbath School Lessons are of exceptional value.

It includes the STANDARD BEARER, a weekly illustrated paper for Young People.

"I hardly know of a paper whose wide circulation would be more advantageous."—President Seelye, of Amherst College, Mass.

"An instrumentality of unsurpassed usefulness in the Christian reformation of American politics."—Dr. A. A. Miner, Boston.

"Its course has been manly and consistent, its editorials able, its success marvelous."—President Scovel, Wooster University, O.

"As a Thesaurus of facts and arguments bearing on the important questions of morality and religion, invaluable and unrivaled."—Prof. A. Rittenhouse, Dickinson College, Pa.

"More weighty instruction and cogent reasoning to the square inch than any paper with which I am acquainted."—Rev. R. G. McNeice, Pres. Pastor, Salt Lake City.

"The exhibit of ability, patience, earnestness and truth."—Dr. Jonathan Edwards, Philadelphia.

"On some of the great questions of the age I have sometimes been puzzled to know exactly the position of several of our leading religious weeklies, but from the trumpet of the CHRISTIAN STATESMAN I have never yet heard one uncertain sound."—Prof. M. S. Terry, Northwestern University, Evanston, Ills.

TERMS $2.00 a year.

Specimen Copies sent FREE.

Address,

THE CHRISTIAN STATESMAN,
1520 CHESTNUT ST., PHILA., PA.

$2 woven wire springs. Furniture on easy payments. No interest.

$16 For this Grand Rapids Bedroom Suit, three pieces, Mahogany finished, bevel plate glass. Plush Parlor Suits complete, $25. Tapestry carpets, 50 cents. Ingrains, 30c. No. 7 Range, complete, $11.

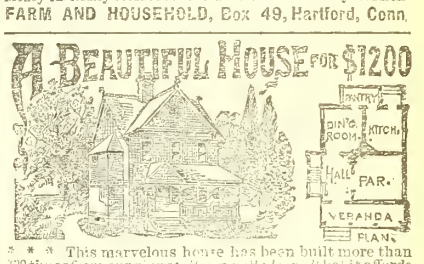
The Newberry Furniture Company, 284, 286 and 288 Wabash av. Only one Suit to each Customer. Open evenings.

FINNEY ON MASONRY.

The character, claims and practical workings of Freemasonry. By Pres. Charles G. Finney of Oberlin College. President Finney was a "bright Mason," but left the lodge when he became a Christian. This book has opened the eyes of multitudes. In cloth 75c; per dozen $7.50. Paper cover 35c; per dozen, $3.50.

No Christian's library is complete without it. Send for a copy in cloth and get a catalogue of books and tracts sold by the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST. CHICAGO.

COMPOUND OXYGEN



Cures Lung, Nervous and Chronic Diseases. Office and Home Treatment by A. H. HIATT, M. D., a scientific physician of extensive experience. Dr. Hiatt sends his treatment to all parts of the country. He has hundreds of testimonials to its efficacy from prominent persons. Price reduced. Pamphlets and information mailed free. Address A. H. HIATT, M. D., Central Music Hall, Chicago.

KENSINGTON STAMPING OUTFIT FREE!

Being fully aware of the great interest the ladies are taking in Kensington Work, we have prepared a Complete Outfit containing 50 Perforated Stamping Patterns on best government bond parchment Paper, all different, including Sprays of Golden Rod, Pansies, Wild Roses, Forget-me-nots, Thistles, Strawberries, Outlines of Boy, Girl, Bugs, Spiders, Storks Scollops for Skirts, Crazy Stitch Patterns, Crystal Etchings, Borders, Pond Lilies, Tulips, &c., &c., 50 in all, ranging in size from 1 1-2 in. to 7 inches, also 1 Box Blue Stamping Powder, 1 Box White Stamping Powder, 1 Patent reversible Ponsel, and full and complete directions for Kensington Stamping and Embroidery, Kensington Painting, Lustre, Metallic Flitter and Iridescent Painting, Colors used and mixing of Colors, Ribbon Embroidery, Chenille and Arasene Work, Correct Colors of all the different flowers, Description of every stitch used in embroidery, &c., making a Complete Outfit that cannot be ought at retail for less than $4.00. To introduce FARM AND HOUSEHOLD, the large, 32 page Illustrated Magazine devoted to the interests of the Country Home and Household, we will send one of these Outfits complete free and postpaid, to any lady who will send 25c. for 3 mos. subscription to the Magazine. Five for $1. Money cheerfully refunded if not more than satisfactory. Address FARM AND HOUSEHOLD, Box 49, Hartford, Conn.

A BEAUTIFUL HOUSE FOR $1200

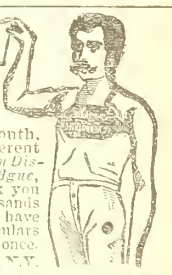
* * * This marvelous house has been built more than 300 times from our plans; it is so well planned that it affords ample room even for a large family. 1st fl or shown above; on 2d floor are 4 bed rooms and in attic 2 more. Plenty of Closets. The whole warmed by one chimney. Large illustrations and full description of the above as well as of 39 other houses, ranging in cost from $400 up to $6,500, may be found in "SHOPPELL'S MODERN LOW-COST HOUSES," a large quarto pamphlet, showing also how to select sites, get loans, &c. Sent postpaid on receipt of 50c. Stamps taken, or send $1 bill and we will return the change. Address, BUILDING PLAN ASSOCIATION, (Mention this Paper.) 24 Beekman St., (Post Office Box 3702) N. Y.

A Skin of Beauty is a Joy Forever.

DR. T. FELIX GOURAUD'S

ORIENTAL CREAM, or MAGICAL BEAUTIFIER.

PURIFIES as well as BEAUTIFIES the Skin. No other Cosmetic will do it.



Removes Tan, Pimples, Freckles, Moth-Patches, Rash and Skin Diseases, and every blemish on beauty, and defies detection. It has stood the test of thirty years and is so harmless we taste it to be sure the preparation is properly made. Accept no counterfeit of similar name. The distinguished Dr. L. A. Sayre, said to a lady of the haut ton (a patient): "As you ladies will use them, I recommend 'Gouraud's Cream' as the least harmful of all the Skin preparations." One bottle will last six months, using it every day. Also Poudre Subtile removes superfluous hair without injury to the skin. MME. M. B. T. GOURAUD, Sole Proprietor, 48 Bond St., New York. For sale by all Druggists and Fancy Goods Dealers throughout the United States, Canadas, and Europe. Beware of base imitations. $1,000 Reward for arrest and proof of any one selling the same.

Sibley's Tested Seeds

Catalogue free on application. Send for it.
HIRAM SIBLEY & CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y. AND CHICAGO, ILL.

FAIR AND HONEST.

If you are sick or ailing no matter what your complaint, write to us and we will send you On Trial one of our large Electric Medicated Appliances to suit your case, provided you agree to pay for it, if it cures you in one month. If it does not cure you it costs you nothing to try it. Different Appliances to cure Dyspepsia, Rheumatism, Liver and Kidney Diseases, Piles, Lung Diseases, Asthma, Catarrh, Lame Back, Ague, Debility, and many other diseases. Remember we do not ask you to buy them blindly but merely to try them at our risk. Thousands of cures made monthly in cases where all other treatments have failed. Price very low. Illustrated book giving full particulars and blank for statement of your case sent free. Address at once. ELECTRIC PAD M'F'G CO., 564 STATE STREET., BROOKLYN, N.Y.

BAGSTER'S Fac Simile Series.

Fac Simile Series. BIBLES!

The only Bibles that will bear the constant wear of a long life.

Extra flexible silk sewed in best Bagster morocco binding. With Maps, Index and other Helps. For sale by all Booksellers. If you cannot get them from your bookseller, send to us direct.

S. BAGSTER & SONS, Limited, London, England.

HOME HINTS.

A DAINTY BEDROOM.

A bedroom may be daintily furnished by clever hands at small expense. The dressing-table, which may be only a common pine table or low stand with shelves and a wooden upright nailed to the back to support the looking-glass, is covered with sateen or paper muslin of any desired color, over which a white muslin covering is arranged with cascades of frills or is simply gathered full. Drapery of the same falls from the top of the mirror. The long box for holding the dresses not in use has a thickly cushioned top with a round bolster at one end covered with some of the beautiful cretonne to be found at the dry goods or upholstery stores; two large square cretonne covered pillows with full frills complete the lounge. The "occasional" tables are covered with cretonne. Chairs, the seats of which have not withstood the ravages of time, may be reseated by covering them with double strips of ticking or stout crash plaited and tacked firmly to the edges of the seat. Finish with a cretonne covered cushion with a full flounce reaching half way to the floor; or, if preferred, cover the entire chair with the cretonne Take care to fasten the cushion securely in place, else it is sure to fall to the ground, revealing the skeleton which it was meant to hide from the gaze of the unitiated. If you are not the fortunate possessor of a table, take three broomsticks and cut them of equal length, stain them and cross them at the middle, securing them with a screw. Take the cover of a large butter firkin, or a square box cover, and screw it to the broomsticks for the top; cover smoothly with burlaps or any thick material at hand, and then put the cretonne over it. Old pine tables of small size may be utilized, covering the legs as well as the tops with the cretonne.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

A SIMPLE BOOK-SHELF.

The boys of our household have an attic to themselves, and they do a little manufacturing occasionally. They enjoy out-door fun as much as any boys, but the attic is useful when they are in the house, and on wet evenings it is a great advantage. They have just made a very pretty pair of book-cases. They obtained for a few cents eight pine boards ⅞ of an inch thick, 18 inches long and 7 inches wide. A trifle more secured a few yards of red sash cord. They took four boards for each case, made an even hole at each corner, then passed the four cords through the holes of the top shelf first, making the knots carefully, to support it in the right place. They then did the same to the second and third shelves, and mounted the bottom one last, making the knots very secure and cutting off the spare line. As their books varied in size, the distance between the shelves, instead of having the same space between each, varied. The shelves were then stained, and, having found in the house some ornamental leather strips that once adorned the edges of a book-case, they nailed these along the front edges of their shelves with small brass nails, and the work was done. A set of book-shelves is an accession to a bedroom, especially, as is often the case, when young people have their own rooms and spend spare minutes there.—Mrs Brown, in N. Y. Observer.

HEATING BY SUNSHINE.

Professor E. S. Morse of the Essex Institute, has devised an ingenious arrangement for utilizing the sun's rays in warming our houses. His invention consists of a surface of blackened slate under glass, fixed to the sunny side or sides of a house, with vents in the walls so arranged that the air of a room is let out at the bottom of the slate, and forced in again at the top by the ascending heated column betwen the slate and the glass. The out-door air can be admitted, also, if desirable.

The thing is so simple and apparently self evident that one only wonders that it has not always been in use. Its entire practicableness is demonstrated in the heating of the professor's study in his cottage at Salem. The value of the improvement for daily warming buildings like churches and school-houses, which, when allowed to get cold between using, consume immense quantities of heat, before they are fairly warmed again, is evident,

HORSFORD' ACID PHOSPHATE.

Beware of Imitations.

Imitations and counterfeits have again appeared. Be sure that the word "HORSFORD'S" is on the wrapper. None are genuine without it.

1842. A PROCLAMATION. 1886.

Know ye! Know ye all! Men, women and children—that the great staff of editors, who, headed by Dr. George Thurber, have kept the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST at the front for twenty-five years, are now re uforced by Chester P. Dewey, and Seth Green, the fish culturist. We propose to add to the hundreds of thousands of homes in which the

American Agriculturist

is read and revered from the Atlantic to the Pacific as an old-time friend and counselor. We are accordingly enlarging the

HEARTH, HOUSEHOLD AND JUVENILE DEPARTMENTS.

and adding other features, so that it is to be, from this time onward, essentially a home periodical, as well as being devoted to Agriculture and Horticulture. Every person who immediately sends us $1.50 the subscription price, and 15 cents for postage book, making $1.65 in all, will receive the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST for 1886 and the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST LAW BOOK, just published—a compendium of every-day law for Farmers, Business men, Manufacturers, etc., enabling every one to be his own lawyer. It is a large volume, weighing one pound and a half, and bound in cloth and gold. The AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST

Wants the Earth

to yield bigger returns by increasing its great army of readers. We distributed 60,000 presents to those who aided in the work last year, and we are planning to give 100,000 presents to workers this year Send for confidential terms to workers, when you forward your subscription. Subscription price, $1.50 per year; single number, 15 cents

Send 5 cts for mailing you grand double number of the AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST, just out, and sample pages with table of contents of Law Book.

CANVASSERS WANTED Everywhere!

Address
PUBLISHERS AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST,
751 Broadway, New York.
DAVID W. JUDD, Pres. SAM'L BURNHAM, Sec.

SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN
ESTABLISHED 1846.

The most popular Weekly newspaper devoted to science, mechanics, engineering discoveries, inventions and patents ever published. Every number illustrated with splendid engravings. This publication furnishes a most valuable encyclopedia of information which no person should be without. The popularity of the SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN is such that its circulation nearly equals that of all other papers of its class combined. Price, $3.20 a year. Discount to Clubs. Sold by all newsdealers. MUNN & CO., Publishers, No. 361 Broadway, N. Y.

PATENTS. Munn & Co. have also had Thirty-Eight years' practice before the Patent Office and have prepared more than One Hundred Thousand applications for patents in the United States and foreign countries. Caveats, Trade-Marks, Copy-rights, Assignments, and all other papers for securing to inventors their rights in the United States, Canada, England, France, Germany and other foreign countries, prepared at short notice and on reasonable terms. Information as to obtaining patents cheerfully given without charge. Hand-books of information sent free. Patents obtained through Munn & Co. are noticed in the Scientific American free. The advantage of such notice is well understood by all persons who wish to dispose of their patents.
Address MUNN & CO., Office SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN, 361 Broadway, New York.

A. B. C. STEAM COOKED CRUSHED WHITE OATS.

A.B.C. Wheat, A.B.C. Barley, A.B.C. Maize,
Hulled, Steam-Cooked Desiccated.
BEWARE OF IMITATIONS! !

American Breakfast Cereals.

Made from the Finest Grains. All Impurities removed. Prepared for the table in ten minutes. Ask for A. B. C. Brand only.
(Registered Trade Mark)
PATENTED.
For sale by all Grocers. Send for circulars, etc., to THE CEREALS M'F'G CO., 83 Murray Street, N. Y.
(Incorporated 1875.)

Most Perfect Knitter

ever invented for either family or manufacturers' use. Seamless Hosiery of all sizes, with heel and toe complete, of either cotton or wool, are knit on these machines.
Boys and girls of 10 and 12 years operate them in factories, turning out four dozen pairs a day each. A living for a family can be made with one of these Machines.
For descriptive circulars giving full particulars.
Address
Jesse L. Branson,
30 East Fourth St,
Cincinnati, O.,
and mention this paper.

Advertisers who wish to secure the attention of the best class of purchasers will find it to their advantage to secure space in the CHRISTIAN CYNOSURE

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)

Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.

Brethren (Dunkers or German Baptists.)

Christian Reformed Church.

Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)

Congregational—The State Associations of Illinois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.

Disciples (in part.)

Friends.

Lutherans—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferences.

Mennonites.

Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.

Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conference.)

Moravians.

Plymouth Brethren.

Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.

Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)

United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowship and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Sandford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.
Sugar Grove Church, Green county, Pa.
Military Chapel, M. E., Lowndes county, Miss.
Hopewell Missionary Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Cedar Grove Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Simon's Chapel, M. E., Lowndes Co., Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Miss. Baptist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Brownlee Church, Calcdonia, Miss.
Salem Church, Lowndes Co., Miss.
West Preston Baptist Church, Wayne Co., Pa.

OTHER LOCAL CHURCHES

adopting the same principle are—

Baptist churches: N. Abington, Pa.; Menomonie, Mondovi, Waubeck and Spring Prairie, Wis.; Wheaton, Ill.; Perry, N. Y.; Spring Creek, near Burlington, Iowa; Lima, Ind.; Constableville, N. Y. The "Good Will Asscoiton" of Mohile, Ala., comprising some twenty-five colored Baptist churches; Bridgewater Baptist Association, Pa.; Old Teho Baptist, near Leesville, Henry Co., Mo.: Hoopeston, Ill; Esmen, Ill.; Strykersville, N. Y.

Congregational churches: 1st of Oberlin, O.; Tonica, Crystal Lake, Union and Big Woods, Ill.; Solshury, Ind.; Congregational Methodist Maplewood, Mass.

Independent churches in Lowell, Countryman school house near Lindenwood, Merengo and Streator, Ill.; Berea and Camp Nelson, Ky; Ustick, Ill.; Clarkshurg, Kansas; State Association of Ministers and Churches of Christ in Kentucky.

CHRISTIAN WORKERS

Who depend on voluntary contributions of Christian people in whole or in part for their support:

J. F. BROWNE, Berea, Ky.

ELI TAPLEY, Columbus, Miss.

J. F. GALLOWAY, Okahumka Florida.

WM. HAZENBURG, Cape Town, S. Africa.

A. D. ZARAPHONITHES, Andros, Greece.

C. B. WARD, Secunderabad, India.

The Evangelists associated with Rev. John G. Fee, of Berea, Ky.

Contributions for either of these brethren may be forwarded through the Treasurer of the N. C. A. PLEASE DESIGNATE to which one such funds shall be sent

Sing the Reform

Into the Hearts of the People!

One of the most popular books against lodgery is the latest compilation of GEORGE W. CLARK, the Minstrel of Reform, a forty-page book of soul-stirring, conscience-awakening songs appropriate for lectures, conventions and the home circle. What can add more to the interest of a meeting than a song well sung? What means will more quickly overthrow the power of the secret lodges than to sing the truth into the popular conscience?

Get this little work and use it for God and home and country. Forty pages. Price 10cts. postpaid. Address

NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,
221 W. Madison S reet, Chicago.

MISCELLANEOUS.

WANTED An active Man or Woman in every county to sell our goods. Salary $75 per Month and Expenses. Canvassing Outfit and Particulars FREE. STANDARD SILVER-WARE CO., Boston, Mass.

WANTED—LADIES AND MISSES TO do Crochet Work at their own homes; pleasant and profitable; work sent out of the city. Western Lace Manufacturing Company, 218 State street, Chicago, Ill.

CORNS, WARTS AND BUNIONS CURED in five days. No pain. Warranted. Mailed for 25 cents in stamps by L. O. SHAFFER, Altoona, Iowa

NOVELTY RUG MACHINE. Pat'd Dec. 27, 1881. For making Rugs, Tidies, Hoods, Mittens, etc. Sent by mail with full directions. Price $1. Agents wanted. Manufacturers of stamped Rug Patterns and dealers in Yarns. E. ROSS & CO., Toledo O

IDAHO COLONY 300,000 ACRES In Snake River Valley—near Eagle Rock, Idaho. 80 to 640 acres to each settler. $1.50 per acre—50 cts. cash—$1. in 3 years. Climate and soil same as California. Send for circular and prospectus. Also Colony lands in California. Monthly excursions, $52.50.
Wm. H. Martin, 126 Washington st., Chicago.

COMPLETE DIRECTIONS FOR COURSE OF HOME STUDY
sufficient to prepare one for school teaching, for 10 2-cent stamps. Address "Home Instruction Office, 1122 High street, Des Moines, Iowa.

WAYLAND, A Christian School, fits boys and girls for the best colleges, business or teaching. Expenses very low. Terms begin Sept. 10, Jan. 5, Mch. 31. G. F. LINFIELD, Prin.,
Beaver Dam, Wis.

CARDS 60 Fancy Pictures, and 25 elegant Cards in Gilt Edge, silk fringe, hidden name, etc., 1 Songster, 1 $50 Prize Puzzle, and 8 Parlor Games, all for 10cts. Game of Authors 10cts.
IVY CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

150 CARDS, in New Styles, Embossed, Hidden Name, Gold Edge, Transparent, &c., &c., of latest designs and lowest prices. 50 samples with name on, 10cts.
TODD CARD CO., Clintonville, Conn.

"BEE LINE" Method Shorthand. Easy, direct and certain. Leading Pencil Systems and Stenograph. Complete course, 3 months. Lessons by mail. Correspondence solicited.
BUSINESS UNIVERSITY, Indianapolis, Ind.

OPIUM! Morphine Habit, Opium Smoking, easily cured. Advice free.
DR. J. C. HOFFMAN, Jefferson, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED Lady or Gentleman in every city and village in the United States to introduce our Chines Secret Laundry Glossing. Good, live agents can earn from $15 to $25 per week. Descriptive circulars and terms mailed free on application. GARDEN CITY CHEMICAL CO., 258 South Water Street, Chicago, Ill.

Agents Make $5 a Day Selling Perfect FAMILY SCALES
Entirely new in principle. Weigh one ounce to 25 pounds. What every family needs and will buy. Rapid sales surprise old agents. FORSHEE & MCMAKIN, CINCINNATI, O.

Business University, INDIANAPOLIS, IND. Established 35 years.
Every possible facility for acquiring a thoroughly practical and sound business education. Instruction by mail. Send for University Journal and full particulars free.
TROOK, HEEB & REDMAN, Proprietors.

FREE $2 SAMPLES
fast selling goods free to energetic men and women. Big money sure for every reader during leisure hours. Send for papers and investigate our easy money-making business. Cards, Circulars, etc., with Agent's name free, making it easy for inexperienced persons.
Try it. A. E. Merrill & Co. Chicago

Piso's Remedy for Catarrh is the Best, Easiest to Use, and Cheapest.
CATARRH
Also good for Cold in the Head, Headache, Hay Fever, &c. 50 cents.

DR. CONANT'S CompoundVaporBaths
FOR HOME USE.
Positive protection against Cholera, Malaria Fevers, and kindred ills demonstrated daily at 226 State St., Chicago.
Ladies—Room 5.
Gents—Room 6.
Call or send for circular.

Hallelujah and Victory!

SING THE SONGS OF REFORM AT HOME, IN THE FIELD, IN THE SHOP, IN THE CONVENTION—SING THEM TILL THE DAY OF TRIUMPH COMES.

CLARK'S REFORM SONG BOOK;

by George W. Clark, the "Liberty Singer" of Abolition fame, who has compiled a new book for the new movement. Here are—
Songs for temperance.
Songs for the good and true.
Songs for freemen.
Songs for the home.
Songs for the devotional meeting.
Songs for reform meetings.
Songs that will vanquish the lodge.
SING THEM!
HAVE YOUR CHILDREN SING THEM!

Price in boards, postpaid, 40 cents. In cloth, with portrait on steel, 55 cents.
Send to the NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION, 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, ILL.

IN BRIEF.

The use of petroleum as a fuel on Russian railroad lines is almost general.

The Sacremento Bee says the Chinese take $15,000,000 a year out of California and send it home.

About 15,000 letters from manufacturers have been sent to the Secretary of the Treasury protesting against a reduction of the tariff.

M. Cambrier, Chief Road Master of the French Government railways, has decided after ten years' experiment, that the best plant yet discovered for consolidating, by the interlacing of its roots, the loose soil of a newly made enbankment, is the double poppy.

Within the limits of Washington Territory are 23,000,000 acres of land yet unsurveyed, of which at least 16,000,000 are excellent agricultural lands, well timbered. The Territory has a population of about 150,000, and a valuation of over $50,000,000.

Great excitment pravails in the State of Colima, Mexico, over an eruption of the volcano of Colima. Four days ago loud reporte were heard, and these were soon followed by eruptions of lava which flowed over the sides of the mountain, completely covering them. At last accounts the people were much alarmed, as the flow of lava continued. A white cloud overhanges the mountain, and on it are reflected flames darting up from the crater.

The city council of Plymouth Wis., passed an ordinance fixing the roller-rink license at $300 per annum, which will close the rink business in that city. The council was induced to take this action in consequence of the complaints of property holders, who deem the rink a nuisance.

A single train, consisting of 141 loaded cars, was brought into New Orleans Dec. 7, over the Louisville, New Orleans and Texas railway. The train was the longest train ever handled in the United States, and was drawn by one engine. The total weight of the train was over 9,250,000 pounds and it was over a mile long.

A telegram from Ottawa says: "It has been discovered that a large proportion of the phosphates exported from Canada to England and Germany is re shipped to the United States as British and German phosphates. It is understood that the American Consul at this place in his next report will point out the absurdity of forcing Canadian phosphates to make two trips across the Atlantic before entering the United States."

The number of elementary schools in the entire Mexican Republic is about 11,000, with some 600,000 pupils. Of these schools 9,236 are supported by either the National or State governments. They are attended by 470,000 pupils. There are 39 schools supported by the Lancasterian Society. The Catholic church maintains about 1,000 schools, with about 100,000 pupils; reliable statistics about these schools are not on hand, however The different Protestant missions and associations maintain 260 schools, with an attendance of about 12,000 pupils. The Catholic society maintains 209 schools, with an estimated attendance of 40,000. Manufacturing establishments maintain 45 schools, with an aggregate attendance of 4,000. Of private schools the city of Mexico alone has 231, whose attendance does not fall short of 16,000. Outside of the city there are about 500 private schools, with an aggregate of probably 10,000 pupils. Only a few of the States have enacted laws compelling the attendance of children at school. Of these Morelos was the first. This State has the greatest number of schools in proportion with its population, having 150 for its 150,000 inhabitants, or one school for each 1,000 population. It is estimated that from 22 to 25 per cent of the population of Mexico can read and write.—Mexico Two Republics.

1885. SIGLER'S 1886.

CALIFORNIA

Popular Pullman Palace Parties Grand Winter Excursions, Will leave Chicago, St. Paul, St. Louis and other cities, for Los Angeles, San Francisco, and Honolulu, Monday, Dec. 14, 1885, Jan. 11, and Feb. 8, 1886. Send for particulars.
H. G. SIGLER, Manager, 54 Clark street, Chicago.

stian

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID

CHICAGO, THURSDAY

CIATION.

icago.

ENERAL AGENT
....PUBLISHER.

..... $2,00.
..... $1.50.

equested by the ditor Christian

ust always be requested and all drafts and

, TREAS., 221
by unregistered change address

nd Class matter.]

:
Take Notice;
chard in Mem-
n the General
ood Work in m the Illinois
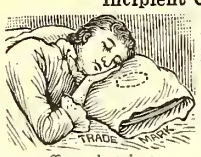
the Front in
.....4,5
NCE:
Fee's Daugh-
aic Outrages;
ork with Edu-
.....5,6
..... 10
..... 11
12

stance that needs explanation Scranton, Pa., and his c Knights of Labor lodges, th long that drinking members The Union-Signal and other t ed them for this at the time trusted. It is a question ho ize saloons by temperance m our business? If the St. Lo ronize the saloon bar, why s for their boycott? We shou answer from the Signal. So to learn that when we deal things are not always what t



Not long since two infern up in this city, one on the st occupied by Gen. McClurg, Q. railway general offices. T up the matter and published full account of the plans and ists of this city. Such probably more sensation out where the members of the known to be foreigners with comparatively few in numbe fluence. They have as much unions as for the capitalists, they might make would be s by the hoodlum class that w likely to give them plunder. of homeless waifs and tram weather has brought into pu besides the lodging and meal

ALL-NIGHT INHALATION!

"A positive revolution in the treatment of Air-Passage Diseases of the Nose, Throat, and Lungs, and, for the purpose designed, as valuable a discovery as vaccination."

THE PILLOW-INHALER.

A Speedy, Positive and Permanent Cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Incipient Consumption.

It is a hair pillow, with reservoirs of evaporating liquid, the fumes or vapor of which is inhaled all night long, whilst sleeping as usual, and without any discomfort. It is used only at night, and is perfectly safe to the most delicate. There is no stomach-dosing, douching or snuffing; but just as a smoky lamp will leave a deposit on a whitened wall so the PILLOW-INHALER, for say eight hours at a time, spreads a powerful healing balm or salve on the inflamed inner coating of the diseased air-surfaces, from the nostrils to the bottom of the lungs, and hence into the blood. Old-fashioned inhalation, through a tube, for a few minutes a day, sometimes cured. Think of eight hours constant action, on the same principle, but intensified a hundred-fold! There are no pipes or tubes. The medicine is breathed in, not swallowed, and goes right to the diseased parts.

CATARRH. BRONCHITIS. CONSUMPTION.

HON. E. L. HEDDEN, Collector of the Port of New York, says: "I take pleasure in stating that the PILLOW-INHALER has been of the greatest relief, and I believe of permanent benefit, to my wife, who has been a great sufferer from Bronchial and Catarrhal Troubles, accompanied with distressing Asthma. I recommend its use to all persons afflicted with such maladies."
E. L. HEDDEN, 38 West 49th St., New York.

MR. H. G. TEELE, 50 Bryan Block, Chicago, Ill., says: "I suffered fifteen years from a severe case of Catarrh; coughed incessantly day and night. I bought a PILLOW-INHALER, and since using it my cough is gone; my lungs are no louger weak and sore, and I am in better health than I have been for years."

During the six years of its existence the PILLOW-INHALER has wrought cures of Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma, and Consumption, that have been more like miracles than the usual treatment of disease. It is not expensive, and is within the reach of every one. Send for Explanatory Pamphlet and Testimonials, or call.

THE PILLOW-INHALER CO.,
Central Music Hall, Room 12, Cor. State and Randolph Sts., Chicago.
MAIN OFFICE: 1520 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia.

Five Dollar
LIBRARY.

"The Broken Seal."
"The Master's Carpet."
"In the Coils, or The Coming Conflict."
"The Character, Claims and Practical Workings of Freemasonry," by Pres. C. G. Finney.
"Revised Odd-fellowship;" the secrets, together with a discussion of the character of the order.
"Freemasonry Illustrated;" the secrets of first seven degrees, together with a discussion of their character.
"Sermons and Addresses on Secret Societies;" a valuable collection of the best arguments against secret orders from Revs. Cross, Williams. McNary, Dow, Sarver, Drury, Prof. J. G. Carson, and Prests. George and Blanchard

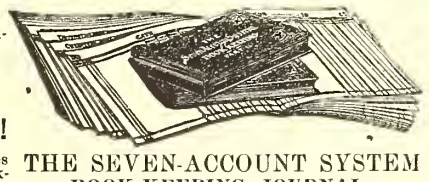
National Christian Association.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago, Ill.

MISCELLANEOUS.

THROAT WEAKNESS.

Clergymen, Teachers, Singers, Lawyers, Public Speakers, and all who have occasion to use their vocal powers more than ordinarily, will find the little treatise entitled "CHRONIC SORE THROAT" very useful. If those who are troubled with hoarseness after speaking or singing will read this book any follow its instructions they will he greatly benefited and relieved. Dr. Shuldham, of England, the author, has himself a reputation as an elocutionist of no mean powers, and he writes on the human vocal economy with the double experience of the physician and reader; especially is this experience noticeable in the Chapter on THE ART OF BREATHING, for it is on the proper modes of inspiration and expiration that the whole secret of managing the voice without causing any undue strain to the throat organs depends. Nor can we speak less emphatically in praise of the Chapter on THE HYGIENE OF THE VOICE, in which Dr. Shuldham lays down what in the way of solids and fluids a public speaker or singer should take, so as to avoid on the one hand throat irritation, and on the other any derangement of the stomach, which must react unfavorably on the whole system.

"Dr. Shuldham has given information and suggestions which will be of priceless value to every public speaker."—Interior. "The chapter on the art of breathing, the inspiration and expiration, without unduly straining the throat and vocal cords will be found a good study for all public speakers."—Inter Ocean.



PRICE, SIXTY CENTS, POSTPAID.

 For sale by all booksellers. If your bookseller or newsdealer does not keep it, or will not get it for you, send sixty cents to the publisher and the book will be sent by mail, postpaid.

W. A. CHATTERTON, Publisher, 9 South Canal St., CHICAGO, Ill.

Teachers, Business Men and Bookkeepers!

The condensed but complete treatise on the SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM! Comprising 120 double pages (10x14) on Mercantile Bookkeeping and Banking, $1.00.

Business College.

THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM
BOOK-KEEPING JOURNAL.
A monthly treaties on the following studies:
ADVANCED BOOK-KEEPING,
SHORTHAND, GERMAN, COMMERCIAL LAW, ARITHMETIC, SPELLING, HISTORY, PENMANSHIP, CORRESPONDENCE, GRAMMAR. Price. 25c per copy.

A full course of instruction, books lucluded, time unlimited, $50.00.

Advanced Method of Book-Keeping.
THE SEVEN-ACCOUNT SYSTEM CO.,
(Pamphlets, 5 cents.) 22 N. Clark st., CHICAGO, Ill.

BETWEEN TWO OPINIONS.
The Best Story of the Reform.

Every incident a fact, and every fact a powerful and convincing argument against the saloon and the lodge.

EVERY TEMPERANCE man and woman should read this book. No temperance story like it was ever planned, much less ably executed. A wonderful light is thrown upon the difficulties in the way of prohibition. Learn how they may be avoided.

EVERY ONE who loves to read a good story, chaste and elegant in expression, pure in thought, true in incident, deeply interesting in its narrative, should read this book.

EVERY ONE engaged in the reform against secret orders should by all means read it.

Parents get it for you children. Children get it for your parents.
A very beautiful and appropriate New Year's gift.

Price, only $1.00.

Published by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Sold by all Newsdealers. THREE VALUABLE PERIODICALS. Price 10 cents each.

Johnston's Journal, An illustrated Magazine for the people. Estab'd 1874. Issues every other week. 36 pages. $2 a year.

Industrial America, An Illustrated Popular Record of Progress in the Arts and Sciences 16 pp.; every other week, $2 a yr

The Electrical World. An Illustrated Review of current progress in Electricity and its practical applications. 20 pp. wkly $3 y.

The CHRISTMAS number of JOHNSTON'S JOURNAL, now ready, is UNUSUALLY handsome. Order it and the January 9 issue, in which begins a powerful new serial story, interesting but not sensational. The current numbers of both INDUSTRIAL AMERICA and THE ELECTRICAL WORLD are also very attractive. Postage in U. S. or Canada prepaid. Agents wanted. Any dealer will take your order or subscription; or address, W. J. JOHNSTON, Publisher, 9 Murray st., New York, 48 Congress st., Boston; or 23 Borden Block, Chicago.

CHICKENS

Pay, but they must be managed right to be profitable. If you keep only a dozen, or a thousand, Hens, to know how to care for them in Health, Cure Diseases, Rear Chicks, Build Coops, Breed Fine Birds, etc., etc., you want the

PRACTICAL

POULTRYMAN & FARMER,

A Large, Illustrated, Monthly Magazine, devoted to the interests of Poultry, Pigeons, Pets, and the Farm. Filled with interesting and valuable reading. It circulates from Maine to California—suited to all sections—published both for the Fancier and the Family; its reading matter for old and young—Beginner, Veteran, Breeder, Market Poulterer, Exhibitor, Farm and Home. TOM W. WIDNER, Managing Editor, aided by the largest and best corps of editorial writers in the world. It is the Largest 50-Cent Paper in the World!

It has a record of 18,000 subscribers in FIVE MONTHS! Subscribe now! Sample copies, 5 cents. Be in the fashion.

The Largest and Best book on the Dog ever published. Fiuely illustrated. Over 100 pages. More regarding the ORIGIN, Rearing Keeping, Training and Management of Dogs than can be had in any other book—many of which cost thirty times more. Price 25 cents. Or the paper one year and the book for 65 cents!
We want Good Agents to work for us. BIG Pay! No prizes! No lottery! Send postal note (when convenient) in preference to stamps, and address

THE DOG AND HOW TO TRAIN HIM.

The Practical Poultryman and Farmer,
Rooms 1, 2 and 3, Masonic Temple, WARSAW, INDIANA.

Square, 16mo. handsome cloth binding, mailed free for $1.00.

☞We offer the Christian Cynosure for one year and Webster's Practical Dictionary, postpaid, both for only $2.00. W. I. PHILLIPS.
221 W. Madison St., Chicago.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

COUNTRY.

The Illinois State Board of Agriculture, Thursday, refused to interfere with the sale of butterine or oleomargarine, expressing the belief that the articles are both wholesome and cheap.

Early Saturday morning Ladies' Hall, of Oberlin College, was destroyed by fire, the 100 female students escaping in their night clothes. The loss is about $[illegible] and is fully covered by insurance.

Ex Senator Thurman, as arbitrator between the operators and miners in Ohio, rendered a decision Friday, fixing the rate at [illegible] cents per ton—the price asked by the miners.

In open caucus the Republicans of the Ohio Legislature Thursday night unanimously nominated the Hon. John Sherman for Senator.

Carnegie's blast furnaces at Braddock's, Pa., resumed operations Saturday. Enough non-union men have been secured to replace the strikers. Rioting is threatened.

Dr. Martin White, his wife and two children were found in their home at Battle Creek, Mich. their throats having been cut. It is supposed White became insane, and murdered his family last Sunday night.

Thomas J. Overton, of Sharon, Ga., shot himself dead because his 16-year-old son had become drunk on whisky for which he had been sent by the suicide. Mrs. Overton is said to be dying from fright.

The caving of land over a mine at Boston Run, Pa., Thursday carried down a block of houses, the occupants narrowly escaping with their lives.

Eight additional blocks of houses settled at Boston Run, Pa., Friday, sinking four feet into the ground, the dwellings being twisted out of shape. The people fled in terror, leaving all their affects behind.

Eastern capitalists are said to have perfected a plan for erecting a number of elevators along the various railways in North Dakota, in which each farmer will be assigned a separate bin, and can always have control of his own grain.

The upsetting of a lamp by a dog resulted in a fire Monday morning which destroyed Dunlap's hat works in Brooklyn, entailing a loss of $250,000. The insurance aggregates $200,000.

The injunction against the Musical Union at New York restraining the expulsion of Theodore Thomas, was continued Monday. Mr. Thomas had employed a musician who was not a member of the union.

In the report of the railroad and Warehouse Commission of Illinois it is shown that the gross income of the railways for the year was $194,483,080, a falling off from the previous year of $15,744,988. The gross receipts from the Illinois business were increased $[illegible]. Capital stocks were augmented to the amount of $16,530,668, and the aggregate of stocks and bonded and floating debt reaches $1,454,784,746. Ten corporations paid dividends amounting to $20,175,311, and the 53,091 employes of the roads received for their services $29,856,163. There are in the State 11,-365 miles of tracks, 4,000 miles in excess of the next highest State in the Union, Iowa.

Twelve collieries in the Mahonoy Valley, Pa., have been flooded by the heavy rains and rising streams, and large sections of Williamsport and Lockhaven, Pa., are under water. Tracks have been washed out and telegraph poles levelled, several million feet of logs have been swept away by the floods. In mines near Hazelton, Pa., three mules were drowned, and the pumps are lost.

In the West and Northwest intensely cold weather and high winds prevailed Thursday and Friday, with the thermometer marking 10 to 38 below zero. Reports from St. Paul, Omaha, Sioux City, Topeka, Lincoln, Neb., and other Western points, state that the fierce blizzard piled the snow into huge drifts, and stopping railroad travel. Trains on different roads have been abandoned, and telegraph poles in many sections have been levelled by the wind. Heavy snow and an unusually low temperature is reported from Pittsburg, Cincinnati and Louisville; and in Louisville the coldest weather for years is being experienced. There are fears that the cane-stubble in the sugar-belt will be killed.

The extensive mill buildings in Kensington, near Philadelphia, known as Arrott's mills and Beatty's mills, and occupying two blocks, were destroyed by fire Sunday morning, involving a loss estimated at $1,000,000, pretty well covered by insurance.

The northwest gale continued with great severity all day Sunday along the North Atlantic coast, and it is estimated that more damage has been doue during the past forty eight hours on that part of the coast than for the past ten years. Eight vessels have been reported ashore at Truro and Provincetown, Mass., but no lives were lost. Dispatches from points South, East, and West show that the cold snap continues, interfering greatly with railway traffic. At Pittsburg the snow blockade is unprecedented, railway traffic being entirely abandoned. In Florida the oranges remaining on the trees are frozeu, and their loss will probably be complete.

The schooner Mary G. Farr, of Philadelphia, caught fire at sea, off the New Jersey coast during the storm. The boat was wrecked, and every soul on board was lost.

FOREIGN.

A hurricane along the North coast of Great Britian, Friday, inflicted serious damage to property. An unknown steamer was sunk in the English channel. A snowstorm at Paris caused a cessation of traffic.

At a meeting in Glasgow attended by 6,000 unemployed persons, resolutions were passed appealing to the wealthier classes for assistance.

At the municipal election, Monday, in Toronto, Ont., women voted, and took a deep interest in the contest, supporting the temperance candidate for mayor, who was elected.

Gladstone has summoued the Liberal members of Parliament to a meeting on the 16th instant. He will then make a frank statement of the principles upon which he proposes to settle the Irish question. The Conservative members will hold a meeting on the 16th inst.

Lord Salisbury, the British premier proposes a novel method of settling the home-rule question. He would have the government buy out all the landlords in Ireland, and then reduce rents one half. It woul dinvolve an outlay of about $800,-000,000.

The Greek Government has made overtures to Montenegro looking to the formation of an alliance both offensive and defensive. Prince Bismarck warns Greece that if she engages in war with Turkey she will do so at her own risk.

MARKET REPORTS.

CHICAGO.

Wheat—No. 2		@82
No. 3		70
Winter No 2	92½	96
Corn—No. 2		@36⅜
Oats—No. 2		28¼
Rye—No. 2		58
Bran per ton		11 50
Flour	1 75	@5 00
Hay—Timothy	8 00	@11 50
Mess pork per bbl		10 30
Butter, medium to best	15	@34
Cheese	05	@10
Beans	1 15	@1 65
Eggs		20
Seeds—Timothy	1 65	@1 77½
Flax	1 08	1 12½
Broom corn	04½	@ 10
Potatoes	50	@ 75
Hides—Green to dry flint	06½	@ 14
Lumber—Common	11 00	@18 00
Wool	12	@29
Cattle—Choice to extra	5 30	@6 00
Common to good	2 50	@5 00
Hogs	2 75	@4 15
Sheep	2 50	@4 50

NEW YORK.

Flour	3 00	@5 25
Wheat—Winter	90	@ 95
Spring		91
Corn	46	@51
Oats	35	@44½
Mess Pork		10 25
Eggs		27
Butter	18	36
Wool	13	@37

KANSAS CITY.

Cattle	2 00	@5 25
Hogs	3 50	@3 85
Sheep	1 50	@3 50

THE CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.

The following denominations are committed by vote of their legislative assemblies or by constitution to a separation from secret lodge worship:

Adventists (Seventh-day.)

Baptists—Primitive, Seventh-day and Scandinavian.

Brethreu (Dunkers or German Baptists.)

Christian Reformed Church.

Church of God (Northern Indiana Eldership.)

Congregational—The State Associations of Illiuois and Iowa have adopted resolutions against the lodge.

Disciples (in part.)

Frieuds.

Lutheraus—Norwegian, Danish, Swedish and Synodical Conferences.

Mennonites.

Methodists—Free and Wesleyan.

Methodist Protestant (Minnesota Conference.)

Moravians.

Plymouth Brethren.

Presbyterian—Associate, Reformed and United.

Reformed Church (Holland Branch.)

United Brethren in Christ.

Individual churches in some of these denominations should be excepted, in part of them even a considerable portion.

The following local churches have, as a pledge to disfellowship and oppose lodge worship, given their names to the following list as

THE ASSOCIATED CHURCHES OF CHRIST.

New Ruhamah Cong. Hamilton, Miss.
Pleasant Ridge Cong. Sandford Co. Ala.
New Hope Methodist, Lowndes Co., Miss.
Congregational, College Springs, Iowa.
College Church of Christ, Wheaton, Ill.
First Congregational, Leland, Mich.

BUDS AND BLOSSOMS

AND

FRIENDLY GREETINGS

Is a forty page, illustrated, monthly family magazine, edited by J. F. AVERY, Halifax, N. S.

Price 75 Cents per Year if Prepaid.

Its columns are devoted to Temperance, Missionary Intelligence, Household Hints, Short Stories and Illustrations, making twenty eight pages of reading matter suitable and profitable for young and old, with an average of twelve illustrations in each number, this will give a magazine of 40 pages monthly for 75 cents a year, and will, therefore, be one of the cheapest sold. Moreover it can be relied on as containing wholesome litrature for the home and family. Our object is the extension of purity and knowledge among the people.

"THE WHOLE IS BETTER THAN A PART," AND YOU HAVE IT HERE IN A "NUT-SHELL."

SECRET SOCIETIES ILLUSTRATED.

Containing the signs, grips, passwords, emblems, etc of Freemasonry (Blue Lodge and to the fourteenth degree of the York rite). Adoptive Masonry, Revised Odd-fellowship, Good Templarism, the Temple of Honor, the United Sons of Industry, Knights of Pythias and the Grange, with affidavits, etc. Over 250 cuts, 99 pages, paper cover. Price, 25 cents; $2.00 per dozen.

For sale by the National Christian Association, at Head-quarters for Anti-Secrecy Literature, 221 W. Madison St. Chicago.

the Christian standpoint, and its beautiful and touching descriptions of home life and home duties and heroic self-denyings will waken a responsive echo in every heart, that has not by dissipation lost the taste for the pure joys of home.

Law and Order, Boston.

The book takes high ground for prohibition of the liquor curse, for woman's ballot for home protection, and for a better and more honest brotherhood than is forced by their obligations upon the membefs of secret orders. It is, therefore, a valuable book for several large classes of American readers.

Berea, Kentucky, Evangelist.

The object of the volume is to illustrate the practical workings of Secret Societies, and especially to show how the Lodge upholds the saloon, and this very important design is wrought out with much skill, clearness and power. By reading it temperance people may learn much about the difficultics in the way of prohibition. Though in some sense fiction, still the book is hardly that, since the incidents are, without exception, matters of fact. Our friends will be bettered by reading it. Give it to the children; it may save them from much evil.

OUR CLUB LIST

NOW IS THE TIME TO SUBSCRIBE!

Families are making up their lists of periodicals for the coming year. Friends can order their denominational papers through us and save money.

We still send an extra copy of the Christian Cynosure to those getting up a club of ten at $1.50.

We give below a list of papers which we offer with the Christian Cynosure at reduced rates:

THE CYNOSURE and—
The Christian	$2 50
The American (Washington)	2 50
Western Rural	3 00
The Missionary Review	3 00
Christian Herald (N. Y)	2 75
The Truth (St. Louis)	2 50
Illustrated Christian Weekly	3 90
New York Witness	2 50
Union Signal	3 00
Christian Statesman (Phila.)	3 50
The Interior	3 85
The Independent	4 25
The S. S. Times	3 50
Gospel in all Lands	3 50
The Nation	4 50
New York Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Tribune, Weekly	2 50
Chicago Inter Ocean, Weekly	2 50
Harper's Magazine	4 75
North American Review	5 75
The Century	5 25
Scientific American	4 25
Buds and Blossoms	2 10
Pansy	2 35
Vick's Magazine	2 50
American Agriculturist	2 60

If any complaints arise in regard to any periodical ordered, write direct to the publisher or to us if more convenient and we will forward your request.

If several of the above papers are wanted, or any paper not in this list, write for special rates.

W. I. PHILLIPS, Publisher,
221 W. Madison street, Chicago.

SHORTHAND Writing thoroughly taught by mail or personally. Situations procured all pupils when competent. Send for circular. W. C. CHAFFEE, Oswego, N. Y.

Agents Wanted. The Story of my Life and Art of Money Making; new, finely illustrated. By P. T. BARNUM Low priced. Selling by thousands. Address FORSHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.

GRATEFUL--COMFORTING.

EPPS'S COCOA

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half pound tins by grocers, labelled thus:

JAMES EPPS & CO. Homeopathic Chemists, London, England.

LE PAGE'S LIQUID GLUE

TESTED TO OVER 1600 LBS. TO SQ. INCH

Is used by thousands of first class Manufacturers and Mechanics on their best work. Received GOLD MEDAL, London, '83. Pronounced strongest glue known. Send card of dealer who does not keep it, with five 2c stamps for SAMPLE CAN FREE

Russia Cement Co., Gloucester, Mass.

MASONIC OATHS,

BY

E. Ronayne,

Past Master of Keystone Lodge, No. 639, Chicago.

A masterly discussion of the Oaths of the Masonic Lodge, to which is appended "Freemasonry at a Glance," illustrating every sign, grip and ceremony of the Masonic Lodge. This work is highly commended by leading lecturers as furnishing the best arguments on the nature and actual character of Masonic obligations of any book in print. Paper cover, 207 pages. Price, 40 cents,

National Christian Association,

221 West Madison St. Chicago, Ill.

THE BROKEN SEAL;

Or Personal Reminiscences of the Abduction and Murder of Capt. Wm. Morgan. By Samuel D. Greene.

One of the most interesting books ever published. In cloth, 75 cents; per dozen, $7.50. Paper covers, 40 cents; per dozen, $3.50.

This deeply interesting narative shows what Masonry has done and is capable of doing in the Courts, and how bad men control the good men in the lodge and protect their own members when guilty of great crimes. For sale at 221 W. MADISON ST., CHICAGO, by THE NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

Christian Cynosure.

"IN SECRET HAVE I SAID NOTHING."—Jesus Christ.

VOL. XVIII., No. 18. CHICAGO, THURSDAY, JANUARY 21, 1886. WHOLE No. 821.

PUBLISHED WEEKLY BY THE
NATIONAL CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.

221 West Madison Street, Chicago.

J. P. STODDARD,.....GENERAL AGENT
W. I. PHILLIPS,.....PUBLISHER.

SUBSCRIPTION PER YEAR..... $2.00.
IF PAID STRICTLY IN ADVANCE..... $1.50.

☞No paper discontinued unless so requested by the subscriber, and all arrearages paid.☜

Address all letters for publication to Editor Christian Cynosure, Chicago. Writers' names must always be given. No manuscript returned unless requested and postage enclosed.

Address all business letters and make all drafts and money orders payable to W. I. PHILLIPS, TREAS., 221 West Madison Street, Chicago. Currency by unregistered letter at sender's risk. When writing to change address always give the former address.

[Entered at the Post-office at Chicago, Ill., as Second Class matter.]

CONTENTS.

EDITORIAL:
Notes and Comments..... 1
Editorial Correspondence. 8
Bishop Weaver and the U. B Commission..... 9
Jeff. Davis on Masonry... 9
Redding & Co's. Revelations..... 9
CONTRIBUTIONS:
The Inter-church Convention..... 1
David Bernard..... 2
Seasonable Thoughts for the Careful and Careless 2
The Great Apostacy of the Latter Days—IV..... 2
SELECTED:
The Dissolution of Old Parties at Hand..... 3
A Horrible Initiation..... 3
A Priest-Ridden People... 3
WASHINGTON LETTER..... 4
BIBLE LESSONS..... 6
Lodge Notes..... 6
LECTURE LIST..... 7
REFORM NEWS:
Michigan, Take Notice; Pres. Blanchard in Memphis; From the General Agent; Good Work in Iowa; From the Illinois Agent; At the Front in Ohio.....4,5
CORRESPONDENCE:
Death of Mr. Fee's Daughter; Masonic Outrages; Reform Work with Educators.....5,6
THE HOME..... 10
TEMPERANCE..... 11
LITERATURE..... 12
THE CHURCHES..... 12
THE N. C. A..... 7
THE AMERICAN PARTY..... 7
CHURCHES VS. LODGERY.... 7
FARM NOTES..... 14
IN BRIEF..... 15
BUSINESS..... 13
NEWS OF THE WEEK..... 16
MARKETS..... 16

On the death of Robert Toombs, the famous Southern politician, a few weeks since we used the report of his connection with Freemasonry, to its highest degree, as an evidence of the power of the lodge in the Confederate councils. He was for years the most popular man in the South, and it is believed he might have led the rebellion instead of Davis had he so desired. But, like Andrew Jackson, there is evidence that at the close of his life he was influenced by another than the lodge spirit. Dr. West, of the Advance, writes that he was greatly devoted to his wife, who was a Christian woman, and maintained to the end of her life a controlling influence over him. At her death he said, "The altar which she established in my house, I want to maintain; the God which was hers is my God. I want to love and worship her Saviour, and go where she is." So, in his old age, he publicly confessed his sins and gave his heart to Christ.

The Knights of Labor lodges of Illinois, at their State meeting last week, proclaimed a "boycott" against a number of wholesale boot and shoe firms in Chicago and Peoria which employ convict labor. As a very small part of the trade of these firms depends upon these lodges, the shoemakers are not yet alarmed for their business. Indeed, they seem to regard the opposition to secret societies so strong that some believe the "boycott" will be a good advertisement for their business. The prison labor question has much that may be said on both sides, but in some States where the contract system has been discontinued by act of legislature, it is found that it is better and more practicable than any other scheme yet proposed.

The Knights have succeeded in a more rational boycott in St. Louis, against a saloon-keeper who had offended them in some trifling matter. The fellow held out about two weeks and then surrendered. Now if these valiant "Knights" will proclaim a crusade on the saloons and follow it up until the business is ruined, as they did in St. Louis, the W. C T. U., the churches, temperance societies, and all will applaud their work. But just here is a circumstance that needs explanation. When Powderly, of Scranton, Pa., and his confreres founded the Knights of Labor lodges, they proclaimed loud and long that drinking members would not be received. The Union-Signal and other temperance papers lauded them for this at the time, but the Cynosure mistrusted. It is a question how the refusal to patronize saloons by temperance men could affect the liquor business? If the St. Louis lodge did not patronize the saloon bar, why should the keeper care for their boycott? We should be glad to have an answer from the Signal. Some of us may yet need to learn that when we deal with a secret lodge, things are not always what they seem.

Not long since two infernal machines were picked up in this city, one on the steps of a fine mansion occupied by Gen. McClurg, the other in the C., B. & Q. railway general offices. The Daily News followed up the matter and published last Thursday a very full account of the plans and meetings of the Socialists of this city. Such an exposition produced probably more sensation outside the city than here, where the members of the Socialist societies are known to be foreigners with villainous principles, comparatively few in numbers and with as little influence. They have as much antipathy to the trade unions as for the capitalists, and any demonstration they might make would be supported probably only by the hoodlum class that will join any party that is likely to give them plunder. There is a large class of homeless waifs and tramps which the late cold weather has brought into public notice and for these, besides the lodging and meals furnished by the city, a place of refuge is being provided by private philanthropy.

The temperance people of Iowa are bravely holding what they have gained from the domain of the grog-shop. Des Moines has been a stronghold of the evil, but, by making a flank movement on the saloons, putting the law to the owners of property rented to saloonists, the prohibitionists have caused a great shaking among the dealers. Last week a committee appointed by the Muscatine Temperance Alliance reported in favor of impeaching Judge Walter J. Hayes, of the Davenport district, for various offenses against the temperance laws, chiefly that he does not attempt to enforce the law, and "gives all possible aid and encouragement to the liquor traffic by his charges, opinions, decisions, letters, circulars and interviews with the public press," and has been guilty of gross malfeasance in office, of all which the committee have a bundant proof. Hayes is the judge who first pronounced the prohibitory amendment unconstitutional, and his course ever since that time has been most aggravating to the law-abiding people. It is believed generally that if the case comes to trial before the State Senate Hayes will be impeached. In connection with these movements the annual message of Governor Sherman, just before retiring, and the inaugural address of Governor Larrabee are strongly in favor of the law. The former says, "After quite a thorough and patient investigation I am satisfied that the law is very generally observed throughout the State, and has more of the intelligent public indorsement than when enacted two years ago. It must be continued, therefore, and, as far as reasonably possible, made more rigorous." Governor Larrabee is more emphatic: "Private individuals and and private contributions cannot be relied upon to enforce a law which the ill-gotten money of the saloon and the partisan intrigue of the demagogue aid to defy. It is, under such circumstances, clearly the duty of the State to come to the rescue of the individual. Public funds should be appropriated, and, if necessary, the whole power of the State should be brought into requisition to secure obedience. Whatever authority may be vested in me will be unhesitatingly exercised."

Politics in the United Kingdom are still an enigma. Among the latest pointers to their ultimate solution are: 1. The report that the premier, Lord Salisbury, intends to buy out the landlords of Ireland and rent or sell the lands at very low rates. 2. That there will be an investigation into the late Irish elections, and it is alleged that the revelations will be such as to break up the Parnell party. A London report is as follows: "Parnell's position is perilous. It is rumored that Callan's suit will not be opposed in order to avoid awkward revelations. Nolan will seek a re-election." Meantime the events seem to await the declarations of Gladstone for the settlement of Irish difficulties. If the four sections of the Liberal party shall unite with him his plans will doubtless be carried out whether Parnell supports them or not; but Parnell may not continue to oppose the Liberal party and strengthen the policy of his hereditary foes as he did at the recent elections. However, he might expect to fare better under an official investigation by Salisbury than by a Gladstone government, for the latter would not be in sympathy with the jugglery of the secret orders which are so well understood by the Orangemen, etc., among the Tories, and also by the dynamite and dagger members of the Irish League. Let there be perfect personal freedom and open discussion of public questions, and then the rights of Irishmen will be victorious over all their foes of every name. The purchase by Government of the landlord estates might be a great boon to that fine country when leased or sold at a low rate to the actual farmers. It would raise new questions, form new parties, and with local self-government would soon bequeath to history the old story of the oppression of the Celts by the Anglo-Saxon, and of Romanism by the successors of the great William, Prince of Orange, so differently estimated by the Catholics and Protestants of Ireland.

THE INTER-CHURCH CONVENTION.

BY HON. HALLECK FLOYD.

General councils and conventions for the promotion of Christianity and for the unifying of the body of Christ, are exerting a marvelous influence upon the public mind. A general convention of churches to consider the influence of secret societies upon the Christian church, is certainly a conception worthy of the advanced Christian thought of the present time. The lodge power is an organized force which defers to no other organization. It therefore necessarily becomes the rival of the Christian religion and the Christian church.

The object of the proposed inter-church convention is to enlist and draw together leading men of as many religious bodies as possible, to unify thought upon this grave subject; and to enlist latent forces which only need to be aroused to be widely felt in this great conflict. And it is desired that churches, as far as practicable, be represented by conferences, synods, assemblys and presbyteries. Already a number of ecclesiastical bodies have elected representatives. This is very desirable, for the convention will command greater respect thereby, and it will also have more influence than a mass meeting could have. But none who are in sympathy with the movement should be excluded from participating in the work of the convention.

As to the time and place of holding the convention, I do not feel disposed to make any suggestions at this time. I think the programme ought to be arranged with great care and proper deliberation; and would suggest that the call be not made until leading men in the various Christian churches have signed a formulated call.

I would suggest that a call be formulated at once, and that the signatures of prominent men in all the churches, as far as possible, be obtained for the convention to be held at such time and place as a majority of those signing the call may direct. After a sufficient number shall have signed it, to bring it properly before the public. I am gratified to see the increasing interest in this movement. The best interests of society demand a closer union of the churches and a better understanding as to the methods of opposing evil.

Hoping these suggestions may in some measure promote the cause of righteousness, I submit them to the consideration of the friends of the movement.

Dublin, Ind.

DAVID BERNARD.

BY REV. B. F. WORRELL.

When my eyes fell on the first page of the Cynosure for December 31st, I was a little startled on beholding the shadow of a face into which I had frequently looked not far from fifty years ago, and fancied that the recognition was mutual. And why not? For David, as famous as he was in certain quarters for hurling rocks at the Masonic Goliath, was not above speaking to an "insignificant apprentice," as I was once called by a man from whom we differed in church meeting. For anything we know to the contrary, Bernard was always a welcome visitor at the office of the Norristown Herald and Free Press, which was more than could be said of everyone who was anxious to be posted in the news column before the going forth of the weekly issue.

Of the sermons which he delivered in the Baptist church, of which he was the pastor, I do not remember as much as I do of his conversation when in the office, and especially so when he spoke of those times which tried men's souls. On such occasions the time intervening the click, click of the type falling into the stick would assume greater proportions, and finally cease altogether, until the climax of the narrative was reached, and then the guide was pulled down over the copy as a signal for resuming operations.

In those good olden times the editor's table, the imposing stones, the stands, the racks, the stand galley, the press, the trough, and all the paraphernalia of a first-class village printing office—the old shoe not excepted—was in one room. For this reason I saw and heard David Bernard more frequently than I otherwise would have done had the composing room been in the garret and the editor's chair in the basement of a two-story building.

This much by way of clearing my skirts from the charge of being cowans and eave-droppers when we overheard a conversation between David Bernard and William Ladd, the Apostle of Peace, if not the father of the American Peace Society. Non-resistance was the topic under consideration. After the combatants had been crossing blades for some time, the pugilistic preacher proposed the following hypothetical question: Suppose you were awakened on a given night by some one entering the room where you children were sleeping, the door between their room and yours being open, you saw the villian murder one child after another until all were sleeping in death. This being done, suppose the cut-throat fiend should come into your room and sever the jugular of your wife, and then proceed to do the same for you, would you at any stage of this wholesale butchery offer any resistance to the wrong-doer, by way of saving life and preventing crime? To which a negative reply was given by the man of peace, and supplemented with the remark that he did not believe God would allow his principles to be put to a test so severe, but if it should be he would not attempt to turn aside the death-dealing blow. Whereupon Bernard simply suggested that it would not be well for any person to try that thing on him, as he believed in resisting those who sought his life, and accordingly had slept many a night with an axe near his bed, and that he would have used it on those who were seeking an opportunity to make good their threats against his life for doing as Morgan had done, namely, letting into the minds of a vast number of persons the much-needed "Light on Masonry."

It may have been during Elder Bernard's pastorate, but of that I am not certain, that an Anti-slavery convention was holden in the Baptist church in Norristown. At all events, it was during those troublous times when Liberty Hall, in Philadelphia, was burned by a pro-slavery mob. Lucretia Mott, Isaac J. Hooper and other Friends were in attendance. Before the close of the convention fears were entertained that the church might share the same fate as the Hall, during a certain night. Accordingly several young men (the writer being of the number) were appointed to hover around the building instead of going to bed, perhaps not to much to guard and preserve the endangered property as to run, if needs be, to the engine-house and ring the alarm bell. Well, it matters not at this remove of time, what we would have done. Suffice it to say, we occasionally walked around Zion until the morning dawned, only too glad at finding no one on whom to reck our vengeance for the uncomfortable hours spent out of bed for nothing.

The last time I saw the Elder he was in Chicago, about the year 1847, when I had the pleasure of hearing him lecture, and of exchanging with him a few words of reminiscence. Shortly after he left the city there came to my ears, unsought, the declaration that he had gone South and was killed as the outcome of some sort of unpleasantness in which he was unfortunate enough to figure. The story seemed to be so straight, and the sources whence it came so respectable, that for a season I gave credit to it, saying from the depth of my heart, "What a pity! How have the mighty fallen!" But I forgive myself for believing a story against a man who had made himself obnoxious to the brethren of the mystic tie, and hope that the manes of Bernard will not put in an appearance some of these dark nights and chide me for folly, but rather forgive the sin of ignorance. I know better now, having learned a few lessons in this direction in a school taught by one Experience, and, therefore, am prepared to accept as quite true the following:

"A serpent bit a slanderer's side,
What then? The slanderer lived—the serpent died."

Olathe, Jan., 1886.

SEASONABLE THOUGHTS FOR THE CAREFUL AND CARELESS.

BY REV. J. F. AVERY.

The blessings of the past year, and the mercy of the present, and the opportunities of the future, should stir our hearts in thankfulness to Him who was, and is, and is to come. He came, bringing peace and good will to men, at great cost and price. He is coming again without sin, the victorious King, to judge his enemies and reward his servants. Now is the accepted time of salvation, the day of peace wherein we can work and fulfil his will and the great purpose of sparing mercy.

Do I live the Gospel? Am I a living epistle known and read of all men? Do I so love and live that men take knowledge of me? What have I done in years past for Jesus? What am I planning to do for 1886? How much do I deny self to spread the saving knowledge of peace on earth, good will to men, among the nations afar off?

Take a pen, sit down, calculate, write quickly how much thou owest, then what thou has paid my Lord. Subtract, and then ponder the question, Will a man rob God? Have we brought in all the tithes, and honored God with our substance? Do we believe that whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap, and that the liberal soul shall be made fat, whilst the sparing hand shall find and reap a scant harvest in the end of the world?

The disciples had to begin at Jerusalem, where Jesus died, making it the center of Gospel geography. To-day we rejoice in the success of missions. Who can question the secret power by which such wondrous results were accomplished—namely, "The presence of a living, sympathetic Christ." Contrast the past with the present condition of the world with respect to missions, it proves that practically all the world is now open to the missionary. This plenteous harvest means increased responsibility to the laborers and Christians everywhere. Past success should fill our souls with holy enthusiasm, and lead to faithful continuance in well doing.

Office Buds and Blossoms, Halifax, N. S.

THE GREAT APOSTASY OF THE LATTER DAYS.—IV.

BY CYNTHIA DERBYSHIRE.

I have now presented a few of the reasons which incline me to believe that the great apostasy foretold in the Divine Scriptures is now upon us, and rapidly progressing towards its full consummation, and development. Much more might be said than has been; but it is hoped that if the attention of Christians is turned to the subject, little more will be necessary.

It may be asked, how, or on what grounds, these particular prophecies are attributed to the present time in distinction from those periods of the world's history which are either past, or yet to come. The answer to this question will necessitate a chronological review of the times and seasons, as expressed in the prophecies. I will try to do this as briefly as I can. But it may be first observed that the descriptions apply to the time when the thing that is foretold has reached its summit of power and influence, and from this point we are permitted to look back at its beginning.

The time of the first seal commences at the day of Pentecost, when the pure Gospel of salvation started its saving mission in the world. This Gospel is the white horse, and the first seal.

The second seal and red horse commenced when certain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, and said, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved." Here was the beginning of that spirit of dissension and division among Christians, which afterward so distracted the whole Christian world, particularly in the fourth century, when the evil was at its height. It was war and bloodshed in the world and bitter animosity and persecution in the church. This horse was red with human blood.

Controversy prevented the shepherds from properly feeding the flock of God, and we have next a spiritual famine, represented by a black horse, or as the third seal. This is the kind of famine foretold by the prophet. Amos 8: 11. "Behold the days come, saith the Lord God, that I will send a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirst for water, but of hearing the words of the Lord; and they shall wander from sea to sea, and from the north even to the east; they shall run to and fro to ask the word of the Lord and shall not find it." Yet it shall not be absolute starvation, for something shall be saved for seeking souls, as is shown by the "measure of wheat for a penny." This third seal began to open in the third century.

The fourth seal shows a pale horse which is spiritual death. He is in the fifth century. This commences when the reading of the Bible was first forbidden.

The fifth seal is to be referred to the latter part of the fourth century when Christianity was established as the religion of the Roman empire. The Christians would naturally think that persecutions were done with, and that vengeance would now be rendered against those who had caused the death of the martyrs, but the Holy Ghost here corrects their hope, by telling them that more martyrs must suffer, but those already slain should rest. Rest implies a state of comfort; and their memory should be rescued from the obliquy which malevolent heathenism had cast upon them. This seems to have been the time when most of the histories which have come down to us giving accounts of those early martyrs, were written. This seal runs into the fifth century.

The sixth seal covers the time from the beginning to the ending of the great apostasy of the dark ages, till the time when some signs of the Reformation began to appear, as is shown by the great increase in the number of true Christians, described from the ninth to the fourteenth verse of the seventh chapter. It is a very long seal and has a long description.

The seventh seal opened in the fourteenth century, and contains the Reformation, and subsequent future of the Christian world. After the Reformation had been established, as described from the first to the fifth verses of chapter eight, seven angels with seven trumpets, prepared themselves to sound. From these trumpets we gather some idea of the progress of prophetic time.

And when the first trumpet sounded there followed hail and fire mingled with blood. This is that fanatical spirit which worked so much trouble soon after the Reformation was started, by means of the Anabaptists, Fifth Monarchy men, and Ranters. It resulted from a partial reception of the truth, while the minds of its victims were yet very much in the dark on many points. Increase of light and knowledge afterward settled all these people into staid and sober followers of Jesus, and established them in the grace of God.

The second trumpet was followed by a great mountain which was cast into the sea. This was Napoleon Bonaparte with his burning, fiery, war spirit, thrown into the armaments of Europe, producing a wonderful convulsion, and tearing up of old feudal and hierarchical systems, thus preparing a way for a more free inculcation of the Gospel of Christ.

The third trumpet is followed by a falling star, which is called Wormword, and represents a backsliding spirit. After having been brought out of the apostasy of Roman Catholicism, this backsliding spirit falls back, turns back again towards the weak and beggarly elements of ritualism and Romanism. It may be named ritualism, and in some it falls into Romanism with Dr. Newman, or into ritualism with Dr. Pusey, or into the most ritualistic of the dissenters, or by striving to introduce more ritualistic observances into its present relations.

When the fourth trumpet sounded, the third part of the sun, which is the church, or rather the righteousness of the church, and the third part of the moon, which represents the world, the civil, political and learned world, and the third part of the stars were smitten with darkness. This is the dark blot of slavery, and though slavery is removed, the darkness that was caused by it yet remains on our land, while in other lands the evil is not yet removed.

The fifth and sixth trumpets have been described, and we are brought to our own times under the sounding of the sixth trumpet. The sixth trumpet like the sixth seal is long, but not so long as was the sixth seal.

The reader will perceive that these calculations place us far down the stream of time, and show us to be deeply involved in one of the apostacies of the latter days. The great solemnity of this view has led to great plainness of speech, for when we think of the awful danger in which so many are involved, we cannot wait for honeyed, or polished phraseology in which to lift high the voice of warning, and of exhortation, that these may see their lost and undone condition, and be led hastily to flee from the wrath to come; while so far from entertaining any bitterness, or enmity, our hearts are moved with alarm and fear on their account, which is awakened by Divine love. For as we long to be wholly, and gloriously saved, so would we desire that every human soul might be bonded in the everlasting covenant of grace in the Lord Jesus, which is the only assurance of true prosperity, both in this life, and in that which is to come.

Ypsilanti, Mich.

THE DISSOLUTION OF OLD PARTIES AT HAND.

On the previous page we have noted the effort of certain earnest members of the Republican party to lead that party up to a higher ground on the temperance question. We believe that this movement emanates from sincere men, and we know that it represents the convictions of a great body of voters who have not yet seen their way clear to leave a party which has rendered such services to the nation. The fact that no election is now pending, is further proof of honesty and good faith, since evidently, it is no mere device to catch votes, but a fair and honorable effort to influence the action of the party. Its influence in one direction or another, cannot fail to be considerable. Either the party will yield to this effort or it will refuse to do so. If it yields, the saloon wing of the party will secede. If it refuses to yield, those who are making this attempt will go over to the Prohibitionists. The loss of either of these sections, however, will be fatal to Republican ambition. That is why we believe that the dissolution of old parties is at hand, and that within a few years we shall see new dividing lines drawn across the political field.

We confess, too, that the breaking up of existing party organizations seems to us to be desirable. We are not anxious to see the Republican party espouse the cause of prohibition. Its leaders, with some honorable exceptions, are not in sympathy with the temperance reformation. They are not generally total abstainers. They have for years been hand in hand with the liquor power. They have enacted and repealed laws at its bidding; have spent money in saloons to influence elections; have steadily denied the prayers and resisted the arguments of the "temperance fanatics." They would adopt the Prohibition platform only by constraint, not willingly or of a ready mind. They would have no zeal to pass stringent anti-liquor laws, or to enforce them carefully. They are not the men to be entrusted with the carrying out of the new policy. What is wanted is not only new measures, but new men to give them effect. The Republican party has cast away its opportunity. It would not hear the call of principle or of duty. It was not willing to risk defeat for the cause of temperance; it will not now be permitted to continue in power by its help.

There is another reason why the wisest statesmanship prefers at this hour to see the temperance reformation entrusted to a new party. The Republican party can never unite the friends of temperance North and South. There is a vast body of Southern Democrats, and many in the North, who are fast friends of prohibition. These cannot easily be carried over into the Republican party. The South will not willingly accept prohibition at the hands of Republicans of the North. But the South can be enlisted in a new party for this purpose. Before the advent of such a party sectional lines and color lines will fade out of sight. Witness the late election in Atlanta, where the whiskey question was the sole issue. Let parties array themselves along this line, ignoring past controversies, and the same results will follow everywhere. This is the surest way to secure to the negro his rights, and to close up the chasm which has so long yawned between the North and the South.

We have hopes, too, that the new or nascent party will avow itself a distinctly Christian party, and will stand for Christian ideas in American politics. Together with the American party, which may be accounted as an integral part of the same reform movement, it is thus far the only party in our history which has acknowledged the obligation of God's law, or declared for a policy because it is right in the eyes of the Ruler of Nations. The platform on which Abraham Lincoln was elected breathed not a hint of the moral wrongfulness of slavery. The burden of its charge was that it was a sectional institution, and had no claims to be made national. The new party of to-day acknowledges right human laws to be a transcript of the divine law, denounces the drink traffic as an offence against God, and, in some of its State conventions at least, has declared in favor of the maintenence of the Sabbath, and the reformation of our marriage and divorce laws in accordance with the law of God. We have a hope that the same party, or the party which may yet be formed under some broader name for the same general purpose, will bear this character yet more distinctly and will more frankly avow this Christian purpose. We have no such hope of the Republican party, even though it should place a temperance plank in its platform. For these reasons we watch with interest passing political changes, and are full of hope as to the prospects of the near future.—Christian Statesman.

A HORRIBLE INITIATION.

THE SOCIETY OF THE UNITED BROTHERS.

Rev. John Boyes, the cultured correspondent of the Cynosure in England, some time since sent the following account of a continental secret society which was printed in the Newcastle Chronicle. It suggests what schools of assassination and misrule these European lodges must be. In them our Socialists have their birth. The article reads:

A great number of secret associations sprang up during the latter days of the reign of Napoleon, and with these many strange and dramatic episodes are connected. The following, which is an account given of the initiation of a member into the "Society of the United Brothers," and which is copied from "Tales by Flood and Field," may throw some light upon secret associations, and at the same time prove interesting: "An officer of the French army, having incurred the suspicion and resentment of the Emperor, thought it expedient to abandon his country and take refuge in one of the Austrian provinces, and here he became initiated into a society which had for its object the hurling to the ground of the Colossus, whose arm smote and governed the whole continent of Europe with a sceptre of iron. One day a letter was brought to him containing the usual signs and passwords of the society, and requiring him to repair on the following night to a secluded spot in a forest, where he would meet some of his associates. He went, but found nobody. His orders were repeated at the interval of a few days, and again he sought the appointed place. On his second appearance at the rendezvous, after waiting some time he was on the point of turning when loud cries arrested his attention. Drawing his sword, he hastened to the spot whence they seemed to proceed, and was fired upon by three men, who seeing that he remained unwounded instantly took to flight; but at his feet lay a bleeding corpse, in which, by the feeble light of the moon, he in vain sought for tokens of animation. He was yet bending over the dead man, when a detachment of chasseurs, summoned apparently by the noise of the pistols discharged at himself, came suddenly up and arrested him as the assassin. He was loaded with chains, tried the next day, and condemned to die for his supposed crime. His execution was ordered to take place at midnight. Surrounded by the ministers of justice, he was led at a slow pace, by the light of torches and amid the funeral tolling of bells, to a vast square, in the center of which was a scaffold environed by horsemen; beyond these were a numerous group of spectators, who muttered impatiently, and at intervals sent forth a cry of abhorrence. The victim mounted the scaffold, his sentence was read and the last act of the tragedy was on the point of fulfilment when an officer let fall a word of hope. An edict had just been promulgated by the Government offering pardon and life to any condemned criminal who would disclose the members and secret tokens of a particular association, the existence of which was suspected; it was that of which the Frenchman to whom these words were addressed had lately become a member. He was questioned, but denied all knowledge of the society. They urged him to confess, with promises of additional reward; his only reply was his demand for immediate death. His initiation was completed. All that had passed was a terrible trial of his fidelity; those who surrounded him were members of the society."

Heaven is a resting place from toil; the only port that is always calm.

Real greatness does not depend on the things we do, but on the mind with which we do hem.

A PRIEST-RIDDEN PEOPLE.

[London Christian World.]

A Waldensian pastor was lately traveling through the beautiful island of Sardinia, and some extracts from his journal will doubtless be of interest to our readers. They have been translated from the Italian, and forwarded to us by the Rev. R. S. Ashton:

"At Oschiri I saw a peasant-poet who has suffered much persecution at the hands of the priests, owing to the fact that one of his poems contained an attack upon the State religion and a denial of the existence of hell. He was dragged before the civil tribunal and convicted, but was released on appeal. The priests, however, continue to persecute him. They forbid their penitents to read his poetry, and refuse absolution to any who admit that they possess his works.

"At Senori the women wear a peculiar and expensive costume. I saw one young bride whose dress cost £26. A number of them came to the house of the schoolmaster, who is a Protestant at heart. In a neighboring village I met with a woman who had flung the Bible away because it condemned marriage. Her absurd notion arose from her happening to see the words, 'Blessed are the breasts which never gave suck.' She and her father also thought Jesus vindictive, because he had overthrown the tables of the money-changers. And nothing that I could say would remove their prejudices.

"At Usini, a village of 2,000 inhabitants, the principal man is a Catholic, but thoroughly skeptical. The Bible he regards as a mass of fables and immoral stories. His wife, who was present, and who could talk of nothing save saints and Our Lady, said she only wished she were a man, and she would contend with me by means of the tongue and a stick. Thereupon her husband interposed, saying that Jesus bids us love our enemies. But she would not be pacified. She persisted that I had come there to send people to hell, or to buy them over to my religion, but, said she, 'you will not be able to buy any here.' The conversation with this strange couple lasted four hours, and on leaving I said to myself, 'Here we see how scepticism and Catholicism unite to oppose the truth.'

"In Alghero, an important town of 11,000 inhabitants, I first of all found out some of the principal people, and especially a retired captain. They were favourable to Protestant doctrines, but unwilling to incur the odium of opening their houses for a meeting. The fact is the priest is all powerful through the women who go to the confessional. He gets them to give up the Bibles which their husbands have bought from the colporteur. But not infrequently the husbands have torn out a few leaves or the whole book of Psalms, which they carry with them in their pocket-books. In Sassari, where there are a few Protestants, I was called on to bury a child. After a service at the house of mourning, the procession started for the grave, headed by the town band, and attended by a large number of persons. A festa was being celebrated at the cemetery, which thus happened to be crowded. Taking my stand on the base of a large crucifix in the center of the place, I preached to the thousands around for nearly an hour, and not a person moved. As they left the place some one was overheard saying, 'He spoke about Christ, therefore he is not a Protestant, but a Christian.' Cagliari is one of the chief towns of Sardinia. Its patron-saint is St. Efesio, and a German Catholic has published a work to show that the worship of this saint goes back to pagan times, when Cagliari was founded by the Carthagenians, and is a relic of the old worship of Baal and Moloch. The difficulty of work in Sardinia is great and manifold. The dialects are numerous. Ignorance and corruption abound. Perfidy is a pretty general characteristic of the people. In this island you find yourselves as it were in the Middle Ages. Nevertheless, 'everything is possible with God.'"

What is principle? Yonder is a grand old ocean steamer, and when the wind blows she spreads her sails and works her steam and on she goes, and when the wind lulls, the engineer turns his throttle wider open and she goes at the rate of fifteen miles an hour whether the wind blows or not. And that is the difference between principle and feeling.—Sam Jones.

The report of the Grand Lodge of the Independent Order of Good Templars just published shows a net loss of 235 members during the year and several charters surrendered. This fact coupled with the rapid growth of open societies like the W. C. T. U. indicates that the most successful and enthusiastic workers (for temperance) have not found the lodge the best means for advancing their cause.—Christian Statesman.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

DEAR CYNOSURE:—The great Arctic wave that has spread over the entire land reached here on the evening of the 8th, and brought the first fall of snow. Since then the weather has been severely cold, and the sleighing excellent. Building, that had gone on without cessation up to that time, was suddenly stopped; there are many out of employment, and there is much suffering among the poor. Nevertheless, the sleigh-riders hold high carnival on Sunday, and Pennsylvania avenue was thronged with elegant turn-outs, drawn at great speed. This weather drives to our mission rooms many houseless, homeless wretches, generally made so by persistent drunkenness. One poor man, who had been turned out by his kindred and spent a night of extreme suffering in walking the streets, made up his mind that he would arise and go to his Father. He came into our mission on Sunday night and with much trembling and physical weakness made confession and asked our prayers. Before our meeting closed he professed to find peace with God and seems to be fully redeemed from the dominion of sin. While we rejoice over such as are thus delivered from the bondage of Satan, our responsibilities by no means cease when they are converted. They have only just begun, and how to supply their needs in all respects taxes all our energies.

Among the many institutions for the benefit of the poor is the Epiphany Mission in the southwest part of the city, where, together with Christian instruction, sandwiches, cakes and coffee are served to all who come. Among its patrons and workers is the daughter of Chief Justice Waite.

Congress is wrestling with the silver question without much prospect of effecting any change in existing laws. Doubtless, one of the best methods of settling the silver question would be to pay all government obligations, and certainly the salaries of Congressmen, in the Bland dollars. What is just for the laborer, who earns his dollar a day, is certainly just for the Congressman who gets twenty dollars for a day's work of doubtful utility, and for the bondholder whose money is exempt from taxation.

